Resources and Guidance on Finding a Job in Political Science

Hundreds of academic positions are advertised each year in political science. Finding the openings is the easy part; knowing how to approach the application and interview process is a little more challenging. At APSA, we have collected resources to assist candidates in the academic job search. We would like to highlight a few of these key resources here. The complete list of job resources is available online at www.apsanet.org/jobs.

eJobs: This online resource contains comprehensive online listing of political science jobs, is updated daily with new job listings and candidate resumes, and is fully searchable by field of interest, name of employer/candidate, region, keyword, position, salary, type of institution, and most recent posts.

Data on Jobs Market: APSA gathers and releases data regarding the placement of political science Ph.Ds. View this information at www.apsanet.org/content_7623.cfm.

Mentoring: Enroll in the APSA Mentoring Program online at www.apsanet.org/mentoring.

eJobs Placement Interview Services: The eJobs Annual Meeting Placement Interview Service provides space and facilities for employers who have eJobs posted to interview candidates at the APSA meeting. Many other conferences, such as the Northeastern and Western, also use the APSA online service to schedule placement interviews. Check the listings online in eJobs.

Ethics Guide: The APSA Guide to Professional Ethics in Political Science includes specific guidance on hiring and employment practices. Order a print copy or view online at www.apsanet.org/ethics.

Asking the Right Questions: APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask Program

Asking the right questions provides valuable information for career decisions. As part of the APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask (JCQ) Program participating political science departments have agreed to answer the following questions from job candidates.

Salary

1. What is the salary structure?
2. How is salary normally negotiated?
3. How are annual increases handled?
4. Is there an automatic escalator to ensure the salaries of future hires will not outpace those of existing department members?

Service Activities

1. What are the expectations of pre-tenure and tenured faculty regarding:
 - departmental and institutional committee work,
 - professional or disciplinary activities, and
 - outreach activities to communities external to institution?

Research Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
 - access to research materials and equipment,
 - the employment of research assistants,
 - research expenses on/off campus, and
 - travel expenses for conferences?

2. What departmental or institutional resources are available to seek external funding and to administer external funding awards?

Teaching Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
 - the development of teaching expertise,
 - innovations in teaching, and
 - the introduction of new courses and new technologies?
2. What are departmental expectations regarding:
 - the average course load,
 - the number of different courses taught by faculty, and
 - advising of graduate and undergraduate students?

Tenure, Renewal, and Annual Review

1. What policies and procedures govern the granting of tenure, renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty, and annual reviews of faculty performance?
2. What are the department's expectations for successful performance leading to the granting of tenure or renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty?
3. What are the department's expectations for a positive annual review?

Mentoring and Faculty Support Initiatives

1. What attention does the department give to integrating new faculty into the department, the institution, and in the profession?
2. Does the department or institution have programs that address:
 - the employment of dual-career professional couples,
 - family needs of faculty and staff, and
 - issues associated with minority faculty and staff?

Health and Life Insurance

1. What are the plans offered?
2. How are benefits disbursed?
3. What are the out-of-pocket expenses?
4. Are partners and/or children covered, and to what extent?
5. What portion of my paycheck will be deducted for these benefits?

Retirement

1. How many types of retirement plans are offered?
2. What is the matching percentage of the institution?
3. Is contribution required (and how much)?

ADMINISTRATION

George Washington University

Rank: Professor (Open Rank) of Political Management and Legislative Affairs Program Director, Graduate School of Political Management (GSPM)

The College of Professional Studies (CPS) of The George Washington University invites applications from qualified applicants for this open rank full-time fiscal year faculty position with an administrative appointment as the Director of the Legislative Affairs Program at the Graduate School of Political Management. This is a twelve-month, non-tenure-track, renewable appointment with an initial appointment period of three years, beginning as early as January 1, 2020.

The GSPM master's degree in Legislative Affairs program educates experienced professionals in Congressional operations, how procedures shape policy outcomes, and how entities like constituents, the executive branch, and lobbyists impact the work of Congress. (For more information on the program, see gspm.gwu.edu). Legislative Affairs is one of four degree programs in the Graduate School of Political Management, together with Political Management, Strategic Public Relations and a Spanish-language degree in Political Communication and Strategic Governance.

Duties and Responsibilities:

The successful candidate will be responsible for teaching 4 courses per year (over 3 terms), undertaking research, participating in public thought leadership and media opportunities, advising students, contributing to the school's marketing and recruiting efforts, offering curricular and program support, coordinating comprehensive exams, monitoring the Army Fellows Program, recruiting and onboarding part-time faculty, and participating in the advancement of GSPM's mission via service.

Basic Qualifications:

Applicants must have: 1) an advanced degree such as a PhD, a law degree, or other relevant degree by the date of appointment; 2) research and teaching experience in the field of legislative affairs; 3) experience in politics and policymaking at the national level; and 4) a strong working knowledge of the politics and culture of Capitol Hill.

How to apply: Complete an online faculty application at <http://www.gwu.jobs/postings/69277> and upload a cover letter and Curriculum Vitae.

Only complete applications will be considered. Review of applications will begin on September 13, 2019 and will continue until the position is filled.

Employment offers are contingent on the satisfactory outcome of a standard background screening.

The university is an Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer that does not unlawfully discriminate in any of its programs or activities on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, disability, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, or on any other basis prohibited by applicable law.

New York University

Rank: Assistant/Associate/Full Professor of Public Service

Subfield(s): Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

Specializations: American Politics, Bureaucracy & Organizational Behavior, Electoral Systems

Description:

The Robert F. Wagner Graduate School of Public Service at New York University invites applications for an open-rank tenure-track or tenured professor position with appointment to begin September 1, 2020. We are particularly interested in candidates with expertise and a record of research in American politics and a specialization in public administration, public management, executive politics, bureaucratic politics (e.g., agency design, management, rulemaking, program implementation), policy implementation, voting and elections, or public opinion. Successful candidates will teach in our Master of Public Administration program and will have demonstrated excellence in research.

NYU Wagner is a multidisciplinary school that prepares public service leaders to translate ideas into actions that have an effective and lasting impact on the public good. Wagner's nearly 40 full-time faculty members are trained in a wide variety of disciplines and share a commitment to addressing issues of public importance in their teaching and research. Wagner faculty members collaborate with other schools and departments across the University, including the Departments of Politics, Economics, and Sociology in Arts & Science; School of Law; Stern School of Business; Tandon School of Engineering; and the College of Global Public Health.

Qualifications:

A Ph.D. in political science, public policy, public administration, or a related field is required and must be conferred by August 31, 2020.

Application Instructions:

Qualified candidates may apply using the following link: <https://apply.interfolio.com/66363>

Candidates should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, two completed research papers, and three letters of reference. Because diversity is an important part of the mission at Wagner and the University, candidates should also describe how they would address issues of equity, diversity, and inclusion in their teaching.

Application review will begin on October 1, 2019, and will continue until the position is filled.

AMERICAN GOVERNMENT AND POLITICS

Washington University in St. Louis

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associates in Religion and Politics
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Open

The John C. Danforth Center on Religion and Politics seeks applications from junior scholars and recent Ph.D. graduates for up to four postdoctoral fellowships in residence at Washington University in St. Louis. The appointment is for one year, renewable for a second year. Eligible applicants must complete the Ph.D. by July 1, 2020, and have completed it no earlier than January 1, 2015. In exceptional cases a qualified applicant holding a J.D., without the Ph.D., may be considered. Research associates will spend most of their time pursuing research and writing for their own projects. They will also serve the intellectual life of the Danforth Center on Religion and Politics through participation in its biweekly interdisciplinary seminar and events hosted by the Center. Their teaching responsibilities will include: 1) developing one course per year to complement and contribute to the Center's curricular offerings, and 2) possibly assisting in one additional course each year (depending on the particular teaching needs of the Center). Washington University in St. Louis is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer and especially encourages members of underrepresented groups to apply.

Required Qualifications: Applicants should hold a doctorate in religious studies, politics, anthropology, law, philosophy, theology, American studies, history, area studies, sociology, or another relevant field. Scholars should be engaged in projects centrally concerned with religion and politics in the United States, historically or in the present day.

Application Instructions: Applicants must send all of the following information as a single pdf file to the Center at rap@wustl.edu:

- 1) Cover letter including an overview of the postdoctoral research project
- 2) Current curriculum vitae
- 3) Relevant writing sample (25-35 pages)
- 4) Two undergraduate course proposals (a summary paragraph for each will suffice)

Applicants should also arrange to have three letters of recommendation submitted on their behalf to rap@wustl.edu.

Applications are due in full by December 1, 2019. Applicants will be notified of fellowship decisions by March 2, 2020. For more information, contact the Center at (314) 935-9345 or via e-mail at rap@wustl.edu.

We particularly welcome candidates specializing in the diverse factors shifting the landscape for African American politics in recent decades. We encourage candidates who engage in public discourse of their research beyond formal academic circles, though this is not required. The successful candidate's tenure home will be in Africana Studies, with a partial appointment in Political Science, and with teaching and service responsibilities divided between the two Departments.

As one of 34 public US institutions that belong to the Association of American Universities, Rutgers is among the leading research universities in the US and Canada. Rutgers University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer, with a historic commitment to diversity. The Africana Studies and Political Science Departments are strongly committed to increasing the diversity of our faculty. Women, minorities, and members of under-represented groups are encouraged to apply. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability, protected veteran status or any other classification protected by law.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, writing sample, and a list of three references to: <http://jobs.rutgers.edu/postings/99091>. Review of applicants will begin on October 15th and continue until the job is filled.

Confidential letters of recommendation should be emailed directly by the referee to reference@aficana.rutgers.edu – the applicant's name should appear in the subject line.

All job offers are contingent upon successful pre-employment background screening prior to commencement of employment.

University of California, Berkeley

Rank: Assistant Professor - American Politics of Race - Department of Rhetoric

Recruitment Period

Open August 20th, 2019 through Tuesday, Oct 15, 2019 at 11:59pm (Pacific Time)

Description

The Department of Rhetoric at the University of California, Berkeley seeks applications for a tenure-track faculty position at the Assistant Professor level in the field of American politics of race, with an expected start date of July 1, 2020. At the time of application, applicants must either hold a Ph.D. (or equivalent international degree) or be enrolled in a Ph.D. or equivalent international degree-granting program. The Department is interested in candidates who are committed to advancing equity and inclusion through their research, teaching, mentorship, and service. Diversity, equity, and inclusion are core values at UC Berkeley and in the Department of Rhetoric. Our excellence can only be realized by faculty, students, and staff committed to these values.

Preferred Qualifications: Applicants should demonstrate evidence of a strong humanistic research agenda and excellent scholarly potential in areas that complement existing strengths in the Department, as well as an ability and willingness to teach a wide range of courses at the graduate and undergraduate levels, to mentor graduate students in the Ph.D. program, and to participate in departmental and campus life. While the area of specialization is open, the Department strongly values interdisciplinary and theoretical approaches that address the centrality and intersectionality of racism in American politics. Applicants whose research and teaching are centered in the rhetoric of political theory, critical theory, and race in the United States are strongly encouraged to apply. The Department welcomes applicants with specializations in such areas as Black, Latinx, and Native American political thought; and critical race/indigeneity approaches to American politics. All additional specializations are welcome, including those whose scholarship address questions of democracy, citizenship, environment and land, violence, slavery, colonial settlement and extermination, immigration, poverty, law, civil rights, and gender and sexuality; the history, culture, and politics of contemporary struggles for racial justice; and comparative perspectives.

To apply for consideration, please visit the following link, which includes applicant documentation requirements: <https://aptrkr.com/1587923>

Note: a diversity statement is required of all applicants, consisting of a 2-3 page statement on contributions to diversity, equity, and inclusion, including information about the applicant's understanding of these issues, record of activities to date, and specific plans and goals for advancing equity and inclusion if hired as a Berkeley faculty member (for additional information go to <https://ofew.berkeley.edu/recruitment/contributions-diversity>).

All letters of recommendation will be treated as confidential as per University of California policy and California state law. Please refer potential referees to the UC Berkeley statement of confidentiality (<http://apo.berkeley.edu/evaltr.html>) prior to submitting their letters, including when their letters are provided via a third party (i.e., dossier service or career center).

Application deadline: October 15, 2019. Late applications will not be accepted.

Please direct questions to mailto:rhetoric_search@berkeley.edu

The University of California is committed to addressing the family needs of faculty. For information about potential relocation to Berkeley, or career needs of accompanying partners and spouses, please visit: <http://ofew.berkeley.edu/new-faculty>

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, age or protected veteran status. Indiana University, Bloomington

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor American Politics

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Public Law

American Politics (Assistant or Associate Professor)

The Department of Political Science at Indiana University-Bloomington invites applications for one full-time tenure track professor in the field of American Politics, beginning August of 2020. Our goal is to hire the strongest candidate available who is doing interesting and important scholarly research on American politics, including but not limited to political behavior, political institutions, identity politics, American political development, and/or American political thought. This position is at the rank of Assistant Professor or Associate Professor. Candidates should demonstrate broad theoretical interests, active research agendas with the promise for publication in high-quality venues, strong teaching credentials, and proficiency in appropriate research methods. In addition to maintaining an ongoing research program, this faculty member would be expected to teach courses at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, and to participate actively in departmental activities.

Successful candidates will have completed their Ph.D. degree in Political Science by August 1, 2020.

The College of Arts and Sciences is committed to building and supporting a diverse, inclusive, and equitable community of students and scholars.

Indiana University is an equal employment and affirmative action employer and a provider of ADA services. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, ethnicity, color, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, genetic information, marital status, national origin, disability status, or protected veteran status.

To ensure full consideration, applications should be submitted by September 30, 2019; however, applications will be considered until the position is filled.

Applicants should submit a letter of application, complete curriculum vitae, two publications or papers, course syllabi and summary of teaching evaluations, and have at least three letters of recommendation forwarded to us. All application materials should be submitted online to the attention of Lauren M. MacLean, Department Chair, Department of Political Science at: <http://indiana.peopleadmin.com/postings/8344>. Questions regarding the position or application process should be directed to Jessica Williams at 812-855-1209; email: jeewilli@indiana.edu; Department of Political Science, 210 Woodburn Hall, 1100 E. University of Texas at El Paso

Rank: Public Policy and/or American Behavioral Politics

The University of Texas at El Paso (UTEP) invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track position in Public Policy and/or American Behavioral Politics beginning August 2020. As a Carnegie R1 university, we seek scholars with a strong research agenda in either of these specializations to help grow the prestige of our department. The successful candidate will help to continue UTEP’s strong tradition of providing under-represented students with access to a quality education and facilitating their success in professional careers. The successful candidate will teach undergraduate and graduate courses in Public Policy and/or American Behavioral Politics. The ability to teach courses in research methods (graduate and undergraduate) is desirable. Our needs in Public Policy (American or Comparative) are broad and can include a focus in one or more areas (urban and regional planning, health policy, political economy, and policy analysis, etc.). Our needs in American Behavioral Politics are also broad and can include a focus in one or more areas (citizen decision-making, public opinion, media and politics, voting behavior, and race/gender and politics, etc.). A strong record of peer-reviewed publications will ultimately be required for tenure.

Required Qualifications: Applicants must have a Ph.D. in Political Science, Public Policy, or a closely related field. ABD applicants near completion will be considered. The degree must be completed by the time of appointment. Candidates must show promise of excellence in research and teaching to be considered; evidence of excellence in research and teaching is preferred.

Salary: Competitive and commensurate with experience.

About UTEP and El Paso: Set against the backdrop of the Franklin Mountains in the Chihuahuan Desert, The University of Texas at El Paso is located along the U.S.–Mexico border in one of the world’s largest binational communities. UTEP’s award-winning, sustainably designed campus landscape and unique Bhutanese architecture create an energizing and tranquil oasis in the bustling El Paso–Juárez metroplex of 2.7 million residents. El Paso is a highly livable, bicultural community of almost 700,000 people that offers affordable homes and attractive neighborhoods. It has consistently been named among the safest large U.S. cities. El Paso experiences almost 300 days of sunshine annually, and residents enjoy outdoor activities year-round. The City of El Paso is adjacent to the state of New Mexico and the country of Mexico, making it an ideal venue for academic programs and research studies on topics of national interest, such as bilingual education/language acquisition, border environment and immigration, environmental sustainability and infrastructure, health disparities, and international trade and commerce.

Application Procedure: The deadline for applications is October 21, 2019 and the review of applications will continue until the position is filled. Interested individuals must submit a curriculum vita, letter of interest, graduate transcripts, evidence of teaching quality (sample syllabi/statement of teaching philosophy), article/chapter length writing sample, and three letters of recommendation. Please contact Dr. Todd A. Curry by email (tacurry@utep.edu) for questions about the position.

To apply, please visit <https://www.utep.edu/employment>. Hiring decisions are subject to final budget approval.

Princeton University

Rank: Garwood Visiting Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Political Theory

Specializations: American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Philosophy & Theory

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites college and university professors and other professionals with established records of scholarship to apply for appointment as Garwood Visiting Teaching Fellow for the academic year running from September 1, 2020 to June 1, 2021. The Garwood Visiting Teaching Fellowship can be for one semester or the academic year. Garwood Visiting Fellows teach at least one undergraduate course on statesmanship and presidential leadership in Princeton University's Department of Politics, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty. Depending on the needs of the University, additional teaching opportunities may be available, again subject to enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty.

James Madison Program Fellows will spend their Fellowship in residence at Princeton University. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University and are encouraged to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

All James Madison Program Fellows must have a doctorate or equivalent degree. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. Fellows normally receive a stipend of one-half their academic-year salary plus a living allowance. The fellows' home institutions are expected to provide at least half of their academic-year salaries in addition to all benefits.

How to apply: Applicants are required to submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/12907> (link is external).

A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;
- * a course proposal and draft syllabus;
- * contact information for two references;
- * a confidential statement that indicates the applicant's salary for the current academic year, what financial support their home institution and other sources are likely to provide, and what support they are likely to need from the Program.

For priority consideration application materials must be received by 11:59 p.m. EST on December 1, 2019 for appointments beginning in September 2020. Awards will be announced in March 2020 or before.

Princeton University

Rank: James Madison Program Postdoctoral Research Associate

Specializations: American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Philosophy & Theory

Invitation for Postdoctoral Research Associate Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites recent Ph.D. recipients to apply for appointments as Postdoctoral Research Associates or more senior researchers for the year from September 1, 2020 to September 1, 2021, with the possibility of renewal for an additional year, contingent on outstanding performance. All James Madison Program postdocs are expected to be in residence at Princeton University for the duration of the appointment. They may not be employed by another institution during the term of their Princeton appointment. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to the approval of the Dean of the Faculty. Postdoctoral Research Associates are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are, however, encouraged to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

The position is a fully funded, 12-month postdoctoral research associate appointment with benefits. All James Madison Program Postdoctoral Research Associates must have a Ph.D. degree. Applications are evaluated on the basis of (1) the significance of the proposed research; (2) the quality of the applicant's past research; and (3) the future contribution the applicant is likely to make to higher education. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

University of Chicago

Rank: Research Associate - Race & Capitalism

The National Race and Capitalism Project invites applications for a Research Associate based at the University of Chicago. This is a full-time research position beginning September 2020 with a one-year term, renewable upon satisfactory performance review. The salary (nine months) and benefits are competitive.

To be eligible, candidates must have received their PhD within the previous five years or be on track to complete a PhD in a social science or humanities field prior to the start of this position, and have a research agenda that examines the intersection of race and capitalism.

The Race and Capitalism Project is a multi-institution collaboration housed in the Department of Political Science at the University of Chicago. The project seeks to reinvigorate, strengthen, and deepen scholarship on how processes of racialization shape capitalist society and economy and how capitalism simultaneously shapes processes of racialization. This project was initiated and conceived at the Center for the Study of Race, Politics, and Culture (CSRPC) at the University of Chicago, and the Washington Institute for the Study of Inequality and Race (WISIR) at the University of Washington. Central questions included: 1) What is the relationship between racial and economic inequality; 2) How has the relationship between various racial and ethnic groups, the economy, and civil society changed over time; and 3) What theoretical approaches to the studies of capitalism and race best explain the empirical reality of 21st century capitalism. Key goals included: increasing collaboration between scholars across disciplines; advancing the state of scholarship on race and capitalism; and where appropriate, highlighting key findings from the project for use in public discourse.

The Research Associate will take a leading role in coordinating the program and will participate with the project staff, the faculty director, and a pre-doctoral fellow in formulating a long-range vision for the project as well as implementing the plan for the year. Candidates for the fellowship must bring a project related to the goals of the National Project on which they intend to work during the appointment. The Research Associate will also participate in scholarly activities associated with the Project, which include workshops, retreats, and lectures. The Research Associate will also be involved in local projects, events, and programming at the University of Chicago, such as helping organize speaker visits for public lectures and coordinating the related reading groups. The Research Associate will be responsible for advancing their own research agenda while contributing to the seminar's scholarly output through a public lecture. The Research Associate will be supervised by the faculty director, with additional mentorship from other members of the University of Chicago faculty as appropriate, depending on specialization.

To be eligible, candidates must have received their PhD within the previous five years or be on track to complete a PhD in a social science or humanities field prior to the start of this position, and have a research agenda that examines the intersection of race and capitalism.

Applications are required to include: (1) a two-page cover letter that includes a summary of the dissertation and discusses how the candidate's research addresses questions of the relationship between race and capitalism; (2) a current CV; (3) one writing sample (limit 30 pages); (4) three letters of recommendation. To be considered, those interested must apply through The University of Chicago's Academic Recruitment job board: apply.interfolio.com/66273. Review of applications will begin on September 16, 2019. Only short-listed candidates will be contacted.

Lycoming College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Position Summary:

The Department of Political Science at Lycoming College invites applications for a tenure-track position in American Politics at the rank of Assistant Professor to begin August 2020. The successful candidate will be broadly trained to teach both introductory and advanced courses in American politics. Specialization within subfield is open. Lycoming's small, liberal arts environment allows faculty members, as part of their 3-3 teaching load, to create new courses in line with their area of specialization. Candidates with an interest in teaching in the College's interdisciplinary first year seminar program are desired. Candidates should demonstrate a strong promise of teaching effectiveness and scholarly achievement, and a serious commitment to teaching undergraduates in a liberal arts environment is essential.

Additional duties include advising and mentoring students, as well as service to the department and institution. Ph.D. in political science is preferred, but ABDs in their final stages of completion will be considered and are encouraged to apply.

To Apply:

Applicants should send a cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching portfolio, 250-word statement on why they are interested in a liberal arts academic environment, a single-authored writing sample, 3 letters of recommendation, and graduate transcript. Electronic submission of application materials is required (PDF format preferred). Please reference "Assistant Professor of Political Science" in the subject line of the email.

Email: jobs@lycoming.edu

To guarantee full consideration, applications should be submitted by October 1, 2019. Post-offer pre-employment drug screen conducted.

University of Missouri, Columbia

Rank: Professor

Subfield(s): Political Theory, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Political Development, Political Thought: Historical, Constitutional Law & Theory

University of Missouri: Open Field / Open Rank

The University of Missouri invites applications for a tenure-track/tenured professorship funded by the Kinder Institute on Constitutional Democracy and housed in the Department of Political Science. Competitive applicants will have a clear research agenda, strong theoretical orientation, ability to publish in highly-ranked journals and academic presses, and potential for effective teaching at the graduate and undergraduate levels. Women, minorities, and individuals with disabilities are especially encouraged to apply.

Competitive candidates will be scholars with productive and internationally prominent research profiles. The position focuses on Atlantic History and Politics -- the study of connections and conflicts among the diverse peoples of the Atlantic basin, including the peoples of Africa, the Americas, and Europe, since circa 1600. The position is open to all fields in political science, although candidates should feel comfortable teaching small classes that are part of the new B.A. in Constitutional Democracy, such as "Intellectual World of the American Founders," and "Constitutional Debates, 1787-1788." Candidates also will be expected to demonstrate the potential to contribute to the teaching of the new M.A. program in Atlantic History and Politics. For more about these degree programs and related initiatives, see <https://democracy.missouri.edu>.

An earned doctorate in political science is required at the time of appointment. Candidates should submit their curriculum vitae, a cover letter, three writing samples, and three current letters of recommendation. The cover letter should address the following: current and future research, teaching interests, and how the applicant envisions contributing to the intellectual life of the Political Science Department and the Kinder Institute. Applicants must also submit a statement of inclusion and diversity as part of their application materials. Please attach all materials in the Cover Letters and Attachments section of the electronic application processing system at: <http://hrs.missouri.edu/find-a-job/academic>. The review of applications will begin September 15, 2019, as they appear in the electronic application system, and the review will continue until the position is filled. The appointment will begin August 15, 2020.

The University of Missouri is fully committed to achieving the goal of a diverse and inclusive academic community of faculty, staff, and students. We seek individuals who are committed to this goal and our core campus values of respect, responsibility, discovery, and excellence. The University of Missouri is an Equal Opportunity/Access/Affirmative Action/Pro Disabled & Veteran Employer. Equal Opportunity is and shall be provided for all employees and applicants for employment on the basis of their demonstrated ability and competence without unlawful discrimination on the basis of their race, color, national origin, ancestry, religion, sex, pregnancy, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, age, disability, protected veteran status, or any other status protected by applicable state or federal law. This policy shall not be interpreted in such a manner as to violate the legal rights of religious organizations or the recruiting rights of military organizations associated with the Armed Forces or the Department of Homeland Security of the United States of America. Virginia Commonwealth University (VCU)

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at Virginia Commonwealth University is seeking applications for a tenure eligible faculty position at the Assistant Professor rank to begin August 2020 to support the Department's teaching and research mission in the area of American Politics, broadly defined.

We are seeking candidates with active and innovative research agendas. Candidates who collaborate across disciplines are particularly desirable, as are candidates with proven track records of grant funding and the potential for scholarship that complements and expands existing expertise in the department. Though not required, we seek a scholar who can contribute to the University's mission to address problems of underrepresented and/or urban communities.

Successful candidates should be able to teach Introduction to U.S. Government, undergraduate Research Methods, the Political Science

Senior Seminar capstone course, and/or upper-level courses in their area of expertise. Though no specific area of expertise is required, we encourage applications from candidates whose research engages with our concentration in Civil Rights; potential course offerings could, therefore, include: The Politics of Race, Class, and Gender, Women & American Politics, and/or African American Politics.

The position carries an expectation of service to the department, College and/or University, as well as an expectation of service to the field of political science more broadly.

The position requires a PhD in political science, or a closely related field, at the time of employment. Successful candidates will have demonstrated expertise and potential for publication in the faculty area of research. Successful candidates will also have demonstrated experience working in and fostering a diverse faculty, staff, and student environment or commitment to do so as a faculty member at VCU.

We will be at the APSA Annual Meeting; to schedule an interview please contact polistaff@vcu.edu.

For more detailed information and to apply, please visit: www.vcujobs.com

APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS

Only electronic applications will be accepted. Please apply online at www.vcujobs.com. Applicants must upload a CV, cover letter and the following supplemental documents: Research Statement, Teaching Philosophy, Writing Sample, and Diversity & Inclusion Statement. Candidates are also encouraged to include course evaluations and sample syllabi if available. Please merge supplementary files into one PDF and upload as the "Other" document in the online application site. Please submit all required documents with your online application. Failure to provide all required documents will result in our inability to review and consider your application. Upon submission of your application, references will be automatically contacted and asked to provide a letter of recommendation. Questions should be directed to Dr. Andrew Murphy at amurphy5@vcu.edu. Position Description:

Powered by an inspiring Vision Statement, California State University, Monterey Bay (<http://WWW.CSUMB.EDU>) is a comprehensive, mid-sized four-year university whose staff and faculty help transform student lives by emphasizing project-based learning, requiring service learning, and promoting multicultural and global perspectives on and beyond the campus community. CSUMB is both an MSI and HSI and has a vibrant, diverse student body of nearly 7000 students and growing. Our faculty and staff, many of whom live in campus housing, appreciate living and working about one mile from the shores of the beautiful Monterey Bay. As one of the 23 campuses in the California State University (CSU) system, we offer excellent benefits, including housing, and competitive salaries for our faculty and staff. During our 25th Silver Anniversary Celebration in 2019-20, we will complete two major building projects: the College of Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences and the Student Union. By 2030, CSUMB's sustainability initiative is to be carbon neutral.

The School of Humanities and Communication (HCOM), housing a unique multidisciplinary B.A. program in Humanities and Communication, seeks an Assistant Professor of Legal Studies and Civic Engagement.

RESPONSIBILITIES :

- Teach lower and upper division courses in legal studies, justice studies and/or civics with a service learning component
- Support the School of Humanities and Communication through school, college and university level service
- Collaborate with colleagues and students across a range of disciplinary areas in a multidisciplinary program and campus community

Minimum Qualifications:

- Experience teaching lower and upper division courses addressing critical perspectives on law in society, civics, government, and justice studies
- Preparation to teach such courses as Politics and Participation, Race and Gender Justice, Crime and Communities, Critical Perspectives on Law in Society, and Senior Capstone as well as developing new courses in areas of expertise
- Demonstrated experience or significant promise in maintaining and/or building reciprocal community partnerships with local and regional organizations to support student civic engagement through service learning, internships, or other engaged learning opportunities
- A track record of and/or strong potential for scholarly publication and/or funded research in areas of scholarly interests
- Demonstrated experience teaching, mentoring and/or advising culturally diverse students, including underrepresented students of color, LGBTQ students and first-generation college students
- Demonstrated experience working in and with an ethnically and linguistically diverse campus community, including students, faculty, staff and administrators
- Demonstrated experience working effectively in ethnically and culturally diverse communities

Preferred Qualification:

- J.D. degree
- Expertise in such areas as Critical Race Theory, LatCrit, Race, Ethnicity and Politics, Feminist Legal Theory, and/or intersection of ethnic studies and the law
- Experience with pre-law advising and/or curriculum development
- Experience mentoring students for internships and/or undergraduate research
- Demonstrated leadership skills in professional, academic or community-based areas

Other Related Information:

HCOM prepares a diverse group of students, many from historically underserved communities, for leadership in a multicultural society and is committed to inclusive excellence, innovation in interdisciplinary teaching and learning, quality scholarship, as well as collaborative and imaginative program development. HCOM values an educational environment of cultural and linguistic diversity and gender equity, ethical reflection and practice, and a commitment to working across disciplinary boundaries. The curriculum prepares students to be ethical, creative, and critical thinkers and doers in a multicultural and interconnected global society. Toward that end, through its degree programs, HCOM offers students a comprehensive, interdisciplinary humanities and liberal arts education for the 21st century.

University of Chicago

Rank: Collegiate Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

The College at the University of Chicago is now accepting applications for four-year postdoctoral teaching appointments as Harper and Schmidt Fellows who hold the rank of Collegiate Assistant Professor. Collegiate Assistant Professors are members of the College Faculty whose primary responsibility is to teach in the general education (Core) program.

Core courses in the Humanities typically deal with fundamental issues and texts in history, philosophy, and literature. Currently, the Core is organized into eight year-long sequences: Readings in World Literature; Human Being and Citizen; Greece and Rome: Texts, Traditions, Transformations; Philosophical Perspectives on the Humanities; Media Aesthetics; Reading Cultures; Poetry and the Human; and Language and the Human. For a description of these sequences see: <https://societyoffellows.uchicago.edu/page/humanities-course-descriptions>

Core courses in the Social Sciences explore, on the basis of significant works, the fundamental concepts and the different modes of inquiry that have defined the social sciences in the modern period. Currently, Collegiate Assistant Professors teach in five of the year-long sequences into which the Core is organized: Self, Culture and Society; Classics of Social and Political Thought; Power, Identity, and Resistance; Global Society; and Social Science Inquiry. Some Collegiate Assistant Professors also teach in the History of European Civilization Core sequence. European Civilization is taught on the basis of intensive readings of significant primary source documents.

For a description of these sequences see: <https://societyoffellows.uchicago.edu/page/social-sciences-course-descriptions>

The positions are open to scholars in all disciplines and areas of specialization who will have completed all requirements for their Ph.D. degree no later than August 31, 2020. Candidates must demonstrate excellence in their original scholarship as well as in teaching.

In most years, Collegiate Assistant Professors teach two courses (usually of identical preparation) for each of three quarters. Each Collegiate Assistant Professor also has the opportunity to design an independent course and each is eligible for one quarter of research sabbatical in the third year of residence. The position comes with an annual salary for 2020-21, of $72,307.80, carries full benefits, and an annual professional development fund of $5,000. The effective date for these teaching appointments is September 1, 2020.

To apply for these positions, please see our web site at <http://fellows.uchicago.edu>. The web site will be available to accept applications beginning August 26, 2019.

These positions are part of the Service Employees International Union.

Important deadlines:

On line application deadline: 11:59:59 PM EDT, Friday, October 11, 2019.

Deadline for receipt of letters of recommendations: 11:59:59 PM EDT, Friday, October 25, 2019. This includes letters of recommendation from your three recommenders or those received from a dossier service.

Williams College

Rank: Associate or Full Professor in Asian American Studies

American Studies Program

Job description for 2020-2021

The American Studies Program at Williams College seeks to make a tenured appointment at the rank of Associate or Full Professor in Asian American Studies, to start July 1, 2020. The program seeks to complement and expand the existing expertise of our faculty who teach Asian American topics, and is especially interested in applications from those scholars whose research interests and teaching focus on social science or related topics and whose portfolios encompass interdisciplinary approaches.

The candidate should be a committed and imaginative scholar with an established record of excellence in scholarship and teaching and experience in program-building. We have a strong preference for those who demonstrate a commitment to the interdisciplinary nature and methodologies of American Studies in their research and teaching; the hire will be expected to teach both the introductory course and the junior-level theories and methods course, in addition to courses in their specialties. The teaching load is two courses per semester and a winter-study course every other January.

American Studies at Williams is a small but vibrant program with a diverse faculty and dynamic and engaged majors, whose numbers are growing. Created in 1940, it is one of the oldest American Studies programs in the country and has been at the forefront at Williams in teaching courses that foreground issues of race and racism, class, gender/sexuality, globalization, diaspora, among others. The hire will join three other Asian Americanists at the college and will have a hand in hiring a junior tenure-track Asian Americanist the following year. We are especially interested in candidates from historically under-represented groups, candidates whose scholarship and teaching enrich the diversity and intellectual vibrancy of our academic communities, and candidates who have experience working effectively with diverse student populations.

Please send the following application materials to the chair of the search committee, Prof. Dorothy Wang via Interfolio (<http://apply.interfolio.com/66535>): a letter of application that includes a summary of current and future scholarship, teaching interests and experience, and experience working effectively with students who are widely diverse with regard to race, ethnicity, nationality, gender, sexual orientation, and religion; a curriculum vitae; and names of three references. All applications received by Oct. 1, 2019 will receive full consideration. Semi-finalists will be asked to submit three letters of recommendation by Oct. 18 and preliminary video interviews will be scheduled during the week of Oct. 21. Finalists will be invited to Williamstown for a campus interview in mid-November.

All offers of employment are contingent on completion of a background check. Further information is available at: <http://dean-faculty.williams.edu/prospective-faculty/background-check-policy/>.

Williams is a coeducational liberal arts college located in the Berkshires of western Massachusetts. The college has built its reputation on the teaching and scholarship of its faculty and on the academic excellence of its approximately 2000 students. Please visit the Williams website (<http://williams.edu>). Beyond meeting fully its legal obligations for non-discrimination, Williams is committed to building a diverse and inclusive community where members from all backgrounds can live, learn, and thrive together.

San Francisco State University

Rank: Tenure-track Assistant Professor position in American politics with a focus on women and politics

San Francisco State University's Department of Political Science invites applicants for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in American politics with a focus on women and politics beginning August 2020. Scholars who examine public policy at the state-level will be of particular interest, especially those studying California. We seek qualified candidates who can contribute, through their research, teaching, and service, to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Responsibilities: The position requires teaching undergraduate and graduate courses in American politics and women and politics. In addition, the position requires mentoring and advising undergraduate and graduate students, developing an active ongoing program of scholarship in your area of specialty, and ongoing committee and service assignments. A detailed position description is available at <https://politicalscience.sfsu.edu/>.

Qualifications: Required

? Ph.D. in political science or a closely related field. Ph.D. must be completed by August 1, 2020

? Expertise in American politics and women and politics

Qualifications: Preferred

? Expertise in state-level politics, especially California politics

? Ability and experience teaching courses in the areas of American politics and women and politics

? Active record of scholarship related to your specialty area

? Experience teaching and working closely with students from historically under-represented communities will be considered a plus

? Ability to demonstrate how you will incorporate inclusion, diversity, and educational equity in your courses and scholarship

Rank and salary: Assistant Professor. Salary commensurate with qualifications and experience. The California State University (CSU) provides generous health, retirement and other benefits.

The Department of Political Science at SFSU was founded in the mid 1960s during a period of intense political activism, and it carries on this legacy through rigorous and interdisciplinary research and engaged pedagogy. Our students reflect the racial, ethnic, and class diversity of the San Francisco Bay Area and bring their experiences, insights, and knowledge to the classroom. We teach BA and MA courses in American politics, comparative politics, political theory, and public law, plus required courses in research methods.

The mission of San Francisco State University is to create and maintain an environment for learning that promotes respect for and appreciation of scholarship, freedom, human diversity, and the cultural mosaic of the City of San Francisco and the Bay Area; to promote excellence in instruction and intellectual accomplishment; and to provide broadly accessible higher education for residents of the region and state, as well as the nation and world. To fulfill its mission, the University is committed to the following goals:

- Attracting, retaining and graduating a highly diverse student body
- Providing disciplinary and interdisciplinary liberal arts and professional education that is academically rigorous and intellectually challenging
- Providing curricula that reflect all dimensions of human diversity, and that encourage critical thinking and a commitment to social justice

University of Wisconsin, La Crosse

Rank: Assistant Professor, Political Science

The University of Wisconsin-La Crosse invites applications for a tenure track Assistant Professor beginning August 2020 in the Department of Political Science and Public Administration. Preference will be given to applicants with research and teaching interests in American Politics, with an emphasis in political behavior, political participation, public opinion, and/or the politics of gender, race, and class. Candidates must demonstrate a commitment to teaching excellence, including dynamic, inclusive, and engaging classroom practices. The position will also include advising responsibilities, and the potential for directing undergraduate research projects, teaching lower and upper level research methods courses, and teaching the capstone seminar. In addition to teaching excellence and scholarly productivity, the Department also places a high value on service to the University and wider community.

The 11-member department offers undergraduate majors and minors in both Political Science and Public Administration and offers courses that serve interdisciplinary minors in Ethnic and Racial Studies; International Studies; International Business; Women, Gender and Sexuality Studies; Criminal Justice; and Environmental Studies. The department also collaborates with the university's Secondary Teacher Education Preparation (STEP) Program. The usual teaching load is three preparations and four (3 credit) courses per semester, two of which will be Political Science upper division courses and two of which will be the General Education course American National Government.

Candidates for the appointment should have completed or be near to completing a doctorate in Political Science by the start date. If a doctorate is not yet earned, it must be earned by the first personnel review, no later than May 15, 2021.

For additional information about this position and to apply, please visit <https://employment.uwlax.edu/>. Complete application materials must be submitted online, and will include: 1. a cover letter, with a description about how you envision yourself contributing to the department's American Government offerings; 2. a curriculum vitae; and 3. the names, email addresses and phone numbers for three academic references.

Applicant review will begin October 1, 2019 and continue until the position is filled.

Note: Electronic submission of application materials is required. For additional information about this position and to apply, please visit <https://employment.uwlax.edu>

New York University

Rank: Assistant/Associate/Full Professor of Public Service

Description:

The Robert F. Wagner Graduate School of Public Service at New York University invites applications for an open-rank tenure-track or tenured professor position with appointment to begin September 1, 2020. We are particularly interested in candidates with expertise and a record of research in American politics and a specialization in public administration, public management, executive politics, bureaucratic politics (e.g., agency design, management, rulemaking, program implementation), policy implementation, voting and elections, or public opinion. Successful candidates will teach in our Master of Public Administration program and will have demonstrated excellence in research.

NYU Wagner is a multidisciplinary school that prepares public service leaders to translate ideas into actions that have an effective and lasting impact on the public good. Wagner's nearly 40 full-time faculty members are trained in a wide variety of disciplines and share a commitment to addressing issues of public importance in their teaching and research. Wagner faculty members collaborate with other schools and departments across the University, including the Departments of Politics, Economics, and Sociology in Arts & Science; School of Law; Stern School of Business; Tandon School of Engineering; and the College of Global Public Health.

Qualifications:

A Ph.D. in political science, public policy, public administration, or a related field is required and must be conferred by August 31, 2020.

Application Instructions:

Qualified candidates may apply using the following link: <https://apply.interfolio.com/66363>

Candidates should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, two completed research papers, and three letters of reference. Because diversity is an important part of the mission at Wagner and the University, candidates should also describe how they would address issues of equity, diversity, and inclusion in their teaching.

Application review will begin on October 1, 2019, and will continue until the position is filled.

University of California, Los Angeles

Rank: Junior Faculty Position

The UCLA Department of Political Science invites applications from outstanding candidates for a position at the rank of Assistant Professor, to begin on July 1, 2020. We are particularly eager to consider applicants who specialize in American Politics and related fields. In addition, we will consider especially strong applicants working in other fields (including comparative politics, international relations, methods, political theory, and racial/ethnic politics). Pending administrative approval, we will also consider applicants at the rank of Associate Professor.

UCLA and the UCLA Department of Political Science are firmly committed to the principles of equity, diversity, and inclusion. Therefore, we ask each applicant to submit with their application a statement that addresses their past efforts, as well as future plans, to advance equity, diversity, and inclusion in their scholarship, teaching, and service.

The online application should include a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, a statement of research interests, the aforementioned diversity statement, evidence of teaching excellence in related courses, at least one writing sample, a graduate transcript, and three letters of recommendation. The letters of recommendation should be uploaded directly by the referees. Appointments will be effective on July 1, 2020. A PhD in Political Science or related field should be in hand prior to the appointment. To ensure full consideration, the online application should be completed by September 16, 2019. Applications will be accepted, however, until the position is filled.

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, age or protected veteran status. Rank: Assistant Professor-Political Science-American Politics

The Department of Political Science in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (LAS) at the University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) invites applications for the position of tenure track Assistant Professor in political science, with specialization in any aspect of American politics, beginning in the 2020-2021 academic year, subject to budgetary approval. The department has a variety of needs in American politics, especially in institutions. The successful candidate will complement and augment the current faculty's substantive expertise.

Assistant professors are expected to teach two (2) courses per semester at the undergraduate and/or graduate level, as assigned by the department head. They are also expected to maintain a consistent record of high-quality academic research and publication, provide service to the department and the profession, and contribute to the intellectual life of the department.

Candidates should have a PhD in Political Science or a related discipline in hand (or be very near completion), and to provide evidence of the ability to maintain a research agenda and a commitment to excellence in teaching.

To apply, complete an on-line application, including the names and email addresses for three or more references, and upload full curriculum vitae, two writing samples totaling no more than 100 pages, and a cover letter that summarizes candidate's research and teaching qualifications at <https://jobs.uic.edu/job-board>. Questions about the position can be directed to Prof. Christopher Mooney, at cmoon1@uic.edu, the chair of the search committee. The Search Committee will begin reviewing applications on October 11, 2019. For fullest consideration, applications should be completed by that date. The position will remain open until filled.

UIC is a Carnegie Doctoral/Research I institution (Highest Research Activity), located in the heart of the City of Chicago and one of the nation's largest metropolitan areas. It is a comprehensive public university with a diverse student body of more than 30,000 undergraduate, graduate, and professional students. UIC is federally recognized by the US Department of Education as a Minority Serving Institution (MSI) through its status as a Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI) and an Asian American and Native American Pacific Islander Serving Institution (AANAPISI).

The University of Illinois at Chicago is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer, dedicated to the goal of building a culturally diverse and pluralistic faculty and staff committed to teaching and working in a multicultural environment. We strongly encourage applications from women, minorities, individuals with disabilities, and covered veterans. The University of Illinois may conduct background checks on all job candidates upon acceptance of a contingent offer. Background checks will be performed in compliance with the Fair Credit Reporting Act.

CFR Call for 2020–2021 Fellowship Applications

The Council on Foreign Relations is seeking fellowship applicants for the 2020–2021 academic year. The programs offer unique opportunities, domestic and abroad, for mid and senior career U.S. citizens who have a demonstrated commitment to a career in foreign policy. Selected fellows broaden their perspective of foreign affairs either by pursuing work in a policymaking settings or research in an academic environment.

International Affairs Fellowship (IAF)

Established in 1967, the IAF is the hallmark fellowship program of CFR. It aims to bridge the gap between the study and making of U.S. foreign policy by creating the next generation of scholar-practitioners. The program offers its fellows the unique chance to experience a new field and gain a different perspective at a pivotal moment in their careers. Academics are thus placed in public service and policy-oriented settings, while government officials are placed in scholarly settings. Over the years, the IAF program has produced approximately six hundred alumni that span the who's who of the U.S. foreign policy community, including a former secretary of state and several undersecretaries of state, U.S. ambassadors to NATO and the United Nations, and many other influential leaders in government, academia, and the private sector. The duration of the fellowship is twelve months, preferably beginning in September, and the program awards a stipend of $100,000.

IAF in Canada, sponsored by the Power Corporation of Canada

Launched in 2016, the IAF in Canada, sponsored by the Power Corporation of Canada, seeks to strengthen mutual understanding and cooperation between rising generations of leaders and thinkers in the United States and Canada. The program provides for one to two mid-career professionals per year to spend six to twelve months hosted by a Canadian institution to deepen their knowledge of Canada. Fellows are drawn from academia, business, government, media, NGOs, and think tanks. The duration of the fellowship is between six and twelve months. The program awards a stipend of $95,000 for a period of twelve months (or a prorated stipend if the duration is less than twelve months) as well as a modest travel allowance.

IAF in Japan, sponsored by Hitachi, Ltd.

Founded in 1997, the IAF in Japan, sponsored by Hitachi, Ltd., seeks to strengthen mutual understanding and cooperation between the rising generations of leaders in the United States and Japan. The program provides a select group of mid-career professionals the opportunity to carry out research while affiliated with appropriate institutions in Japan, and to establish long-term professional and personal ties through their activities. Fellows are drawn from academia, business, government, media, NGOs, and think tanks. Knowledge of Japanese is not a requirement. The duration of the fellowship is between three and twelve months. The program awards a stipend in yen, which covers travel and living expenses in Japan.

IAF in India, with a grant contributed by Bharti

The IAF in India, with a grant contributed by Bharti seeks to strengthen mutual understanding and cooperation between rising generations of leaders and thinkers in the United States and India. The program provides for one to four mid-career U.S. professionals who have had little or no substantial prior experience in India, the opportunity to spend three to twelve months conducting research and working in India. CFR will work with its network of contacts to assist selected fellows in finding suitable host organizations that best match the fellow's proposed work in India. Fellows are drawn from academia, business, government, journalism, NGOs, and think tanks. It awards a stipend of $90,000 for a period of twelve months (or a prorated stipend if the duration is less than twelve months) as well as a modest travel allowance.

IAF in International Economics, sponsored by Kimberly Querrey

The IAF in International Economics, sponsored by Kimberly Querrey, provides the next generation of economic scholars and business economist hands-on experience in the policymaking field. Through the program, fellows expand their range of thinking and apply their work to international economic policy. Possible host placements for the fellowship include but are not limited to the U.S. Department of the Treasury, U.S. Department of Commerce, the Federal Reserve Bank, and relevant parts of the U.S. Department of State and the White House. The duration of the fellowship is 6 to 9 months, and a stipend in the range of $150,000 to $180,000 is awarded along with relocation assistance.

How to Apply

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: Assistant Professor, Public Policy Approaches to Sexual Violence - Cluster Hire

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, International Relations

Specializations: Gender Politics & Policy, Criminal Justice, Health Care

The University of Wisconsin-Madison seeks to hire a faculty member with research and teaching interests in policy issues around sexual violence.

The scholar should have expertise in the interplay between social science, policy, and government. This may include scholars who are interested in issues such as rehabilitation and reintegration of sexual violence criminals, disparities in policing and sentencing policies for sexual violence criminals, sexual harassment policy issues in the public sector or workplace, Title IX issues in educational policy, child and adult sex trafficking, or the geopolitics of gender-based violence and sexual violence such as the context of war (and political violence more broadly), migration, refugee experiences, and disaster experiences. Or, this may include scholars who study the policy issues attached to: sexual violence imposed by domestic partners; gender/social inequality and its impact on sexual violence; substance abuse (e.g., alcohol and drug) and sexual violence; sexual violence against sex workers; weapon use and sexual violence; history of child abuse and sexual violence; sexual violence and HIV and other sexually transmitted diseases; the role of physicians in screening for sexual assault; marriage laws and sexual violence; mental health and sexual violence; and the relationship between sexual violence and economic pressure, social norms, inter-generational transmission, forced marriage, or education levels.

Ideally the candidate will be positioned to contribute knowledge to improve laws, or the implementation of laws or policies, to prevent and address sexual violence. Public policy experts could use their expertise in the policymaking process, as well as policy analysis and evaluation to identify “what works” and “what doesn’t work” within existing sexual violence policies and laws, and then, in the spirit of the Wisconsin Idea, to share these evidence-based solutions with the public, as well as public sector leaders.

This faculty position is part of a faculty cluster search, “Sexual Violence: Connecting Social Science Research with Policy.” The cluster defines “Sexual Violence” broadly, and it includes sexual assault, sexual harassment, sex trafficking, violence against sexual minorities, as well as gender-based violence.

Three faculty positions will be hired in the cluster, which will build a world-class, new core of interdisciplinary strength in research to address issues of sexual violence domestically and/or globally-making UW-Madison a research leader in this critical area. The first faculty position [PVL 99483] focuses on “Psychological Aspects of Sexual Violence” (including potentially research on psychological aspects of victimization, psychological factors contributing to perpetration, and/or theory-based development of interventions designed to prevent sexual assault), while the second faculty position [PVL 99523] is around “Societal Aspects of Sexual Violence” (including potentially research on the social causes and consequences of sexual violence, addressing the disproportionate impact of sexual violence in particular communities (e.g., sexual minority groups, people with disabilities) or the geopolitics of sexual violence and trauma. The third faculty position is “Policy Approaches to Sexual Violence,” the subject of this search [PVL 99600].

These positions are part of the UW’s Cluster Hiring Initiative, designed to foster innovative, outstanding research programs that will stimulate productive interactions among faculty and students in sexual violence research across campus and to expand interdisciplinary research in this area. Further information regarding this initiative can be found at: <https://facstaff.provost.wisc.edu/cluster-hiring-initiative/>

The successful candidate will have a primary appointment at the La Follette School of Public Affairs or another pertinent unit on campus. Tenure home will be determined at the time of hiring. Expectations include a commitment to the important functions of research, instruction, and outreach, as well as professional and university service as appropriate to faculty rank.

Responsibilities include conducting research and teaching at all levels required, with service at the professional and university level.

Teaching will include courses to undergraduate students, as well as graduate students. For example, the teaching load at the La Follette School of Public Affairs in a typical academic year consists of four courses each year. Mentoring graduate students will be required as well.

To apply, go to <http://jobs.wisc.edu> and search for PVL 99600. To begin the application process, please click on the ‘Apply Now’ button. You will be asked to create a profile and upload a C.V., cover letter, a research statement, a teaching statement, and 2 samples of written work (please upload these 2 samples together). You will also be asked to provide contact information for three (3) references as part of your online application.

The deadline for assuring full consideration is October 15, 2019; however, positions will remain open and applications may be considered until the position is filled.

Rollins College

Rank: Assistant Professor, American Politics

Position Summary:

The Department of Political Science at Rollins College invites applications for the position of tenure-track Assistant Professor, American Politics, beginning August 2020. We seek a broadly-trained Americanist with particular interests in specialties such as political behavior, political communication/information, voting and elections, methodology, and Latino or minority politics. Ph.D. at time of appointment is preferred, but ABDs will be considered.

The successful candidate will also have a demonstrated commitment to teaching excellence in a liberal arts institution. The successful candidate will teach a regular load of three courses per semester, including introduction to American government and one course yearly for our general education program. Among other topics, the department would especially welcome candidates with the ability to teach courses in quantitative methods and elections.

The successful candidate must also be able to contribute to a diverse and inclusive learning and working environment at Rollins. We view differences (e.g. nationality, race, gender, age, sexual orientation, socioeconomic class, physical ability, perspectives) as rich opportunities for understanding, learning, and growth.

Founded in 1885, Rollins is an independent, comprehensive, liberal arts college. The campus, noted for its lakefront beauty and for its unique location, is set in the residential community of Winter Park, just 15 minutes from one of the nation's most dynamic urban centers, Orlando. Rollins enrolls approximately 3,200 students in diverse degree programs at the undergraduate and graduate level. Rollins ranks #1 or #2 annually among 128 Southern master's-level universities in the annual rankings of "America's Best Colleges," released by U.S. News & World Report. For additional information, please visit the College website at www.rollins.edu and the Department of Political Science website at <https://www.rollins.edu/political-science> Special Instructions to Applicants:

To apply, please submit an application at the following location:

<https://jobs.rollins.edu/en-us/job/492945/assistant-professor-american-politics> and upload the following materials: Letter of interest, Curriculum vitae, Sample of scholarly writing, Statement of teaching philosophy, Teaching evaluations, if available.

Provide three reference names and email addresses on application. Emails will be sent directly to referees with instructions to upload recommendation letters.

Inquiries should be sent to:

Dexter Boniface, Chair

Department of Political Science

E-mail: dboniface@rollins.edu

Preference will be given to applications received by October 1, 2019, but review of applications will continue until the position is filled.

Our Values:

Rollins seeks to foster and to model a campus environment that is welcoming, safe, and inclusive to all of our administrators, faculty, staff, and students. We view differences (e.g. nationality, race, gender, age, sexual orientation, socioeconomic class, physical ability, learning styles, perspectives, etc.) not as obstacles to be overcome but as rich opportunities for understanding, learning, and growth.

Through its mission, Rollins College is firmly committed to creating a just community that embraces multiculturalism; persons from historically under-represented minority groups are therefore encouraged to apply. Rollins does not discriminate on the basis of sex, disability, race, age, religion, color, national or ethnic origin, ancestry, marital status, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, genetic information, physical characteristics, or any other category protected by federal, state, or local law, in its educational programs and activities.

Bucknell University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science (American Politics)

Bucknell University's Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in American Politics beginning in the fall semester of 2020. We expect to hire at the Assistant Professor level but are open to considering outstanding candidates at other ranks. We seek candidates whose scholarly and teaching interests include race and ethnic politics in the U.S. The successful candidate will be prepared to teach a core course in American politics, a course in race and ethnic politics, a course in quantitative or qualitative research methods, and other American politics courses in the candidate's areas of specialization.

We are especially interested in candidates whose teaching and research will contribute to the department's commitment to both diversity and academic excellence. Evidence of teaching experience and excellence as well as the promise of being a productive scholar are critically important. The teaching load is five courses over two semesters. By the start date of the position, candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. in Political Science with a sub-field specialization in American politics, but ABD candidates will also be considered with the understanding that the Ph.D. must be completed before the beginning of the second year.

For additional information and to apply, please go to careers.bucknell.edu. The application should include a cover letter, CV, statement of teaching philosophy, statement of commitment to diversity, three letters of recommendation, graduate transcripts, sample publications or papers, course evaluations, and sample syllabi relevant to this position. Questions about the position should be addressed by email to: Professor Scott Meinke at smeinke@bucknell.edu. The review of applications will begin on September 23, 2019.

Candidates who wish to meet for an optional preliminary interview at APSA should email a CV to smeinke@bucknell.edu by August 14 and indicate their expected availability during the conference.

About Bucknell

Founded in 1846 and located along the banks of the Susquehanna River in historic Lewisburg, Pa., Bucknell University is an undergraduate-focused institution that stands uniquely at the intersection of top-ranked liberal arts, engineering and management programs. Our students choose from more than 50 majors and 60 minors in the arts, engineering, humanities, management, and natural and social sciences, as well as extensive global study, service-learning and research opportunities. Bucknell's 3,600 undergraduate and 100 graduate students enjoy a low 9:1 student-faculty ratio and exceptional opportunities to collaborate with faculty mentors.

Bucknell's beautiful 450-acre campus includes first-rate facilities and is home to more than 90 percent of its students. Residential life is vibrant with about 150 student-run organizations, 27 NCAA Division I athletic teams, a robust arts culture, and a strong student commitment to community and global service work.

Bucknell is committed to fostering an environment that embraces diversity, equity and inclusion, and we seek candidates who will contribute to a climate that supports the growth and development of a diverse campus community. The University provides equal opportunity without regard to race, color, gender, gender identity, gender expression, sexual orientation, age, religion, national or ethnic origin, marital status, veteran status or disability in admissions, employment and in all of its educational programs and activities. We encourage individuals from historically underrepresented groups to apply.

The Community

Located in central Pennsylvania, Lewisburg features a variety of restaurants, beautiful Victorian homes, the restored art deco Campus Theatre (owned by the University), charming shops and boutiques, and the Barnes and Noble at Bucknell University Bookstore. About 33,000 residents live in the region.

The city of Williamsport is about a 30-minute drive from campus, and Penn State University's main campus is about an hour away, as is Harrisburg, Pennsylvania's state capital. Bucknell is about three hours from New York City, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, D.C.

The cost of living here is low compared to that of major U.S. cities and suburbs. Bucknell's surroundings yield fresh produce, cultural activities and events, and many opportunities for outdoor activity on the Susquehanna River and in the nearby state parks and forests. The Lewisburg Area School District receives excellent reviews for its schools at all grade levels. Lewisburg Area High School is consistently ranked among the top 50 high schools in Pennsylvania for SAT scores and statewide exams.

University of San Diego

Rank: Assistant Professor (Tenure-Track), Political Science and International Relations

Assistant Professor (Tenure-Track), Political Science and International Relations

Department Description:

The Department of Political Science and International Relations is committed to the liberal arts tradition of intellectual curiosity, academic rigor, and a pluralistic and diverse curriculum. We provide students with a solid understanding of the theories, practices and institutions of politics, but also with an appreciation of how to create a more just and humane world. Our courses cover every corner of the globe and prepare students to be keen political observers and actors. To supplement coursework, we also provide internship, community service learning, and study abroad opportunities that encourage learning outside of the classroom.

The department houses two separate majors. The Political Science major focuses attention on the shared and contending ideas, values, institutions and processes of public life. Courses range from the specific study of politics in one country or of a single institution or political process (the judiciary, Congress, the presidency or elections), to more general offerings such as courses on political theory, political development, revolution, race and ethnicity, environmental politics, research methods, human rights, and constitutional law.

The International Relations major is an interdisciplinary field of study designed for students who seek a holistic understanding of international affairs. The curriculum is rooted in political science and provides students with a strong background in international relations, comparative politics, and international political economy. At the same time, the curriculum reflects the recognition that international political phenomena are best understood from a variety of perspectives and includes courses from disciplines such as history, economics, religious studies, fine arts and literature.

The department offers the highly-regarded Masters of International Relations (MAIR) degree, which draws on our faculty's vast wealth of international experience and offers a variety of specialized subject matter courses focused on Africa, Europe, Latin America, and the Middle East. Areas of strength include international security, intelligence, and environmental policy. Courses in the program combine academic and professional instruction in an effort to connect theory and practice, both substantively and pedagogically.

Detailed Description:

The Department of Political Science and International Relations at the University of San Diego invites applications for a tenure track position at the Assistant Professor level with expertise in East Asia and an ability to teach courses on China.

Successful candidates will be expected to offer a variety of courses that meet the needs of the Department of Political Science and International Relations. They should be prepared to teach introductory, upper division and graduate courses in Asian politics and foreign policy, international relations theory, and research methods, as well as other courses in international relations that fit with the applicant's interests.

Candidates must be fully committed to liberal arts education and to excellence in teaching and student advising. Candidates must also have a significant scholarly agenda and will be expected to engage actively in service at the departmental, college, and/or university levels after the first year. The normal teaching load is three courses per semester.

Job Requirements:

PhD: Applicants should have completed a PhD in Political Science/International Relations before September 2020.

Background check: Successful completion of a pre-employment background check.

Degree Verification Requirement: Persons offered employment in this position will be required to provide official education transcripts for degree verification purposes.

Posting Salary:

Commensurate with experience; Excellent Benefits.

The University of San Diego offers a very competitive benefits package, to include medical, dental, vision, a 12% retirement contribution given to you by the University (with three year vesting period), and access to on-campus Fitness Centers. Please visit the benefits section of our website to view all of the perks and benefits that USD has to offer. <http://www.sandiego.edu/hr/benefits/>

Special Application Instructions

Click 'Apply Now' to complete our online application.

Applicants must submit 1) a cover letter that describes the candidate's research agenda and the courses they would like to teach; 2) a CV; 3) official graduate transcripts; 4) three letters of recommendation that address both teaching and scholarship; 5) a writing sample; 6) a summary of teaching evaluations and evidence of teaching excellence; 7) a statement of teaching philosophy that includes discussion of how they approach diversity in the classroom. The Department of Political Science and International Relations is committed to diversity and seeks candidates who share that commitment.

Candidates are encouraged to submit application materials at their earliest convenience. To ensure full consideration, applications must be complete by September 15, 2019.

Questions and requests for informal interviews at the 2019 APSA conference in Washington D.C. should be directed to Search Committee Chair, Dr. Avi Spiegel (spiegel@sandiego.edu).

University of Richmond

Rank: Assistant Professor of Leadership Studies

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

Specializations: Leadership Studies, Education Policy, Political Economy

The University of Richmond's Jepson School of Leadership Studies (JSLS) invites applications for a full-time tenure-track social scientist position at the rank of Assistant Professor for the 2020-21 academic year. Although ABDs will be considered, the successful candidate must have completed a Ph.D. in public administration, public policy, educational policy, political economy, political science, sociology, or a related field, by August 19, 2020.

JSLS is a collaborative, inclusive community of scholars in anthropology, economics, history, literature, philosophy, politics, social psychology and religion. We seek applicants who study, or have the potential and desire to study, leadership by drawing on their disciplinary expertise to inform their work. We are particularly interested in candidates whose demonstrated scholarly interests focus on the empirical analysis of data related to justice and explaining social and economic inequality.

Applicants should have the potential and desire to teach in an interdisciplinary undergraduate liberal arts environment. The successful candidate will be expected to teach elective courses related to his or her disciplinary training and to contribute to the curriculum by teaching such required courses as Leadership and the Social Sciences, Quantitative Social Science, and Theories and Models of Leadership. In their cover letter, candidates should demonstrate how their scholarly and teaching interests connect, or have the potential to connect, to leadership, broadly construed. (See <http://jepson.richmond.edu/> for more information.)

The University of Richmond is a private university located just a short drive from downtown Richmond, Virginia. Through its five schools and wide array of campus programming, the University combines the best qualities of a small liberal arts college and a large university. With nearly 4,000 students, an 8:1 student-faculty ratio, and 92% of traditional undergraduate students living on campus, the University is remarkably student-centered, focused on preparing students "to live lives of purpose, thoughtful inquiry, and responsible leadership in a global and pluralistic society."

The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse workforce and student body, and to modeling an inclusive campus community which values the expression of difference in ways that promote excellence in teaching, learning, personal development, and institutional success. Our academic community strongly encourages applications that are in keeping with this commitment.

Applicants should apply online at <http://jobs.richmond.edu> and submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter, and teaching statement. The teaching statement should articulate the candidate's teaching philosophy, interests, and future professional development goals as well as involvement in and commitment to inclusive pedagogy. The JSLs supports the University's commitment to promoting an inclusive campus community. For full consideration, applicants must specify in their cover letters how they are prepared to contribute to the imperatives of diversity and inclusion. In addition, please include the names and emails of three references who will receive an email asking them to submit their reference letters to the University's Human Resources department at URHR@richmond.edu. Review of applications will commence August 15, 2019. Phone or Skype interviews will be conducted in September. Committee members will be in attendance at the APSA Conference; attendance is not required for consideration. We anticipate inviting candidates to campus in October.

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, Methodology

The Department of Political Science and Economics at Rowan University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science position beginning in Fall 2020. The Department seeks candidates with expertise in public policy. Applicants must demonstrate a commitment to excellence in both research and teaching, as well as the potential to secure external grant/fellowship support. Teaching responsibilities include introductory and advanced courses in public policy and American politics. A 3/3 teaching load is guaranteed for the first two years and can be renewed annually with evidence of continuing scholarship. Female candidates and candidates of color are strongly encouraged to apply. Rowan University is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, color, disability, gender, gender expression, gender identity, genetic information, national origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or status as a protected veteran.

If you plan to attend the American Political Science Association (APSA) conference in Washington D.C. and would like to meet, please send your CV and a letter of application by August 1 to pluta@rowan.edu. We plan to meet with a limited number of applicants during the conference; however, all applicants will have equal consideration, regardless of attendance at APSA. Full applications should be submitted through the online applicant tracking system as discussed below.

Rowan University is a comprehensive state-designated research institution with approximately 15,000 students. Its main campus is located in Glassboro, N.J., 20-miles southeast of Philadelphia and it has a branch campus and medical school in Camden and a second medical school in nearby Stratford. The University boasts seven colleges—Rohrer College of Business and colleges of Communication and Creative Arts, Education, Engineering, Humanities and Social Sciences, Performing Arts, and Science and Mathematics.

The College of Humanities and Social Sciences (CHSS) is the second largest college at Rowan University with seven departments, seven interdisciplinary programs, and seventeen majors. The College also has a number of established graduate programs and is in the process of developing more programs at the Master's and Doctoral level. The College also houses a number of Centers and Institutes that serve both research and pedagogical functions. CHSS places a strong emphasis on exceptional teaching, research and service. Our mission is to empower, transform, and engage students and faculty, as well as the global communities in which we live. We actively support faculty research and strive to include faculty as full partners in governance within the College.

Candidates should have an earned doctorate in Political Science (or related field) by August 1, 2020. Applications will be accepted on a rolling basis until the position is filled. The first full review of applications will begin on October 28, 2019. Merrimack College

Rank: Lecturer, Political Science

Specializations: American Politics, State Politics, United States

Merrimack College invites applications for a one-year, non-tenure track position as Lecturer of Political Science with the possibility of renewal beginning in Fall 2019. Teaching load is four courses per semester total. The position involves the unique component of teaching two introductory level American Politics courses per semester to selected high school students from the Abbott Lawrence Academy on Merrimack's campus. Abbott Lawrence Academy is a public school with an entrance exam in Lawrence, Massachusetts that provides a high quality, rigorous, college preparatory education. You can find more information about the program at: <https://www.lawrence.k12.ma.us/index.php/ala-about>. The Lecturer position also involves a regular presence on the Abbott Lawrence Academy campus. In addition to the two courses per semester with Abbott Lawrence Academy, the successful candidate will also teach two courses per semester to Merrimack College students: our introductory level American Politics course and a course on Massachusetts State and Local Government.

There is the possibility of teaching additional upper level American Politics courses upon successful renewal.

Qualifications: PhD is required at time of appointment.

Merrimack College seeks to nourish and sustain our five core values of leadership, community, awareness, scholarship, and service. The College is committed to building a culturally diverse faculty and strongly encourages applications from members of underrepresented groups. All candidates are encouraged to describe in their application previous activities or interest in building a culture committed to diversity and inclusive excellence, as well as how they will engage in fostering a culture that values diversity and inclusive excellence at Merrimack College.

Review of applications will begin on May 21 and will continue until position is filled.

To Apply: Interested applicants should apply online through Academic Jobs Online at <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/13633>. Application materials should include: a letter of interest, C.V., evidence of teaching effectiveness, and three letters of recommendation.

About Merrimack: The only Catholic, Augustinian college in New England, Merrimack College is an independent, coeducational institution with more than 4,200 undergraduates and graduate students from 34 states and 36 countries, and comprises schools of liberal arts, science and engineering, health sciences, education and social policy, and business. The college's 220-acre campus is approximately 25 miles north of Boston in North Andover and Andover, Mass. Merrimack is a Master's Colleges & Universities/Medium Programs institution in the Carnegie Classification of Institutions of Higher Education. Merrimack recently placed 21st in the nation for "Colleges That Add the Most Value" in Money's special Best Colleges report and was ranked as one of the top 10 colleges in the northern United States for the fourth year in a row — and the only regional college judged "up and coming" by higher education leadership in the northern United States, according to U.S. News.

This position is subject to the successful completion of a criminal background check.

Rank: Assistant/Associate/Full Professor in Comparative Politics/
Data Science

Assistant/Associate/Full Professor in Comparative Politics/Data Science Department of Political Science University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

The Department of Political Science at the University of Illinois invites applications and nominations for a full-time, open rank (assistant, associate, or full) tenure-track faculty position in Comparative Politics with a specialization in data science. The position is open with regard to the candidate's substantive research interests in comparative politics. Outstanding senior candidates will be considered for a chair affiliated with the Cline Center for Advanced Social Research. Candidates must possess strong theoretical, analytical, and empirical skills.

The University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign is an established center for advancement in data science. The National Center for Supercomputing Applications (NCSA), the Beckman Institute for Advanced Science and Technology, the Center for Advanced Study (CAS), the School of Information Sciences (iSchool), and the Cline Center for Advanced Social Research all offer opportunities for interdisciplinary collaboration. In this context, the Department of Political Science seeks to build on its current strengths in quantitative and computational social science.

The Illinois College of Liberal Arts and Sciences is a world leader in research, teaching, and public engagement. Faculty in the College create knowledge, address critical societal needs through the transfer and application of knowledge, and prepare students for lives of impact in the state, nation, and globally. To meet these objectives, the College embraces and values diversity and difference through hiring faculty candidates who can contribute through their research, teaching, and/or service to the diversity and excellence of the Illinois community.

The University of Illinois is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action employer. Minorities, women, veterans, and individuals with disabilities are encouraged to apply. For more information, please visit <http://go.illinois.edu/EEO>.

The successful candidate will show potential to publish in top disciplinary journals and demonstrate a commitment to excellence in teaching appropriate for the rank sought. Successful candidates are expected to teach effectively at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, establish and maintain an active and independent research program, and provide service to the department, the university, and the profession.

Applicants must have a Ph.D. in Political Science or a related social science discipline in hand or show clear evidence of completion before the start of appointment. The anticipated starting date is August 16, 2020; the starting salary is competitive. Candidates with superior qualifications who will complete all Ph.D. requirements within the first appointment year may be appointed at the rank of Instructor. After the Ph.D. requirement is met, the appointment will be changed to Assistant Professor.

To apply, create your candidate profile through <https://jobs.illinois.edu> and upload your application materials: letter of application (specifying the rank for which the applicant is applying), CV, up to three representative publications or working papers, a statement of teaching philosophy, a statement of research interests, and evidence of teaching effectiveness. Applicants should also include a statement detailing how their teaching, service and/or scholarship has contributed to the success of students from racial, ethnic, and gender backgrounds that are underrepresented in your academic field. Applicants who have not yet had the opportunity for such experience should note how their work will further Illinois' and the College of LAS' commitment to diversity. The online application will require the contact information or Interfolio ID for three professional references. For applications at the assistant professor rank, referees will be contacted electronically by the Department within 1-2 business days after submission of the application. After a review of the research record, the search committee may then contact applicants at the associate and full professor rank to solicit letters of reference. Only applications submitted through the University of Illinois Job Board will be considered.

To ensure full consideration, all required application materials must be submitted by September 27, 2019; letters of reference for applicants at the assistant professor rank must be received no later than October 4, 2019. Early application submission is encouraged to allow time for referees to submit letters of recommendation. The University of Illinois conducts criminal background checks on all job candidates upon acceptance of a contingent offer. For further information regarding application procedures or to submit nominations, you may contact Brenda Stamm at stamm@illinois.edu.

Purdue University

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor of Political Science

Job Summary

The Department of Political Science at Purdue University seeks applications for up to two tenure-track assistant professors with strong skills in computational social science and data science, broadly defined, and who apply them to substantive questions in political science, preferably in the areas of comparative politics or international relations. Examples of strengths include machine learning, network modeling, statistical methods for large and complex data, natural language processing, text, audio, and/or image analytics, data visualization, and/or other related methods. Exceptional candidates at the level of associate professor with tenure may be considered.

Qualifications

The successful candidate will have an active research agenda and be able to teach courses at the intersection of data science, quantitative methods, and his or her substantive fields of expertise, and with some courses being part of the College of Liberal Arts' Integrated Cornerstone first-year curriculum. Candidates at the level of advanced assistant or associate professor are expected to have a strong track record of high-quality publications, appropriate to rank. A Ph.D. in Political Science or a related discipline is required.

Desired qualifications include interest in contributing to social science methodological training across campus; interest in contributing to a broader integrative data science initiative at Purdue; an interest in attracting external funding; and a commitment to teaching excellence.

Purdue University's Department of Political Science is committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort, including scholarship, instruction, and off-campus engagement. Candidates should address their commitment to diversity and inclusion in at least one of these areas in their cover letter, indicating their past experiences, current interests or activities, and/or future goals as they relate to promoting a climate that values diversity and inclusion.

College and University

Founded in 1869, Purdue is a research-intensive, PhD-granting institution and a public land-grant university. The Political Science Department is home to the journal Politics, Groups, and Identities. Faculty members are actively involved with several interdisciplinary programs and centers, including the Advanced Methods at Purdue (AMAP) cluster, the Building Sustainable Communities initiative, the Center for the Environment, the Center for Research on Diversity and Inclusion, Peace Studies, the Human Rights Program, Asian Studies, the Purdue Systems Collaboratory, and the Purdue Policy Research Institute. Many faculty members hold joint appointments or affiliations with other departments and programs, including Communication, African American Studies, Civil Engineering, Industrial Engineering, and Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies. The department offers graduate certificates to students across campus in Social Policy, Environmental Policy, and Human Rights. The department is also home to the director of the award-winning C-SPAN Archives, located at the Purdue Research Park.

Applications

Candidates should submit application materials electronically via <https://career8.successfactors.com/sfcareer/jobreqcareer?jobId=6956&company=purdueuniv&username=>

Applications should include curriculum vitae, graduate transcript, three letters of recommendation, a sample of written work, instructional materials such as syllabi and course evaluations, and a cover letter discussing the applicant's qualifications for the position. Candidates at the level of associate professor with tenure may submit names three references in lieu of letters.

Review of applications will begin September 15, 2019, and continue until the position is filled. Questions should be addressed to the search committee chair, Dr. James McCann, mccannj@purdue.edu. A background check will be required for employment in this position.

Equal Opportunity

Purdue University is an EOE/AA employer. All individuals, including minorities, women, individuals with disabilities, and veterans are encouraged to apply.

Harvard University

Rank: Weatherhead Scholars Program

The Weatherhead Scholars Program, a program at the Weatherhead Center for International Affairs (WCFIA), welcomed its first class of participants in 2017–2018. Established in 1958, the WCFIA is the largest international social science research center within the Faculty of Arts and Sciences. We support international, transnational, global, and comparative research, whether historical or contemporary, including policy analysis.

The Weatherhead Scholars Program offers visiting faculty, postdoctoral researchers, and experienced practitioners the opportunity to spend up to one year at Harvard conducting research. During their time in residence, Scholars are expected to participate in the Weatherhead Forum and in the Scholars Program Seminar; contribute to some of the Center's many other intellectual activities, including our research clusters; and to engage with the undergraduate and graduate student communities.

As participants in the Weatherhead Scholars Program, postdoctoral researchers and visiting scholars receive a one-year formal appointment from Harvard University granting them important privileges. These include access to the Harvard library system, computer labs, and Harvard University faculty club. Our scholars are an integral part of the more than 300 faculty, fellows, students, and staff in residence at the Center.

To be eligible for a postdoctoral position, a scholar will have completed his/her PhD in the last three calendar years, or will have defended by the start of the academic appointment. There are a limited number of $50,000 stipends for postdoctoral fellows (health insurance is also available to stipendiary postdocs). Visiting scholars – established faculty from other universities – are not eligible for funding support from the Weatherhead Center.

Princeton University

Rank: Garwood Visiting Professor

Specializations: American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Philosophy & Theory

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites college and university professors and other professionals with established records of scholarship to apply for appointment as Garwood Visiting Teaching Fellow for the academic year running from September 1, 2020 to June 1, 2021. The Garwood Visiting Teaching Fellowship can be for one semester or the academic year. Garwood Visiting Fellows teach at least one undergraduate course on statesmanship and presidential leadership in Princeton University's Department of Politics, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty. Depending on the needs of the University, additional teaching opportunities may be available, again subject to enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty.

James Madison Program Fellows will spend their Fellowship in residence at Princeton University. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University and are encouraged to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

All James Madison Program Fellows must have a doctorate or equivalent degree. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. Fellows normally receive a stipend of one-half their academic-year salary plus a living allowance. The fellows' home institutions are expected to provide at least half of their academic-year salaries in addition to all benefits.

How to apply: Applicants are required to submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/12907> (link is external).

A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;
- * a course proposal and draft syllabus;
- * contact information for two references;
- * a confidential statement that indicates the applicant's salary for the current academic year, what financial support their home institution and other sources are likely to provide, and what support they are likely to need from the Program.

For priority consideration application materials must be received by 11:59 p.m. EST on December 1, 2019 for appointments beginning in September 2020. Awards will be announced in March 2020 or before.

Invitation for Postdoctoral Research Associate Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites recent Ph.D. recipients to apply for appointments as Postdoctoral Research Associates or more senior researchers for the year from September 1, 2020 to September 1, 2021, with the possibility of renewal for an additional year, contingent on outstanding performance. All James Madison Program postdocs are expected to be in residence at Princeton University for the duration of the appointment. They may not be employed by another institution during the term of their Princeton appointment. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to the approval of the Dean of the Faculty. Postdoctoral Research Associates are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are, however, encouraged to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

The position is a fully funded, 12-month postdoctoral research associate appointment with benefits. All James Madison Program Postdoctoral Research Associates must have a Ph.D. degree. Applications are evaluated on the basis of (1) the significance of the proposed research; (2) the quality of the applicant's past research; and (3) the future contribution the applicant is likely to make to higher education. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Stetson University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science (Comparative Politics and Post-Communist Studies)

Stetson University seeks an assistant professor of political science with a primary area of expertise in comparative politics and a focus on the post-communist world. The candidate should have a desire to teach and conduct research in a liberal arts setting. Besides teaching introductory and upper-level courses in comparative politics and offering innovative first-year and/or junior seminars, the candidate will develop courses to complement existing strengths in the Department of Political Science and contribute to Stetson's Program in Russian, East European and Eurasian Studies, as well as the potential to offer courses in other related programs (e.g. International Studies, Gender Studies, and Global Development).

QUALIFICATIONS:

A Ph.D. in Political Science is preferred, but applicants who are ABD will be considered if they are at the final stage of the dissertation process. Teaching experience beyond typical teaching assistant duties in graduate school is an advantage but not required. Candidates should have a strong commitment to innovative teaching, a creative approach to pedagogical design and implementation, and a strong commitment to all aspects of diversity in our learning-centered community.

RESPONSIBILITIES:

The teacher-scholar model at Stetson requires that tenure-track faculty teach three courses each semester complemented with quality scholarship and service. Primary teaching responsibilities include our introductory and upper level courses in comparative politics and the post-communist world. Other courses will be based on the candidate's expertise and may include offerings for the University's requirements in General Education, including First Year Seminars and Junior Seminars. The faculty member is also expected to mentor students academically and professionally.

Candidates should demonstrate a passion for quality teaching, combined with the ability to produce rigorous peer-reviewed academic scholarship. Scholarly activity leading to publication in peer-reviewed journals and service to the Department, the College of Arts and Sciences, the University, and the profession are required. For more information on our expectations in teaching and scholarship, our tenure policies, and our support for faculty professional development, please see the Office of the Provost and Academic Affairs website: <http://www.stetson.edu/administration/provost/index.php>.

THE DEPARTMENT:

The Department of Political Science (<http://www.stetson.edu/artsci/political-science/>) offers academically rigorous majors in both Political Science and Public Management. Departmental faculty contribute regularly to interdisciplinary programs such as International Studies, Russian, Eastern European and Eurasian Studies, Latin American Studies, Africana Studies, the Honors Program, Environmental Science and Studies, and Public Health. We have had considerable success placing students in high-quality graduate programs in Political Science, International Affairs, and Public Administration and in prominent law schools. Faculty in the Department are committed to the teacher-scholar model, which involves teaching within a traditional liberal arts environment where the primary focus is extensive interaction with undergraduate students in a small class environment, while also maintaining an active research agenda.

THE COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES:

Stetson's College of Arts and Sciences (<http://www.stetson.edu/portal/artsci/>) is the largest and most diverse of the University's colleges and schools; it includes the humanities, social sciences, natural sciences, education, and creative arts. With nineteen academic departments and eight interdisciplinary programs, the College is the liberal arts core of the University. A great strength of the College is its faculty of approximately 140 full-time teacher-scholars. The College offers 31 undergraduate majors and 34 undergraduate minors; six graduate degrees are offered in Education, Counselor Education, and Creative Writing. Every undergraduate major requires a senior research project, giving students the opportunity to design and carry out independent research under faculty mentorship. Our academic programs are shaped by the values of social justice and civic responsibility. All of our courses and programs of study promote engaged learning, whereby students create connections between the classroom or lab and the local, regional, and global community. The academic programs of the College of Arts and Sciences prepare students to live significant lives, to interact with and positively affect the world around them.

THE UNIVERSITY:

Founded in 1883, Stetson University (<http://www.stetson.edu>) is a private, selective university comprised of a rich array of liberal arts and professional academic programs. Collectively, Stetson's faculty works with nearly 4000 students in undergraduate, graduate, and professional programs. The University's historic main campus, located in DeLand, enrolls more than 2,800 students in undergraduate programs in the College of Arts & Sciences, the School of Business Administration, and the School of Music. Stetson University College of Law, Florida's first law school, moved from the main campus to Gulfport in 1954, and, with the addition of the Tampa Law Center, serves approximately 1,000 students working full-time or part-time toward J.D. or LL.M. degrees. Graduate programs offered at the main campus and at Stetson University Center in Celebration include Business, Accounting, Educational Leadership, Counseling, and Creative Writing. Florida's oldest private institution of higher learning, Stetson has regularly been ranked among the best regional universities in the Southeast and was the first private college in Florida to be granted a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

Stetson University provides an inspiring education that engages students with rigorous academic and creative study grounded in liberal learning and promotes civic values of personal and social responsibility. Working closely with faculty and with one another, students cultivate abilities to explore issues deeply, think critically, reason empirically, speak persuasively, and connect ideas creatively. Firmly committed to inclusive excellence, our vibrant community of teacher-scholars nurtures the potential of individual students to lead lives of significance and prepares each to meet the challenges of shaping the future—locally, nationally, and globally.

THE COMMUNITY:

DeLand is a picturesque residential community of 32,000 located 20 miles west of Daytona Beach and 35 miles northeast of Orlando. The area offers extensive cultural as well as recreational activities.

SALARY: Salary is competitive.

APPLICATION:

Applicants must send the following materials for consideration: 1) a cover letter summarizing the candidate's interest in the position and qualifications, 2) a statement of the candidate's teaching philosophy, a representative sample of teaching evaluations, and other relevant teaching materials (e.g. syllabi, assignments, etc.), 3) a curriculum vitae, 4) copies of undergraduate and graduate transcripts, 5) three letters of recommendation sent under separate cover by the recommenders via e-mail (at least one of which should include an evaluation of teaching ability), and 6) a statement of research interests and a description of how undergraduate students might participate in that research. Candidates are encouraged to highlight skills and experiences that demonstrate a commitment to social justice, diversity, and inclusion.

Departmental representatives will conduct interviews at the Career Fair of the Annual Meeting of the American Political Science Association, August 29-September 1 in Washington, D.C. Participation in these interviews is not required and non-participation will not affect a candidate's application in any way.

Review of applications will begin on October 1 and continue until the position is filled.

University of Missouri, Columbia

Specializations: Political Development, Political Thought: Historical, Constitutional Law & Theory

University of Missouri: Open Field / Open Rank

The University of Missouri invites applications for a tenure-track/tenured professorship funded by the Kinder Institute on Constitutional Democracy and housed in the Department of Political Science. Competitive applicants will have a clear research agenda, strong theoretical orientation, ability to publish in highly-ranked journals and academic presses, and potential for effective teaching at the graduate and undergraduate levels. Women, minorities, and individuals with disabilities are especially encouraged to apply.

Competitive candidates will be scholars with productive and internationally prominent research profiles. The position focuses on Atlantic History and Politics -- the study of connections and conflicts among the diverse peoples of the Atlantic basin, including the peoples of Africa, the Americas, and Europe, since circa 1600. The position is open to all fields in political science, although candidates should feel comfortable teaching small classes that are part of the new B.A. in Constitutional Democracy, such as "Intellectual World of the American Founders," and "Constitutional Debates, 1787-1788." Candidates also will be expected to demonstrate the potential to contribute to the teaching of the new M.A. program in Atlantic History and Politics. For more about these degree programs and related initiatives, see <https://democracy.missouri.edu>.

An earned doctorate in political science is required at the time of appointment. Candidates should submit their curriculum vitae, a cover letter, three writing samples, and three current letters of recommendation. The cover letter should address the following: current and future research, teaching interests, and how the applicant envisions contributing to the intellectual life of the Political Science Department and the Kinder Institute. Applicants must also submit a statement of inclusion and diversity as part of their application materials. Please attach all materials in the Cover Letters and Attachments section of the electronic application processing system at: <http://hrs.missouri.edu/find-a-job/academic>. The review of applications will begin September 15, 2019, as they appear in the electronic application system, and the review will continue until the position is filled. The appointment will begin August 15, 2020.

The University of Missouri is fully committed to achieving the goal of a diverse and inclusive academic community of faculty, staff, and students. We seek individuals who are committed to this goal and our core campus values of respect, responsibility, discovery, and excellence. The University of Missouri is an Equal Opportunity/Access/Affirmative Action/Pro Disabled & Veteran Employer. Equal Opportunity is and shall be provided for all employees and applicants for employment on the basis of their demonstrated ability and competence without unlawful discrimination on the basis of their race, color, national origin, ancestry, religion, sex, pregnancy, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, age, disability, protected veteran status, or any other status protected by applicable state or federal law. University of Toronto, Mississauga

Rank: Associate Professor/Professor - Comparative Politics

Specializations: Africa, East Asia, Middle East

Associate/ Full Professor – Comparative Politics

The Department of Political Science at the University of Toronto Mississauga invites applications for one full-time tenure-stream appointment in the field of Comparative Politics. The appointment will be at the rank of Associate Professor or Professor and will begin on July 1, 2020, or shortly thereafter.

Applicants must have earned a Ph.D. degree in Political Science or a closely related field. The successful candidate will have a demonstrated exceptional record of excellence in research and teaching. We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and strengthen our existing departmental strengths. Candidates will have an established international reputation and will be expected to sustain and lead innovative and independent research at the highest international level and to maintain an outstanding, competitive, and externally funded research program.

We are interested in comparative politics scholars who focus on the regions of East Asia or Africa or the Middle East. While subject area is open, we especially welcome candidates whose research focuses on race, conflict, regime change, political violence, state formation/building, resource politics, human rights, or distributive politics. The successful candidate will be able to teach introductory and intermediate survey courses in Comparative Politics, as well as advanced courses in East Asia or Africa or the Middle East.

Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence of an internationally competitive caliber, as evidenced by a record of sustained high-impact contributions and publications in leading journals or with leading presses in the field, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, distinguished accolades or awards, other noteworthy activities that contribute to the visibility and prominence of the discipline, strong endorsements by referees of high standing, and an outstanding track-record of externally funded research.

Evidence of excellence in teaching and a demonstrated commitment to graduate education and mentorship are required and will be provided through teaching accomplishments, the teaching dossier submitted as part of the application including a strong teaching statement, sample course syllabi, and the teaching evaluations, as well as strong letters of reference.

The successful applicant will teach undergraduate courses in the Department of Political Science at the University of Toronto Mississauga and will also become a full member of the Graduate Department of Political Science of the University of Toronto, undertaking graduate teaching and supervision at the St. George campus. For further information on the UTM Department and on the tri-campus Graduate Department, see www.utm.utoronto.ca/~w3pol/ and www.chass.utoronto.ca/polsci/.

Salary and rank will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

To be considered for this position, all application materials must be submitted online by clicking the apply link below. Please include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a writing sample (e.g., an article offprint), two comparative politics syllabi (1 graduate and 1 undergraduate), a statement of teaching expertise and interest (1 page max), teaching evaluations, and a statement outlining current and future research interests (2 pages max).

Equity and diversity are among UTM's core values and are essential to academic excellence. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover topics such as (but not limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

Applicants must also ask three referees to send confidential letters of recommendation directly via email (on letterhead, signed, dated and scanned) to the Chair, Professor Andrea Olive, at polsci.utm@utoronto.ca by the closing date.

To receive consideration, applications and all materials (including letters of reference) must be received by October 31, 2019.

Please submit attachments in PDF format only. Submission guidelines can be found at: uoft.me/how-to-apply. If you have questions about this position, please contact chair.pol.utm@utoronto.ca.

The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous / Aboriginal People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see uoft.me/UP.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

The Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies
Academy Scholars Program, 2020-2021

The Academy Scholars Program identifies and supports outstanding scholars at the start of their careers whose work combines disciplinary excellence in the social sciences or law with a command of the language and history or culture of countries or regions outside of the United States or Canada. Their scholarship may elucidate domestic, comparative, or transnational issues, past or present.

The Academy Scholars are a select community of individuals with resourcefulness, initiative, curiosity, and originality, whose work in cultures or regions outside of the US or Canada shows promise as a foundation for exceptional careers in major universities or international institutions. Harvard Academy Scholarships are open only to recent PhD (or comparable professional school degree) recipients and doctoral candidates. Scholars applying by the October 1, 2019 deadline for the August 2020 postdoctoral fellowships must have completed the PhD or equivalent after September 30, 2016.

Academy Scholars are appointed for a two-year, in-residence, postdoctoral fellowship at The Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies, Harvard University, Cambridge, MA. Academy Scholars receive substantial financial and research assistance to undertake sustained projects of research and/or acquire additional training in their chosen fields and areas. Some teaching is permitted but not required. The Senior Scholars, a distinguished group of Harvard University faculty members, act as mentors to the Academy Scholars to help them achieve their intellectual potential.

Postdoctoral Academy Scholars will receive an annual stipend of $70,000. If selected before earning the PhD, the Scholar will receive an annual stipend of $31,000 until awarded the PhD or equivalent degree. The online application for the postdoctoral fellowships beginning in August 2020 is due by October 1, 2019. Finalist interviews will take place in Cambridge on December 4, 2019. Notification of scholarships will be made in late December 2019.

The College of Wooster

Rank: Assistant Professor Global Environmental Justice

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Open, Other

Description

The Departments of Environmental Studies and Political Science at The College of Wooster seek to fill a tenure track position in Global Environmental Justice at the level of Assistant Professor, beginning in the fall of 2020. We are looking for a broadly trained specialist in environmental politics and social justice with area studies expertise and a high proficiency in qualitative methodologies.

Qualifications

The successful candidate should have a demonstrated ability to teach courses and advise research projects in environmental justice and social justice, broadly conceived. They would teach introductory and advanced courses in the Environmental Studies and Political Science departments, supervise independent research projects as part of the College's Independent Study requirement, and participate in teaching the College's First Year Seminar. We seek to hire a scholar whose research and teaching addresses one or more dimensions of environmental justice, such as: the intersections of global climate change and class, ethnic, or racial inequalities; comparative environmental movements; forced displacement and migration due to environmental crisis; food or water insecurity; or environmental governance. In addition, we are interested in candidates whose research and teaching can connect with one or more interdisciplinary programs at The College of Wooster such as Africana Studies, Global & International Studies, East Asian Studies, South Asian Studies, Middle Eastern and North African Studies, Urban Studies, or Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies. The College of Wooster enrolls a diverse student body (21% domestic students of color and 15% international students); applicants should have experience with diverse student populations.

Application Instructions

We prefer candidates who will have completed their Ph.D. by the time of appointment and who have had previous independent teaching experience. Applicants should submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, evidence of effective teaching (including syllabi and summaries of student evaluations), a statement regarding how the applicant will contribute to the College's commitment to diversity and inclusion, graduate transcripts, and three letters of recommendation here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/66667>. Applications received by October 1, 2019, will receive full consideration. Please contact Matt Mariola (m-mariola@wooster.edu), Associate Professor of Environmental Studies and Chair of the search committee, with any questions.

McMaster University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at McMaster University invites applications for a full-time tenure-track appointment in Comparative Public Policy. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor, with a preferred starting date of July 1, 2020.

Candidates must have earned a PhD in Political Science, or a related discipline, by the date of appointment or shortly thereafter. The main criteria for selection are research and teaching excellence. Candidates must demonstrate an emerging record of research accomplishments that contribute to and advance the comparative study of public policy. Candidates must also demonstrate a commitment to excellence in undergraduate and graduate teaching, and strong potential for excellence as a graduate supervisor.

The successful candidate will have evidence of high-quality scholarly output and excellence in research. They will be expected to carry out an independent research program yielding significant peer-reviewed publications, and to compete successfully for external funding to support this research program. Candidates from a wide range of disciplinary perspectives and substantive policy interests are encouraged to apply, including those who apply innovative approaches involving socially engaged and participatory research.

The successful candidate will also demonstrate strong potential for outstanding teaching contributions at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, and an ongoing commitment to academic and pedagogical excellence in support of the department's programs. At the undergraduate level, the appointee will be expected to teach introductory as well as more advanced courses in an area of their expertise. At the graduate level, the appointee will teach courses as part of the Masters in Political Science and the PhD program in Comparative Public Policy, and be expected to supervise graduate students in their areas of research expertise. These can include mainstream policy studies as well as projects that adopt critical approaches to policy. The capacity to strengthen the department's commitment to practice-based learning is an asset.

The person who fills this position is expected to contribute to the department's supportive and collegial working environment, and to make substantive contributions through service to the department, the Faculty, the University, and/or the broader community.

McMaster University consistently ranks among the top 5 research intensive universities in Canada and among the top 100 universities worldwide. It has a strong focus on community-based research and experiential learning that complements classroom studies with hands-on experience. Community engagement and a commitment to service and to the public good has been a key part of McMaster's history. The Department of Political Science provides a strong, supportive and collegial research culture, building the research capacity of faculty and graduate students. It offers MA degrees in Political Science and International Relations, and PhD degrees in Comparative Public Policy and International Relations, as well as a range of undergraduate programs. Further information on the Department can be found at <http://www.politicalscience.mcmaster.ca>.

McMaster is strongly committed to employment equity within its community and to recruiting a diverse faculty and staff. The diversity of our workforce is at the core of our innovation and creativity and strengthens our research and teaching excellence. The University encourages applications from all qualified candidates, particularly women, persons with disabilities, First Nations, Métis and Inuit peoples, members of racialized communities, and LGBTQ+ identified persons. The University seeks qualified candidates who share our commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion. Applicants are asked to include, as part of their application package, a statement describing their commitment to and demonstrated experience advancing equity, diversity and inclusion in post-secondary education, community-based or other professional settings.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens and permanent residents will be given priority. To comply with the Government of Canada's reporting requirements, the University is obliged to gather information about applicants' status as either Permanent Residents of Canada or Canadian citizens. Applicants need not identify their country of origin or current citizenship, however, all applications must include in the cover letter one of the following statements: "I am a citizen / permanent resident of Canada" OR "I am not a citizen or permanent resident of Canada." Applications that do not include this information will be deemed incomplete.

How to apply:

Applicants should submit the following documents electronically as PDFs through www.workingatmcmaster.ca/careers/

- Cover letter;
- Curriculum Vitae;
- Statement of research;
- Statement of contributions and commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion – addressing past, ongoing, and/or potential contributions through teaching, research, professional activity, and/or service;
- Evidence of teaching excellence;
- Academic writing sample.

In addition, applicants must arrange for three letters of reference to be sent directly by referees to Dr. Karen Bird, Chair, Department of Political Science at polisci@mcmaster.ca

Applicants will also be sent a link to complete an online voluntary Diversity Survey. All information collected is confidential and will be used to support efforts to broaden the diversity of the applicant pool and to promote a fair, equitable, and inclusive hiring process.

Job applicants requiring accommodation to participate in the hiring process should contact the Human Resources Service Centre at 905-525-9140 ext. 222-HR (22247) or the Faculty of Social Sciences Human Resources Advisor at ext. 24552 to communicate accommodation needs.

Consideration of applications will begin on October 11, 2019.

Assistant Professor, Political Science, Human Security

University of Nevada, Reno - Main Campus

Job Description

The Political Science Department at the University of Nevada, Reno (UNR) invites applications for a tenure-track, full-time appointment at the rank of Assistant Professor in the area of human security. We seek a scholar researching large-scale political, environmental, economic and/or social problems, potentially crossing international boundaries. Specializations might include, but are not limited to, linkages between climate change and food security; regional or global health issues affecting human security; research on refugees, migration, the dispossessed or internally displaced people as a result of famine, drought, environmental deterioration, or conflict. The Political Science Department at UNR has a growing emphasis in the broad area of human security and a commitment to inclusion. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to develop their own courses and research agenda under this umbrella and be expected to teach at all levels of the curriculum (lower and upper division undergraduate, MA/PhD). This could at times include specific courses required for degree programs. The normal teaching load is 2/2. We welcome applicants from any empirical research methodological tradition, but expect a high-level of sophistication and rigor. The start-up package is competitive.

Required Qualifications

Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field in hand by August 15, 2020.
 A developing or established research agenda in human security
 A record of, or potential for, publishing in top-tier journals and presses in relevant fields
 A rigorous, empirical research methodology.
 Demonstrated excellence, or clear evidence of potential for excellence, in teaching

Preferred Qualifications

Evidence of or potential for strong external grant activity
 Evidence of attention to diversity, equity and inclusion in research, teaching and/or service

Compensation Grade/Rank

II, Assistant Professor

Department Information

The UNR Department of Political Science is an energetic, collegial and exciting community of political scientists and public policy and public administration scholars with a deep commitment to excellence in research and teaching as well as to leadership in the Department, the University, and the diverse northern Nevada community. The Department is home to three graduate programs that confer MA, MPA and PhD degrees. It offers a BA in Political Science and coordinates the International Affairs major and minors in Latin American Studies, Asian Studies and Renewable Energy. Faculty are linked with a variety of College and University-wide initiatives, such as the Cybersecurity Center and the Gender, Race and Identity Program. Additional information about the Department can be found at: <https://www.unr.edu/political-science>. The University of Nevada, Reno is a Research 1 land-grant campus of the Nevada System of Higher Education with a student population of approximately 22,000, including over 3,000 graduate students. Nearly half of incoming students identify as being from an underrepresented group. In accordance with the university's land grant, tier one research institution mission, our faculty are expected to contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community through research, teaching and service in a pluralistic environment.

The University has dynamic intellectual, artistic and sports life and a close relationship to the city of Reno, an emerging tech and innovation hub with a diverse population and a rich cultural history that hosts an active art, music and festival scene along the Truckee River. Known for its proximity to Lake Tahoe and the Sierra Nevada mountains, Reno is a vibrant, diverse and growing city of 300,000 located on the eastern slope of the Sierra Nevada, about 200 miles east of San Francisco, about 100 miles east of Sacramento and 30 miles north of the state capital, Carson City. Combined with the neighboring city of Sparks, the Reno-Sparks metropolitan area has a population of 450,000. Reno is only 30-45 minutes from Lake Tahoe and major ski resorts and is rated one of the top locations in the United States for living and for outdoor recreation. It has an international airport with direct flights to many U.S. transportation hubs and to Mexico. Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Comparative Politics

Public Policy Position – Assistant Professor
Singapore Management University, School of Social Sciences

The School of Social Sciences (SOSS), Singapore Management University, invites applications for a tenure-track position in Public Policy at the rank of Assistant Professor.

The ideal candidate is one who conducts innovative research in topics related to comparative public policy, public administration, or global governance, and who can teach introductory as well as special-topic elective courses in public policy that will contribute towards the SOSS Public Policy and Public Management (PPPM) second major. We are open to research focus, although an interest in Asia would be a plus. The successful candidate will display a record of, or high potential for, scholarly research, as well as demonstrated teaching aptitude in Public Policy topics. The position requires a doctorate in Public Policy, Public Administration, Political Science, or a closely related field.

Singapore Management University is a research university committed to an interdisciplinary and integrated curriculum, providing opportunities to work with faculty across the social sciences. The research support is excellent and salary and benefits are highly competitive. The teaching load is comparable to other research universities, and typically, junior faculty receive a 3-course per year teaching load for their first contract.

Full evaluation of applications will start 16 September 2019. Only shortlisted candidates will be notified for interviews, which will begin in October 2019. The successful candidate will be expected to start at Singapore Management University in July 2020. All hires are contingent upon the successful completion of a background check.

The application package should be in electronic form and include: (1) a cover letter describing research and teaching interests, (2) a curriculum vitae (including teaching experience and a list of referees), (3) a professional writing sample, and (4) evidence of teaching effectiveness (such as teaching evaluations).

Applicants should also arrange for three confidential letters of recommendation to be delivered to: The Dean's Office, School of Social Sciences, Singapore Management University, 90 Stamford Road, Level 4, Singapore 178903 or email to: socialsciencescv@smu.edu.sg

Rutgers University, Camden

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor – International Relations, Comparative Politics
Specializations: Middle East, South Asia, Western Europe

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor – International Relations, Comparative Politics

The Political Science Department at Rutgers University-Camden invites applications for a full time, tenure track appointment at the rank of assistant or associate professor. Teaching responsibilities include two courses per semester in Political Science. The primary field of specialization is International Relations with expertise in Security Studies and the ability to contribute to teaching in the department's U.S. National Security Certificate Program. A regional specialty in the Middle East, Asia, or Europe is desirable. Ph.D. must be awarded no later than June 2020.

The Camden Campus is a unit of Rutgers University and as such all applicants must demonstrate a record of scholarly potential commensurate with expectations at a public research university. Rutgers-Camden places a high value on providing meaningful undergraduate opportunities for research <http://fas.camden.rutgers.edu/student-experience/undergraduate-research/curca/> and for civic engagement <http://www.camden.rutgers.edu/office-civic-engagement>.

The Political Science Department includes nine full-time faculty members serving approximately 250 majors. While the course load and publishing expectations reflect those of a large research institution, our class size and commitment to individualized attention, especially in our honors program, reflect the advantages of a smaller liberal arts environment. Camden is located directly across the Delaware River from Philadelphia, offering a diversity of transportation, and housing, cultural and educational options.

Candidates should submit the following materials electronically to Ms. Lisa Alston: lisa.alston@rutgers.edu. (1) a letter of interest emphasizing teaching experience as well as research accomplishments and agenda; (2) a CV; (3) three letters of reference; and (4) an unofficial transcript documenting doctoral studies to date. Please be sure to submit documents as pdf files or MS Word documents. Hiring for this position is contingent on final University funding approval. The Department will be interviewing candidates at the APSA meetings and applications will be accepted until October 15, 2019. Rutgers is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. The University and our department seek to attract diverse faculty and staff of the highest caliber. Women and minorities are strongly encouraged to apply.

University of California, San Diego

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): Public Policy, International Relations, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Economic Policy, International Political Economy, International Law & Organizations

The Center for Commerce and Diplomacy (CCD) at UC San Diego's School of Global Policy and Strategy (GPS) invites applications for a postdoctoral research position for the 2020-2021 academic year.

These awards are designed to promote high-quality research on the challenges and institutions of international economic diplomacy in a changing world. Research projects that seek to understand the causes and consequences of the institutions of economic globalization (e.g. GATT/WTO, FTAs, BITs, IMF, World Bank, Fast-Track, TPA, RTAA, etc) are particularly welcome. Commercial diplomats operate within a set of domestic and international institutions that governs their behavior in international negotiations. But we know little about the specifics of these rules and procedures, how they came into being, how they vary over time and across countries, and how they affect economic outcomes. Post-doctoral research on the institutions of economic globalization can help answer questions about the welfare and distributional consequences of these institutions and, ultimately, result in the better design of these institutions.

Outstanding scholars anywhere in the world are eligible to apply. The Center invites applications from candidates with a background in Economics, Political Science, Economic History, Legal History, or other disciplines bearing on the study of Economic Diplomacy. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence for the duration of the appointment (September 28, 2020 – June 11, 2021), and to interact with faculty and Ph.D. students, giving at least one research talk. Selected fellows are also expected to attend CCD events and related seminars, and to post their research on the CCD website.

Application Deadline: Applicants should apply by Friday, November 29, 2019, for full consideration; however, the posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process: All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <https://apol-recruit.ucsd.edu/JPF02196>

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. or receive a Ph.D. degree in Economics, Political Science, Economic History, Legal History, or other disciplines related to the study of Economic Diplomacy by the start of appointment.

Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on December 6, 2019. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Salary - Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. CCD Fellows will receive applicable UCSD benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a research fund.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2020. These positions are subject to the UCSD's background check policy.

For more information about the Center for Commercial Diplomacy fellowship program, please contact Alexandra Hubenko, Executive Director, at ahubenko@ucsd.edu

UC San Diego is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

University of Toronto

Rank: Assistant Professor in Social Diversity

The Department of Political Science in the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a tenure-stream appointment in the area of Social Diversity. We are seeking a candidate whose research focuses on key issues of development and diversity, and who can teach core courses in both fields too. We seek candidates with deep area-based expertise in the Global South but, within those parameters, we are open as to precise region or country of specialisation. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor and will commence on July 1, 2020, or shortly thereafter.

The successful candidate must have a PhD in Political Science or a closely related discipline at the time of appointment or shortly thereafter. We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and strengthen our existing departmental strengths. Applicants are encouraged to review the research and teaching profiles of current faculty members. Please visit our home page (Department of Political Science <http://politics.utoronto.ca>) to learn more about us.

Candidates must provide strong evidence of research excellence of an internationally competitive calibre, as evidenced by a record of publications in leading outlets in the field or forthcoming publications meeting high international standards, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, accolades or awards, and strong endorsements by referees of high standing. The successful candidate will be expected to mount an innovative, competitive, independent, and externally funded research program and to pursue outstanding research at the highest international level. Evidence of excellence in teaching is required and is demonstrated by a teaching dossier, to include a strong statement of teaching philosophy, sample syllabi, teaching evaluations and teaching accomplishments, and strong endorsements from referees. The successful candidate will undertake undergraduate and graduate teaching responsibilities on the University's downtown (St George) campus.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply by clicking on the link below. Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, article-length writing sample (approximately 10,000 words), teaching dossier (including a statement of teaching philosophy, sample syllabi, and teaching evaluations), and a statement outlining current and future research interests. Because we seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity, candidates are also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of their contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover (but need not be limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups. Applicants should also ask three referees to send letters (on letterhead, signed and scanned) directly to the Chair of the search committee in the Department of Political Science, Professor Antoinette Handley, via e-mail at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca by the closing date, October 3, 2019.

All application materials should be submitted through the University of Toronto's online application system. Submission guidelines can be found at: <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by October 3, 2019.

If you have questions about this position, please contact Sari Sherman at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca.

The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous / Aboriginal People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Oklahoma State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at Oklahoma State University (www.polsci.okstate.edu) invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position to begin in August 2020. The applicant should have expertise in electoral politics, specializing in electoral integrity within the United States, or from a comparative or international perspective. Potential topics include standards and norms governing the proper conduct of elections, electoral system design and reform, and electoral justice such as voting rights, election monitoring and electoral dispute resolution. Candidates whose research and teaching engages applied approaches and potential reforms to ensure electoral integrity are especially encouraged to apply, as are candidates who could teach courses related to our new undergraduate options in global politics and/or practical politics.

Successful candidates will demonstrate an ability to produce high quality scholarly publications and a potential to excel in teaching. A Ph.D. in Political Science is expected at the time of appointment. We will also consider candidates with a Ph.D. in a closely related field if they have completed substantial coursework in Political Science. Oklahoma State University is one of the state's two comprehensive research universities with a Stillwater campus population of 23,000 students. The Department offers the following degrees in Political Science: B.S., B.A. and M.A. The teaching load is normally two courses per semester and can include both undergraduate and graduate-level courses. Completed applications received by September 15, 2019 (depending on the position) will be given full consideration. Applicants are asked to submit the following through Interfolio <https://apply.interfolio.com/65885> a letter of application outlining your interest in this position, research expertise and teaching interests/experience; vitae; graduate transcripts; three letters of recommendation; evidence of successful teaching and scholarship; and short research and teaching statements.

The department is committed to creating an inclusive space for our students, faculty, and staff and to teaching and mentoring our undergraduate and graduate scholars from various backgrounds. The department encourages applications from women and underrepresented racial/ethnic groups. About one third of our undergraduate majors are members of underrepresented groups. Among our tenure-track faculty, 9 percent are from underrepresented racial/ethnic groups and 55 percent are female. Oklahoma State University, as an equal opportunity employer, complies with all applicable federal and state laws regarding non-discrimination and affirmative action. Oklahoma State University is committed to a policy of equal opportunity for all individuals and does not discriminate based on race, religion, age, sex, color, national origin, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, or veteran status with regard to employment, educational programs and activities, and/or admissions. University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: Assistant Professor, Politics and Policy of China -- Cluster Hire

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

The University of Wisconsin-Madison seeks to hire a faculty member with research and teaching interests in comparative politics or international relations, with a primary focus on China and a secondary focus on East Asia and the Pacific Rim. Potential areas of substantive expertise in the politics and policy of China include: political and economic development, human rights, environmental politics and policy, international political economy, international security, international organizations/governance, non-governmental organizations, or political sociology.

This faculty position is part of a three-position research cluster, Rethinking East Asia and the World, which was proposed by the Title VI-funded National Resource Center, the Center for East Asian Studies, for the University's Cluster Hiring Initiative to enhance cross-disciplinary expertise on contemporary East Asia. Two candidates have been hired into this Cluster: Assistant Professor, Sociology of Contemporary Korea; and Assistant Professor, Educational Policy Studies in East Asia. Candidates for this position - Assistant Professor, Chinese Politics and Policy - should show a clear commitment to collaborating with the Cluster and to contributing to the intellectual life of the Center for East Asian Studies, the Department of Political Science, and the La Follette School of Public Affairs.

The successful candidate will have a primary appointment in either the Department of Political Science or the La Follette School of Public Affairs, with preference given to candidates interested in both political science and public affairs/public policy. Tenure home will be determined at the time of hiring. Expectations include a commitment to the important functions of research, instruction, and outreach, as well as professional and university service as appropriate to faculty rank.

Responsibilities include conducting research and teaching at all levels required with service at the professional and university level.

Teaching will include courses to undergraduate students, as well as graduate students. The teaching load in a typical academic year will consist of two courses taught in the Department of Political Science and two courses taught in the La Follette School of Public Affairs. Mentoring graduate students will be required as well.

To apply, go to <http://jobs.wisc.edu> and search for PVL 98888. To begin the application process, please click on the 'Apply Now' button. You will be asked to create a profile and upload a C.V., cover letter, a research statement, a teaching statement, and 2 samples of written work (please upload these 2 samples together). You will also be asked to provide contact information for three (3) references as part of your online application.

The deadline for assuring full consideration is September 18, 2019; however, positions will remain open and applications may be considered until the position is filled.

California State Polytechnic University, Pomona

Rank: Assistant Professor -- International Relations and/or Comparative Politics

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Methodology

Assistant Professor – International Relations and/or Comparative Politics

The Political Science Department in the College of Letters, Arts, and Social Sciences at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona (Cal Poly Pomona) invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor for appointment beginning in the 2020-2021 academic year. Candidates specializing in international relations and/or comparative politics are especially encouraged to apply.

At Cal Poly Pomona, we cultivate success through a diverse culture of experiential learning, discovery, and innovation. We demonstrate academic quality, relevance, and excellence through our teaching, learning, scholarship, and creative activities with student-centered faculty in an evidence-based culture. Cal Poly Pomona is committed to being the model for an inclusive polytechnic university that inspires creativity and innovation, embraces local and global challenges, and transforms lives.

The Position

The faculty member will be part of a small, collegial Political Science Department which grants a B.A. degree, and which also has a Master's in Public Administration. The faculty member will primarily teach courses in international relations and/or comparative politics. A faculty member specializing in international relations will be expected to teach courses such as International Law, International Political Economy, and US Foreign Policy. A faculty member specializing in comparative politics will be expected to teach courses in a regional specialization other than Latin America. The ability to teach undergraduate research methods, whether qualitative and/or quantitative, will also be expected. The position requires excellence in teaching and advising, professional and scholarly achievements, and a commitment to service to the university. Applicants whose work demonstrates a commitment to inclusive excellence and diversity in higher education are particularly encouraged to apply. Cal Poly Pomona is a Hispanic-serving institution and the faculty member will be an advisor to many under-represented minorities and first-generation college students.

Minimum Qualifications

- Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field from an accredited university at the time of appointment
- University teaching experience as instructor of record and/or teaching assistant
- Evidence of scholarly potential (conference presentations, publications, grant development, etc.)
- Evidence of demonstrated ability to contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community through research, teaching, and/or service and work, as well as experience fostering an inclusive environment

Preferred/Desired Qualifications

Research interests related to social or racial justice, gender inequities, and/or inequality would be a plus. Additionally, preference will be given to candidates who can demonstrate the ability to mentor and advise under-served populations including, but not limited to, African-American, Hispanic, and Native American students.

Application Procedure

The position is open until filled. First consideration will be given to completed applications submitted by Friday, September 13, 2019. Early submission is encouraged. Electronic submissions of all application materials must be submitted online via Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/65857>.

A completed application will consist of:

- A cover letter that describes the candidate's teaching performance, research experience and interests, and that addresses the duties and qualifications articulated in the position description;
- A curriculum vitae comprising at least those elements specified on the application form and including the names, titles, addresses, email addresses, and telephone numbers of at least five individuals who can speak to the candidate's potential for success in this position;
- A 'Student Success Statement' about your teaching, or other experiences, successes, and challenges working with a diverse student population (approximately one page, single-spaced);
- Three recent letters of reference (on letterhead, signed and dated within the past two years), uploaded through Interfolio;
- A completed application form available on the application website;
- An unofficial transcript showing the highest degree earned from an accredited education institution. Finalists will be required to submit an official transcript; and
- Recent teaching evaluation summaries and sample syllabi, if available.
- Please submit all electronic documents in PDF format.

The University: Cal Poly Pomona is one of two polytechnic universities in the 23-campus California State University system. Our ethnically diverse student population of approximately 22,000 enrolls in 52 baccalaureate, 26 master's degree programs, 11 credential and certificate programs, and a doctorate in Educational Leadership, presented by 1,200 faculty. We recruit students increasingly from throughout California and beyond. The students are success and career focused and extremely diverse. We are proud of our status as a Hispanic Serving Institution. We have a strong commitment to supporting scholarship, research, and student achievement. Our scenic and historic 1,400-acre campus, once the winter ranch of cereal magnate W. K. Kellogg, is located about 30 miles east of downtown Los Angeles in one of the most dynamic economic and cultural regions in the country, and within an hour's drive of beaches, mountains, and desert. The university is committed to diversifying its faculty and staff and has made educational equity one of its highest priorities. The mission of the university is to advance learning and knowledge by linking theory and practice in all disciplines, and to prepare students for lifelong learning, leadership, and careers in a changing, multicultural world.

The College: The College of Letters, Arts, and Social Sciences cultivates one's intellectual development, ethical reasoning, and aesthetic sensibility to support creative and critical thinking in a diverse world of competing challenges. The College offers introductory and advanced course work in numerous degree and certificate programs across the humanities, social sciences, and performing arts. The General Education program offered to all students enrolled in the University is also central to the mission of the College. The College embraces its role in providing courses and curricula in support of multiple and single-subject teaching credential students. The University's mission to "cultivate success through a diverse culture of experiential learning, discovery, and innovation" lies at the heart of the College's commitment to offer programs that educate the whole person. Additional information is available at: <http://www.cpp.edu/-class/>.

The Department: The Department of Political Science has over three hundred and fifty undergraduate political science majors and approximately fifty students in our NASPAA-accredited MPA program. We also offer a Political Science minor and participate significantly in the university's General Education offerings. The Department sponsors a Model United Nations program and a Mock Trial Team, both with a history of national recognition. Members of the Department have traditionally been actively involved across campus and in the community.

Boston University

Rank: Assistant Professor - Comparative Politics, Tenure-Track

The Department of Political Science seeks to hire a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Comparative Politics, broadly defined. We are open with respect to methodological approach and substantive and/or regional area of interest.

We seek a scholar whose work is focused on the urgent and perennial questions of world politics. These are now, and for the next several decades, likely to be concerned with processes of democratization, threats to democracy, causes of global inequality, challenges to national identity posed by migration, the political economy of changing modes of production, the regional and global impact of climate change, and how social movements succeed or fail. We are open with respect to the successful candidate's areas of interest and expertise which could include but are not restricted to the above questions and other interests such as diaspora, Native American and comparative Indigenous politics, human rights, authoritarianism or non-violent political change.

Successful candidates will contribute to the intellectual diversity of the department. They should be able to teach introductory undergraduate courses and advanced undergraduate and graduate courses in comparative politics. They may also teach in their substantive area of expertise.

Boston University is an exciting place in which to study and teach politics. It has internationally known regionally focused centers, e.g. an African Studies Center and a Center for the Study of Europe. Other centers focus on religion, gender and sexuality, cities, and long-range futures.

Application materials, addressed to the Chair of the Comparative Politics Search Committee, should be submitted electronically on <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/14078> and include: a letter of interest describing your teaching and research interests and professional experience including your accomplishments in areas contributing to diversity, equity and inclusion; curriculum vitae; transcripts; evidence of previous teaching experience, including syllabi if those are available; a short writing sample, and three letters of reference sent directly from your recommenders.

Applications will be reviewed starting on 1 October 2019. Official transcripts are required prior to employment. The start day for employment is 1 July 2020, pending final budgetary approval.

Copenhagen Business School

Rank: Tenure Track Assistant Professor in Business and Government

Tenure Track Assistant Professorship in Business & Government at the Department of International Economics, Government and Business (EGB) at Copenhagen Business School (CBS) – Call for expression of interest.

The Department of International Economics, Government and Business (EGB) at CBS invites expressions of interest for a six-year Tenure-Track Assistant Professorship in Business & Government.

Candidates should hold, or be close to completing, a PhD in the fields of political science, political economy, international business, or related disciplines. Candidates should be able to demonstrate strong potential in research at the intersection of business and government. Applications are particularly encouraged from candidates with a research record in the fields of:

- Business-government relations
- Public Policy
- Comparative Politics
- Political Economy

Candidates should have excellent methodological skills. Participation in teaching in existing CBS programs and an interest in developing research-based teaching courses is expected. In addition, tenure track assistant professors are expected to live in Denmark and to actively contribute to department activities.

The Department of International Economics, Government and Business (EGB) brings together the study of states, markets, and international firms in the context of the challenges faced by emerging and advanced economies. EGB's research is based in international business, economics, and politics, and is of direct relevance to business, policy-makers, and scholars. Within this framework, the department has three principal areas of focus: States and markets, Firms and International Business and Societal challenges. The research environment is highly international. Department faculty directs a range of programs: BSc and MSc International Business, BSc and MSc International Business & Politics, International Business in Asia (IBA) and a graduate diploma program (HD) in International Business. For more information, please visit the department's homepage: <https://www.cbs.dk/en/research/departments-and-centres/department-of-international-economics-government-and-business> of academic fields related to business studies and the social sciences. CBS is ranked highly in an array of international rankings and aims to become a world-leading business university that recognizes the vital role of business and government in shaping society – and the equally important manner in which business practices and processes are shaped by governments and society.

Candidates who are available for an informal interview during the 2019 APSA Annual Conference in Washington D.C. (August 29 – September 1, 2019) should submit a letter of interest, a CV, and a job market paper by email to Professor (mso) Mogens K. Justesen, mkj.egb@cbs.dk. The deadline for submitting an expression of interest is August 20, 2019. Candidates invited for interview during APSA will be notified directly.

Informal interviews at APSA Annual Conference are highly encouraged, but it is also possible to apply for the position without an interview at the conference. To apply for the position, you must submit your application through CBS' online system: <https://www.cbs.dk/en/about-cbs/jobs-cbs/vacant-positions/tenure-track-assistant-professorship-in-business-government>. Deadline for applications is September 15, 2019.

Bentley University

Rank: Assistant Professor, Comparative Public Policy/International Public Policy

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Comparative Politics, International Relations

JOB DESCRIPTION SUMMARY:

The Global Studies Department at Bentley University, invites applications for a tenure-track position in Comparative Public Policy/International Public Policy at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning Fall 2020. We particularly welcome candidates with expertise in policy areas such as sustainability, development, and health—areas that complement existing programs and appeal to students at a business university.

The successful candidate will be asked to contribute to enhancing our two departmental majors - Public Policy and International Affairs - and to complement the department's existing strengths, which are grounded in political science, geography and cultural studies. While the position is open with respect to region, we especially welcome candidates whose work focuses on regions with emerging economies, particularly in Asia or Africa.

Founded in 1917, Bentley University is a private, Business-focused university with a strong commitment to the Arts and Sciences. Bentley enrolls approximately 5,500 students at the undergraduate, graduate and doctoral levels. Located in Waltham, Massachusetts, Bentley is on the doorstep of one of the nation's leading cities. With over 35 colleges and universities, the greater Boston area is a vibrant place to work and live.

MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS:

The successful candidate will be expected to teach core courses in public policy/international affairs and electives in their area of expertise.

Candidates must demonstrate evidence of a continuing research agenda focused on publication and a strong dedication to excellence in teaching, with preference for candidates with classroom experience. We especially welcome candidates who bring diverse perspectives and experiences to the classroom.

PhD required. (Requirements for your doctoral degree must be confirmed prior to the start of the fall 2020 semester.)

Position will remain open until filled. However, priority consideration will be given to applications received by September 30, 2019.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS TO APPLICANTS:

All application materials should be submitted through Bentley's online employment site at <https://bentley.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/faculty>. Applications should include a letter of interest and CV. Names and contact information for three references are required upon application. Bentley will contact these confidential references for those candidates moving forward in the process.

Bentley University requires references checks and may conduct other pre-employment screening.

DIVERSITY STATEMENT:

Bentley University strives to create a campus community that welcomes the exchange of ideas, and fosters a culture that values differences and views them as a strength in our community.

Bentley University is an Equal Opportunity Employer, building strength through diversity. The University is committed to building a community of talented students, faculty and staff who reflect the diversity of global business. We strongly encourage applications from persons from underrepresented groups, individuals with disabilities, covered veterans and those with diverse experiences and backgrounds.

An appointment with tenure is possible, depending on qualifications of the successful candidate.

Tier 2 Chairs are intended for exceptional emerging researchers (i.e. candidate will typically be less than 10 years from their highest degree at the time of nomination, or more than 10 years and has experienced legitimate career interruptions), acknowledged by their peers as having potential to lead in their field. Applicants who are more than 10 years from their highest degree may have their eligibility for a Tier 2 Canada Research Chair assessed through the program's Tier 2 justification process (<http://www.chairs-chaire.gc.ca/>). Carleton's research grants office can also provide more information (<https://carleton.ca/coris/>).

The successful candidate will work with the Faculty of Public Affairs to prepare the application for the Tier 2 CRC Chair. Academic appointment is conditional on the approval of the application by the CRC Program.

About the Academic Unit:

The Department of Political Science is a research-intensive unit, particularly proud of its pathbreaking tradition and continuing strength in the study of gender and politics, including establishing one of Canada's first political science PhD fields in Gender and Diversity. For more information, please visit: <https://carleton.ca/polisci/>.

Qualifications:

The successful applicant will possess:

- a PhD in Political Science or a cognate discipline;
- an outstanding record of research and peer-reviewed publications on diversity and politics, relative to stage of career;
- a record of high-quality teaching and supervision, appropriate to stage of career;
- commitment to continuing improvement and excellence in teaching;
- capacity to attract external research funding;

Application Instructions:

Please submit your application electronically in three PDF files, including: (1) a cover letter and CV; (2) a statement of research interests and samples of research, ideally including peer-reviewed publications; and (3) a teaching portfolio with evidence of teaching experience. Please identify any past experiences in supporting equity, diversity and inclusion in your previous institutional environment such as in curriculum development and in supporting diverse students. Applicants should also arrange to have three referees send supporting letters electronically.

All application materials should be directed to: Ms. Sandy Herbert, Department Administrator, Department of Political Science, Carleton University at sandy.herbert@carleton.ca.

To help us develop our equity programs, a confidential equity and diversity self-identification survey will be sent to all applicants separately.

Please indicate in your application if you are a Canadian citizen or permanent resident of Canada.

About Carleton University:

Carleton University is a dynamic and innovative research and teaching institution with a national and international reputation as a leader in collaborative teaching and learning, research and governance. With over 30,000 students in more than 100 programs of study, we encourage creative risk-taking, discovery, and the generation of transformative knowledge. We are proud to be one of the most accessible campuses in North America and our Paul Menton Centre for Students with Disabilities has been heralded as the gold standard for disability support services in Canada. To learn more about our university and the Ottawa, please visit www.carleton.ca/about.

We are strongly committed to equity, diversity, and inclusion in the nomination and appointment process. Carleton University is committed to fostering diversity within its community as a source of excellence, cultural enrichment, and social strength. We welcome those who would contribute to the further diversification of our university including, but not limited to: women; visible minorities; First Nations, Inuit and Métis peoples; persons with disabilities; and persons of any sexual orientation, gender identity and/or expression. Carleton understands that career paths vary. Legitimate career interruptions will in no way prejudice the assessment process and their impact will be carefully considered.

Applicants selected for an interview are asked to contact the Chair as soon as possible to discuss any accommodation requirements. Arrangements will be made in a timely manner.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority. All positions are subject to budgetary approval.

The Department of Politics at Brandeis University invites applications for a full-time tenure track or tenured position in Comparative Politics at the rank of assistant professor or associate professor. The successful candidate's term will begin in the Fall of 2020.

We are especially, but not solely, interested in candidates with regional expertise in Russia, Eastern Europe, Sub-Saharan Africa, or South Asia and with substantive interest in issues of ethnic politics, conflict and conflict mitigation, democratization and de-democratization, political economy, political institutions, parties, and/or elections.

Candidates must demonstrate teaching and research excellence.

Duties include the teaching of undergraduate and graduate courses in Comparative Politics (with courses cross-listed in the International Global Studies program, as appropriate), graduate student advising, doctoral dissertation supervision, undergraduate thesis advising, and university and departmental service.

The course load is 2/2.

Candidates applying at the rank of assistant professor should have a PhD in Political Science in hand by August 2020. Candidates applying at the rank of associate professor should have a proven publication record appropriate to this rank.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a statement of research and teaching interests that includes potential course offerings and syllabi and student evaluations where available, a chapter or article-length writing sample, and three letters of reference. Brandeis University is committed to advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion in faculty scholarship, teaching, and service. Applicants are encouraged to address these goals in their cover letter or in their teaching and research statement. These materials can be submitted electronically at: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/13898>.

First consideration will be given to applications received by September 20, 2019. Questions about the position can be directed to: Eva Bellin (ebellin@brandeis.edu), Chair, Search Committee on Comparative Politics.

This position is subject to budget approval.

At Brandeis we believe that diversity, equity, and inclusion are essential components of academic excellence. Brandeis is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer that is committed to creating equitable access and opportunities for applicants to all employment positions. Because diversity, equity, and inclusion are at the core of Brandeis' history and mission, we value and are seeking candidates with a variety of social identities, including those that have been under-represented in higher education. The search committee is therefore particularly interested in candidates who, through their scholarly pursuits, teaching, and/or service experiences, will build on Brandeis' reputation for academic excellence and prepare its students for creative engagement in a pluralistic society.

Occidental College

Rank: ASSOCIATE/ADVANCED ASSISTANT PROFESSOR in Global Political Economy

A search in Global Political Economy at the Associate Professor with tenure or at the Advanced Assistant levels. We are looking for applicants who have demonstrated an ambitious research and practice agenda with a particular interest in applicants whose work focuses on areas such as the Sustainable Development Goals; Human Rights-based Approaches to Economic Development; Equity/Equality in economic structures (with reference to race, class, identity, and/or gender and the imperative of democratic inclusion); or alternative approaches to studying dominant approaches to international trade, globalization and other topic areas in Global Political Economy. More information on the Young Initiative is here: <https://www.oxy.edu/academics/global-engagement/young-initiative>. The hire will eventually be expected to play a leadership role in the Young Initiative Committee, including its rotating chair-ship.

Priority will be given to applicants who have demonstrated a research agenda that leverages substantial fieldwork with international or regional organizations and/or transnational NGOs. An expectation will be that the hire will continue Occidental College's engagement with on-the-ground work in international affairs, at the local/Los Angeles, transnational, and/or global levels. A priority is the ability to advance the College's mission and an understanding of the distinctiveness of the Liberal Arts culture.

Occidental College is a highly-selective, urban liberal arts college recognized for its diverse student body, its commitment to academic excellence and equity, and its undergraduate research programs. Named one of America's most beautiful campuses, the College is situated in the vibrant neighborhoods of Eagle Rock and Highland Park in Northeast Los Angeles. As one of the few urban liberal arts colleges in the country, Occidental affords students and faculty unique engagement with communities, cultural institutions, and academic resources throughout Los Angeles. Occidental College is an Equal Opportunity Employer and does not unlawfully discriminate against employees or applicants on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, pregnancy, breastfeeding or related medical condition, national origin, ancestry, citizenship, age, marital status, physical disability, mental disability, medical condition, genetic characteristic or information, sexual orientation, military and veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by State or Federal Law. We strongly encourage all underrepresented candidates, especially women and persons of color, to apply.

Candidates should send their application as an electronic file to Ms. Chamnan Lim at youngsearch@oxy.edu. A complete application will include the following materials: (1) a cover letter that details the interest in teaching at Occidental and potential linkages to priorities of the Young Initiative in Global Political Economy; (2) a discussion of the applicant's academic research and field practice; (3) a statement of teaching experience and philosophy; (4) a scholarly work sample; (5) Curriculum Vitae; and (6) a list of referees.

All materials are due no later than October 1, 2019; applications received after the deadline will not be reviewed. Interviews of semi-finalists will be held via videoconference.

For information on the Department of Diplomacy & World Affairs, including current course offerings, please visit our website at: <http://www.oxy.edu/diplomacy-world-affairs>. For information on the Young Initiative on the Global Political Economy, please visit our website at the address noted above. Inquiries about the position, the DWA department, or the Young Initiative can be directed to the Interim Young Initiative in the Global Political Economy Chair, Professor Anthony Tirado Chase: achase@oxy.edu.

We will consider for employment all qualified Applicants, including those with Criminal Histories, in a manner consistent with the requirements of applicable state and local laws, including the City of Los Angeles' Fair Chance Initiative for Hiring Ordinance.

Troy University

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science invites applicants for an open rank tenure track position in political science with a concentration in comparative public administration beginning on August 1, 2019. This is a ten-month tenure-track position at our Troy, Alabama location. The minimum qualifications are a Ph.D. in Public Administration/International Relations/Comparative Politics/Political Science, or related field by August 1, 2019 with a research specialization in comparative public administration. The teaching will be in our master's degree (MPA) in public administration as well as undergraduate political science courses, which will be delivered in person as well as online. The job requires that the hire may be asked to teach courses at another Troy location depending on departmental needs. Preferred candidates will have a secondary specialization (such as research methods, or a regional specialization) that can complement our existing faculty strengths. The candidate needs to demonstrate excellence in research and teaching. For best consideration, please submit application documents by October 31, 2019. The position will remain open until filled.

The Department of Political Science at Troy University currently employs twenty-five faculty members who work in three programs: undergraduate political science, graduate international relations, and graduate public administration.

Applicants need to electronically submit a cover letter, CV, writing sample, teaching philosophy, research statement, and arrange to have three reference letters uploaded. Please direct all questions to Dr Terry Anderson at tanderson@troy.edu.

Open Rank in Comparative Politics and/or International Relations Department

The Department of Government at Essex are world leaders in political science, ranked top in the UK for research excellence (REF2014), 5th for politics in the UK (The Times Good University Guide 2018), top 10 in the world for political science and international relations according to the Centre for World University Rankings (2018), among the top 50 departments on the planet according to the QS World University Rankings. Ranked 5th in the UK for Politics in the 2019 National Student Survey (mainstream Universities) and having been awarded Q-Step Affiliate Status, we are committed to excellence in education and research.

The Department is now looking to make further appointments at Assistant Professor, Associate Professor or Professor levels.

Please note that appointments will be made at the UK equivalent of Lecturer level (Assistant Professor), Senior Lecturer level (Associate Professor), Reader level (Associate Professor) or Professor and will be referred to by these titles throughout the advertisement and University documentation.

Duties of the Role

The post-holder is expected to conduct research and teaching in Comparative Politics or International Relations. They will (co-)supervise undergraduate projects, MA, and PhD dissertations. In addition, the successful candidate will be expected to generate research income, to contribute to the administration and leadership responsibilities within the Department, and to the local, regional and international profile of the Department.

Duties at Lecturer level will include contributing to excellence in education by designing and delivering substantive and effective teaching and learning support as agreed with the Head of Department and producing research outputs for publication at acceptable levels of volume and academic excellence and disseminate the result of research and scholarship through appropriate Knowledge Exchange activities.

Duties at Senior Lecturer or Reader level will include engaging in curriculum development, undergraduate and postgraduate teaching, and research supervision at both an individual and a strategic level and providing research leadership and engaging in activities that will enhance the research profile of the Department.

Duties at Professor level will include building up a sustained and effective record of impact at a strategic level in relation to teaching and learning, as part of a wider commitment to academic practice and pursuing research that is world leading in terms of originality, significance and rigour, in keeping with the REF criteria.

At all levels you will be expected to engage in individual and/or collaborative research activity (resulting in internationally excellent publications) that is in keeping with REF criteria and generate external research income appropriate in scale to career stage and subject area norms.

The post-holder will undertake a full range of Education, Research and Leadership and Citizenship responsibilities as detailed in the respective job pack of the level for which you are applying.

Qualifications and Skills required

Applicants will hold a relevant doctoral level degree in Political Science or allied field (or be close to completion of PhD if applying for Lecturer level), or possess equivalent professional experience or practice.

Applicants at the Lecturer level will be required to provide evidence of a research agenda, engagement in high-quality research activity and a developing research profile; and have proven experience in teaching at undergraduate and/or postgraduate levels, or demonstrable potential to achieve this.

Applicants at the Senior Lecturer or Reader level will be required to provide evidence of an established and internationally recognised research profile, with a strong track record of published academic output at international levels of recognition; a sustained record of effectiveness in education at both undergraduate and postgraduate levels; and a record of success in generating external research income appropriate in scale to disciplinary norms and career stage.

Applicants at the Professor level will be required to demonstrate evidence of teaching excellence at both undergraduate and postgraduate levels appropriate to the discipline; a strong, sustained record of academic publication at international or world-leading levels of recognition; and an established record of success in securing and managing substantial research grants (appropriate to the discipline).

Applicants at all levels will need to possess evidence of a clear publication plan for submission to future Research Excellence Framework (REF) programmes.

These are permanent, full-time post on ASER (teaching and research) contracts. Please state clearly on your application form which level you are applying for.

The Department of Government is working towards a Scientific Women's Academic Network (Athena SWAN) award and particularly welcome applications from those who identify as female or non-binary as they are under-represented in the Department.

At the University of Essex internationalism is central to who we are and what we do. We are committed to being a cosmopolitan, internationally-oriented university that is welcoming to staff and students from all countries and a university where you can find the world in one place.

Georgetown University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University invites applications from outstanding candidates for a faculty position at the Assistant Professor level beginning in the Fall of 2020. The position is part of a new initiative in data analytics and global affairs, housed in the School's Landegger Program in International Business Diplomacy. The ideal candidate would have outstanding quantitative skills; interest in teaching data collection, estimation, and visualization; and a field of application relating to international affairs, such as international trade, international political economy, development, migration, health, investment, finance, international business regulation, corporate governance, energy, or the environment. Candidates must demonstrate outstanding research potential and have their PhD by the start of employment.

The committee will begin reviewing applications on November 1, 2019. Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, job market paper, and three letters of recommendation. All applications and supporting materials must be submitted through the following link: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/14327>. Faxed, emailed, or mailed applications will not be accepted.

Georgetown University

Rank: Assistant Professor in Cybersecurity and Artificial Intelligence

The Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University invites applications for an assistant professor, tenure-line position in cybersecurity and artificial intelligence. The ideal candidate would have an impressive record of scholarship and publication in the areas of cyber and/or A.I., a clear upward academic trajectory, and real practical knowledge of national and international security policy. The successful candidate would be expected to teach courses in both cybersecurity and A.I. as they intersect with international security affairs, and would have enough relevant technical skills (such as computer forensics on the cybersecurity side, or neural networks, machine learning, and deep learning on the A.I. side) to teach in both of those areas. The candidate would also apply such knowledge in his or her research and publications, and have the scholarly promise to eventually achieve tenure.

The search committee welcomes applications from young scholars – i.e., junior faculty, recent Ph.D.s, or those who expect their Ph.D. by time of appointment – who are poised to help define the emerging academic fields of cybersecurity and A.I. in the coming years. The teaching load is two courses per semester, which will include contributions to the Security Studies Program M.A. curriculum.

To apply, please submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a representative writing sample, three letters of recommendation, and if possible, evidence of teaching record (syllabi, course evaluations, etc.). All applications and supporting materials must be submitted through the following link: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/14342>. Faxed, emailed, or mailed applications will not be accepted.

Applications accepted immediately with review beginning on October 1, 2019. Invited interviews will occur shortly thereafter.

Indiana University, Bloomington

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Political Theory, International Relations

Gender and Politics (Assistant or Associate Professor)

The Department of Political Science at Indiana University-Bloomington invites applications for one full-time tenure track professor in the field of Gender and Politics, beginning August of 2020. Our goal is to hire the strongest candidate available who is doing interesting and important scholarship on questions of gender and politics. This thematic focus may be approached from any subfield or combination of subfields in the discipline including but not limited to American politics, comparative politics, international relations, and political theory. This position is at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor with tenure.

Candidates should demonstrate broad theoretical interests, active research agendas with the promise for publication in high-quality venues, strong teaching credentials, and proficiency in appropriate research methods. In addition to maintaining an ongoing research program, this faculty member would be expected to teach courses at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, and to participate actively in departmental activities.

Successful candidates will have completed their Ph.D. degree in Political Science by August 1, 2020.

The College of Arts and Sciences is committed to building and supporting a diverse, inclusive, and equitable community of students and scholars.

Indiana University is an equal employment and affirmative action employer and a provider of ADA services. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, ethnicity, color, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, genetic information, marital status, national origin, disability status, or protected veteran status.

To ensure full consideration, applications should be submitted by September 30, 2019; however, applications will be considered until the position is filled.

Applicants should submit a letter of application, complete curriculum vitae, two publications or papers, course syllabi and summary of teaching evaluations, and have at least three letters of recommendation forwarded to us. Purdue University

Job Summary

The Department of Political Science at Purdue University seeks applications for up to two tenure-track assistant professors with strong skills in computational social science and data science, broadly defined, and who apply them to substantive questions in political science, preferably in the areas of comparative politics or international relations. Examples of strengths include machine learning, network modeling, statistical methods for large and complex data, natural language processing, text, audio, and/or image analytics, data visualization, and/or other related methods. Exceptional candidates at the level of associate professor with tenure may be considered.

Qualifications

The successful candidate will have an active research agenda and be able to teach courses at the intersection of data science, quantitative methods, and his or her substantive fields of expertise, and with some courses being part of the College of Liberal Arts' Integrated Cornerstone first-year curriculum. Candidates at the level of advanced assistant or associate professor are expected to have a strong track record of high-quality publications, appropriate to rank. A Ph.D. in Political Science or a related discipline is required.

Desired qualifications include interest in contributing to social science methodological training across campus; interest in contributing to a broader integrative data science initiative at Purdue; an interest in attracting external funding; and a commitment to teaching excellence.

Purdue University's Department of Political Science is committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort, including scholarship, instruction, and off-campus engagement. Candidates should address their commitment to diversity and inclusion in at least one of these areas in their cover letter, indicating their past experiences, current interests or activities, and/or future goals as they relate to promoting a climate that values diversity and inclusion.

College and University

Founded in 1869, Purdue is a research-intensive, PhD-granting institution and a public land-grant university. The Political Science Department is home to the journal Politics, Groups, and Identities. Faculty members are actively involved with several interdisciplinary programs and centers, including the Advanced Methods at Purdue (AMAP) cluster, the Building Sustainable Communities initiative, the Center for the Environment, the Center for Research on Diversity and Inclusion, Peace Studies, the Human Rights Program, Asian Studies, the Purdue Systems Collaboratory, and the Purdue Policy Research Institute. Many faculty members hold joint appointments or affiliations with other departments and programs, including Communication, African American Studies, Civil Engineering, Industrial Engineering, and Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies. The department offers graduate certificates to students across campus in Social Policy, Environmental Policy, and Human Rights. The department is also home to the director of the award-winning C-SPAN Archives, located at the Purdue Research Park.

Applications

Candidates should submit application materials electronically via <https://career8.successfactors.com/sfcareer/jobreqcareer?jobId=6956&company=purdueuniv&username=>

Applications should include curriculum vitae, graduate transcript, three letters of recommendation, a sample of written work, instructional materials such as syllabi and course evaluations, and a cover letter discussing the applicant's qualifications for the position. Candidates at the level of associate professor with tenure may submit names three references in lieu of letters.

Review of applications will begin September 15, 2019, and continue until the position is filled. Questions should be addressed to the search committee chair, Dr. James McCann, mccannj@purdue.edu. A background check will be required for employment in this position.

Equal Opportunity

Purdue University is an EOE/AA employer. All individuals, including minorities, women, individuals with disabilities, and veterans are encouraged to apply.

Rank: Weatherhead Scholars Program

The Weatherhead Scholars Program, a program at the Weatherhead Center for International Affairs (WCFIA), welcomed its first class of participants in 2017–2018. Established in 1958, the WCFIA is the largest international social science research center within the Faculty of Arts and Sciences. We support international, transnational, global, and comparative research, whether historical or contemporary, including policy analysis.

The Weatherhead Scholars Program offers visiting faculty, postdoctoral researchers, and experienced practitioners the opportunity to spend up to one year at Harvard conducting research. During their time in residence, Scholars are expected to participate in the Weatherhead Forum and in the Scholars Program Seminar; contribute to some of the Center's many other intellectual activities, including our research clusters; and to engage with the undergraduate and graduate student communities.

As participants in the Weatherhead Scholars Program, postdoctoral researchers and visiting scholars receive a one-year formal appointment from Harvard University granting them important privileges. These include access to the Harvard library system, computer labs, and Harvard University faculty club. Our scholars are an integral part of the more than 300 faculty, fellows, students, and staff in residence at the Center.

To be eligible for a postdoctoral position, a scholar will have completed his/her PhD in the last three calendar years, or will have defended by the start of the academic appointment. There are a limited number of $50,000 stipends for postdoctoral fellows (health insurance is also available to stipendiary postdocs). Visiting scholars – established faculty from other universities – are not eligible for funding support from the Weatherhead Center.

Indiana University- Bloomington, Hamilton Lugar School of Global and International Studies

Rank: Assistant Professor, Contemporary Japanese Politics and Society

Subfield(s): Open, International Relations, Public Policy

Specializations: Japan, State Politics, Social Movements

Indiana University Bloomington's Hamilton Lugar School of Global and International Studies (HLS) seeks a full-time tenure-track assistant professor of contemporary Japanese politics and society, broadly defined, to begin August 1, 2020. The position is 100% in HLS's renowned multidisciplinary Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures (EALC). The teaching load is two courses per semester. Teaching responsibilities encompass both undergraduate and graduate courses and will include the teaching of a new course on "Japanese Politics and Society."

This is an exciting moment to join the newly named and expanding Hamilton Lugar School of Global and International Studies as it leads the university's international research and teaching missions. Established nearly sixty years ago, the EALC department has a long history of interdisciplinarity and boasts faculty strengths in a wide array of social sciences.

Minimum requirements are a Ph.D. in a relevant social science discipline (e.g., sociology, anthropology, political science) and active research agendas examining contemporary political and/or social issues that involve Japanese-language sources and in-country fieldwork.

We are particularly interested in candidates combining disciplinary rigor and area studies expertise to examine real-world challenges facing contemporary Japan and who are interested in contributing to and benefiting from EALC's new 21st Century Japan Politics and Society Initiative (established in 2018).

Applicants should submit a letter of application describing research and teaching interests, a C.V., and a writing sample along with three letters of reference. ABD candidates are welcome to apply, but must have the Ph.D. in hand by July 31, 2020. Interested candidates should review the application requirements and submit their application at: <https://indiana.peopleadmin.com/postings/8197>

Questions regarding the position or application process can be directed to: Ethan Michelson at emichels@indiana.edu. Applications received by October 18, 2019 are guaranteed full consideration.

Indiana University is an equal employment and affirmative action employer and a provider of ADA services. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, ethnicity, color, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, genetic information, marital status, national origin, disability status or protected veteran status.

The University of Hong Kong

Rank: Tenure-Track Associate Professor/Assistant Professor in International Relations

The University of Hong Kong

Tenure-Track Associate Professor/Assistant Professor in International Relations in the Department of Politics and Public Administration (Ref.: 498401)

Applications are invited for appointment as Tenure-Track Associate Professor/Assistant Professor in International Relations in the Department of Politics and Public Administration (Ref.: 498401), to commence on August 1, 2020 or as soon as possible thereafter, on a three-year fixed-term basis, with the possibility of renewal and consideration for tenure before the expiry of a second three-year fixed-term contract.

The Department has played a leading role in Politics and Public Administration research and education since its establishment in 1970. The Department offers two highly successful taught postgraduate programmes - Master of Public Administration (MPA) and Master in International and Public Affairs (MIPA) - as well as a thriving undergraduate programme. More information about the Department can be obtained at <https://ppa.hku.hk/>.

Applicants should have a Ph.D. degree by the expected start date, and demonstrate excellence in research and teaching. Those with the potential to make significant contributions to the field and complement the strengths of our department are preferred. The position is open with respect to specialization, but applicants should have a clear geographical and/or functional focus in their research with strong empirical skills. Teaching duties may include undergraduate courses, common core courses, and courses in our Master of International and Public Affairs (MIPA) programme.

This position sits within the Faculty of Social Sciences. The Faculty values diverse research methodologies. We are particularly committed to upgrading our expertise in quantitative methods, and welcome applicants with relevant expertise.

A highly competitive salary commensurate with qualifications and experience will be offered, in addition to annual leave and medical benefits. At the current rates, salaries tax does not exceed 15% of the gross income. The appointment will attract a contract-end gratuity and University contribution to a retirement benefits scheme, totalling up to 15% of the basic salary. Housing benefits will be provided as applicable.

The University only accepts online application for the above post. Applicants should apply online at the University's career site (<https://jobs.hku.hk>) and upload an up-to-date C.V., a letter of interest, graduate transcripts, writing samples, a research statement, a teaching statement and teaching evaluations. They should also arrange for three confidential references (quoting the applicant's name) to be sent directly by the referees to ppahr@hku.hk. Review of applications will begin on November 1, 2019 and continue until January 5, 2020.

University of Minnesota

Rank: Advanced Assistant or Associate Professor in Global Policy Subfield(s): Public Policy, International Relations, Public Administration

Specializations: Foreign Policy, Environmental Policy, International Political Economy

The Humphrey School of Public Affairs is committed to academic excellence and diversity within the faculty, staff, and student body. The School's mission is to inspire, educate, and support innovative leaders to advance the common good in a diverse and changing world. The School is NASPAA-accredited, ranked nationally in the top ten U.S. based schools of public affairs, and widely recognized for examining public issues and shaping public policy and governance at the local, state, national, and international levels. The Humphrey School works to enrich the diversity of the University community and encourages faculty applicants from a wide range of backgrounds to apply. We seek candidates whose approach to teaching and research is innovative and inclusive in terms of structurally or historically underrepresented groups.

With this current search, the Humphrey School seeks to hire a tenure-track advanced Assistant Professor, or Associate Professor eligible for tenure at the University of Minnesota whose research, scholarship, academic leadership and service focus broadly on global policy. Evidence of established scholarship with the potential for contributions of national and international significance is required for candidates at the pre-tenure assistant professor level. Appointment at the tenured level of associate professor requires evidence of excellence and national/international policy-relevant impact in scholarly research, teaching and service.

The successful candidate must have strong, demonstrated applied research and teaching interests in comparative foreign policy, international relations, international economics and trade policy, and/or global environmental policy. Candidates with specific country expertise and strong regional and/or international interests will also be considered. Although the tenure home and position will be at the Humphrey School, there are ample opportunities to collaborate and affiliate with scholars in departments across the University of Minnesota.

Candidates must be committed to scholarly and policy-relevant research at the highest levels; willing and able to teach in the School's core curriculum; provide leadership to its established public policy Masters and public affairs Ph.D. programs; be willing to help prepare students for professional careers; and function collaboratively in a multi-and inter-disciplinary environment.

A Ph.D. is required in public policy, international relations, development studies, economics, political science, political economy, sociology or related fields with a focus on international policy and global affairs. The Humphrey School is especially interested in candidates with a demonstrated interest in public policy, broadly construed, whose approach to teaching and research is both innovative and inclusive in terms of race, gender, class and ethnicity.

Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, research statement and three samples of recent research (publications or manuscripts), teaching statement, and the names/addresses of three references (reference letters will be requested for short-listed candidates). All candidates must hold a PhD by the time of employment.

All interested candidates must apply online. Applications will be reviewed beginning October 7, 2019. The position will remain open until filled.

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, American Government and Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science anticipates filling an 11-month Visiting Professor (VP) position beginning June 29, 2020. The appointment will be for the entire academic year, ending in May of 2021. The United States Air Force Academy, located just north of Colorado Springs, Colorado, is an undergraduate institution which awards the Bachelor of Science degree as part of its mission to educate, train, and inspire men and women to become officers of character, motivated to lead the United States Air Force in service to the nation. Candidates must have a PhD in political science or a closely related field, preferably with an emphasis on American Government, International Relations, or Comparative Politics. The candidate must also be strongly committed to teaching undergraduates and be a full-time "career employee" at a US institution of higher education. The qualified candidate must agree to return to his/her institution in a full-time status following the VP year at the Air Force Academy. The selected candidate will be subject to a security investigation and must meet eligibility requirements for access to the network and the use of government computer systems. The Air Force Academy will reimburse the VP's home academic institution for the visiting professor's salary (11 months of pay) and benefits during his or her time at the Academy, and moving expenses will be provided. To apply, send a letter of application, a curriculum vitae, and three references (ensure addresses and telephone numbers are provided) from individuals familiar with your professional work to: HQ USAFA/DFPS (Attn: David Sacko), 2354 Fairchild Drive, Room 6L-154, US Air Force Academy CO 80840-6258. Application packages may also be emailed to Dr. David Sacko at David.Sacko@usafa.edu. The deadline for applications is October 15, 2019. The Federal Government is an equal opportunity employer. The United States Air Force Academy values the benefits of diversity among the faculty to include a variety of educational backgrounds and professional and life experiences. U.S. citizenship is required. USAFA's Department of Political Science homepage can be found at: <https://www.usafa.edu/academic/political-science/>.

Bridgewater State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Political Science Department invites applications for a tenure-track faculty position to begin in the fall semester 2020 at the level of assistant professor. The successful applicant will be a broadly trained political scientist with a primary field of international relations. The successful applicant will be required to teach courses in international relations, American foreign policy, and other courses in the department's concentration in International Affairs. Review of applications will begin October 21.

A Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field is required. ABD candidates will be considered. A commitment to teaching excellence, and evidence of scholarly activity in the field of international relations are also required. Applicants should be strongly committed to excellence in teaching and advising, and to working in a multicultural environment that fosters diversity. They should also have an ability to use technology effectively in teaching and learning, the ability to work collaboratively, evidence of scholarly activity, and a commitment to public higher education.

The Political Science Department at Bridgewater State University houses one of three the NASPAA Accredited Master of Public Administration programs in the state of Massachusetts. The department's faculty members are dedicated to the highest standards of teaching, scholarship and professional, university and community service. The undergraduate program offers degrees in four concentrations including international affairs, public administration, American politics and legal studies while the MPA program offers a concentration in civic and nonprofit leadership. We are looking for faculty who are committed to helping the department achieve future growth. Two-thirds of our students are first-generation college students, students of color, and/or Pell Grant recipients; BSU is committed to the achievement of academic excellence by students from diverse backgrounds. BSU is primarily a teaching institution with ample opportunity for research (especially in collaboration with students). Internal funds are available for faculty scholarship and professional travel.

Please be aware that employment at Bridgewater State University is contingent upon completion of a successful background check.

Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Macau

Rank: Full/Associate/Assistant Professor of Political Science

Full/Associate/Assistant Professor of Political Science
International Relations
(Ref. No.: FSS/DGPA/07/2019)

The University of Macau (UM) is the only public comprehensive university in Macao. Leveraging this unique advantage, UM aims to establish itself as a world-class university with regional characteristics. English is its working language. In recent years, UM has seen a significant development in and a rising international recognition for its teaching, research, and community service. It has implemented a unique '4-in-1' education model that integrates discipline-specific education, general education, research and internship education, and community and peer education. Combining this model with the largest residential college system in Asia, UM provides all-round education to students. In addition, it recruits outstanding scholars from around the world to create a multilingual and multicultural learning environment for students. With the development of the Guangdong-Hong Kong-Macao Greater Bay Area, and the new initiatives of the university to boost cutting-edge research and interdisciplinary programmes, UM embraces unprecedented opportunities for development, and offers bright career prospect to professionals in different areas.

The Department of Government and Public Administration of the Faculty of Social Sciences is inviting applications for academic positions at the rank of Full/Associate/Assistant Professor in the discipline of international relations.

The Department of Government and Public Administration is currently comprised of 19 full-time staff members and offers programmes leading to Bachelor's, Master's and PhD degrees. Faculty members actively engage in research with particular focus on comparative politics, public administration and policy, international relations, and studies of the greater China regions. More information about the Department is available at the UM website: <http://www.um.edu.mo/fss/pa/>.

Qualifications

The required area of specialization is international relations, broadly based to include sub-areas of international relations theory, international/Asian security, global governance, and comparative politics with expertise on major power politics, i.e., U.S. foreign policy. Appointment may be at Full, Associate or Assistant Professor rank, depending on qualifications. Applicants must have a PhD in a relevant field and a proven record of publication in high caliber international journals and presses. Applicants should demonstrate a strong commitment to quality research and scholarship and documented excellence in teaching at both the graduate and undergraduate levels. Applicants must be able to lecture and publish research in English. Proficiency in English is required as it is the working language, while knowledge in Chinese/Portuguese will be an advantage.

The selected candidate is expected to assume duty in January 2020.

Position and Remuneration

A taxable annual remuneration starting from MOP800,800 (approximately USD98,860) will be commensurate with the successful applicants' academic qualification and relevant professional experience. The current local maximum income tax rate is 12% but is effectively around 5% - 7% after various discretionary exemptions. Apart from competitive remuneration, UM offers a wide range of benefits, such as medical insurance, provident fund, on campus accommodation/housing allowance and other subsidies. Further details on our package are available at: https://www.um.edu.mo/admo/vacancy_fa/.

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, American Government and Politics

Specializations: Canada, North America, United States

The Canada Program at Harvard University's Weatherhead Center for International Affairs invites applications for the William Lyon Mackenzie King Postdoctoral Fellowship. Two fellows will be appointed for the 2020–2021 academic year, with the possibility of extending the fellowship for one additional year—conditional on the approval of the Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, WCFIA associated faculty, and the co-hosting academic department.

The fellowship is open to scholars in all disciplines who are engaged in US-Canada comparative research and teaching, with preference given to individuals working within the social sciences and humanities. For postdoctoral candidates who will have completed the PhD within 12 months of the August 1, 2020 start date, verification of completion of the degree will be required prior to the appointment. Those in possession of a PhD for more than five years are ineligible.

The fellowship provides an annual stipend of $68,000, which is supplemented by funding for research and for individual health insurance coverage. The fellow will be required to teach one course during the year, and will be expected to engage with the Canada Program and with the University's wider community. Fellows receive shared office space at the Weatherhead Center for International Affairs, and enjoy full access to the University's library, archival, and computing resources.

TO APPLY:

Candidates should submit: a letter of application describing their suitability for the fellowship; a curriculum vitae with a list of publications; a sample of their written work; a teaching portfolio, containing a statement on teaching experience and syllabi; and three letters of recommendation.

Rutgers University, Camden

Specializations: Middle East, South Asia, Western Europe

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor – International Relations, Comparative Politics

The Political Science Department at Rutgers University-Camden invites applications for a full time, tenure track appointment at the rank of assistant or associate professor. Teaching responsibilities include two courses per semester in Political Science. The primary field of specialization is International Relations with expertise in Security Studies and the ability to contribute to teaching in the department's U.S. National Security Certificate Program. A regional specialty in the Middle East, Asia, or Europe is desirable. Ph.D. must be awarded no later than June 2020.

The Camden Campus is a unit of Rutgers University and as such all applicants must demonstrate a record of scholarly potential commensurate with expectations at a public research university. Rutgers-Camden places a high value on providing meaningful undergraduate opportunities for research <http://fas.camden.rutgers.edu/student-experience/undergraduate-research/curca/> and for civic engagement <http://www.camden.rutgers.edu/office-civic-engagement>.

The Political Science Department includes nine full-time faculty members serving approximately 250 majors. While the course load and publishing expectations reflect those of a large research institution, our class size and commitment to individualized attention, especially in our honors program, reflect the advantages of a smaller liberal arts environment. Camden is located directly across the Delaware River from Philadelphia, offering a diversity of transportation, and housing, cultural and educational options.

Candidates should submit the following materials electronically to Ms. Lisa Alston: lisa.alston@rutgers.edu. (1) a letter of interest emphasizing teaching experience as well as research accomplishments and agenda; (2) a CV; (3) three letters of reference; and (4) an unofficial transcript documenting doctoral studies to date. Please be sure to submit documents as pdf files or MS Word documents. Hiring for this position is contingent on final University funding approval. The Department will be interviewing candidates at the APSA meetings and applications will be accepted until October 15, 2019. Rutgers is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. The University and our department seek to attract diverse faculty and staff of the highest caliber. Women and minorities are strongly encouraged to apply.

University of California, San Diego

Subfield(s): Public Policy, International Relations, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Economic Policy, International Political Economy, International Law & Organizations

The Center for Commerce and Diplomacy (CCD) at UC San Diego's School of Global Policy and Strategy (GPS) invites applications for a postdoctoral research position for the 2020-2021 academic year.

These awards are designed to promote high-quality research on the challenges and institutions of international economic diplomacy in a changing world. Research projects that seek to understand the causes and consequences of the institutions of economic globalization (e.g. GATT/WTO, FTAs, BITs, IMF, World Bank, Fast-Track, TPA, RTAA, etc) are particularly welcome. Commercial diplomats operate within a set of domestic and international institutions that governs their behavior in international negotiations. But we know little about the specifics of these rules and procedures, how they came into being, how they vary over time and across countries, and how they affect economic outcomes. Post-doctoral research on the institutions of economic globalization can help answer questions about the welfare and distributional consequences of these institutions and, ultimately, result in the better design of these institutions.

Outstanding scholars anywhere in the world are eligible to apply. The Center invites applications from candidates with a background in Economics, Political Science, Economic History, Legal History, or other disciplines bearing on the study of Economic Diplomacy. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence for the duration of the appointment (September 28, 2020 – June 11, 2021), and to interact with faculty and Ph.D. students, giving at least one research talk. Selected fellows are also expected to attend CCD events and related seminars, and to post their research on the CCD website.

Application Deadline: Applicants should apply by Friday, November 29, 2019, for full consideration; however, the posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process: All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <https://apol-recruit.ucsd.edu/JPF02196>

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. or receive a Ph.D. degree in Economics, Political Science, Economic History, Legal History, or other disciplines related to the study of Economic Diplomacy by the start of appointment.

Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on December 6, 2019. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Salary - Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. CCD Fellows will receive applicable UCSD benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a research fund.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2020. These positions are subject to the UCSD's background check policy.

For more information about the Center for Commercial Diplomacy fellowship program, please contact Alexandra Hubenko, Executive Director, at ahubenko@ucsd.edu

University of Toronto

Rank: Assistant Professor in International Relations

The Department of Political Science in the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a full-time tenure-stream appointment in the area of International Relations. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor and will commence on July 1, 2020, or shortly thereafter.

The successful candidate must have a PhD in Political Science or a closely related discipline at the time of appointment or shortly thereafter. We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and strengthen our existing departmental strengths. Applicants are encouraged to review the research and teaching profiles of current faculty members. Please visit our home page (Department of Political Science <http://politics.utoronto.ca>) to learn more about us.

Candidates must provide strong evidence of research excellence of an internationally competitive calibre, as evidenced by a record of publications in leading outlets in the field or forthcoming publications meeting high international standards, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, accolades or awards, and strong endorsements by referees of high standing. The successful candidate will be expected to mount an innovative, competitive, independent, and externally funded research program and to pursue outstanding research at the highest international level. Evidence of excellence in teaching is required and is demonstrated by a teaching dossier, to include a strong statement of teaching philosophy, teaching accomplishments, sample syllabi, and teaching evaluations, and strong endorsements from referees. The successful candidate will undertake undergraduate and graduate teaching responsibilities on the University's downtown (St George) campus.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply by clicking on the link below. Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, article-length writing sample (approximately 10,000 words), teaching dossier (including a statement of teaching philosophy, sample syllabi, and teaching evaluations), and a statement outlining current and future research interests. Because we seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity, candidates are also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of their contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover (but need not be limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

Applicants should also ask three referees to send letters (on letterhead, signed and scanned) directly to the Chair of the search committee in the Department of Political Science, Professor Antoinette Handley, via e-mail at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca by the closing date, October 10, 2019.

All application materials should be submitted through the University of Toronto's online application system. Submission guidelines can be found at: <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>.

If you have questions about this position, please contact Sari Sherman at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, include reference letters, must be received by October 10, 2019.

The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous / Aboriginal People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate in Regional Political Economy - Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance, Princeton University

Specializations: East Asia, Latin American, Middle East

The Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance (NCGG) at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs invite applications for a postdoctoral or more senior research associate position from individuals with a Ph.D. degree or who expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2020 for the Postdoctoral Fellowship Program in regional political economy for the 2020-2021 academic year. This fellows program is targeted at developing a generation of scholars able to analyze and make policy recommendations about the regional political economy in the Middle East, East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America. The Center invites candidates with a background in economics, political science, contemporary history, sociology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of markets, politics, and economic development, focusing on the regions of the Middle East, East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America to apply. Scholarly work should explore the ways in which the politics within and between a set of countries intersect with natural resource endowments, market conditions, technological and physical infrastructure, and cultural biases to explain existing patterns of economic development and to promote higher levels of development more effectively. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2020 - July 1, 2021).

Application Deadline – Applicants should apply by Monday, December 9, 2019 (11:59pm EST), for full consideration, however; posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process - All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/12563>.

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. or expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2020 in one of the above-mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining the candidate's scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;
- Current curriculum vitae including publications;
- 2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample (limit of 100 pages);
- Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on Thursday, December 12, 2019. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Salary – Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2020. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

The College of New Jersey

Rank: Assistant Professor, International Relations

Specializations: Conflict Processes, International Security, Foreign Policy

The Department of Political Science and the International Studies Program at The College of New Jersey (TCNJ) invite applications for a tenure-track, assistant professor position in International Relations, to join our community in August 2020. The position carries a teaching load of three courses per semester divided between Political Science and the interdisciplinary International Studies Program. A PhD by the time of appointment is required. Completed applications received by September 13, 2019 will receive full consideration, but the position will remain open until filled.

The successful candidate will show promise as a teacher and scholar of International Relations, ideally in the areas of international conflict, national security, foreign policy, the democratic peace, or international norms. Candidates should also identify the International Studies specialization to which they could best contribute (see <https://internationalstudies.tcnj.edu/>). The successful candidate will excel in the classroom in part by integrating scholarship and teaching.

The Political Science Department and the International Studies Program collaborate closely and form a dynamic community of scholars and students. The Department has seven tenured or tenure-track members (and is conducting searches this year for two additional tenure-track positions) who teach and mentor roughly 180 majors. The International Studies Program draws on faculty from Political Science, History, World Languages and Cultures, the School of Business and other academic units to offer nine specialized tracks of study for about 130 majors. Both units also offer minors that draw students from across a wide range of academic disciplines.

Founded in 1855, TCNJ is a highly selective institution that has earned national recognition for its commitment to excellence. Emphasizing a residential experience for its 6,500 undergraduates, TCNJ is one of Barron's 75 "Most Competitive" American colleges, and U.S. News & World Report's No. 1 public institution of its kind in the northern region of the country. The College also offers focused graduate programs in nursing, business, education and English. In 2006, TCNJ was awarded a Phi Beta Kappa chapter—an honor shared by less than 10 percent of colleges and universities nationally. A strong liberal arts core forms the foundation for programs offered through TCNJ's seven schools—Arts & Communication; Business; Humanities and Social Sciences; Education; Science; Nursing, Health, and Exercise Science; and Engineering. TCNJ faculty members are teacher-scholars who share a commitment to the liberal arts. TCNJ is located within an hour, by train, of NYC and Philadelphia. The College's campus is set on 289 tree-lined acres in suburban Ewing Township and is known for its natural beauty. TCNJ has 39 major buildings, including the 4th-best college library in the nation, according to the Princeton Review.

To apply, please submit all of the following items using the online application system at the following link: <https://chm.tbe.taleo.net/chm03/ats/careers/v2/viewRequisition?org=TCNJ&cws=37&rid=1017>. A final offer of employment will be contingent upon successful completion of a background investigation.

- 1) Cover letter describing qualifications and research and teaching interests;
- 2) Curriculum vitae (CV);
- 3) Unofficial graduate transcript;
- 4) Scholarly writing sample;
- 5) Evidence of teaching effectiveness including teaching evaluations and sample syllabi;
- 6) A statement on diversity and inclusion detailing how diversity and inclusion are incorporated into their work as teachers, scholars, and mentors;
- 7) Contact information for three references.

Applicants should also have at least three references submit confidential letters of recommendation directly to irisresearch-group@tcnj.edu. Any questions can be directed to Brian Potter (potter@tcnj.edu), the chairperson of the search committee.

University of Connecticut

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at the University of Connecticut is seeking to hire a tenure-track Assistant Professor in the area of International Relations, based at the University's Stamford campus, beginning in the Fall of 2020.

The successful candidate will provide undergraduate teaching and service at the University's Stamford campus, but may occasionally have the opportunity to teach a graduate seminar and contribute to the research opportunities at the University's main campus in Storrs. UConn Stamford is located 40 miles from New York City. Reappointment and tenure will be determined by the Department of Political Science at Storrs, with input from the Stamford campus.

The Department of Political Science has 37 faculty members, over 800 undergraduate students and 50 graduate students, and actively engages in research in American Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations, Political Theory, and Public Law. Our faculty have enjoyed recognition for their scholarship both nationally and internationally. The department has traditionally featured an active Colloquia series that highlights scholars from UConn and other universities, as well as opportunities for collaboration with the Human Rights Institute, Africana Studies Institute, Asian and Asian American Studies Institute, Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies Program, El Instituto, and many others. Our department is committed to epistemological, methodological and theoretical openness and diversity. For more information about the Department, please visit www.polisci.uconn.edu.

The successful candidate will be expected to contribute to research and scholarship through extramural funding or fellowships and high-quality publications. They will be expected to aspire to gain national recognition as through honorific awards. In the area of teaching, the successful candidate will share a deep commitment to effective instruction at the undergraduate and graduate levels, development of innovative courses and mentoring of students in research, outreach and professional development. Newly hired faculty will also be expected to broaden participation among members of under-represented groups; demonstrate through their research, teaching, and/or public engagement the richness of diversity in the learning experience; and use culturally competent instructional methods and research tools.

MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS

A Ph.D. in Political Science or related field completed by start date; evidence or promise of a strong research/publication record; the ability to teach courses in political science at both the graduate and undergraduate levels; and a deep commitment to promoting diversity through their academic and research programs. All candidates must possess excellent communication skills. Equivalent foreign degrees are acceptable.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS

When the department adopted its current academic plan during the spring of 2019, department faculty identified three areas to emphasize in the future hiring of faculty: (1) Race and Ethnic politics; (2) International law, justice and human rights; and (3) Environmental politics and sustainability. Although this search is open to applicants with any substantive focus within the International Relations subfield, strengths in these areas will be considered during the formal selection process.

APPOINTMENT TERMS

This is a full-time, 9-month, tenure-track position with an anticipated start date of August 23, 2020. The successful candidate's primary academic appointment will be at the Stamford campus with the possibility of assignment at UConn's main campus. Salary is competitive based on experience and qualifications.

TO APPLY

Select "Apply Now" to be redirected to Academic Jobs Online to complete your application. Please submit the following: a curriculum vitae, graduate school transcripts, a statement describing teaching and research interests, writing samples, and (if available) course syllabi and teaching evaluations. Your letter of application should include a statement indicating the candidate's commitment to diversity (including broadening participation, integrating multicultural experiences in instruction and research and pedagogical techniques to meet the needs of diverse learning styles, etc.). Additionally, please follow the instructions in Academic Jobs Online to direct three reference writers to submit letters of reference on your behalf.

Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2019 and will continue until the position is filled. Employment of the successful candidate is contingent upon the successful completion of a pre-employment criminal background check. (Search #2020044)

This position will be filled subject to budgetary approval.

Rank: 2020–2021 International Affairs Fellowship Applications

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

Specializations: International Political Economy, African American Politics, Foreign Policy

CFR Call for 2020–2021 Fellowship Applications

The Council on Foreign Relations is seeking fellowship applicants for the 2020–2021 academic year. The programs offer unique opportunities, domestic and abroad, for mid and senior career U.S. citizens who have a demonstrated commitment to a career in foreign policy. Selected fellows broaden their perspective of foreign affairs either by pursuing work in a policymaking settings or research in an academic environment.

International Affairs Fellowship (IAF)

Established in 1967, the IAF is the hallmark fellowship program of CFR. It aims to bridge the gap between the study and making of U.S. foreign policy by creating the next generation of scholar-practitioners. The program offers its fellows the unique chance to experience a new field and gain a different perspective at a pivotal moment in their careers. Academics are thus placed in public service and policy-oriented settings, while government officials are placed in scholarly settings. Over the years, the IAF program has produced approximately six hundred alumni that span the who's who of the U.S. foreign policy community, including a former secretary of state and several undersecretaries of state, U.S. ambassadors to NATO and the United Nations, and many other influential leaders in government, academia, and the private sector. The duration of the fellowship is twelve months, preferably beginning in September, and the program awards a stipend of $100,000.

IAF in Canada, sponsored by the Power Corporation of Canada

Launched in 2016, the IAF in Canada, sponsored by the Power Corporation of Canada, seeks to strengthen mutual understanding and cooperation between rising generations of leaders and thinkers in the United States and Canada. The program provides for one to two mid-career professionals per year to spend six to twelve months hosted by a Canadian institution to deepen their knowledge of Canada. Fellows are drawn from academia, business, government, media, NGOs, and think tanks. The duration of the fellowship is between six and twelve months. The program awards a stipend of $95,000 for a period of twelve months (or a prorated stipend if the duration is less than twelve months) as well as a modest travel allowance.

IAF in Japan, sponsored by Hitachi, Ltd.

Founded in 1997, the IAF in Japan, sponsored by Hitachi, Ltd., seeks to strengthen mutual understanding and cooperation between the rising generations of leaders in the United States and Japan. The program provides a select group of mid-career professionals the opportunity to carry out research while affiliated with appropriate institutions in Japan, and to establish long-term professional and personal ties through their activities. Fellows are drawn from academia, business, government, media, NGOs, and think tanks. Knowledge of Japanese is not a requirement. The duration of the fellowship is between three and twelve months. The program awards a stipend in yen, which covers travel and living expenses in Japan.

The IAF in India, with a grant contributed by Bharti seeks to strengthen mutual understanding and cooperation between rising generations of leaders and thinkers in the United States and India. The program provides for one to four mid-career U.S. professionals who have had little or no substantial prior experience in India, the opportunity to spend three to twelve months conducting research and working in India. CFR will work with its network of contacts to assist selected fellows in finding suitable host organizations that best match the fellow's proposed work in India. Fellows are drawn from academia, business, government, journalism, NGOs, and think tanks. It awards a stipend of $90,000 for a period of twelve months (or a prorated stipend if the duration is less than twelve months) as well as a modest travel allowance.

IAF in International Economics, sponsored by Kimberly Querrey

The IAF in International Economics, sponsored by Kimberly Querrey, provides the next generation of economic scholars and business economist hands-on experience in the policymaking field. Through the program, fellows expand their range of thinking and apply their work to international economic policy. Possible host placements for the fellowship include but are not limited to the U.S. Department of the Treasury, U.S. Department of Commerce, the Federal Reserve Bank, and relevant parts of the U.S. Department of State and the White House. The duration of the fellowship is 6 to 9 months, and a stipend in the range of $150,000 to $180,000 is awarded along with relocation assistance.

How to Apply

Oklahoma State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science at Oklahoma State University (www.polsci.okstate.edu) invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position to begin in August 2020. The applicant should have expertise in electoral politics, specializing in electoral integrity within the United States, or from a comparative or international perspective. Potential topics include standards and norms governing the proper conduct of elections, electoral system design and reform, and electoral justice such as voting rights, election monitoring and electoral dispute resolution. Candidates whose research and teaching engages applied approaches and potential reforms to ensure electoral integrity are especially encouraged to apply, as are candidates who could teach courses related to our new undergraduate options in global politics and/or practical politics.

Successful candidates will demonstrate an ability to produce high quality scholarly publications and a potential to excel in teaching. A Ph.D. in Political Science is expected at the time of appointment. We will also consider candidates with a Ph.D. in a closely related field if they have completed substantial coursework in Political Science. Oklahoma State University is one of the state's two comprehensive research universities with a Stillwater campus population of 23,000 students. The Department offers the following degrees in Political Science: B.S., B.A. and M.A. The teaching load is normally two courses per semester and can include both undergraduate and graduate-level courses. Completed applications received by September 15, 2019 (depending on the position) will be given full consideration. Applicants are asked to submit the following through Interfolio <https://apply.interfolio.com/65885> a letter of application outlining your interest in this position, research expertise and teaching interests/experience; vitae; graduate transcripts; three letters of recommendation; evidence of successful teaching and scholarship; and short research and teaching statements.

The department is committed to creating an inclusive space for our students, faculty, and staff and to teaching and mentoring our undergraduate and graduate scholars from various backgrounds. The department encourages applications from women and underrepresented racial/ethnic groups. About one third of our undergraduate majors are members of underrepresented groups. Among our tenure-track faculty, 9 percent are from underrepresented racial/ethnic groups and 55 percent are female. Oklahoma State University, as an equal opportunity employer, complies with all applicable federal and state laws regarding non-discrimination and affirmative action. Oklahoma State University is committed to a policy of equal opportunity for all individuals and does not discriminate based on race, religion, age, sex, color, national origin, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, disability, or veteran status with regard to employment, educational programs and activities, and/or admissions. University of Wisconsin, Madison

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

The University of Wisconsin-Madison seeks to hire a faculty member with research and teaching interests in comparative politics or international relations, with a primary focus on China and a secondary focus on East Asia and the Pacific Rim. Potential areas of substantive expertise in the politics and policy of China include: political and economic development, human rights, environmental politics and policy, international political economy, international security, international organizations/governance, non-governmental organizations, or political sociology.

This faculty position is part of a three-position research cluster, Rethinking East Asia and the World, which was proposed by the Title VI-funded National Resource Center, the Center for East Asian Studies, for the University's Cluster Hiring Initiative to enhance cross-disciplinary expertise on contemporary East Asia. Two candidates have been hired into this Cluster: Assistant Professor, Sociology of Contemporary Korea; and Assistant Professor, Educational Policy Studies in East Asia. Candidates for this position - Assistant Professor, Chinese Politics and Policy - should show a clear commitment to collaborating with the Cluster and to contributing to the intellectual life of the Center for East Asian Studies, the Department of Political Science, and the La Follette School of Public Affairs.

The successful candidate will have a primary appointment in either the Department of Political Science or the La Follette School of Public Affairs, with preference given to candidates interested in both political science and public affairs/public policy. Tenure home will be determined at the time of hiring. Expectations include a commitment to the important functions of research, instruction, and outreach, as well as professional and university service as appropriate to faculty rank.

Responsibilities include conducting research and teaching at all levels required with service at the professional and university level.

Teaching will include courses to undergraduate students, as well as graduate students. The teaching load in a typical academic year will consist of two courses taught in the Department of Political Science and two courses taught in the La Follette School of Public Affairs. Mentoring graduate students will be required as well.

To apply, go to <http://jobs.wisc.edu> and search for PVL 98888. To begin the application process, please click on the 'Apply Now' button. You will be asked to create a profile and upload a C.V., cover letter, a research statement, a teaching statement, and 2 samples of written work (please upload these 2 samples together). You will also be asked to provide contact information for three (3) references as part of your online application.

The deadline for assuring full consideration is September 18, 2019; however, positions will remain open and applications may be considered until the position is filled.

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: Assistant Professor, Public Policy Approaches to Sexual Violence - Cluster Hire

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, International Relations

Specializations: Gender Politics & Policy, Criminal Justice, Health Care

The University of Wisconsin-Madison seeks to hire a faculty member with research and teaching interests in policy issues around sexual violence.

The scholar should have expertise in the interplay between social science, policy, and government. This may include scholars who are interested in issues such as rehabilitation and reintegration of sexual violence criminals, disparities in policing and sentencing policies for sexual violence criminals, sexual harassment policy issues in the public sector or workplace, Title IX issues in educational policy, child and adult sex trafficking, or the geopolitics of gender-based violence and sexual violence such as the context of war (and political violence more broadly), migration, refugee experiences, and disaster experiences. Or,

this may include scholars who study the policy issues attached to: sexual violence imposed by domestic partners; gender/social inequality and its impact on sexual violence; substance abuse (e.g., alcohol and drug) and sexual violence; sexual violence against sex workers; weapon use and sexual violence; history of child abuse and sexual violence; sexual violence and HIV and other sexually transmitted diseases; the role of physicians in screening for sexual assault; marriage laws and sexual violence; mental health and sexual violence; and the relationship between sexual violence and economic pressure, social norms, inter-generational transmission, forced marriage, or education levels.

Ideally the candidate will be positioned to contribute knowledge to improve laws, or the implementation of laws or policies, to prevent and address sexual violence. Public policy experts could use their expertise in the policymaking process, as well as policy analysis and evaluation to identify "what works" and "what doesn't work" within existing sexual violence policies and laws, and then, in the spirit of the Wisconsin Idea, to share these evidence-based solutions with the public, as well as public sector leaders.

This faculty position is part of a faculty cluster search, "Sexual Violence: Connecting Social Science Research with Policy." The cluster defines "Sexual Violence" broadly, and it includes sexual assault, sexual harassment, sex trafficking, violence against sexual minorities, as well as gender-based violence.

Three faculty positions will be hired in the cluster, which will build a world-class, new core of interdisciplinary strength in research to address issues of sexual violence domestically and/or globally-making UW-Madison a research leader in this critical area. The first faculty position [PVL 99483] focuses on "Psychological Aspects of Sexual Violence" (including potentially research on psychological aspects of victimization, psychological factors contributing to perpetration, and/or theory-based development of interventions designed to prevent sexual assault), while the second faculty position [PVL 99523] is around "Societal Aspects of Sexual Violence" (including potentially research on the social causes and consequences of sexual violence, addressing the disproportionate impact of sexual violence in particular communities (e.g., sexual minority groups, people with disabilities) or the geopolitics of sexual violence and trauma. The third faculty position is "Policy Approaches to Sexual Violence," the subject of this search [PVL 99600].

These positions are part of the UW's Cluster Hiring Initiative, designed to foster innovative, outstanding research programs that will stimulate productive interactions among faculty and students in sexual violence research across campus and to expand interdisciplinary research in this area. Further information regarding this initiative can be found at: <https://facstaff.provost.wisc.edu/cluster-hiring-initiative/>

The successful candidate will have a primary appointment at the La Follette School of Public Affairs or another pertinent unit on campus. Tenure home will be determined at the time of hiring. Expectations include a commitment to the important functions of research, instruction, and outreach, as well as professional and university service as appropriate to faculty rank.

Responsibilities include conducting research and teaching at all levels required, with service at the professional and university level.

Teaching will include courses to undergraduate students, as well as graduate students. For example, the teaching load at the La Follette School of Public Affairs in a typical academic year consists of four courses each year. Mentoring graduate students will be required as well.

To apply, go to <http://jobs.wisc.edu> and search for PVL 99600. To begin the application process, please click on the 'Apply Now' button. You will be asked to create a profile and upload a C.V., cover letter, a research statement, a teaching statement, and 2 samples of written work (please upload these 2 samples together). You will also be asked to provide contact information for three (3) references as part of your online application.

The deadline for assuring full consideration is October 15, 2019; however, positions will remain open and applications may be considered until the position is filled.

California State Polytechnic University, Pomona Rank: Assistant Professor -- International Relations and/or Comparative Politics

Assistant Professor – International Relations and/or Comparative Politics

The Political Science Department in the College of Letters, Arts, and Social Sciences at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona (Cal Poly Pomona) invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor for appointment beginning in the 2020-2021 academic year. Candidates specializing in international relations and/or comparative politics are especially encouraged to apply.

At Cal Poly Pomona, we cultivate success through a diverse culture of experiential learning, discovery, and innovation. We demonstrate academic quality, relevance, and excellence through our teaching, learning, scholarship, and creative activities with student-centered faculty in an evidence-based culture. Cal Poly Pomona is committed to being the model for an inclusive polytechnic university that inspires creativity and innovation, embraces local and global challenges, and transforms lives.

The Position

The faculty member will be part of a small, collegial Political Science Department which grants a B.A. degree, and which also has a Master's in Public Administration. The faculty member will primarily teach courses in international relations and/or comparative politics. A faculty member specializing in international relations will be expected to teach courses such as International Law, International Political Economy, and US Foreign Policy. A faculty member specializing in comparative politics will be expected to teach courses in a regional specialization other than Latin America. The ability to teach undergraduate research methods, whether qualitative and/or quantitative, will also be expected. The position requires excellence in teaching and advising, professional and scholarly achievements, and a commitment to service to the university. Applicants whose work demonstrates a commitment to inclusive excellence and diversity in higher education are particularly encouraged to apply. Cal Poly Pomona is a Hispanic-serving institution and the faculty member will be an advisor to many under-represented minorities and first-generation college students.

Minimum Qualifications

- Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field from an accredited university at the time of appointment
- University teaching experience as instructor of record and/or teaching assistant
- Evidence of scholarly potential (conference presentations, publications, grant development, etc.)
- Evidence of demonstrated ability to contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community through research, teaching, and/or service and work, as well as experience fostering an inclusive environment

Preferred/Desired Qualifications

Research interests related to social or racial justice, gender inequities, and/or inequality would be a plus. Additionally, preference will be given to candidates who can demonstrate the ability to mentor and advise under-served populations including, but not limited to, African-American, Hispanic, and Native American students.

Application Procedure

The position is open until filled. First consideration will be given to completed applications submitted by Friday, September 13, 2019. Early submission is encouraged. Electronic submissions of all application materials must be submitted online via Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/65857>.

A completed application will consist of:

- A cover letter that describes the candidate's teaching performance, research experience and interests, and that addresses the duties and qualifications articulated in the position description;
- A curriculum vitae comprising at least those elements specified on the application form and including the names, titles, addresses, email addresses, and telephone numbers of at least five individuals who can speak to the candidate's potential for success in this position;
- A 'Student Success Statement' about your teaching, or other experiences, successes, and challenges working with a diverse student population (approximately one page, single-spaced);
- Three recent letters of reference (on letterhead, signed and dated within the past two years), uploaded through Interfolio;
- A completed application form available on the application website;
- An unofficial transcript showing the highest degree earned from an accredited education institution. Finalists will be required to submit an official transcript; and
- Recent teaching evaluation summaries and sample syllabi, if available.
- Please submit all electronic documents in PDF format.

The University: Cal Poly Pomona is one of two polytechnic universities in the 23-campus California State University system. Our ethnically diverse student population of approximately 22,000 enrolls in 52 baccalaureate, 26 master's degree programs, 11 credential and certificate programs, and a doctorate in Educational Leadership, presented by 1,200 faculty. We recruit students increasingly from throughout California and beyond. The students are success and career focused and extremely diverse. We are proud of our status as a Hispanic Serving Institution. We have a strong commitment to supporting scholarship, research, and student achievement. Our scenic and historic 1,400-acre campus, once the winter ranch of cereal magnate W. K. Kellogg, is located about 30 miles east of downtown Los Angeles in one of the most dynamic economic and cultural regions in the country, and within an hour's drive of beaches, mountains, and desert. The university is committed to diversifying its faculty and staff and has made educational equity one of its highest priorities. The mission of the university is to advance learning and knowledge by linking theory and practice in all disciplines, and to prepare students for lifelong learning, leadership, and careers in a changing, multicultural world.

The College: The College of Letters, Arts, and Social Sciences cultivates one's intellectual development, ethical reasoning, and aesthetic sensibility to support creative and critical thinking in a diverse world of competing challenges. The College offers introductory and advanced course work in numerous degree and certificate programs across the humanities, social sciences, and performing arts. The General Education program offered to all students enrolled in the University is also central to the mission of the College. The College embraces its role in providing courses and curricula in support of multiple and single-subject teaching credential students. The University's mission to "cultivate success through a diverse culture of experiential learning, discovery, and innovation" lies at the heart of the College's commitment to offer programs that educate the whole person. Additional information is available at: <http://www.cpp.edu/~class/>.

The Department: The Department of Political Science has over three hundred and fifty undergraduate political science majors and approximately fifty students in our NASPAA-accredited MPA program. We also offer a Political Science minor and participate significantly in the university's General Education offerings. The Department sponsors a Model United Nations program and a Mock Trial Team, both with a history of national recognition. Members of the Department have traditionally been actively involved across campus and in the community.

Bentley University

Rank: Assistant Professor, Comparative Public Policy/International Public Policy

JOB DESCRIPTION SUMMARY:

The Global Studies Department at Bentley University, invites applications for a tenure-track position in Comparative Public Policy/International Public Policy at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning Fall 2020. We particularly welcome candidates with expertise in policy areas such as sustainability, development, and health—areas that complement existing programs and appeal to students at a business university.

The successful candidate will be asked to contribute to enhancing our two departmental majors - Public Policy and International Affairs - and to complement the department's existing strengths, which are grounded in political science, geography and cultural studies. While the position is open with respect to region, we especially welcome candidates whose work focuses on regions with emerging economies, particularly in Asia or Africa.

Founded in 1917, Bentley University is a private, Business-focused university with a strong commitment to the Arts and Sciences. Bentley enrolls approximately 5,500 students at the undergraduate, graduate and doctoral levels. Located in Waltham, Massachusetts, Bentley is on the doorstep of one of the nation's leading cities. With over 35 colleges and universities, the greater Boston area is a vibrant place to work and live.

MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS:

The successful candidate will be expected to teach core courses in public policy/international affairs and electives in their area of expertise.

Candidates must demonstrate evidence of a continuing research agenda focused on publication and a strong dedication to excellence in teaching, with preference for candidates with classroom experience. We especially welcome candidates who bring diverse perspectives and experiences to the classroom.

PhD required. (Requirements for your doctoral degree must be confirmed prior to the start of the fall 2020 semester.)

Position will remain open until filled. However, priority consideration will be given to applications received by September 30, 2019.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS TO APPLICANTS:

All application materials should be submitted through Bentley's online employment site at <https://bentley.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/faculty>. Applications should include a letter of interest and CV. Names and contact information for three references are required upon application. Bentley will contact these confidential references for those candidates moving forward in the process.

Bentley University requires references checks and may conduct other pre-employment screening.

DIVERSITY STATEMENT:

Bentley University strives to create a campus community that welcomes the exchange of ideas, and fosters a culture that values differences and views them as a strength in our community.

Bentley University is an Equal Opportunity Employer, building strength through diversity. The University is committed to building a community of talented students, faculty and staff who reflect the diversity of global business. We strongly encourage applications from persons from underrepresented groups, individuals with disabilities, covered veterans and those with diverse experiences and backgrounds.

Assistant Professor (Tenure-Track), Political Science and International Relations

Department Description:

The Department of Political Science and International Relations is committed to the liberal arts tradition of intellectual curiosity, academic rigor, and a pluralistic and diverse curriculum. We provide students with a solid understanding of the theories, practices and institutions of politics, but also with an appreciation of how to create a more just and humane world. Our courses cover every corner of the globe and prepare students to be keen political observers and actors. To supplement coursework, we also provide internship, community service learning, and study abroad opportunities that encourage learning outside of the classroom.

The department houses two separate majors. The Political Science major focuses attention on the shared and contending ideas, values, institutions and processes of public life. Courses range from the specific study of politics in one country or of a single institution or political process (the judiciary, Congress, the presidency or elections), to more general offerings such as courses on political theory, political development, revolution, race and ethnicity, environmental politics, research methods, human rights, and constitutional law.

The International Relations major is an interdisciplinary field of study designed for students who seek a holistic understanding of international affairs. The curriculum is rooted in political science and provides students with a strong background in international relations, comparative politics, and international political economy. At the same time, the curriculum reflects the recognition that international political phenomena are best understood from a variety of perspectives and includes courses from disciplines such as history, economics, religious studies, fine arts and literature.

The department offers the highly-regarded Masters of International Relations (MAIR) degree, which draws on our faculty's vast wealth of international experience and offers a variety of specialized subject matter courses focused on Africa, Europe, Latin America, and the Middle East. Areas of strength include international security, intelligence, and environmental policy. Courses in the program combine academic and professional instruction in an effort to connect theory and practice, both substantively and pedagogically.

Colorado College

Rank: International Relations Position - Open Rank

The Department of Political Science at Colorado College is hiring for a position in international relations. The rank is open. The position requires expertise in Russia and/or Europe, broadly defined, as well as the ability to teach United States foreign policy. Crucial to the position is potential for, and commitment to, excellence in scholarship as well as in teaching at a liberal arts institution.

Colorado College is committed to fostering an intellectually rigorous and inclusive environment in which students and employees of diverse backgrounds, cultures, and perspectives can learn and work. Candidates should identify the ways in which they can contribute to these goals.

Colorado College has a distinctive academic program, the Block Plan, in which professors teach, and students take, one course at a time. Each block is three and a half weeks long, with an academic year of eight and a half blocks. The average teaching load is six blocks a year. Faculty can apply for a limited number of release blocks, as well as various sources of funding, to pursue research.

All requirements for the Ph.D. should be completed by the starting date of August 24, 2020.

Applicants should submit: 1) a cover letter; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a statement of research goals; 4) a statement of pedagogical principles; 5) evidence of teaching effectiveness (including syllabi and evaluations); 6) undergraduate and graduate transcripts; 7) a dissertation abstract (if applying at the assistant professor level); 8) a sample of scholarly publications, and 9) three letters of recommendation to: <https://employment.coloradocollege.edu/postings/4036>

Occidental College

Rank: ASSOCIATE/ADVANCED ASSISTANT PROFESSOR in Global Political Economy

A search in Global Political Economy at the Associate Professor with tenure or at the Advanced Assistant levels. We are looking for applicants who have demonstrated an ambitious research and practice agenda with a particular interest in applicants whose work focuses on areas such as the Sustainable Development Goals; Human Rights-based Approaches to Economic Development; Equity/Equality in economic structures (with reference to race, class, identity, and/or gender and the imperative of democratic inclusion); or alternative approaches to studying dominant approaches to international trade, globalization and other topic areas in Global Political Economy. More information on the Young Initiative is here: <https://www.oxy.edu/academics/global-engagement/young-initiative>. The hire will eventually be expected to play a leadership role in the Young Initiative Committee, including its rotating chair-ship.

Priority will be given to applicants who have demonstrated a research agenda that leverages substantial fieldwork with international or regional organizations and/or transnational NGOs. An expectation will be that the hire will continue Occidental College's engagement with on-the-ground work in international affairs, at the local/Los Angeles, transnational, and/or global levels. A priority is the ability to advance the College's mission and an understanding of the distinctiveness of the Liberal Arts culture.

Occidental College is a highly-selective, urban liberal arts college recognized for its diverse student body, its commitment to academic excellence and equity, and its undergraduate research programs. Named one of America's most beautiful campuses, the College is situated in the vibrant neighborhoods of Eagle Rock and Highland Park in Northeast Los Angeles. As one of the few urban liberal arts colleges in the country, Occidental affords students and faculty unique engagement with communities, cultural institutions, and academic resources throughout Los Angeles. Occidental College is an Equal Opportunity Employer and does not unlawfully discriminate against employees or applicants on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, pregnancy, breastfeeding or related medical condition, national origin, ancestry, citizenship, age, marital status, physical disability, mental disability, medical condition, genetic characteristic or information, sexual orientation, military and veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by State or Federal Law. We strongly encourage all underrepresented candidates, especially women and persons of color, to apply.

Candidates should send their application as an electronic file to Ms. Chamnan Lim at youngsearch@oxy.edu. A complete application will include the following materials: (1) a cover letter that details the interest in teaching at Occidental and potential linkages to priorities of the Young Initiative in Global Political Economy; (2) a discussion of the applicant's academic research and field practice; (3) a statement of teaching experience and philosophy; (4) a scholarly work sample; (5) Curriculum Vitae; and (6) a list of referees.

All materials are due no later than October 1, 2019; applications received after the deadline will not be reviewed. Interviews of semi-finalists will be held via videoconference.

For information on the Department of Diplomacy & World Affairs, including current course offerings, please visit our website at: <http://www.oxy.edu/diplomacy-world-affairs>. University of California, San Diego

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

The Center for Peace and Security Studies (cPASS) has up to 3 postdoctoral positions available for the next four academic years (2019-2020, 2020-2021, 2021-2022, 2022-2023). Each position is also renewable at the discretion of the cPASS Director.

Research at cPASS targets new and emerging security issues such as emerging modes of conflict and new modes of deterrence. cPASS is devoted to applying innovative thinking and diverse methodologies (experiments, deductive modeling, statistical analysis, case studies, archival research and "big data") to traditional security issues made more dynamic and difficult by the increased complexity of interstate competition and conflict. We emphasize a team-based, multi-method approach to research that combines qualitative and quantitative perspectives.

Postdocs will work closely with the Center Director in conducting cPASS research activities such as data collection, analysis, preparing project reports and manuscripts for peer-reviewed journals, preparing and delivering oral presentations to diverse audiences, overseeing qualitative research or supervising project labs, and mentoring graduate and undergraduate research activities.

Applicants are required to have a PhD in hand at the time of appointment. A degree in Political Science, History, International Relations, Economics, or allied field is anticipated but other specialties may be appropriate, depending on an applicant's interests and skills. Candidates will be assessed based on their expertise and knowledge of different key aspects of security studies and their ability to contribute to a diversified, integrated research team.

The initial period of appointment will be for 12 months from the date of appointment. Renewal is possible with the approval of the Center Director. Some flexibility exists as to start date, but candidates should expect to be in residence in San Diego throughout the appointment. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Troy University

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science invites applicants for an open rank tenure track position in political science with a concentration in comparative public administration beginning on August 1, 2019. This is a ten-month tenure-track position at our Troy, Alabama location. The minimum qualifications are a Ph.D. in Public Administration/International Relations/Comparative Politics/Political Science, or related field by August 1, 2019 with a research specialization in comparative public administration. The teaching will be in our master's degree (MPA) in public administration as well as undergraduate political science courses, which will be delivered in person as well as online. The job requires that the hire may be asked to teach courses at another Troy location depending on departmental needs. Preferred candidates will have a secondary specialization (such as research methods, or a regional specialization) that can complement our existing faculty strengths. The candidate needs to demonstrate excellence in research and teaching. For best consideration, please submit application documents by October 31, 2019. The position will remain open until filled.

The Department of Political Science at Troy University currently employs twenty-five faculty members who work in three programs: undergraduate political science, graduate international relations, and graduate public administration.

Applicants need to electronically submit a cover letter, CV, writing sample, teaching philosophy, research statement, and arrange to have three reference letters uploaded. Please direct all questions to Dr Terry Anderson at tanderson@troy.edu.

Purdue University

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor of Political Science

Job Summary

The Department of Political Science at Purdue University seeks applications for up to two tenure-track assistant professors with strong skills in computational social science and data science, broadly defined, and who apply them to substantive questions in political science, preferably in the areas of comparative politics or international relations. Examples of strengths include machine learning, network modeling, statistical methods for large and complex data, natural language processing, text, audio, and/or image analytics, data visualization, and/or other related methods. Exceptional candidates at the level of associate professor with tenure may be considered.

Qualifications

The successful candidate will have an active research agenda and be able to teach courses at the intersection of data science, quantitative methods, and his or her substantive fields of expertise, and with some courses being part of the College of Liberal Arts' Integrated Cornerstone first-year curriculum. Candidates at the level of advanced assistant or associate professor are expected to have a strong track record of high-quality publications, appropriate to rank. A Ph.D. in Political Science or a related discipline is required.

Desired qualifications include interest in contributing to social science methodological training across campus; interest in contributing to a broader integrative data science initiative at Purdue; an interest in attracting external funding; and a commitment to teaching excellence.

Purdue University's Department of Political Science is committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort, including scholarship, instruction, and off-campus engagement. Candidates should address their commitment to diversity and inclusion in at least one of these areas in their cover letter, indicating their past experiences, current interests or activities, and/or future goals as they relate to promoting a climate that values diversity and inclusion.

College and University

Founded in 1869, Purdue is a research-intensive, PhD-granting institution and a public land-grant university. The Political Science Department is home to the journal Politics, Groups, and Identities. Faculty members are actively involved with several interdisciplinary programs and centers, including the Advanced Methods at Purdue (AMAP) cluster, the Building Sustainable Communities initiative, the Center for the Environment, the Center for Research on Diversity and Inclusion, Peace Studies, the Human Rights Program, Asian Studies, the Purdue Systems Collaboratory, and the Purdue Policy Research Institute. Many faculty members hold joint appointments or affiliations with other departments and programs, including Communication, African American Studies, Civil Engineering, Industrial Engineering, and Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies. The department offers graduate certificates to students across campus in Social Policy, Environmental Policy, and Human Rights. The department is also home to the director of the award-winning C-SPAN Archives, located at the Purdue Research Park.

Applications

Candidates should submit application materials electronically via <https://career8.successfactors.com/sfcareer/jobreqcareer?jobId=6956&company=purdueuniv&username=>

Applications should include curriculum vitae, graduate transcript, three letters of recommendation, a sample of written work, instructional materials such as syllabi and course evaluations, and a cover letter discussing the applicant's qualifications for the position. Candidates at the level of associate professor with tenure may submit names three references in lieu of letters.

Review of applications will begin September 15, 2019, and continue until the position is filled. Questions should be addressed to the search committee chair, Dr. James McCann, mccannj@purdue.edu. A background check will be required for employment in this position.

Equal Opportunity

Purdue University is an EOE/AA employer. All individuals, including minorities, women, individuals with disabilities, and veterans are encouraged to apply.

National University of Singapore

Subfield(s): Methodology, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The Department of Political Science at the National University of Singapore invites applications for an educator-track Lectureship or Senior Lectureship in Political Science to teach research methods as well as other modules in Comparative Politics and/or Governance and Public Policy for our undergraduate curriculum. The teaching load is six modules per academic year (three per semester), of which at least two should be in methods.

Lectureships at NUS are career positions in which advancement (to open-contracted Associate Professor and Professor) is possible. Appointments are for three years initially and are renewable on an ongoing basis, subject to good performance and departmental teaching needs. Compensation and benefits are similar to those of faculty members on the tenure track and are competitive.

Candidates should have a PhD in Political Science. The Department recognizes four main subfields: Comparative Politics; Governance and Public Policy; International Relations; and Political Theory. The Department also hosts the programme in Global Studies.

Candidates should send a CV, a letter detailing their research and teaching interests, at least two samples of written work, and letters from three referees to the Chair of the Search Committee at pol-box5@nus.edu.sg

All applicants should also submit sample syllabi, student evaluations, and other evidence of teaching quality. To ensure full consideration, applications should be received by 21 October 2019.

University of Michigan-Ann Arbor

Rank: Faculty Position in Complex Systems

Subfield(s): Methodology, Public Policy, Political Theory

Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Research Methods, Intelligence

The Center for the Study of Complex Systems (CSCS) at the University of Michigan seeks applicants for a tenure-track faculty position in complex systems science. This is a University-year appointment at the Assistant Professor level although more senior applicants will also be considered. The expected start date is 1 September 2020.

Required Qualifications: We seek applicants with a research agenda focused on the development and/or application of complex systems models and/or methods. This may involve theoretical or applied research in areas of complex systems including (but not limited to) mathematical and computational work in network science, emergence and robustness, related topics in computer science, or scientific applications where complex systems theory lies at the core of the approach such as quantitative modeling of social systems, biological structure and development, evolution, artificial life and cognition. We are particularly interested in candidates with a record of working across disciplines.

How to Apply: All applications must be uploaded here:

<http://webapps.lsa.umich.edu/Apply/CSCS>. This faculty position will be a joint appointment between CSCS and another academic department or school at the University of Michigan. Candidates should identify one or more partner units at the University of Michigan suitable for such a joint appointment. Applicants must submit a CV, a statement of current and future research plans, a statement of teaching philosophy and experience, and evidence of teaching excellence, if any. At least three letters of recommendation are required and must be uploaded onto the same website. Review of applications will begin on 1 October 2019 and will continue until the position is filled.

The University of Michigan is supportive of the needs of dual career couples and is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Women and minority candidates are encouraged to apply.

University of Pittsburgh

Rank: Assistant Professor – Methodology/Computational Political Science

The Department of Political Science at the University of Pittsburgh seeks candidates for a tenure-stream position in Political Methodology and Computational Social Science at the level of Assistant Professor. We are seeking researchers that have expertise in applying machine learning approaches, broadly construed, to computationally intensive problems in social science. Researchers modeling social media or networks, those employing novel data (e.g., eye-tracking, MRI or GIS data), at scale, or applying creative measurement and visualization strategies to explore topics such as algorithmic biases would be particularly competitive for this position, and we welcome applications from scholars whose work complements and builds on departmental strengths. We encourage applications not only from candidates who have been trained in Political Science departments, but also interdisciplinary researchers whose interests intersect with political science topics. A successful candidate will have a strong research agenda, evidence of teaching ability, the promise of attracting external funding for his/her research, and will have the opportunity to join the interdisciplinary MLHub initiative at Pitt.

The starting date for the position is September 1, 2020, and applicants should have completed a Ph.D. in Political Science, Information Science, Computer Science, or a related field before the appointment begins. Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of research and teaching interests, two or three writing samples, teaching evaluations (if available), a brief description of how your research, teaching or service demonstrates a commitment to diversity and inclusion, and a minimum of three letters of reference; references will receive email notification with instructions about submitting their letters. Please apply online at: <https://facultysearch.as.pitt.edu/apply/index/MjY3>. In order to ensure full consideration, applications must be received by September 16, 2019, and the review of applications will continue until the position is filled. Smith College

Rank: Assistant Professor in Government and Statistical & Data Sciences

Specializations: Women & Politics, Race & Ethnic Politics, Electoral Behavior

The Department of Government (GOV) and the Program in Statistical & Data Sciences (SDS) at Smith College invite applications for a joint, tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor, to begin July 1, 2020.

By time of appointment the applicant must have a Ph.D. in Political Science or a closely-related discipline (e.g., public policy) -- as well as advanced training in statistics, data science, or a closely-related field at the graduate level. Candidates specializing in American political institutions and public policy are preferred. Statistical and Data Science specializations might include, for example, the public policy implications of data storage and mining, machine learning and public health, modeling of voting behavior, surveillance and data privacy policy, or computer algorithms for law enforcement and sentencing.

The position has a teaching load of 2:2 -- i.e., four semester-long courses over the academic year -- and will have a joint teaching commitment to GOV and SDS, split evenly. In GOV, we anticipate that the person would teach introduction to public policy, introduction to American Government, and upper-level courses related to their area of expertise in which students analyze data. In SDS, the person would teach introductory statistics or data science, as well as intermediate and advanced-level courses in their area of interest, for example multiple regression, machine learning, data journalism, data visualization, data ethics, or text mining. Candidates from groups underrepresented in STEM or quantitative political science are encouraged to apply.

Located in Northampton, MA, Smith College is the largest women's college in the country and is dedicated to excellence in teaching and research across the liberal arts. The faculty of outstanding scholars interact with students in small classes. Tenure-track faculty members teach two courses each semester, mentor and advise undergraduates, and enjoy a generous sabbatical policy. Smith College offers opportunities to foster faculty success at every career stage, such as those listed here: <https://www.smith.edu/about-smith/provost/faculty-development>. The Five College Consortium -- comprising Smith, Amherst, Mount Holyoke and Hampshire Colleges, and the University of Massachusetts-Amherst -- provides a rich intellectual and cultural life. Details about GOV and SDS may be found at <https://www.smith.edu/gov/> and <https://www.smith.edu/sds/>.

Submit application at <http://apply.interfolio.com/66801> with a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a statement of research interests, a statement of teaching philosophy, an article- or chapter-length writing sample, and three confidential letters of recommendation. The research and teaching statements should address the candidate's commitment to diversity and inclusion, as well as their interest in working at a women's college. Review of applications will begin October 1, 2019.

University of Toronto

Rank: Assistant Professor in Quantitative Political Science

The Department of Political Science in the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a full-time tenure-stream appointment in the area of Quantitative Political Methodology. We are looking for a candidate with a high level of expertise in methodology and seek candidates who also have a substantive interest in area-based politics (for example in US politics), and are able to teach and do research in both these fields. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor and will commence on July 1, 2020, or shortly thereafter.

The successful candidate must have a PhD in Political Science or a closely related discipline at the time of appointment or shortly thereafter. We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and strengthen our existing departmental strengths. Applicants are encouraged to review the research and teaching profiles of current faculty members. Please visit our home page (Department of Political Science <http://politics.utoronto.ca>) to learn more about us.

Candidates must provide strong evidence of research excellence of an internationally competitive calibre, as evidenced by a record of publications in leading outlets in the field or forthcoming publications meeting high international standards, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, accolades or awards, and strong endorsements by referees of high standing. The successful candidate will be expected to mount an innovative, competitive, independent, and externally-funded research program, and to pursue outstanding research at the highest international level. Evidence of excellence in teaching is required and is demonstrated by a teaching dossier to include a strong statement of teaching philosophy, sample course materials, teaching evaluations, and teaching accomplishments, and strong endorsements from referees. The successful candidate will undertake undergraduate and graduate teaching responsibilities on the University's downtown (St George) campus.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply by clicking on the link below. Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, article-length writing sample (approximately 10,000 words), teaching dossier (including a statement of teaching philosophy, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations), and a statement outlining current and future research interests. Because we seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity, candidates are also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of their contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover (but need not be limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups. Applicants should also ask three referees to send letters (on letterhead, signed and scanned) directly to the Chair of the search committee in the Department of Political Science, Professor Antoinette Handley, via e-mail at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca by the closing date, October 7, 2019.

All application materials should be submitted through the University of Toronto's online application system. Submission guidelines can be found at: <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>.

All application material, including reference letters, must be received by October 7, 2019.

If you have questions about this position, please contact Sari Sherman at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca.

The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous / Aboriginal People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Emory University

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor – Quantitative Methodologist

The Department of Quantitative Theory and Methods (QTM) at Emory University anticipates hiring three quantitative social scientists with expertise in statistics, data science, mathematical modeling, and/or analytical theory. The positions are tenure-track at the level of Assistant Professor or, for the extraordinary file, tenured at the Associate Professor level. Teaching load is competitive.

QTM is a new and rapidly growing interdisciplinary department at Emory designed to connect faculty communities involved in quantitative research across the college and university. The successful candidate must demonstrate excellence or the promise of excellence in both research and teaching, as well as an interest in contributing to and participating in QTM's intellectual mission. The candidate should have completed the Ph.D. by September 2020.

A complete application will consist of a cover letter, a research statement, curriculum vitae, graduate transcript, teaching portfolio, writing sample, and three letters of recommendation. Please submit (along with other materials) a brief statement that reflects upon your experience and vision regarding the teaching and mentorship of students from diverse backgrounds.

Application review will begin on September 3, 2019. Applications received up to 30 days after review begins will receive full consideration.

To apply for this position, please visit <https://apply.interfolio.com/66128> and submit your materials free of charge through Interfolio.

The College of New Jersey

Rank: Assistant Professor, Public Policy

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, Methodology

The Department of Political Science at The College of New Jersey (TCNJ) invites applications for a tenure-track position in Public Policy at the rank of Assistant Professor. We are open to candidates studying a range of policy areas; candidates should demonstrate an active and rigorous research agenda in their chosen policy specialty. The successful candidate will excel in the classroom and seek ways to integrate their scholarship and teaching. Candidates should be prepared to teach undergraduate courses on U.S. public policy. Candidates who can also expand our course offerings in other areas such as public administration, race & ethnic politics, gender & politics, or urban/local politics would be desirable, as would candidates who could teach research methods or specialized courses in data analytics/science. The typical teaching load is three courses per semester, with the possibility of a course release per year for research after the first year through a competitive proposal process. A Ph.D. is preferred, but the College will consider ABDs if the degree will be granted by time of appointment. Applications received by September 13, 2019, will receive full consideration.

The Department of Political Science is a supportive and dynamic community of scholars and students. The Department has seven tenured or tenure-track members and is conducting searches this year for two additional tenure-track positions. Over 180 students major in Political Science, and another 130 major in the interdisciplinary International Studies program. The Department offers minors in public policy and pre-law which draw students from across a wide range of academic disciplines.

Founded in 1855, TCNJ is a highly selective institution that has earned national recognition for its commitment to excellence. Emphasizing a residential experience for its 6,500 undergraduates, TCNJ is one of Barron's 75 "Most Competitive" American colleges, and U.S. News & World Report's No. 1 public institution of its kind in the northern region of the country. The College also offers focused graduate programs in nursing, business, education and English. In 2006, TCNJ was awarded a Phi Beta Kappa chapter—an honor shared by less than 10 percent of colleges and universities nationally. A strong liberal arts core forms the foundation for programs offered through TCNJ's seven schools—Arts & Communication; Business; Education; Humanities & Social Sciences; Science; Nursing, Health, and Exercise Science; and Engineering. TCNJ faculty members are teacher-scholars who share a commitment to the liberal arts. TCNJ is located within an hour, by train, of NYC and Philadelphia. The College's campus is set on 289 tree-lined acres in suburban Ewing Township and is known for its natural beauty. TCNJ has 39 major buildings, including the 4th-best college library in the nation, according to the Princeton Review.

Applicants should submit the following materials using the online application system at link: <https://chm.tbe.taleo.net/chm03/ats/careers/v2/viewRequisition?org=TCNJ&cws=37&rid=1016>. A final offer of employment will be contingent upon successful completion of a background investigation.

- 1) A cover letter describing qualifications and research and teaching interests,
- 2) curriculum vitae,
- 3) one scholarly writing sample,
- 4) evidence of teaching effectiveness,
- 5) a statement on diversity and inclusion detailing how diversity and inclusion are incorporated into their work as teachers, scholars, and mentors, and
- 6) contact information for 3-5 references.

Applicants should also have three referees submit confidential letters of recommendation directly to publicpolicysearch-group@tcnj.edu. Questions about the position can be directed to Daniel Bowen (bowend@tcnj.edu), Public Policy Search Committee Chair.

California State Polytechnic University, Pomona

Rank: Assistant Professor -- International Relations and/or Comparative Politics

Assistant Professor – International Relations and/or Comparative Politics

The Political Science Department in the College of Letters, Arts, and Social Sciences at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona (Cal Poly Pomona) invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor for appointment beginning in the 2020-2021 academic year. Candidates specializing in international relations and/or comparative politics are especially encouraged to apply.

At Cal Poly Pomona, we cultivate success through a diverse culture of experiential learning, discovery, and innovation. We demonstrate academic quality, relevance, and excellence through our teaching, learning, scholarship, and creative activities with student-centered faculty in an evidence-based culture. Cal Poly Pomona is committed to being the model for an inclusive polytechnic university that inspires creativity and innovation, embraces local and global challenges, and transforms lives.

The Position

The faculty member will be part of a small, collegial Political Science Department which grants a B.A. degree, and which also has a Master's in Public Administration. The faculty member will primarily teach courses in international relations and/or comparative politics. A faculty member specializing in international relations will be expected to teach courses such as International Law, International Political Economy, and US Foreign Policy. A faculty member specializing in comparative politics will be expected to teach courses in a regional specialization other than Latin America. The ability to teach undergraduate research methods, whether qualitative and/or quantitative, will also be expected. The position requires excellence in teaching and advising, professional and scholarly achievements, and a commitment to service to the university. Applicants whose work demonstrates a commitment to inclusive excellence and diversity in higher education are particularly encouraged to apply. Cal Poly Pomona is a Hispanic-serving institution and the faculty member will be an advisor to many underrepresented minorities and first-generation college students.

Minimum Qualifications

- Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field from an accredited university at the time of appointment
- University teaching experience as instructor of record and/or teaching assistant
- Evidence of scholarly potential (conference presentations, publications, grant development, etc.)
- Evidence of demonstrated ability to contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community through research, teaching, and/or service and work, as well as experience fostering an inclusive environment

Preferred/Desired Qualifications

Research interests related to social or racial justice, gender inequities, and/or inequality would be a plus. Additionally, preference will be given to candidates who can demonstrate the ability to mentor and advise under-served populations including, but not limited to, African-American, Hispanic, and Native American students.

Application Procedure

The position is open until filled. First consideration will be given to completed applications submitted by Friday, September 13, 2019. Early submission is encouraged. Electronic submissions of all application materials must be submitted online via Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/65857>.

A completed application will consist of:

- A cover letter that describes the candidate's teaching performance, research experience and interests, and that addresses the duties and qualifications articulated in the position description;

- A curriculum vitae comprising at least those elements specified on the application form and including the names, titles, addresses, email addresses, and telephone numbers of at least five individuals who can speak to the candidate's potential for success in this position;
- A 'Student Success Statement' about your teaching, or other experiences, successes, and challenges working with a diverse student population (approximately one page, single-spaced);
- Three recent letters of reference (on letterhead, signed and dated within the past two years), uploaded through Interfolio;
- A completed application form available on the application website;
- An unofficial transcript showing the highest degree earned from an accredited education institution. Finalists will be required to submit an official transcript; and
- Recent teaching evaluation summaries and sample syllabi, if available.
- Please submit all electronic documents in PDF format.

The University: Cal Poly Pomona is one of two polytechnic universities in the 23-campus California State University system. Our ethnically diverse student population of approximately 22,000 enrolls in 52 baccalaureate, 26 master's degree programs, 11 credential and certificate programs, and a doctorate in Educational Leadership, presented by 1,200 faculty. We recruit students increasingly from throughout California and beyond. The students are success and career focused and extremely diverse. We are proud of our status as a Hispanic Serving Institution. We have a strong commitment to supporting scholarship, research, and student achievement. Our scenic and historic 1,400-acre campus, once the winter ranch of cereal magnate W. K. Kellogg, is located about 30 miles east of downtown Los Angeles in one of the most dynamic economic and cultural regions in the country, and within an hour's drive of beaches, mountains, and desert. The university is committed to diversifying its faculty and staff and has made educational equity one of its highest priorities. The mission of the university is to advance learning and knowledge by linking theory and practice in all disciplines, and to prepare students for lifelong learning, leadership, and careers in a changing, multicultural world.

The College: The College of Letters, Arts, and Social Sciences cultivates one's intellectual development, ethical reasoning, and aesthetic sensibility to support creative and critical thinking in a diverse world of competing challenges. The College offers introductory and advanced course work in numerous degree and certificate programs across the humanities, social sciences, and performing arts. The General Education program offered to all students enrolled in the University is also central to the mission of the College. The College embraces its role in providing courses and curricula in support of multiple and single-subject teaching credential students. The University's mission to "cultivate success through a diverse culture of experiential learning, discovery, and innovation" lies at the heart of the College's commitment to offer programs that educate the whole person. Additional information is available at: <http://www.cpp.edu/~class/>.

The Department: The Department of Political Science has over three hundred and fifty undergraduate political science majors and approximately fifty students in our NASPAA-accredited MPA program. We also offer a Political Science minor and participate significantly in the university's General Education offerings. The Department sponsors a Model United Nations program and a Mock Trial Team, both with a history of national recognition. Members of the Department have traditionally been actively involved across campus and in the community.

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, Methodology

The Department of Political Science and Economics at Rowan University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science position beginning in Fall 2020. The Department seeks candidates with expertise in public policy. Applicants must demonstrate a commitment to excellence in both research and teaching, as well as the potential to secure external grant/fellowship support. Teaching responsibilities include introductory and advanced courses in public policy and American politics. A 3/3 teaching load is guaranteed for the first two years and can be renewed annually with evidence of continuing scholarship. Female candidates and candidates of color are strongly encouraged to apply. Rowan University is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, color, disability, gender, gender expression, gender identity, genetic information, national origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or status as a protected veteran.

If you plan to attend the American Political Science Association (APSA) conference in Washington D.C. and would like to meet, please send your CV and a letter of application by August 1 to pluta@rowan.edu. We plan to meet with a limited number of applicants during the conference; however, all applicants will have equal consideration, regardless of attendance at APSA. Full applications should be submitted through the online applicant tracking system as discussed below.

Rowan University is a comprehensive state-designated research institution with approximately 15,000 students. Its main campus is located in Glassboro, N.J., 20-miles southeast of Philadelphia and it has a branch campus and medical school in Camden and a second medical school in nearby Stratford. The University boasts seven colleges—Rohrer College of Business and colleges of Communication and Creative Arts, Education, Engineering, Humanities and Social Sciences, Performing Arts, and Science and Mathematics.

The College of Humanities and Social Sciences (CHSS) is the second largest college at Rowan University with seven departments, seven interdisciplinary programs, and seventeen majors. The College also has a number of established graduate programs and is in the process of developing more programs at the Master's and Doctoral level. The College also houses a number of Centers and Institutes that serve both research and pedagogical functions. CHSS places a strong emphasis on exceptional teaching, research and service. Our mission is to empower, transform, and engage students and faculty, as well as the global communities in which we live. We actively support faculty research and strive to include faculty as full partners in governance within the College.

Candidates should have an earned doctorate in Political Science (or related field) by August 1, 2020. Applications will be accepted on a rolling basis until the position is filled. The first full review of applications will begin on October 28, 2019. Applications must be submitted through our online applicant tracking system at <http://jobs.rowan.edu/cw/en-us/job/493760/assistant-professor-of-political-science-tenure-track>.

Applications must include a cover letter, a CV, unofficial transcripts, a writing sample, and a teaching portfolio (including a statement of teaching philosophy, courses taught, teaching evaluations, etc.). Please do not submit letters of reference at this time.

Rowan University values diversity and is committed to equal opportunity in employment. Candidates must demonstrate authorization to work in the United States. All positions are contingent upon budget appropriations.

Applicants must have a Ph.D., evidence of excellence in scholarship and teaching, and a commitment to mentoring undergraduate students. A normal teaching load includes three 4-unit courses per semester, committee assignments, and academic advising.

Westmont College is a nationally ranked, selective liberal arts college in the evangelical Protestant tradition. We desire faculty who are animated by a serious Christian faith, are able to engage in interdisciplinary dialogue and pedagogy, and who share a commitment to justice, citizenship, and service. Westmont has a strong commitment to cultural and academic diversity that is increasingly reflected in its student body, curriculum, and faculty. We seek a colleague who shares these commitments and will contribute to their rich applications in political science.

Please visit <https://www.westmont.edu/office-provost/open-positions> for application instructions and to submit relevant documents.

Questions may be addressed to Dr. Jesse Covington, chair of Political Science via e-mail: jcovington@westmont.edu. Review of applications will begin in June 2019, and will continue until the position is filled.

For priority interview consideration, applications should be received by August 1, 2019.

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

The Center for Peace and Security Studies (cPASS) has up to 3 postdoctoral positions available for the next four academic years (2019-2020, 2020-2021, 2021-2022, 2022-2023). Each position is also renewable at the discretion of the cPASS Director.

Research at cPASS targets new and emerging security issues such as emerging modes of conflict and new modes of deterrence. cPASS is devoted to applying innovative thinking and diverse methodologies (experiments, deductive modeling, statistical analysis, case studies, archival research and “big data”) to traditional security issues made more dynamic and difficult by the increased complexity of interstate competition and conflict. We emphasize a team-based, multi-method approach to research that combines qualitative and quantitative perspectives.

Postdocs will work closely with the Center Director in conducting cPASS research activities such as data collection, analysis, preparing project reports and manuscripts for peer-reviewed journals, preparing and delivering oral presentations to diverse audiences, overseeing qualitative research or supervising project labs, and mentoring graduate and undergraduate research activities.

Applicants are required to have a PhD in hand at the time of appointment. A degree in Political Science, History, International Relations, Economics, or allied field is anticipated but other specialties may be appropriate, depending on an applicant’s interests and skills. Candidates will be assessed based on their expertise and knowledge of different key aspects of security studies and their ability to contribute to a diversified, integrated research team.

The initial period of appointment will be for 12 months from the date of appointment. Renewal is possible with the approval of the Center Director. Some flexibility exists as to start date, but candidates should expect to be in residence in San Diego throughout the appointment. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Interested applicants should provide a letter describing their qualifications and the reasons for interest in the position. A printed copy of a curriculum vitae is also required. Additional materials may be requested after initial review. Please send all materials to the following email address (jml110@ucsd.edu). Please ensure to include the phrase “cPASS Postdoc Fellow” in the subject heading. Review of applications will be ongoing.

Washington University in St. Louis

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associates in Religion and Politics
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Open

The John C. Danforth Center on Religion and Politics seeks applications from junior scholars and recent Ph.D. graduates for up to four postdoctoral fellowships in residence at Washington University in St. Louis. The appointment is for one year, renewable for a second year. Eligible applicants must complete the Ph.D. by July 1, 2020, and have completed it no earlier than January 1, 2015. In exceptional cases a qualified applicant holding a J.D., without the Ph.D., may be considered. Research associates will spend most of their time pursuing research and writing for their own projects. They will also serve the intellectual life of the Danforth Center on Religion and Politics through participation in its biweekly interdisciplinary seminar and events hosted by the Center. Their teaching responsibilities will include: 1) developing one course per year to complement and contribute to the Center's curricular offerings, and 2) possibly assisting in one additional course each year (depending on the particular teaching needs of the Center). Washington University in St. Louis is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer and especially encourages members of underrepresented groups to apply.

Required Qualifications: Applicants should hold a doctorate in religious studies, politics, anthropology, law, philosophy, theology, American studies, history, area studies, sociology, or another relevant field. Scholars should be engaged in projects centrally concerned with religion and politics in the United States, historically or in the present day.

Application Instructions: Applicants must send all of the following information as a single pdf file to the Center at rap@wustl.edu:

- 1) Cover letter including an overview of the postdoctoral research project
- 2) Current curriculum vitae
- 3) Relevant writing sample (25-35 pages)
- 4) Two undergraduate course proposals (a summary paragraph for each will suffice)

Applicants should also arrange to have three letters of recommendation submitted on their behalf to rap@wustl.edu.

Applications are due in full by December 1, 2019. Applicants will be notified of fellowship decisions by March 2, 2020. For more information, contact the Center at (314) 935-9345 or via e-mail at rap@wustl.edu.

University of Florida

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor in Israel Studies

Assistant or Associate Professor in Israel Studies (41081)

University of Florida: College of Liberal Arts & Sciences: 16740000
 - LS-JEWISH STUDIES

Location: Gainesville, Florida

Description

The Center for Jewish Studies at the University of Florida invites applicants for a tenure accruing faculty position at the assistant or associate professor level in the field of Israel Studies to begin August 16, 2020. The position is open to Israel specialists in any discipline in the social sciences and the humanities. Ph.D. required by start date. A successful candidate must have an active research agenda, must be able to integrate the study of Israel into theoretical and comparative contexts that speak to the needs of the appropriate tenure home, and be committed to developing the Jewish Studies major and certificate programs. The successful candidate will also help promote Israel studies within the community and further develop the Center's links with Israel.

The University of Florida is ranked among the top ten public universities in the US. The University has excellent research facilities, and the Isser and Rae Price Library of Judaica is considered one of the top Judaica research collections in the US. The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences is currently undergoing a significant expansion of faculty. All new hires are expected to enhance the national visibility of the academic units in which they are housed.

The Center is committed to creating an environment that affirms diversity across a variety of dimensions, including ethnicity/race, gender identity and expression. We particularly welcome applicants who can contribute to such an environment through their scholarship, teaching, mentoring, and professional service. The university and greater Gainesville communities enjoy a diversity of cultural events, restaurants, year-round outdoor recreational activity, and social opportunities.

The salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience, and includes a full benefits package.

Qualifications

A Ph.D. is required

Application Instructions

For full consideration, applications must be submitted through Careers at UF at <http://apply.interfolio.com/57981> and must include: a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a statement about ongoing research and teaching directions, a writing sample, and three confidential letters of recommendation. The review of applicants begins on September 20, 2019, for an August 16, 2020 appointment, and the position will remain open until filled.

All candidates for employment are subject to a pre-employment screening which includes a review of criminal records, reference checks, and verification of education.

The selected candidate will be required to provide an official transcript to the hiring department upon hire. A transcript will not be considered "official" if a designation of "Issued to Student" is visible. Degrees earned from an educational institution outside of the United States require evaluation by a professional credentialing service provider approved by the National Association of Credential Evaluation Services (NACES), which can be found at <http://www.naces.org/>.

The University of Florida is an equal opportunity institution dedicated to building a broadly diverse and inclusive faculty and staff. The selection process will be conducted in accordance with the provisions of Florida's Government in the Sunshine and Public Records Laws. If an accommodation due to disability is needed to apply for this position, please call (352) 392-2477 or the Florida Relay System at (800) 955-8771 (TDD).

Haverford College

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Other, Open

Haverford College invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor in its Peace, Justice, and Human Rights program to begin Fall semester 2020. The successful candidate must have a PhD at the time of appointment. The position is open to scholars at all pre-tenure levels with training in the humanities or social sciences whose work is interdisciplinary and focuses on questions of justice, human rights, and related fields. All specializations are welcome, but there is particular interest in scholars who can contribute to programs in Health Studies, Environmental Studies, Gender and Sexuality Studies, or Visual Studies. The successful candidate will be expected to teach an introductory course on peace, justice, and human rights and/or applied ethics, as well as offer more specialized courses in their area of expertise, and engage in inclusive pedagogy and mentoring of an increasingly diverse student body. Haverford College embraces the teacher-scholar model and supports faculty research through programs and funding opportunities.

Peace, Justice, and Human Rights (PJHR) is an interdisciplinary concentration attracting students from many different disciplines; it offers students the opportunity to study the history, philosophy, and critiques of the rights tradition, examine issues of justice in their local and international contexts, and apply humanistic, social scientific, theoretical, and ethical reasoning to real-world problems. The program's goal is to foster cross-disciplinary collaboration and new perspectives on entrenched problems. For more information, see <http://www.haverford.edu/pjhr/>

Applicants should submit the following via Interfolio [<https://apply.interfolio.com/67577>]: a cover letter addressing qualifications for the position, curriculum vitae, a sample course syllabus or description of a class you'd like to teach in the PJHR program, a teaching statement (3-4 pages) that highlights pedagogical strategies and discusses how you approach diversity and inclusion in the classroom, a writing sample (up to 25 pages), and three confidential letters of recommendation. Candidates are encouraged to seek letter writers who together can address your abilities and promise as a teacher, mentor, and scholar/researcher. New applications submitted after 11:59 pm on Friday, November 1 will not be considered.

Haverford College is a leading liberal arts college serving highly motivated students on a nationally recognized arboretum in suburban Haverford, just outside Philadelphia.

Questions about the application process should be directed to hc-PJHRsearch@haverford.edu. For technical questions, please contact Interfolio directly at 1-877-997-8807 or help@interfolio.com.

University of Western Ontario

Rank: Tier 1 Canada Research Chair in Inequality, Gender, and Policy

Tier 1 Canada Research Chair in Inequality, Gender and Policy

The Faculty of Social Science at Western University, one of Canada's leading research-intensive universities, invites applications for a Tier 1 Canada Research Chair (CRC) in the area of Inequality, Gender and Policy at the rank of tenured Full Professor with a starting date of July 1, 2020, or as negotiated. Candidates must hold a Ph.D. or equivalent in a relevant discipline. Scholars working with mixed methods are welcome to apply, with the expectation the successful candidate will be a highly accomplished quantitative social scientist. The successful candidate will be appointed to either the Department of Sociology (<http://sociology.uwo.ca/>) or the Department of Political Science (<http://politicalscience.uwo.ca/>). A joint appointment may also be considered. This academic appointment is conditional upon the successful award of the Tier 1 CRC. A Tier 1 CRC is a 7-year appointment with the possibility of renewal. CRC appointments typically include reduced teaching, generous research budgets and support from the department, faculty, NEST, and the Government of Canada.

Western University recognizes that our commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion is central to the University's mandate as a research intensive institution of higher learning and a community leader. Western understands that our pursuit of research excellence and our commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion are mutually supporting. As such, Western is committed to achieving and maintaining an equitable representation amongst our Canada Research Chair holders, as well as within Western's broader research enterprise.

In accordance with the criteria set for Tier 1 Canada Research Chairs (<http://www.chairs-chaire.gc.ca/>), the candidate must be an outstanding and innovative researcher whose accomplishments are recognized internationally as having a major impact on their field; have a record of excellence in attracting and supervising graduate students and in teaching; a record of success in attracting external funding, and demonstrated leadership experience in the field. The candidate must also propose an original and innovative research program that will attract external funding and excellent trainees, graduate students and future researchers.

The selected candidate will be nominated by Western University to apply for the Tier 1 CRC in Inequality, Gender and Policy. The CRC application will demonstrate the exceptional quality of the candidate and their research program as well as the fit of the candidate with the institutional environment and the strategic research plans of the Department, Faculty and University: https://ssc.uwo.ca/about_us/officedean/annual_report.html; https://president.uwo.ca/strategic_planning/index.html.

Western University recognizes the potential impact that legitimate career interruptions can have on a candidate's record of research achievement. Potential candidates are encouraged to explain within their application the impact that career interruptions have had on their record, and to submit a full career or extended CV to a chairholder position in cases where they have had career interruptions.

With annual research funding exceeding $220 million, and an international reputation for success, Western ranks as one of Canada's top research-intensive universities. Our research excellence expands knowledge and drives discovery with real-world application. Western also provides an exceptional employment experience, offering competitive salaries, a wide range of employment opportunities, and one of Canada's most beautiful campuses. Since 1878 the Western experience has combined academic excellence with life-long opportunities for intellectual, social, and cultural growth in order to serve our communities. Western University delivers an academic experience second to none.

Situated in the Faculty of Social Science, the Departments of Sociology and Political Science offer full programs for undergraduate, MA, and PhD students. Social Science at Western is ranked 84th in the 2019 QS world rankings. The Faculty of Social Science is currently in a period of significant faculty renewal having made over 40 hires over the last few years, with at least 10 more hires anticipated. We have also recently opened NEST, the Network for Economic and Social Trends, which houses a number of research centres in the Faculty including the Centre for Research in Social Inequality, the Centre for Human Capital and Productivity, the Centre for Urban Policy and Local Governance, the Centre for Computational and Quantitative Social Science, and the Statistics Canada Research Data Centre: <http://nest.uwo.ca>.

Applications must include: the application for Full-Time Faculty Position form <http://www.uwo.ca/facultyrelations/pdf/recruitment/full-time-application-form.pdf>; a letter of interest; a detailed C.V.; a research plan for the Chair; bibliographical information on 3 refereed publications or working papers most relevant to the area of the Chair; evidence of teaching success, and the names, addresses, and email addresses for 3 referees.

Review of applications will begin after September 30, 2019 and will continue until the position is filled. All PDF application materials should be emailed to the Search Committee, c/o Karen Foullong, Faculty Affairs Coordinator, Office of the Dean, Faculty of Social Science, Western University, kfoullon@uwo.ca.

Indiana University- Bloomington, Hamilton Lugar School of Global and International Studies

Rank: Assistant Professor, Contemporary Japanese Politics and Society

Specializations: Japan, State Politics, Social Movements

Indiana University Bloomington's Hamilton Lugar School of Global and International Studies (HLS) seeks a full-time tenure-track assistant professor of contemporary Japanese politics and society, broadly defined, to begin August 1, 2020. The position is 100% in HLS's renowned multidisciplinary Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures (EALC). The teaching load is two courses per semester. Teaching responsibilities encompass both undergraduate and graduate courses and will include the teaching of a new course on "Japanese Politics and Society."

This is an exciting moment to join the newly named and expanding Hamilton Lugar School of Global and International Studies as it leads the university's international research and teaching missions. Established nearly sixty years ago, the EALC department has a long history of interdisciplinarity and boasts faculty strengths in a wide array of social sciences.

Minimum requirements are a Ph.D. in a relevant social science discipline (e.g., sociology, anthropology, political science) and active research agendas examining contemporary political and/or social issues that involve Japanese-language sources and in-country fieldwork.

We are particularly interested in candidates combining disciplinary rigor and area studies expertise to examine real-world challenges facing contemporary Japan and who are interested in contributing to and benefiting from EALC's new 21st Century Japan Politics and Society Initiative (established in 2018).

Applicants should submit a letter of application describing research and teaching interests, a C.V., and a writing sample along with three letters of reference. ABD candidates are welcome to apply, but must have the Ph.D. in hand by July 31, 2020. Interested candidates should review the application requirements and submit their application at: <https://indiana.peopleadmin.com/postings/8197>

Questions regarding the position or application process can be directed to: Ethan Michelson at emichels@indiana.edu. Applications received by October 18, 2019 are guaranteed full consideration.

Rank: Postdoctoral Researcher – Division of Social Science

The Division of Social Science at New York University Abu Dhabi seeks to appoint several Post-Doctoral Researchers starting September 2020. Later start dates are also possible.

Applicants must have received a Ph.D. in the last three years or be within a few months from completion. Appointments will be for two academic years, renewable for one additional academic year, conditional on a satisfactory evaluation of performance.

We encourage applications from very promising candidates with a capacity to conduct innovative, high-quality scholarly research in the fields of Economics, Political Science, Sociology and Public Policy. Successful candidates are expected to develop a well-defined research program and to forge productive collaborations with faculty at NYUAD. The terms of employment are competitive.

To be considered, all applicants need to submit a curriculum vitae, statement of research interests, and a research sample, to: <http://apply.interfolio.com/66364>.

To complete the online process, applicants will be prompted to enter the names and email addresses of three referees. Each referee will be contacted to upload their reference letter. The Social Science Division is keen on increasing diversity among faculty and postdoctoral fellows and especially encourages women and underrepresented minorities to apply.

Note: The position will close on March 15, 2020, though we will continue to consider applicants until all positions are filled. Candidates for political science will begin to be evaluated starting October 1, 2019; candidates for Sociology will be evaluated beginning November 1, 2019; and candidates for economics will be evaluated starting December 15, 2019.

The College of Wooster

Rank: Assistant Professor Global Environmental Justice

Description

The Departments of Environmental Studies and Political Science at The College of Wooster seek to fill a tenure track position in Global Environmental Justice at the level of Assistant Professor, beginning in the fall of 2020. We are looking for a broadly trained specialist in environmental politics and social justice with area studies expertise and a high proficiency in qualitative methodologies.

Qualifications

The successful candidate should have a demonstrated ability to teach courses and advise research projects in environmental justice and social justice, broadly conceived. They would teach introductory and advanced courses in the Environmental Studies and Political Science departments, supervise independent research projects as part of the College's Independent Study requirement, and participate in teaching the College's First Year Seminar. We seek to hire a scholar whose research and teaching addresses one or more dimensions of environmental justice, such as: the intersections of global climate change and class, ethnic, or racial inequalities; comparative environmental movements; forced displacement and migration due to environmental crisis; food or water insecurity; or environmental governance. In addition, we are interested in candidates whose research and teaching can connect with one or more interdisciplinary programs at The College of Wooster such as Africana Studies, Global & International Studies, East Asian Studies, South Asian Studies, Middle Eastern and North African Studies, Urban Studies, or Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies. The College of Wooster enrolls a diverse student body (21% domestic students of color and 15% international students); applicants should have experience with diverse student populations.

Application Instructions

We prefer candidates who will have completed their Ph.D. by the time of appointment and who have had previous independent teaching experience. Applicants should submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, evidence of effective teaching (including syllabi and summaries of student evaluations), a statement regarding how the applicant will contribute to the College's commitment to diversity and inclusion, graduate transcripts, and three letters of recommendation here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/66667>. Applications received by October 1, 2019, will receive full consideration. Please contact Matt Mariola (m-mariola@wooster.edu), Associate Professor of Environmental Studies and Chair of the search committee, with any questions.

University of California, San Diego

Rank: Assistant Teaching Professor

The Global Health Program invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Teaching Professor position (also termed Lecturer with Potential Security of Employment, LPSOE), beginning July 1, 2020. The Global Health Program at UC San Diego is committed to academic excellence and diversity within the faculty, staff, and student body.

The Assistant Teaching Professor is also known within the UC system as an LPSOE (Lecturer with Potential for Security of Employment). The LPSOE series parallels that of the research-focused series but with emphasis upon excellence in teaching and other instruction-related activities. Individuals in the position are expected to provide outstanding teaching, as well as to engage in professional activity and service related to the pedagogical mission of the program and university. This appointment confers membership in the Academic Senate, and, contingent upon promotion, tenure-paralleling security of employment.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. with training in medical social science (e.g., medical anthropology, medical sociology), global health, or a closely related field. We are interested in candidates who will be able to contribute to the full range of our Global Health degree programs including Minor, BA, BS, and MA and who have experience in teaching excellence at the undergraduate and graduate level, with special emphasis on developing our new MA program and curriculum. We seek candidates who will contribute to instruction-related activities (e.g. conducting TA training, curriculum development, creation of instructional materials, employ new technologies) at the campus, state-wide and national level. Preferred candidates will have strong demonstrated accomplishments in areas contributing to diversity, equity and inclusion, and a desire to play a leadership role in advancing UC San Diego's commitment to achieving excellence and diversity. This position will include an appointment in a Global Health Program affiliated academic department in the Division of Social Sciences.

Applications are accepted online at: <https://apol-recruit.ucsd.edu/JPF02163>

Applications received by October 15, 2019 will be given full consideration. However, the position will remain open until filled.

Salary is commensurate with experience and based on the University of California pay scales.

Williams College

Rank: Associate or Full Professor in Asian American Studies
Specializations: Asian American Politics, Race & Ethnic Politics, Social Movements

American Studies Program

Job description for 2020-2021

The American Studies Program at Williams College seeks to make a tenured appointment at the rank of Associate or Full Professor in Asian American Studies, to start July 1, 2020. The program seeks to complement and expand the existing expertise of our faculty who teach Asian American topics, and is especially interested in applications from those scholars whose research interests and teaching focus on social science or related topics and whose portfolios encompass interdisciplinary approaches.

The candidate should be a committed and imaginative scholar with an established record of excellence in scholarship and teaching and experience in program-building. We have a strong preference for those who demonstrate a commitment to the interdisciplinary nature and methodologies of American Studies in their research and teaching; the hire will be expected to teach both the introductory course and the junior-level theories and methods course, in addition to courses in their specialties. The teaching load is two courses per semester and a winter-study course every other January.

American Studies at Williams is a small but vibrant program with a diverse faculty and dynamic and engaged majors, whose numbers are growing. Created in 1940, it is one of the oldest American Studies programs in the country and has been at the forefront at Williams in teaching courses that foreground issues of race and racism, class, gender/sexuality, globalization, diaspora, among others. The hire will join three other Asian Americanists at the college and will have a hand in hiring a junior tenure-track Asian Americanist the following year. We are especially interested in candidates from historically under-represented groups, candidates whose scholarship and teaching enrich the diversity and intellectual vibrancy of our academic communities, and candidates who have experience working effectively with diverse student populations.

Please send the following application materials to the chair of the search committee, Prof. Dorothy Wang via Interfolio (<http://apply.interfolio.com/66535>): a letter of application that includes a summary of current and future scholarship, teaching interests and experience, and experience working effectively with students who are widely diverse with regard to race, ethnicity, nationality, gender, sexual orientation, and religion; a curriculum vitae; and names of three references. All applications received by Oct. 1, 2019 will receive full consideration. Semi-finalists will be asked to submit three letters of recommendation by Oct. 18 and preliminary video interviews will be scheduled during the week of Oct. 21. Finalists will be invited to Williamstown for a campus interview in mid-November.

All offers of employment are contingent on completion of a background check. Further information is available at: <http://dean-faculty.williams.edu/prospective-faculty/background-check-policy/>.

Williams is a coeducational liberal arts college located in the Berkshires of western Massachusetts. The college has built its reputation on the teaching and scholarship of its faculty and on the academic excellence of its approximately 2000 students. Please visit the Williams website (<http://williams.edu>). Beyond meeting fully its legal obligations for non-discrimination, Williams is committed to building a diverse and inclusive community where members from all backgrounds can live, learn, and thrive together.

University of California, Los Angeles

Rank: Junior Faculty Position

The UCLA Department of Political Science invites applications from outstanding candidates for a position at the rank of Assistant Professor, to begin on July 1, 2020. We are particularly eager to consider applicants who specialize in American Politics and related fields. In addition, we will consider especially strong applicants working in other fields (including comparative politics, international relations, methods, political theory, and racial/ethnic politics). Pending administrative approval, we will also consider applicants at the rank of Associate Professor.

UCLA and the UCLA Department of Political Science are firmly committed to the principles of equity, diversity, and inclusion. Therefore, we ask each applicant to submit with their application a statement that addresses their past efforts, as well as future plans, to advance equity, diversity, and inclusion in their scholarship, teaching, and service.

The online application should include a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, a statement of research interests, the aforementioned diversity statement, evidence of teaching excellence in related courses, at least one writing sample, a graduate transcript, and three letters of recommendation. The letters of recommendation should be uploaded directly by the referees. Appointments will be effective on July 1, 2020. A PhD in Political Science or related field should be in hand prior to the appointment. To ensure full consideration, the online application should be completed by September 16, 2019. Applications will be accepted, however, until the position is filled.

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Wilf Family Department of Politics seeks qualified candidates for two positions, open to subfield. The primary focus of our search is at the tenure track assistant professor level; however, we may consider more senior candidates under certain circumstances. The department seeks outstanding scholars who rigorously approach the systematic study of political phenomena. The positions are to begin September 1, 2020, pending administrative approval.

Qualifications:

Candidates are expected to possess a Ph.D. by September 2020, in political science or a cognate discipline; to have records of excellent research that has been published or otherwise disseminated in a manner appropriate to career stage, and to indicate the potential to be future disciplinary leaders in their respective fields of expertise. Candidates should also have demonstrated ability as excellent teachers at the undergraduate and/or graduate level. NYU is dedicated to the goal of building a diverse and inclusive academic community. Accordingly, we strongly encourage applications from candidates who can demonstrate through their teaching, research, experience, and service an ability to contribute to this goal, and a commitment to fostering inclusivity and teaching in a university setting.

Application Instructions:

Please apply online at <https://apply.interfolio.com/65911> with a letter of application, a curriculum vitae, three references, a sample of scholarly writing stripped of any identifying information, and teaching, research, and diversity statements (see below). While we will continue to review applications into the fall, candidates seeking the fullest consideration should submit their applications by September 15, 2019. Candidates are strongly encouraged to supply links to their professional websites; this will enhance their applications by allowing the search committee easy access to additional information that might be needed.

For the Diversity Statement: Please describe the ways in which your (1) scholarship, (2) teaching and mentoring, and/or (3) service and engagement demonstrate your commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion. We are particularly interested in hearing about (1) concrete steps you have taken (or are planning to take) to foster an inclusive intellectual environment in the classroom, in the department and on campus, and/or in your field more generally, and (2) how these steps connect with your broader views on the topics of diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate, Fung Global Fellows Program

Princeton University is pleased to announce the call for applications to the Fung Global Fellows Program at the Princeton Institute for International and Regional Studies (PIIRS). The program will select postdoctoral scholars from around the world to be in residence at Princeton for an academic year and to engage in research and discussion around a common theme. The number of candidates hired will depend on the qualifications of the overall applicant pools. The postdoctoral appointment will be for one academic year for scholars who have received a Ph.D. at an institution outside the United States and, who at the time of application, do not have a tenure-track faculty appointment. The candidates must also demonstrate outstanding scholarly achievement and have exhibited unusual intellectual promise.

During the academic year 2020-21, the Fung Global Fellows Program theme will be "Thinking Globally." How people have thought about the planet has informed the institutions, norms, and policies that have pulled it together and torn it apart. For centuries, ideas of free trade, human rights or global governance have framed cooperation and competition, order and disorder. Such ideas have also spawned border-crossing movements, from campaigns to end slavery to commitments to reduce carbon emissions. In turn, global thinking and action have often reinforced commitments to national ideas and efforts to curb global exchange. The goal for the 2020-21 cohort will be to explore how ideas framed the understanding of interests and the making of institutions that have yielded commonness and conflict across and within borders. We will also explore how these ideas and practices came into being through scientific networks, foundations, and think tanks. We welcome applicants from all disciplinary and inter-disciplinary fields from the sciences to the humanities whose work addresses this set of themes in any historical period or world region.

Applicants must apply online at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/12281>. Applications are due by November 15, 2019 (11:59 p.m. EST).

To be eligible, post-doctoral applicants must have completed all requirements for their Ph.D. before July 1, 2020 but cannot have more than two years of postdoctoral experience prior to the start of the appointment, September 1, 2020. If a candidate has turned in a final draft of their dissertation but not yet completed their Ph.D. before the start date, they may be temporarily appointed as a Senior Research Assistant with a 10% reduction in salary. Upon providing verification that they have completed all requirements for the Ph.D., they would then be promoted in rank and salary. The postdoctoral selection will be made based on the strength of the candidates' proposed research projects, the relationship of their projects to the program theme, the candidates' scholarly records and their ability to contribute to the intellectual life of the program.

Princeton University

Rank: Visiting Research Scholar, Fung Global Fellows Program

Princeton University is pleased to announce the call for applications to the Fung Global Fellows Program at the Princeton Institute for International and Regional Studies (PIIRS). The program will select both senior scholars and early-career scholars from around the world to be in residence at Princeton to engage in research and discussion around a common theme. The number of candidates hired will depend on the qualifications of the overall applicant pool. The fellowship will be awarded to scholars employed outside the United States who have a faculty appointment, a professional research appointment, or are an established independent scholar in the designated theme of the program, and have exhibited unusual intellectual promise. They will be expected to return to their position after the conclusion of the fellowship. Early career scholars selected will be in residence at Princeton for an academic year; senior scholars selected will be in residence at Princeton between three to ten months during the academic year.

During the academic year 2020-21, the Fung Global Fellows Program theme will be "Thinking Globally." How people have thought about the planet has informed the institutions, norms, and policies that have pulled it together and torn it apart. For centuries, ideas of free trade, human rights or global governance have framed cooperation and competition, order and disorder. Such ideas have also spawned border-crossing movements, from campaigns to end slavery to commitments to reduce carbon emissions. In turn, global thinking and action have often reinforced commitments to national ideas and efforts to curb global exchange. The goal for the 2020-21 cohort will be to explore how ideas framed the understanding of interests and the making of institutions that have yielded commonness and conflict across and within borders. We will also explore how these ideas and practices came into being through scientific networks, foundations, and think tanks. We welcome applicants from all disciplinary and inter-disciplinary fields from the sciences to the humanities whose work addresses this set of themes in any historical period or world region.

Applicants must apply online at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/12282>. Applications are due by November 15, 2019 (11:59 p.m. EST).

Fellowships will be awarded on the strength of a candidate's proposed research project, the relationship of the project to the program theme, the candidate's scholarly record and ability to contribute to the intellectual life of the program. Early-career scholars must have received their Ph.D. or equivalent no earlier than September 1, 2010. Senior scholars must have received their doctorates before September 1, 2010, and have a record of scholarly accomplishment in the designated theme of the program.

For more information on eligibility requirements and the Fung Global Fellows Program see <http://piirs.princeton.edu/funggf/call-applications>.

The following items must be submitted by the applicant, in English, by November 15, 2019:

- For those applicants with a faculty appointment or a professional research appointment, an official letter from the applicant's current employer affirming that, should an offer be made, the applicant would be permitted to accept it and to spend the academic year at Princeton University

- The names and email addresses for three referees, who will be contacted automatically by the online application system with an invitation to upload their letter of recommendation to the system by the application deadline. University of Michigan

Rank: Emerging Democracies Postdoctoral Fellow

Fellowship period: September 2020 - August 2022

Application deadline: January 15, 2020

The Weiser Center for Emerging Democracies (WCED) at the University of Michigan invites scholars who have received their Ph.D. since 2018 to apply for the WCED Postdoctoral Fellowship. This two-year fellowship supports multidisciplinary research on the broad historical, political, economic, and societal conditions under which democracy and autocracy either emerge and endure or falter and fail.

Up to two awards are available for the 2020-22 fellowship. WCED Postdoctoral Fellows are expected to focus on their own research, participate in occasional WCED workshops and events, and present at least one public lecture during their two-year fellowship, while in full-time residence at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. A teaching opportunity may be possible during the second year of the fellowship, if desired.

We welcome applicants from all disciplines, though the majority of past applicants and Fellows have come from political science, sociology, and history. Fellows must have successfully defended and filed their dissertation before beginning the fellowship. Eligibility is restricted to those who have received their Ph.D. after January 1, 2018.

Fellowships carry an annual salary of $50,000 and up to $7,000 in research funds during the post-doctoral appointment. Fellowship recipients will be eligible for U-M health, dental, and life insurance options (beginning September 1, 2020 through August 31, 2022). Fellows have full access to U-M library resources.

Candidates will be required to submit:

- A two-page research plan that outlines the research project and how the fellow will spend his/her time during the fellowship year.
- Curriculum Vitae.
- A scholarly writing sample, such as a dissertation chapter, conference paper, or journal article.
- Two letters of recommendation.

Fellowship applications must be received by January 15, 2020, 11:59 pm EST. Applicants will be notified in March 2020.

Naval War College

Rank: PROFESSOR OF STRATEGY & POLICY

Specializations: Education Policy, History & Politics, Defense

"ANTICIPATED VACANCY"

U.S. NAVAL WAR COLLEGE

NEWPORT, RHODE ISLAND

SEEKS

COLLEGE OF DISTANCE EDUCATION

ASSISTANT/ASSOCIATE/FULL PROFESSOR (AD-1701-03/05/07)

The United States Naval War College, Newport, Rhode Island, invites applications for one anticipated position of Professor of Strategy & Policy in its College of Distance Education (CDE) in Newport, Rhode Island. The position is full-time with rank and salary commensurate with experience and credentials. The CDE conducts its courses in multiple delivery methodologies.

The Naval War College is a Professional Military Education (PME) institution serving the nation, the Department of Defense, and the U.S. Navy. U.S. and selected international graduates earn Master of Arts degrees in National Security & Strategic Studies or Defense & Strategic Studies accredited by the New England Commission of Higher Education. The College educates and develops future leaders through the development of strategic perspective, critical thinking, and cultural awareness, as well as enhancing the capability to advise senior leaders and policy makers. The College also helps to define the future Navy and its roles and missions; supports combat readiness; strengthens global maritime partnerships; and promotes ethics and leadership throughout the force. More information on the college can be found at www.usnwc.edu.

Responsibilities. Incumbents teach the “Strategy and War” (S&W) course at the Intermediate Service College level with duties including: conducting classroom instruction; reviewing and evaluating student essays, examinations, and other written and verbal assessments; developing curricula; performing various types of service to the College; traveling to, and lecturing at, nonresident seminars around the country as required; and performing educational administrative functions as required.

The S&W course adopts an interdisciplinary approach to strategy, drawing on the disciplines of history, political science, international relations, and economics. It integrates, with those academic perspectives, critical military factors from the profession of arms such as doctrine, weaponry, training, technology, and logistics. The result is a coherent frame of reference to analyze complex strategic problems and formulate strategies to address them.

Qualifications. Required qualifications include an advanced degree in one or more of the following areas: History, International Affairs, International Relations, Political Science, or a related field; and teaching experience at the graduate level.

Preferred qualifications that will make candidates especially competitive include: an earned Ph.D. in one of the academic fields noted above; academic program management experience; familiarity with the national security and defense environments; graduation from a U.S. military senior- or intermediate-level Service College and JPME I and/or II certification; military Service College teaching experience; experience and competence in internet-based instruction; and distance learning experience at the graduate level.

This position requires that candidates must be capable of obtaining and maintaining a Department of Defense SECRET security clearance.

Salary Considerations. Salary is competitive and is accompanied by a generous federal civil service package that includes health insurance, pension and retirement savings plans (with employer matching contributions), paid vacation and sick leave, and other benefits. Rank and salary are commensurate with experience and credentials in accordance with the Department of the Navy Faculty Schedule.

Application Process. Applications will be accepted through 30 September 2019 and must reference VA#NWC-19-03. Applications must include: 1) a detailed cover letter of introduction that addresses the qualifications listed above; 2) a comprehensive curriculum vitae/resume; and 3) contact information for three professional references.

Active duty members may apply under this announcement but are subject to eligibility requirements of the Veterans Opportunity to Work Act (VOW). Active duty members MUST submit a statement of service printed on command letterhead and signed by the command. The statement of service MUST provide the branch, rate/rank, all dates of service, the expected date of discharge and anticipated character of service (Honorable, General, etc.). Please note: you will be ineligible for consideration if your statement of service is not submitted with your application or it shows an expected discharge or release date greater than 120 days after being submitted with your application.

Within the Department of Defense (DoD), the appointment of retired military members within 180 days immediately following retirement date to a civilian position is subject to the provisions of 5 United States Code 3326.

Applications must be submitted by email to hro-cde-19-03@usnwc.edu and must reference VA#NWC-19-03.

Questions about this position should be directed via email to Professor Stanley Carpenter at carpents@usnwc.edu. The Naval War College is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Arizona State University

Rank: Advanced Assistant or Associate Professor of Sociology or Anthropology

Specializations: Gender Politics & Policy, International Law & Organizations, Immigration Policy

The School of Social and Behavioral Sciences in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences at Arizona State University (ASU) is seeking a full-time, benefits-eligible, tenure-track Assistant Professor or tenure-eligible Associate Professor of Sociology or Anthropology whose research focuses on either: a) gender and migration in transnational context; and/or b) global human rights. The current position is part of the development of a global human rights hub at ASU and coincides with a concerted effort to build strength in and further support for Sociology within the School and across ASU. Preference will be given to candidates who can collaborate with existing Sociology, Anthropology and Political Science faculty and whose research interests focus on examining the fields of gender, migration, and/or human rights.

The School of Social and Behavioral Sciences is presently in a period of expansion and innovation around new initiatives and new programs. Since Fall 2017, the School has added ten new tenured / tenure-track faculty, including seven new faculty in Political Science, Sociology, and Anthropology. This academic year, the School has been approved to recruit five additional tenured / tenure-track faculty, including the current position.

Required Qualifications: The successful candidate must: a) have a doctoral degree in Sociology, Anthropology, or a related social science field by the time of appointment; b) a research agenda that is focused on either migration and gender in a transnational context, and/or global human rights; and c) demonstrate excellence in research commensurate with appointment at the level of Assistant or Associate Professor at ASU.

Desired Qualifications: a) Priority will be given to scholars currently at the advanced Assistant Professor or early Associate Professor level; b) Evidence of experience teaching in either migration and gender in a transnational context, and/or global human rights; c) Research interests that align with current faculty in either migration and gender in a transnational context, and/or global human rights; d) Evidence of the potential to establish a strong, externally-funded research program; e) Experience teaching and mentoring students to conduct research at either the graduate or undergraduate level; f) Experience in leadership of undergraduate or graduate programs; g) Demonstrate experience in promoting interdisciplinary collaborations in research; h) Experience contributing to curricular and program development; and, i) Demonstrated commitment to working successfully with a diverse student population, including first generation students.

More information about ASU's School of Social and Behavioral Sciences can be found at <https://newcollege.asu.edu/directory/sbs>; more information about ASU's New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences can be found at <http://newcollege.asu.edu>.

ASU has a strong commitment to a racially diverse faculty; one that is reflective of contemporary America.

Deadline: October 7, 2019; if not filled, every two weeks thereafter until search is closed.

Application procedure: Applications will only be accepted electronically via Interfolio: <http://apply.interfolio.com/67250> Requested material will include: 1) a letter of application, which explicitly addresses your academic experience, situates your research in the field and notes your teaching philosophy; 2) a current curriculum vitae with contact information; and 3) the names and contact information for three references (references will not be contacted during initial review and will only be contacted after candidate notification).

ASU conducts pre-employment screening for all positions which includes a criminal background check, verification of work history, academic credentials, licenses, and certifications. Employment is contingent upon successful passing of the background check.

In compliance with federal law, ASU prepares an annual report on campus security and fire safety programs and resources. ASU's Annual Security and Fire Safety Report is available online at <https://www.asu.edu/police/PDFs/ASU-Clery-Report.pdf>. You may request a hard copy of the report by contacting the ASU Police Department at 480-965-3456.

Haverford College

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Other, Open

Haverford College invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor in its Peace, Justice, and Human Rights program to begin Fall semester 2020. The successful candidate must have a PhD at the time of appointment. The position is open to scholars at all pre-tenure levels with training in the humanities or social sciences whose work is interdisciplinary and focuses on questions of justice, human rights, and related fields. All specializations are welcome, but there is particular interest in scholars who can contribute to programs in Health Studies, Environmental Studies, Gender and Sexuality Studies, or Visual Studies. The successful candidate will be expected to teach an introductory course on peace, justice, and human rights and/or applied ethics, as well as offer more specialized courses in their area of expertise, and engage in inclusive pedagogy and mentoring of an increasingly diverse student body. Haverford College embraces the teacher-scholar model and supports faculty research through programs and funding opportunities.

Peace, Justice, and Human Rights (PJHR) is an interdisciplinary concentration attracting students from many different disciplines; it offers students the opportunity to study the history, philosophy, and critiques of the rights tradition, examine issues of justice in their local and international contexts, and apply humanistic, social scientific, theoretical, and ethical reasoning to real-world problems. The program's goal is to foster cross-disciplinary collaboration and new perspectives on entrenched problems. For more information, see <http://www.haverford.edu/pjhr/>

Applicants should submit the following via Interfolio [<https://apply.interfolio.com/67577>]: a cover letter addressing qualifications for the position, curriculum vitae, a sample course syllabus or description of a class you'd like to teach in the PJHR program, a teaching statement (3-4 pages) that highlights pedagogical strategies and discusses how you approach diversity and inclusion in the classroom, a writing sample (up to 25 pages), and three confidential letters of recommendation. Candidates are encouraged to seek letter writers who together can address your abilities and promise as a teacher, mentor, and scholar/researcher. New applications submitted after 11:59 pm on Friday, November 1 will not be considered.

Haverford College is a leading liberal arts college serving highly motivated students on a nationally recognized arboretum in suburban Haverford, just outside Philadelphia.

Questions about the application process should be directed to hc-PJHRsearch@haverford.edu. For technical questions, please contact Interfolio directly at 1-877-997-8807 or help@interfolio.com.

Princeton University

Rank: The Harold T. Shapiro Postdoctoral Fellowship in Bioethics

The Princeton University Center for Human Values invites applications for the Harold T. Shapiro Postdoctoral Fellowship in Bioethics for a possible opening in September 2020. The Shapiro Fellowship supports outstanding scholars studying ethical issues arising from developments in medicine, the biological sciences, or population health. We particularly encourage proposals focusing on problems of practical importance that have broader theoretical interest.

The Shapiro Fellow will spend from one to three years at Princeton conducting research and teaching the equivalent of one course each year (subject to sufficient enrollments and approval by the Dean of the Faculty). He or she will participate in the Ira W. DeCamp Seminar in Bioethics and will be invited to participate in other activities of the University Center for Human Values including a year-long research seminar for visiting fellows and Center faculty.

Qualifications

Applicants must have completed all the requirements for the Ph.D., M.D., or other equivalent doctoral degree by the start date, and should not have more than two years of postdoctoral experience by that date. An applicant may have a background in any area of ethical studies, not necessarily in bioethics. However, the proposed research plan should be related to the field of bioethics.

Applications will be evaluated on the basis of the applicant's previous accomplishments and the promise of the proposed research project in bioethics. The capacity to contribute to the University's teaching program will also be taken into account.

Term of Appointment

The term of the fellowship is one year, normally beginning September 1, 2020, with the possibility of renewal for up to two additional years pending satisfactory performance. Appointment will be made to the rank of Postdoctoral Research Associate; the Shapiro Fellow will also carry the title of Lecturer, if teaching. Princeton University offers competitive salary and employee benefits.

How to Apply

Candidates must submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/12363>.

A complete application will include the following supporting materials:

1. A curriculum vitae;
2. A research proposal (not to exceed 1,500 words). Please provide an indicative title in the heading;

3. A scholarly paper (of no more than 12,000 words, not including bibliography) representing the applicant's scholarly achievement or potential;
4. Contact information for two referees, who should be prepared to comment specifically about the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly with instructions for uploading letters of reference.

These materials must be submitted online by the application deadline of Thursday, December 5, 2019, 11:59 p.m. EST. We do not accept application materials by any other method. Letters of reference should be submitted by Thursday, December 12, 2019. If a vacancy for this position is confirmed, the selection committee will begin reviewing applications immediately so letters of reference received after the priority deadline may put candidates at a disadvantage.

Decisions will be announced in late April 2020. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Bates College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Politics

The Department of Politics at Bates College invites applications for a tenure-tracked position focusing on the politics of gender and development. The department is particularly interested in scholarship and teaching that intersect with Africana and African Diasporic Studies through a gender and development lens. Candidates who demonstrate success with marginalized and underrepresented students and lived experiences are encouraged to apply. Applicants should show a strong commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching, to scholarly research, and to the implementation of inclusive pedagogies. The position would start on August 1, 2020. Candidates should have a Ph.D. completed, or nearly complete. We are open to and encourage a variety of methodological approaches and paths to scholarly excellence. Responsibilities include teaching five courses per year (usually two courses per semester and one course during a four-week "short term" in May) as well as academic advisement of majors and advisement of individual senior theses. The college and the department are committed to enhancing the diversity and inclusivity of the campus community and the curriculum. Candidates who can contribute to this goal and identify their strengths and experiences in this area are encouraged to apply. Consideration of applications will begin October 1, 2019 and continue until the position is filled.

QUALIFICATIONS

ABD will be considered, Ph.D., preferred.

APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS

Review of applications begins October 1, 2019 and will continue until the position is filled.

Applicants should submit the following: (1) a letter of application, (2) curriculum vita, (3) pedagogy statement, (4) research statement, (5) statement on how attention to inclusion and equity informs your teaching and research, (6) writing sample, (7) graduate transcripts, and (8) three letters of recommendation.

Employment is contingent upon successful completion of a background check.

The Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies Academy Scholars Program, 2020-2021

The Academy Scholars Program identifies and supports outstanding scholars at the start of their careers whose work combines disciplinary excellence in the social sciences or law with a command of the language and history or culture of countries or regions outside of the United States or Canada. Their scholarship may elucidate domestic, comparative, or transnational issues, past or present.

The Academy Scholars are a select community of individuals with resourcefulness, initiative, curiosity, and originality, whose work in cultures or regions outside of the US or Canada shows promise as a foundation for exceptional careers in major universities or international institutions. Harvard Academy Scholarships are open only to recent PhD (or comparable professional school degree) recipients and doctoral candidates. Scholars applying by the October 1, 2019 deadline for the August 2020 postdoctoral fellowships must have completed the PhD or equivalent after September 30, 2016.

Academy Scholars are appointed for a two-year, in-residence, postdoctoral fellowship at The Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies, Harvard University, Cambridge, MA. Academy Scholars receive substantial financial and research assistance to undertake sustained projects of research and/or acquire additional training in their chosen fields and areas. Some teaching is permitted but not required. The Senior Scholars, a distinguished group of Harvard University faculty members, act as mentors to the Academy Scholars to help them achieve their intellectual potential.

Postdoctoral Academy Scholars will receive an annual stipend of $70,000. If selected before earning the PhD, the Scholar will receive an annual stipend of $31,000 until awarded the PhD or equivalent degree. The online application for the postdoctoral fellowships beginning in August 2020 is due by October 1, 2019. Finalist interviews will take place in Cambridge on December 4, 2019. Notification of scholarships will be made in late December 2019.

The College of Wooster

Rank: Assistant Professor Global Environmental Justice

Description

The Departments of Environmental Studies and Political Science at The College of Wooster seek to fill a tenure track position in Global Environmental Justice at the level of Assistant Professor, beginning in the fall of 2020. We are looking for a broadly trained specialist in environmental politics and social justice with area studies expertise and a high proficiency in qualitative methodologies.

Qualifications

The successful candidate should have a demonstrated ability to teach courses and advise research projects in environmental justice and social justice, broadly conceived. They would teach introductory and advanced courses in the Environmental Studies and Political Science departments, supervise independent research projects as part of the College's Independent Study requirement, and participate in teaching the College's First Year Seminar. We seek to hire a scholar whose research and teaching addresses one or more dimensions of environmental justice, such as: the intersections of global climate change and class, ethnic, or racial inequalities; comparative environmental movements; forced displacement and migration due to environmental crisis; food or water insecurity; or environmental governance. In addition, we are interested in candidates whose research and teaching can connect with one or more interdisciplinary programs at The College of Wooster such as Africana Studies, Global & International Studies, East Asian Studies, South Asian Studies, Middle Eastern and North African Studies, Urban Studies, or Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies. The College of Wooster enrolls a diverse student body (21% domestic students of color and 15% international students); applicants should have experience with diverse student populations.

Application Instructions

We prefer candidates who will have completed their Ph.D. by the time of appointment and who have had previous independent teaching experience. Applicants should submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, evidence of effective teaching (including syllabi and summaries of student evaluations), a statement regarding how the applicant will contribute to the College's commitment to diversity and inclusion, graduate transcripts, and three letters of recommendation here: <https://apply.interfolio.com/66667>. Applications received by October 1, 2019, will receive full consideration. Please contact Matt Mariola (m-mariola@wooster.edu), Associate Professor of Environmental Studies and Chair of the search committee, with any questions.

University of Pittsburgh

Rank: Assistant Professor – Methodology/Computational Political Science

The Department of Political Science at the University of Pittsburgh seeks candidates for a tenure-stream position in Political Methodology and Computational Social Science at the level of Assistant Professor. We are seeking researchers that have expertise in applying machine learning approaches, broadly construed, to computationally intensive problems in social science. Researchers modeling social media or networks, those employing novel data (e.g., eye-tracking, MRI or GIS data), at scale, or applying creative measurement and visualization strategies to explore topics such as algorithmic biases would be particularly competitive for this position, and we welcome applications from scholars whose work complements and builds on departmental strengths. We encourage applications not only from candidates who have been trained in Political Science departments, but also interdisciplinary researchers whose interests intersect with political science topics. A successful candidate will have a strong research agenda, evidence of teaching ability, the promise of attracting external funding for his/her research, and will have the opportunity to join the interdisciplinary MLHub initiative at Pitt.

The starting date for the position is September 1, 2020, and applicants should have completed a Ph.D. in Political Science, Information Science, Computer Science, or a related field before the appointment begins. Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of research and teaching interests, two or three writing samples, teaching evaluations (if available), a brief description of how your research, teaching or service demonstrates a commitment to diversity and inclusion, and a minimum of three letters of reference; references will receive email notification with instructions about submitting their letters. Please apply online at: <https://facultysearch.as.pitt.edu/apply/index/MjY3>. In order to ensure full consideration, applications must be received by September 16, 2019, and the review of applications will continue until the position is filled. Air War College

Rank: Professor of International Security Studies

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Other

Specializations: Latin American, Southeast Asia, International Political Economy

The Air War College invites candidates to apply for a faculty position in the general national security studies field, with an emphasis on comparative and regional security, focused on the areas of Latin America or Southeast Asia. The Air War College is also seeking candidates whose scholarly interests are in international political economy, comparative politics, and/or in American national security policy. The possible starting dates are July 2020 or possibly as early as January 2020. The Air War College is located at Maxwell Air Force Base, Montgomery, AL.

Academic rank is open but the focus is for appointment at the Assistant or Associate Professor level. These positions require university-equivalent teaching experience (graduate-level preferred) and a suitable academic publication record. Responsibilities include: teaching graduate level seminars in the International Security Studies core curriculum (National Security and Decision-Making, Regional and Cultural Studies, and Global Security); teaching electives in the applicant's area(s) of specialization; curriculum development; advising student research; and service to the institution. Teaching duties approximate a 2/2 teaching load per academic year.

The Air War College provides a dynamic academic environment for teaching and research. The in-residence program offers master's degrees and senior-level professional military education to U.S. military officers, civilian government officials, and to military officers from more than 40 nations. It contains a diverse faculty of security studies experts engaged in rigorous academic research on critical issues in contemporary security debates. The Air War College is a leading contributor of national security thought for leaders across the U.S. Government and highly encourages policy-relevant scholarship by its faculty.

The positions are Administratively Determined (AD) civil service positions. The selected candidate will be offered an initial three year appointment with a probationary first year. This appointment is renewable. While open positions are advertised in various publications, including the American Political Science EJobs, applicants must submit their application through USAJobs. Applicants must hold U.S. citizenship. Note: this is an academic position, the selection committee strongly encourages candidates to submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and contact information for three references.

Applicants can submit their application via the USAJobs online at www.usajobs.gov.

If candidates prefer to not use the online feature, they can send their resume, or Optional Form 612, along with other required documents to 42 FSS/FSMC, 50 Lemay Plaza South, Building 804, Attn: Air War College faculty position, Maxwell AFB AL 36112-6334. The OF-612 can be accessed through the Office of personnel Management's web site at www.usajobs.gov.

Framingham State University

Rank: Part-Time Faculty - Political Science Department

Company Description:

Framingham State University is a vibrant comprehensive liberal arts institution located in the MetroWest suburbs of Boston, which integrates an academically challenging liberal arts education with workforce preparation programs. FSU takes pride in empowering student success by providing a superior education, leading research and innovation opportunities, and a strong first-year experience.

Founded in 1839, FSU enrolls about 4,000 undergraduates and 1,500 graduate and professional students. FSU offers 36 bachelor's degrees with 57 specialized concentrations, 63 minors, and 24 master's degree programs, in a highly personalized teaching environment. FSU employs more than 330 faculty members, 89% of whom have terminal degrees.

FSU is deeply committed to inclusive excellence, encourages a supportive, diverse and collaborative learning environment, and provides a culturally relevant education. FSU is honored to be a four-time recipient of the prestigious INSIGHT into Diversity Higher Education Excellence in Diversity (HEED) award and was recently designated as a Howard Hughes Medical Institute (HHMI) Inclusive Excellence campus. FSU encourages applications from persons who share our commitment to promoting a welcoming and inclusive community. Our founding motto, "Live to the Truth," was said at the end of each class by beloved first principal, Cyrus Peirce, who sought to discover and teach "the truth; truth in theory and principle,...truth in spirit and motive,...truth in manner and form,...truth intellectual and truth moral." Principal Bagnall found this motto "speaks of sincerity of spirit,...of intensity of effort, of resolution to succeed, of joy in achievement." "Live to the Truth" continues to guide our institution in practice and endeavor. FSU seeks employees who share in this quest for truth and commit to living it fully.

Dartmouth College

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellows - QSS

The Program in Quantitative Social Science (QSS) at Dartmouth College is pleased to announce that it is searching for postdoctoral fellows for the 2020-21 academic year. QSS is an interdisciplinary program that integrates modern statistical, computational, and mathematical tools with social science questions. Each fellow should be highly motivated, collegial, and able to work independently on a research agenda that is grounded in quantitative social science. Fellows should be interested in working with existing QSS faculty who have expertise in a diverse range of social science disciplines on campus (for more, see <https://qss.dartmouth.edu/people>).

During the 2020-21 academic year, QSS fellows will participate in the intellectual life of the program by interacting with each other, with QSS faculty, and with undergraduate students pursuing a minor or major in QSS. Fellows will also attend seminars and workshops and are expected to present their own research on a regular basis. There are many postdoctoral fellows at Dartmouth College, and QSS fellows will be part of a large community on campus. Postdoctoral fellows are guaranteed one year of funding with opportunities to extend funding for an additional year.

The annual stipend for each QSS fellow is $50,000, and in addition each fellow receives a one-time $5,000 account for equipment, travel, and research materials. Dartmouth College operates on the quarter system, and fellows teach one course per year, the subject of which will be negotiated with the QSS chair. Fellows will be compensated for courses taught, and teaching supplements will be negotiated with the Associate Dean.

Requirements:

1. Ph.D. in any social science or related discipline, expected or granted by September, 2020.
2. Substantive interest in any social science field, with preference given to candidates who demonstrate substantial overlap and interest working with QSS faculty and affiliates or other Dartmouth faculty.
3. Research interests that strongly intersect statistical, computational, or mathematical methods
4. A proven ability to work both independently and collaboratively
5. A demonstrated interest in interdisciplinary research

Application Materials:

- 1) A cover letter that is no longer than two pages
- 2) Curriculum vitae that includes all publications
- 3) Statement of research interests (two pages or fewer) that includes a short description of the research the applicant would like to pursue while in residence at Dartmouth
- 4) Names of Dartmouth faculty of interest to the applicant
- 5) Three letters of reference
- 6) A published or unpublished journal-length manuscript written in English

Applications will be reviewed starting on October 25, 2019. Interested individuals can apply at the following URL: <http://apply.interfolio.com/65324>.

The Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance (NCGG) at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs seeks up to eight visitors for the 2020-2021 academic year Visiting Fellowship Program. These awards are designed to promote basic research in the broad areas of international and comparative political economy, international organization and global governance, and globalization. Research on the causes and consequences of globalization, the political economy of foreign trade, monetary and regulatory policies, the sources of international cooperation at the global and regional level, the domestic and international politics of economic development, the political economy of human security issues, the evolution and impact of international institutions, and the politics of international law and human rights policies is of relevance.

Outstanding scholars anywhere in the world are eligible to apply. The Center invites candidates with a background in political science, economics, modern history, sociology, anthropology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of globalization to apply. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2020 - July 1, 2021).

Application Deadline – Applicants should apply by Friday, November 29, 2019 (11:59pm EST), for full consideration, however; posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process – All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/12564>.

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. in one of the above-mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining the candidate's scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;
- Current curriculum vitae including publications;
- 2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample (limit of 100 pages);
- Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant's qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on Thursday, December 5, 2019. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Candidates who hold positions at academic institutions may also be required to submit:

- Home institution policy with regard to sabbatical pay;
- A confidential statement indicating salary for the current academic year (September 2019 - July 1, 2020).

Salary – Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2020. These positions are subject to the University's background check policy.

For more information about the Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance fellowship program, please contact Patricia Trinity, Assistant Director at ptrinity@princeton.edu.

University of Notre Dame

Rank: Faculty Position in the Study of Democracy

The University of Notre Dame's Keough School of Global Affairs invites applications for a tenured or tenure-track faculty position in the study of democracy in any region of the world, including policies and practices related to democratization and regime change. Scholars from a variety of disciplines who are engaged in rigorous social science research will be considered. Applicants should have an interest in contributing to a multi-disciplinary and policy-oriented school. Applicants attracted to a university with a Catholic identity, and minority and female applicants, are especially encouraged to apply. While priority will be given to consideration of junior candidates (ABD, postdoc, assistant professors or non-tenured associate professors), senior applicants may also be considered. A Ph.D. or equivalent terminal degree is required at the time of hire.

The successful hire will be based in the Keough School of Global Affairs, and affiliated with the Kellogg Institute for International Studies. Oriented toward research, teaching, and service dedicated to the advancement of integral human development, the Keough School (<http://keough.nd.edu/>) promotes interdisciplinary research on critical issues in global affairs, offers a professional master's degree and undergraduate degrees, and supports doctoral programs. The Kellogg Institute for International Studies (<http://kellogg.nd.edu/>) has for over 35 years been a leading center for interdisciplinary research and programming on issues of democracy and human development.

All applicants are required to submit a letter of interest and a C.V. Junior candidates (ABD, postdoc, assistant or non-tenured associate professors) should also arrange for the submission of three confidential letters of reference, a statement of research, a writing sample, and a teaching statement which includes a summary of any teaching evaluations available.

All application materials must be submitted through the Interfolio/Notre Dame online application system: <http://apply.interfolio.com/65959>

University of Connecticut: Avery Point Campus

Rank: Assistant Professor in Residence

The Department of Political Science at the University of Connecticut invites applications for a position as Assistant Professor in Residence at the University's Avery Point Campus with an anticipated start date of August 23, 2020.

The University of Connecticut (UConn) is engaged in a transformational period of growth supported by the $1.7B Next Generation Connecticut (<http://nextgenct.uconn.edu/>) and the $1B Bioscience Connecticut (<http://biosciencet.uchc.edu/>) investments and a bold new Academic Plan: Path to Excellence (http://issuu.com/uconnprovost/docs/academic-plan-single-hi-optimized_1). We are pleased to continue these investments by inviting applications for a position at the Avery Point campus.

We seek an engaging and excellent instructor of Political Science with demonstrated interest or experience in environmental studies, especially related to marine or coastal environments, or in maritime studies. This position is intended to contribute to the general education of our undergraduate students and also provides an opportunity to work closely with our Maritime Studies and American Studies programs at Avery Point.

Avery Point, a land and sea grant institution, offers all the benefits of a prestigious public research university in a small, liberal arts college setting. Avery Point provides specialized programs that take advantage of the campus's waterfront location and delivers an exceptional education in more traditional areas of study. On-campus partners such as the Connecticut Institute for Resilience and Climate Adaptation, Connecticut Sea Grant and the Mystic Aquarium make available opportunities for collaboration both in and out of the classroom.

Avery Point contributes to the understanding - and solution - of problems relating to the intersection of the environment and people, both through the expertise of faculty and the education of students who will help ensure sustainable uses of environmental and marine resources as well as coastal regions and cities. In addition to supporting the University's graduate and undergraduate programs, the Avery Point campus places special emphasis on marine and maritime-oriented undergraduate curricula, as well as programs responsive to the needs of its significant corporate and industrial constituencies, and its unique regional economic and cultural characteristics.

Assistant Professors in Residence carry a course load of 21 credits per academic year or equivalent.

MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS

A Ph.D. in Political Science or related field completed by start date; demonstrated experience in environmental or maritime politics; evidence or promise of a strong teaching record; and a deep commitment to promoting diversity through the applicant's academic and research programs. All candidates must demonstrate promise in their research program. Equivalent foreign degrees are acceptable.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS

Applicants who can teach courses in a broad range of subfields are preferred. Preference will be given to candidates who have demonstrated experience in marine environmental politics. Preferred qualifications also include an outstanding record of research and scholarship excellence; commitment to effective teaching, integrating technology into instruction, online instruction; and the ability to contribute through research, teaching, and/or public engagement to the diversity and excellence of the learning experience.

APPOINTMENT TERMS

This is a full-time, 9-month, non-tenure track position with an anticipated start date of August 23, 2020. Position may be renewed annually. Applicants will be subject to formal review by the Department of Political Science. APiR applicants can pursue promotion to Associate and full Professor in Residence. The successful candidate's academic appointment will be at the Avery Point campus.

TO APPLY

Apply via AcademicJobsOnline: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/14041>. Please submit the following: a cover letter, curriculum vitae, graduate school transcripts, a statement describing teaching and research interests, writing samples, and (if available) course syllabi and teaching evaluations. Your letter of application should include a statement indicating your commitment to diversity (including broadening participation, integrating multicultural experiences in instruction and research and pedagogical techniques to meet the needs of diverse learning styles.). Additionally, please follow the instructions in Academic Jobs Online to direct three reference writers to submit letters of reference on your behalf.

For full consideration, online applications should be received no later than September 15, 2019.

Questions about the position may be sent to Lindsay Halle, Administrative Coordinator of the Department of Political Science (Lindsay.halle@uconn.edu)

Employment of the successful candidate is contingent upon the successful completion of a pre-employment criminal background check. (Search #2019632)

This position will be filled subject to budgetary approval. All employees are subject to adherence to the State Code of Ethics, which may be found at <http://www.ct.gov/ethics/site/default.asp>.

Carleton University

Rank: Canada Research Chair in Diversity and Politics in Global North Democracies

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Comparative Politics, Other

Field of Specialization: Diversity and Politics in Global North Democracies

Academic Unit: Political Science

Category of Appointment: Preliminary (tenure-track)/tenured

Rank/Position Title: Assistant/Associate Professor and Canada Research Chair, Tier 2

Start Date: July 1, 2020

Closing Date: Applications will be considered until the position is filled

About the Position:

The Department of Political Science invites applications from qualified candidates for a Tier 2 CRC Chair appointment in Diversity and Politics in Global North Democracies at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor beginning July 1, 2020. The Department seeks an emerging scholar specializing in Indigenous, racialized, and/or gendered dimensions of political processes and institutions in democracies in the Global North and, in particular scholars whose research focus includes Canadian politics. An appointment with tenure is possible, depending on qualifications of the successful candidate.

Tier 2 Chairs are intended for exceptional emerging researchers (i.e. candidate will typically be less than 10 years from their highest degree at the time of nomination, or more than 10 years and has experienced legitimate career interruptions), acknowledged by their peers as having potential to lead in their field. Applicants who are more than 10 years from their highest degree may have their eligibility for a Tier 2 Canada Research Chair assessed through the program's Tier 2 justification process (<http://www.chairs-chaire.gc.ca/>). Carleton's research grants office can also provide more information (<https://carleton.ca/coris/>).

The successful candidate will work with the Faculty of Public Affairs to prepare the application for the Tier 2 CRC Chair. Academic appointment is conditional on the approval of the application by the CRC Program.

About the Academic Unit:

The Department of Political Science is a research-intensive unit, particularly proud of its pathbreaking tradition and continuing strength in the study of gender and politics, including establishing one of Canada's first political science PhD fields in Gender and Diversity. For more information, please visit: <https://carleton.ca/polisci/>.

Qualifications:

The successful applicant will possess:

- a PhD in Political Science or a cognate discipline;
- an outstanding record of research and peer-reviewed publications on diversity and politics, relative to stage of career;
- a record of high-quality teaching and supervision, appropriate to stage of career;
- commitment to continuing improvement and excellence in teaching;
- capacity to attract external research funding;

Application Instructions:

Please submit your application electronically in three PDF files, including: (1) a cover letter and CV; (2) a statement of research interests and samples of research, ideally including peer-reviewed publications; and (3) a teaching portfolio with evidence of teaching experience. Please identify any past experiences in supporting equity, diversity and inclusion in your previous institutional environment such as in curriculum development and in supporting diverse students. Applicants should also arrange to have three referees send supporting letters electronically.

All application materials should be directed to: Ms. Sandy Herbert, Department Administrator, Department of Political Science, Carleton University at sandy.herbert@carleton.ca.

To help us develop our equity programs, a confidential equity and diversity self-identification survey will be sent to all applicants separately.

Please indicate in your application if you are a Canadian citizen or permanent resident of Canada.

About Carleton University:

Carleton University is a dynamic and innovative research and teaching institution with a national and international reputation as a leader in collaborative teaching and learning, research and governance. With over 30,000 students in more than 100 programs of study, we encourage creative risk-taking, discovery, and the generation of transformative knowledge. We are proud to be one of the most accessible campuses in North America and our Paul Menton Centre for Students with Disabilities has been heralded as the gold standard for disability support services in Canada. To learn more about our university and the Ottawa, please visit www.carleton.ca/about.

We are strongly committed to equity, diversity, and inclusion in the nomination and appointment process. Carleton University is committed to fostering diversity within its community as a source of excellence, cultural enrichment, and social strength. We welcome those who would contribute to the further diversification of our university including, but not limited to: women; visible minorities; First Nations, Inuit and Métis peoples; persons with disabilities; and persons of any sexual orientation, gender identity and/or expression. Carleton understands that career paths vary. Legitimate career interruptions will in no way prejudice the assessment process and their impact will be carefully considered.

Applicants selected for an interview are asked to contact the Chair as soon as possible to discuss any accommodation requirements. Arrangements will be made in a timely manner.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority. All positions are subject to budgetary approval.

The candidate hired will be assigned to carry out administrative responsibilities including but not limited to assisting the Director of Legal Studies in the preparation of ABA reports, advisement, and placement of paralegal students. The candidate hired will be expected to publish scholarship in law reviews and/or peer-reviewed academic journals.

Minimum requirements are: (1) a JD degree conferred from an ABA-accredited school prior to the appointment start date; (2) a minimum of three years practicing law in the United States; and (3) either (a) a minimum of one year of experience working with paralegals or (b) experience teaching at least one paralegal education course. Moreover, state law mandates demonstrable oral proficiency in the English language as a requirement for this position.

Initial review of applications will begin on Friday, September 13, 2019, and continue until the position is filled. To assure full consideration, please attach an application to posting number 0712095 at www.IllinoisState.edu/jobs and attach a letter of application with descriptions of teaching and research interests, a current vita, a sample of written work, graduate school transcripts, and student evaluations (if available). In addition, three letters of reference must be submitted on your behalf electronically to LGSSearch@ilstu.edu, with letters addressed to T.Y. Wang, Chair, Department of Politics and Government, Illinois State University, Campus Box 4600, Normal, IL 61790-4600.

Illinois State University is committed to developing a diverse pool of applicants and recognizes that a diverse faculty, staff, and student body enriches the educational experiences of the entire campus and greater community. Candidates who have experience working with a diverse range of faculty, staff, and students, and who can contribute to the climate of inclusivity are especially welcomed to apply.

University of California, San Diego

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

The Center for Peace and Security Studies (cPASS) has up to 3 postdoctoral positions available for the next four academic years (2019-2020, 2020-2021, 2021-2022, 2022-2023). Each position is also renewable at the discretion of the cPASS Director.

Research at cPASS targets new and emerging security issues such as emerging modes of conflict and new modes of deterrence. cPASS is devoted to applying innovative thinking and diverse methodologies (experiments, deductive modeling, statistical analysis, case studies, archival research and "big data") to traditional security issues made more dynamic and difficult by the increased complexity of interstate competition and conflict. We emphasize a team-based, multi-method approach to research that combines qualitative and quantitative perspectives.

Postdocs will work closely with the Center Director in conducting cPASS research activities such as data collection, analysis, preparing project reports and manuscripts for peer-reviewed journals, preparing and delivering oral presentations to diverse audiences, overseeing qualitative research or supervising project labs, and mentoring graduate and undergraduate research activities.

Applicants are required to have a PhD in hand at the time of appointment. A degree in Political Science, History, International Relations, Economics, or allied field is anticipated but other specialties may be appropriate, depending on an applicant's interests and skills. Candidates will be assessed based on their expertise and knowledge of different key aspects of security studies and their ability to contribute to a diversified, integrated research team.

The initial period of appointment will be for 12 months from the date of appointment. Renewal is possible with the approval of the Center Director. Some flexibility exists as to start date, but candidates should expect to be in residence in San Diego throughout the appointment. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Interested applicants should provide a letter describing their qualifications and the reasons for interest in the position. A printed copy of a curriculum vitae is also required. Additional materials may be requested after initial review. Please send all materials to the following email address (jml110@ucsd.edu). Please ensure to include the phrase "cPASS Postdoc Fellow" in the subject heading. Review of applications will be ongoing.

POLITICAL THEORY

Washington University in St. Louis

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associates in Religion and Politics
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Open

The John C. Danforth Center on Religion and Politics seeks applications from junior scholars and recent Ph.D. graduates for up to four postdoctoral fellowships in residence at Washington University in St. Louis. The appointment is for one year, renewable for a second year. Eligible applicants must complete the Ph.D. by July 1, 2020, and have completed it no earlier than January 1, 2015. In exceptional cases a qualified applicant holding a J.D., without the Ph.D., may be considered. Research associates will spend most of their time pursuing research and writing for their own projects. They will also serve the intellectual life of the Danforth Center on Religion and Politics through participation in its biweekly interdisciplinary seminar and events hosted by the Center. Their teaching responsibilities will include: 1) developing one course per year to complement and contribute to the Center's curricular offerings, and 2) possibly assisting in one additional course each year (depending on the particular teaching needs of the Center). Washington University in St. Louis is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer and especially encourages members of underrepresented groups to apply.

Required Qualifications: Applicants should hold a doctorate in religious studies, politics, anthropology, law, philosophy, theology, American studies, history, area studies, sociology, or another relevant field. Scholars should be engaged in projects centrally concerned with religion and politics in the United States, historically or in the present day.

Application Instructions: Applicants must send all of the following information as a single pdf file to the Center at rap@wustl.edu:

- 1) Cover letter including an overview of the postdoctoral research project
- 2) Current curriculum vitae
- 3) Relevant writing sample (25-35 pages)
- 4) Two undergraduate course proposals (a summary paragraph for each will suffice)

Applicants should also arrange to have three letters of recommendation submitted on their behalf to rap@wustl.edu.

Applications are due in full by December 1, 2019. Applicants will be notified of fellowship decisions by March 2, 2020. For more information, contact the Center at (314) 935-9345 or via e-mail at rap@wustl.edu.

Haverford College

Subfield(s): Political Theory, Other, Open

Haverford College invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor in its Peace, Justice, and Human Rights program to begin Fall semester 2020. The successful candidate must have a PhD at the time of appointment. The position is open to scholars at all pre-tenure levels with training in the humanities or social sciences whose work is interdisciplinary and focuses on questions of justice, human rights, and related fields. All specializations are welcome, but there is particular interest in scholars who can contribute to programs in Health Studies, Environmental Studies, Gender and Sexuality Studies, or Visual Studies. The successful candidate will be expected to teach an introductory course on peace, justice, and human rights and/or applied ethics, as well as offer more specialized courses in their area of expertise, and engage in inclusive pedagogy and mentoring of an increasingly diverse student body. Haverford College embraces the teacher-scholar model and supports faculty research through programs and funding opportunities.

Peace, Justice, and Human Rights (PJHR) is an interdisciplinary concentration attracting students from many different disciplines; it offers students the opportunity to study the history, philosophy, and critiques of the rights tradition, examine issues of justice in their local and international contexts, and apply humanistic, social scientific, theoretical, and ethical reasoning to real-world problems. The program's goal is to foster cross-disciplinary collaboration and new perspectives on entrenched problems. For more information, see <http://www.haverford.edu/pjhr/>

Applicants should submit the following via Interfolio [<https://apply.interfolio.com/67577>]: a cover letter addressing qualifications for the position, curriculum vitae, a sample course syllabus or description of a class you'd like to teach in the PJHR program, a teaching statement (3-4 pages) that highlights pedagogical strategies and discusses how you approach diversity and inclusion in the classroom, a writing sample (up to 25 pages), and three confidential letters of recommendation. Candidates are encouraged to seek letter writers who together can address your abilities and promise as a teacher, mentor, and scholar/researcher. New applications submitted after 11:59 pm on Friday, November 1 will not be considered.

Haverford College is a leading liberal arts college serving highly motivated students on a nationally recognized arboretum in suburban Haverford, just outside Philadelphia.

Questions about the application process should be directed to hc-pjhrresearch@haverford.edu. For technical questions, please contact Interfolio directly at 1-877-997-8807 or help@interfolio.com.

Princeton University

Rank: Postdoctoral Positions in Values and Public Policy

The University Center for Human Values and the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs invite applications for postdoctoral or more senior research positions in Values and Public Policy. We aim to support highly promising scholars trained in moral and political philosophy, political theory, normative economics and related areas, in developing a research agenda in the ethical dimensions of public policy.

Candidates undertake a research project exploring a normative problem in an area of public policy in which the Woodrow Wilson School conducts research. They are affiliated with the UCHV and a WWS unit that can support their work.

Candidates contribute the equivalent of one course each year to the undergraduate or graduate programs of the School or the UCHV. This contribution may be fulfilled by teaching a course on a topic related to ethical issues in public policy, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval by the Dean of the Faculty; or by service to the School or Center. If teaching a semester-long course, the successful candidate carries the additional title of Lecturer.

Qualifications

Applications welcome from candidates who have or expect to have a Ph.D. by the start date, normally beginning September 1, 2020. Applicants should not have more than two years of postdoctoral experience by the date of appointment. They may not be employed by another institution during the term of their Princeton appointment.

Applicants' dissertation research need not be specifically in values and public policy, but they will be expected to demonstrate a commitment to working on a research project in this area. Projects must be related to an area in which the School has a Center or Program (such as science and environmental policy, health and well-being, or globalization and governance). For more information about these and other areas, as well as a list of Centers and Programs visit: <http://www.princeton.edu/centers-programs>.

Applications will be evaluated on the basis of previous accomplishments, promise of the proposed research project in values and public policy, and likelihood that the project will be enhanced by being carried out at the Woodrow Wilson School. Contribution to the University's teaching program will also be considered.

Term of Appointment

The term of appointment is one year, normally beginning September 1, 2020, with the expectation of renewal for one further year assuming good performance. Applicants are expected to be in residence for the duration of the appointment. Princeton offers competitive salary and employee benefits.

How to Apply

Candidates must submit an online application: <https://puwebp.princeton.edu/AcadHire/apply/application.xhtml?listingId=12401>

A complete application will include the following materials:

1. Current curriculum vitae;
2. Research proposal (up to 1,500 words), conforming to the expectations stated above. Please identify the Woodrow Wilson School center or program with which you wish to be associated and briefly describe what you hope to gain from carrying out the project there. Supply an indicative title for the project at the beginning of the proposal;
3. Scholarly paper or dissertation chapter (up to 12,000 words, not including bibliography) representing your scholarly achievement or potential;
4. Contact information for two referees, who will be asked to comment specifically on your qualifications for the proposed project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for uploading letters.

Materials must be submitted online by Monday, November 11, 2019, 11:59 p.m. EST. We do not accept application materials by any other method. Letters of reference should be submitted by end of business on Thursday, November 14, 2019. The selection committee begins reviewing applications immediately so letters received after the priority deadline may put candidates at a disadvantage.

Decisions expected in late March 2020. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

Department of Urban Planning

Tenure-Track Faculty Position in Critical Black Urbanism

The Department of Urban Planning at the UCLA Luskin School of Public Affairs seeks to hire a tenure-track faculty member at the rank of Assistant Professor in the area of Critical Black Urbanism. We seek a scholar who studies the Black experience and whose research and teaching has direct relevance for urban planning. Attractive candidates for this position might study racial segregation, Black migration, Black geographies, community organizing, community and/or economic development, the Black diaspora, policing and incarceration, urban and planning history, critical legal studies, or related topics.

Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in Urban Planning, Ethnic Studies, Geography, Sociology, Political Science, or a related social science discipline, have a robust research agenda, and be prepared to teach and mentor students at the undergraduate, Master's, and Ph.D. levels.

To apply, please submit a brief cover letter, CV, a research statement of less than 500 words highlighting scholarly contributions of recent research and plans for the near future, one publication or writing sample that best represents your work, a teaching statement of less than 300 words outlining the content of a class you would like to teach, a statement that addresses past and/or potential contributions to equity, diversity, and inclusion, and three letters of recommendation.

This position reflects a commitment by the UCLA Luskin School of Public Affairs and the Department of Urban Planning to emphasize communities of color in scholarship, teaching, and professional practice. Faculty in the school and department have ongoing collaborations with ethnic studies departments and centers at UCLA. We expect that the faculty member who holds this position will benefit from and strengthen existing linkages to the Ralph J. Bunche Center for African American Studies, the Department of African American Studies, and other relevant units.

The Department of Urban Planning currently hosts 18 tenured/tenure-track planning faculty, 6 affiliated tenured/tenure-track faculty, 7 long-term adjunct/practice faculty, 3 active professors emeriti, 35 PhD students, 150 master's students, and a growing number of undergraduate majors. Department faculty also teach undergraduate students in the Luskin School's Major in Public Affairs, which just completed its inaugural academic year. We have a tradition of intellectual leadership in urban and regional studies and design, and our faculty, students, and alumni are committed to social justice and progressive planning ideals.

Los Angeles is a global city renowned for its dynamism, robust economy, cultural diversity, spectacular climate, as well as high levels of inequality, poverty and homelessness, residential segregation, and traffic. The UCLA Luskin School of Public Affairs is an interdisciplinary school with highly ranked departments of Social Welfare and Public Policy. All faculty in the Luskin School of Public Affairs (including the Departments of Social Welfare, Urban Planning, and Public Policy) have opportunities to participate in current school initiatives in global affairs, digital technologies, the environment, democracy and inequality, global development, Latin American cities, and social justice, equity, and opportunity.

UCLA offers competitive salary and attractive benefits packages, including a housing assistance program for new faculty members. The University of California seeks to recruit and retain a diverse workforce as a reflection of our commitment to serve the people of California, to maintain the excellence of the University, and to offer our students richly varied disciplines, perspectives, and ways of knowing and learning. The Department of Urban Planning in particular is committed to diversity and excellence in our faculty, students, and scholarship, and we especially encourage candidates who share and can contribute to this commitment.

The expected start date is July 1, 2020. All materials must be submitted via UCLA Academic Recruit by October 15, 2019, to be guaranteed full consideration.

Princeton University

Rank: Garwood Visiting Professor

Specializations: American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Philosophy & Theory

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites college and university professors and other professionals with established records of scholarship to apply for appointment as Garwood Visiting Teaching Fellow for the academic year running from September 1, 2020 to June 1, 2021. The Garwood Visiting Teaching Fellowship can be for one semester or the academic year. Garwood Visiting Fellows teach at least one undergraduate course on statesmanship and presidential leadership in Princeton University's Department of Politics, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty. Depending on the needs of the University, additional teaching opportunities may be available, again subject to enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty.

James Madison Program Fellows will spend their Fellowship in residence at Princeton University. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University and are encouraged to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

All James Madison Program Fellows must have a doctorate or equivalent degree. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. Fellows normally receive a stipend of one-half their academic-year salary plus a living allowance. The fellows' home institutions are expected to provide at least half of their academic-year salaries in addition to all benefits.

How to apply: Applicants are required to submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/12907> (link is external).

A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;
- * a course proposal and draft syllabus;
- * contact information for two references;
- * a confidential statement that indicates the applicant's salary for the current academic year, what financial support their home institution and other sources are likely to provide, and what support they are likely to need from the Program.

For priority consideration application materials must be received by 11:59 p.m. EST on December 1, 2019 for appointments beginning in September 2020. Awards will be announced in March 2020 or before.

Specializations: American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Philosophy & Theory

Invitation for Postdoctoral Research Associate Applications

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites recent Ph.D. recipients to apply for appointments as Postdoctoral Research Associates or more senior researchers for the year from September 1, 2020 to September 1, 2021, with the possibility of renewal for an additional year, contingent on outstanding performance. All James Madison Program postdocs are expected to be in residence at Princeton University for the duration of the appointment. They may not be employed by another institution during the term of their Princeton appointment. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to the approval of the Dean of the Faculty. Postdoctoral Research Associates are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are, however, encouraged to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

The position is a fully funded, 12-month postdoctoral research associate appointment with benefits. All James Madison Program Postdoctoral Research Associates must have a Ph.D. degree. Applications are evaluated on the basis of (1) the significance of the proposed research; (2) the quality of the applicant's past research; and (3) the future contribution the applicant is likely to make to higher education. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

How to apply:

Applicants are required to submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/12905> (link is external)

A complete application must include the following:

Princeton University

Rank: James Madison Program Visiting Fellow

Specializations: American Politics, Constitutional Law & Theory, Political Philosophy & Theory

The James Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University is dedicated to the pursuit of scholarly excellence in the fields of constitutional law and political thought. Sponsored by Princeton's Department of Politics, the Program seeks to enrich the intellectual life of Princeton students and faculty by exploring American constitutional principles and structures through research and public discussion.

The Program invites college and university professors and other professionals with established records of scholarship to apply for appointments as Visiting Fellows for the academic year running from September 1, 2020 to June 1, 2021. One-semester appointments are possible but not preferred. Depending on the needs of the University, teaching opportunities may be available, subject to sufficient enrollment and approval of the Dean of the Faculty.

All James Madison Program Visiting Fellows will spend an academic year (9-month term) in residence at Princeton University. They enjoy access to Firestone Library and a wide range of other facilities and activities throughout the University.

Visiting Fellows are expected to devote full time to their proposed research. They are encouraged, however, to attend or participate in various activities of the Program, including faculty-student seminars, colloquia, and public lectures.

All James Madison Program Fellows must have a doctorate or equivalent degree. Positions are open to all regardless of citizenship. Fellows normally receive a stipend of one-half their academic-year salary plus a living allowance. The fellows' home institutions are expected to provide at least half of their academic-year salaries in addition to all benefits.

How to apply: Applicants are required to submit an online application at <https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/12906> (link is external). A complete application must include the following:

- * a curriculum vitae;
- * a scholarly paper written in the past three years;
- * a statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research;
- * contact information for two references;
- * a confidential statement from home institution that indicates the applicant's salary for the current academic year, financial support their home institution and other sources are likely to provide, and what support they are likely to need from the Program.

For priority consideration application materials must be received by 11:59 p.m. EST on December 1, 2019 for appointments beginning in September 2020. Awards will be announced in March 2020 or before.

University of Michigan-Ann Arbor

Subfield(s): Methodology, Public Policy, Political Theory

Specializations: Quantitative Methods, Research Methods, Intelligence

The Center for the Study of Complex Systems (CSCS) at the University of Michigan seeks applicants for a tenure-track faculty position in complex systems science. This is a University-year appointment at the Assistant Professor level although more senior applicants will also be considered. The expected start date is 1 September 2020.

Required Qualifications: We seek applicants with a research agenda focused on the development and/or application of complex systems models and/or methods. This may involve theoretical or applied research in areas of complex systems including (but not limited to) mathematical and computational work in network science, emergence and robustness, related topics in computer science, or scientific applications where complex systems theory lies at the core of the approach such as quantitative modeling of social systems, biological structure and development, evolution, artificial life and cognition. We are particularly interested in candidates with a record of working across disciplines.

How to Apply: All applications must be uploaded here: <http://webapps.lsa.umich.edu/Apply/CSCS>. This faculty position will be a joint appointment between CSCS and another academic department or school at the University of Michigan. Candidates should identify one or more partner units at the University of Michigan suitable for such a joint appointment. Applicants must submit a CV, a statement of current and future research plans, a statement of teaching philosophy and experience, and evidence of teaching excellence, if any. At least three letters of recommendation are required and must be uploaded onto the same website. Review of applications will begin on 1 October 2019 and will continue until the position is filled.

The University of Michigan is supportive of the needs of dual career couples and is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Women and minority candidates are encouraged to apply.

University of Missouri, Columbia

Rank: Professor

Specializations: Political Development, Political Thought: Historical, Constitutional Law & Theory

University of Missouri: Open Field / Open Rank

The University of Missouri invites applications for a tenure-track/tenured professorship funded by the Kinder Institute on Constitutional Democracy and housed in the Department of Political Science. Competitive applicants will have a clear research agenda, strong theoretical orientation, ability to publish in highly-ranked journals and academic presses, and potential for effective teaching at the graduate and undergraduate levels. Women, minorities, and individuals with disabilities are especially encouraged to apply.

Competitive candidates will be scholars with productive and internationally prominent research profiles. The position focuses on Atlantic History and Politics -- the study of connections and conflicts among the diverse peoples of the Atlantic basin, including the peoples of Africa, the Americas, and Europe, since circa 1600. The position is open to all fields in political science, although candidates should feel comfortable teaching small classes that are part of the new B.A. in Constitutional Democracy, such as "Intellectual World of the American Founders," and "Constitutional Debates, 1787-1788." Candidates also will be expected to demonstrate the potential to contribute to the teaching of the new M.A. program in Atlantic History and Politics. For more about these degree programs and related initiatives, see <https://democracy.missouri.edu>.

An earned doctorate in political science is required at the time of appointment. Candidates should submit their curriculum vitae, a cover letter, three writing samples, and three current letters of recommendation. The cover letter should address the following: current and future research, teaching interests, and how the applicant envisions contributing to the intellectual life of the Political Science Department and the Kinder Institute. Applicants must also submit a statement of inclusion and diversity as part of their application materials. Please attach all materials in the Cover Letters and Attachments section of the electronic application processing system at: <http://hrs.missouri.edu/find-a-job/academic>. The review of applications will begin September 15, 2019, as they appear in the electronic application system, and the review will continue until the position is filled. The appointment will begin August 15, 2020.

The University of Missouri is fully committed to achieving the goal of a diverse and inclusive academic community of faculty, staff, and students. We seek individuals who are committed to this goal and our core campus values of respect, responsibility, discovery, and excellence. The University of Missouri is an Equal Opportunity/Access/Affirmative Action/Pro Disabled & Veteran Employer. Equal Opportunity is and shall be provided for all employees and applicants for employment on the basis of their demonstrated ability and competence without unlawful discrimination on the basis of their race, color, national origin, ancestry, religion, sex, pregnancy, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, age, disability, protected veteran status, or any other status protected by applicable state or federal law. This policy shall not be interpreted in such a manner as to violate the legal rights of religious organizations or the recruiting rights of military organizations associated with the Armed Forces or the Department of Homeland Security of the United States of America. University of Minnesota, Twin Cities

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor of Political Theory

The Department of Political Science in the College of Liberal Arts at the University of Minnesota-Twin Cities invites applications for one full-time faculty position in Political Theory beginning fall semester 2020 (08/31/20). The position will be filled either by a tenure-track assistant professor or by a tenured associate professor (please note the different application requirements below).

The appointment will be 100% time over the nine-month academic year (late-August to late-May), and will be made at the rank of either tenure-track assistant professor or tenured associate professor, consistent with collegiate and university policy. Salary is competitive, and dependent on qualifications and experience.

We seek outstanding colleagues committed to scholarly research and teaching at the highest level, and we especially welcome applications from underrepresented groups.

We seek candidates who are deeply conversant in the history of Western political theory, and can teach courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels that draw upon this canon.

Further, we seek candidates who will advance the substantive commitment of the department's strategic plan: to investigate "democracy under threat" across its multiple dimensions. "Democracy Under Threat" is a department-wide initiative to guide hiring and research. It means that we are most interested in work that, in a sustained manner, draws upon global historical knowledge to understand contemporary threats to democracy (such as resurgent authoritarianism, legitimization crises of contemporary liberal democratic institutions, crises of political economy and/or late capitalism, racialized politics and inequalities, etc.). Scholars using intersectional approaches to feminist and democratic theories and/or who focus on such issues as justice and injustice, inequality, or global migration are of special interest.

We also seek candidates who share the department's ongoing commitment to study the intersection of power, equity, and diversity and its effect on social science inquiry. Finally, we value candidates who actively place their research in dialogue with other subfields in political science, the social sciences and humanities, and with the broader university community and public.

More information regarding the department's strategic plan can be found at <https://cla.umn.edu/polisci/news-events>, under the announcement for this search.

Qualifications:

Required Qualifications:

Ph.D. in political science or related field is required. Advanced ABD's may be considered for appointment at the rank of tenure-track instructor, with the stipulation that the Ph.D. is conferred in the first year of the appointment.

Preferred Qualifications:

College/university-level teaching experience is preferred.

Candidates will be evaluated according to (a) overall quality of their academic preparation and scholarly work, (b) contribution of their scholarly research to the department's academic priorities and fields of inquiry, (c) evidence of commitment to teaching and skills as a teacher, and (d) strength of recommendations.

Duties / Responsibilities:

Faculty in the Department of Political Science in the College of Liberal Arts are expected to maintain an active research program, teach and advise undergraduate and graduate students, and contribute service appropriate for the rank of appointment to the department, college, University, and profession.

The Political Studies program at Bard College invites applications for a full-time, tenure track position in Political Theory at the rank of assistant professor, to begin Fall 2020. The search is open to all areas of specialization within Political Theory, though we are seeking candidates whose teaching and research will complement rather than replicate the program's current strengths in Arendtian and American political thought. Applicants should be able to teach courses in canonical traditions of Political Theory, but we especially welcome applications from candidates who can bring critical approaches to the canon, focusing on race, gender and/or non-Western political thought. A candidate who is able to speak across the subfields of Political Science and to the wider social science and humanities communities at the College is especially welcome. Our program's concern with issues of social justice leads us to invest in recruiting colleagues who in their scholarship, teaching and service demonstrate experience with, knowledge of and sensitivity to the needs of culturally diverse populations and who are committed to working with students holding a range of worldviews. The successful candidate will be expected to have completed all the requirements for the doctoral degree by August 2020. Review of applications will begin on September 6, 2019. To apply, please submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a sample of written work, a teaching portfolio (including sample syllabi and student evaluations), and three letters of recommendation to <http://apply.interfolio.com/65906>. Candidates who would like to be considered for an optional preliminary interview at APSA should submit their application materials by August 10th. Tenure-Track Faculty Position
Assistant or Associate Professor, Indigenous Politics

Faculty: Arts
Department/School: Political Science

Position Description

The Department of Political Science at McGill University invites applications for a tenure-track position in Indigenous Politics. The Department welcomes applications from qualified candidates working on Indigenous Politics in any subfield of Political Science. Broad engagement with Indigenous Studies, including Indigenous Studies methodologies, curriculum, and/or community-based research, would be an asset.

The successful candidate will hold a tenure-track appointment in the Department of Political Science (www.mcgill.ca/politicalscience), and will work closely with the Indigenous Studies program (www.mcgill.ca/indigenous).

This position is part of a broader provostial initiative to strengthen Indigenous Studies and Education at McGill. The successful candidate will join a growing network of faculty committed to building Indigenous research and teaching capacity.

McGill University is located on unceded Kanien'kehà:ka Territory, land which has long served as a site of meeting and exchange amongst Indigenous peoples, including the Haudenosaunee and Anishinabeg nations. We acknowledge and thank the diverse Indigenous people whose footsteps have marked this territory on which peoples of the world now gather.

The position start date is August 1, 2020. Inquiries may be sent to the Chair of the Department, Juliet Johnson, at juliet.johnson@mcgill.ca.

Job Duties

Teaching, research, and service in the Department of Political Science and the Indigenous Studies Program.

Qualifications and Education Requirements

Candidates should have completed a PhD in a relevant field or be near completion. The language of instruction at McGill is English, but a working knowledge of Indigenous language(s) and/or French would be considered an asset.

Preference will be given to candidates of Indigenous identity in filling this position.

JOB DETAILS

Job Classification: Tenure-track

COMMITMENT TO EQUITY AND DIVERSITY

McGill University hires on the basis of merit and is strongly committed to equity and diversity within its community. We welcome and encourage applications from racialized persons/visible minorities, women, Indigenous persons, persons with disabilities, ethnic minorities, and persons of minority sexual orientations and gender identities, as well as from all qualified candidates with the skills and knowledge to productively engage with diverse communities.

McGill further recognizes and fairly considers the impact of leaves (e.g., family care or health-related) that may contribute to career interruptions or slowdowns. Candidates are encouraged to signal any leave that affected productivity, may have had an effect on their career path. This information will be considered to ensure the equitable assessment of the candidate's record.

McGill implements an employment equity program and encourages members of designated equity groups to self-identify. It further seeks to ensure the equitable treatment and full inclusion of persons with disabilities by striving for the implementation of universal design principles transversally, across all facets of the University community, and through accommodation policies and procedures. Persons with disabilities who anticipate needing accommodations for any part of the application process may contact, in confidence, Professor Angela Campbell, Associate Provost (Equity and Academic Policies) by email or phone at 514-398-1660.

All qualified applicants are encouraged to apply; however, in accordance with Canadian immigration requirements, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Description du poste

Le Département de sciences politiques de l'Université McGill sollicite des candidatures en vue de pourvoir un poste de professeur adjoint ou agrégé menant à la permanence en politiques autochtones. Il est à la recherche de candidats qualifiés en politiques autochtones, œuvrant dans toute discipline relevant des sciences politiques. Une solide expérience en études autochtones, plus précisément en méthodologie et en recherche communautaire, constitue un atout.

Le candidat retenu sera titulaire d'un poste menant à la permanence au sein du Département de sciences politiques (www.mcgill.ca/politicalscience) et travaillera en étroite collaboration avec l'équipe du Programme d'études autochtones (www.mcgill.ca/indigenous).

Ce poste s'inscrit dans une initiative de mise en valeur des études autochtones à l'Université, qui émane du Bureau du vice-principal exécutif et vice-principal aux études. Le candidat retenu se joindra à un réseau grandissant de membres du personnel enseignant qui ont à cœur de faire croître la recherche et l'enseignement axés sur les communautés autochtones.

L'Université McGill se trouve en territoire Kanien'kehà:ka non cédé, qui a longtemps servi de lieu de rencontre et d'échange entre les peuples autochtones, y compris les nations Haudenosaunee et Anishinabeg. Nous reconnaissons et remercions les divers peuples autochtones dont les pas ont marqué ce territoire sur lequel les peuples du monde entier se réunissent maintenant.

La date d'entrée en fonction est le 1er août 2020. Les demandes de renseignements au sujet de ce poste doivent être envoyées à la Pre Juliet Johnson, directrice du département, à juliet.johnson@mcgill.ca.

Fonctions du poste

Enseignement, recherche et attributions diverses au sein du Département de sciences politiques et du Programme d'études autochtones

Compétences et formation exigées

Le candidat doit posséder un doctorat dans une discipline pertinente ou être sur le point de l'obtenir. À l'Université McGill, la langue d'enseignement est l'anglais, mais la connaissance d'une ou de plusieurs langue(s) autochtone(s) ou du français est un atout.

La préférence sera accordée aux personnes d'identité autochtone.

RENSEIGNEMENTS SUR LE POSTE

Type de poste : Poste menant à la permanence

Rang : Professeur adjoint ou agrégé

Catégorie de poste : Temps plein

Salaire :

Le salaire sera déterminé en fonction de la compétence et de l'expérience de la personne retenue.

Date limite :

Toutes les demandes reçues d'ici le 1er octobre 2019 seront examinées; ensuite, les demandes seront étudiées sur une base continue jusqu'à ce que le poste soit pourvu.

SOUSSION DE CANDIDATURES

Les candidatures doivent être soumises à : <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/13446>

Le dossier de candidature doit comprendre les documents suivants :

- une lettre de présentation et un curriculum vitæ;
- un énoncé sur les intérêts de recherche;
- un extrait d'un texte du candidat (de la longueur d'un article ou d'un chapitre);
- un énoncé sur les responsabilités et réalisations en matière d'enseignement accompagné, si possible, d'évaluations et de plans de cours;

- une déclaration personnelle du candidat portant sur les identités autochtones et sur les liens qui l'unissent aux communautés autochtones; et
- trois lettres de recommandation de personnes pouvant fournir des références.

ADHÉSION AUX PRINCIPES D'ÉQUITÉ ET DE DIVERSITÉ

L'Université McGill recrute en fonction du mérite et souscrit sans réserve à l'équité et à la diversité au sein de sa communauté. Elle accueille favorablement les demandes d'emploi des personnes racisées et des minorités visibles, des femmes, des personnes autochtones, des personnes en situation de handicap, des minorités ethniques, des personnes de toute orientation sexuelle et identité de genre ainsi que de toute personne possédant les aptitudes et les connaissances lui permettant de travailler en collaboration avec diverses communautés.

En outre, McGill reconnaît et prend équitablement en considération l'incidence des congés (p. ex., obligations familiales ou congés pour raisons de santé) qui peuvent entraîner des interruptions ou des ralentissements de carrière. Les candidats sont encouragés à signaler tout congé ayant eu une incidence sur leur rendement et pouvant avoir modifié leur parcours de carrière. Ces renseignements seront pris en compte aux fins d'évaluation équitable de leur dossier.

L'Université McGill dispose d'un programme d'équité en matière d'emploi et invite les membres des groupes visés à indiquer leur appartenance à ces derniers dans leur dossier de candidature. Elle tient également à s'assurer que les personnes en situation de handicap reçoivent un traitement équitable et puissent pleinement s'intégrer à la vie universitaire en ayant à cœur de mettre en œuvre les principes de conception universelle dans toutes les sphères d'activité de l'Université, conformément aux politiques et procédures relatives aux aménagements. Les personnes en situation de handicap qui pourraient avoir besoin de certains aménagements pour soumettre leur candidature sont invitées à communiquer en toute confidentialité avec la professeure Angela Campbell, vice-principale exécutive adjointe (équité et politiques académiques), par courriel ou par téléphone, au 514 398-1660.

Tous les candidats qualifiés sont invités à postuler. Toutefois, conformément aux exigences de l'immigration canadienne, la priorité sera accordée aux Canadiens ainsi qu'aux résidents permanents.

Yale-NUS College

Rank: J. Y. Pillay Chairs in the Social Sciences

Appointment J. Y. Pillay Chairs in the Social Sciences

Position Description Yale-NUS College is a liberal arts college of 1000 students, with approximately 100 full-time faculty. The College is a collaboration between the National University of Singapore and Yale University. Yale-NUS students are intellectually elite, with an acceptance rate of <7%, and extremely international, representing 66 countries. They go through a unique and rigorous Common Curriculum that combines Western and Eastern traditions with contemporary skills.

We will appoint two senior scholars as J. Y. Pillay Professors in the Social Sciences. The J. Y. Pillay chairs, established in honour of Professor J. Y. Pillay, an eminent policy maker and corporate leader in Singapore, are for scholars who are at the forefront of research and education in their field. These chairs positions are available for both fulltime tenured and short-term visiting appointments.

We encourage applicants in any field/discipline of the social sciences but are prioritizing political studies in this year's search. We welcome applications from scholars working in all areas of political science, political economy, or political thought, including those whose research bridges different disciplines. We would, for example, be interested to hear from scholars whose work explores tensions between liberal democracy and authoritarian rule, whether as a question for political theory or a subject for empirical research. Regardless of subject, we expect applicants to explain why the research they are doing is significant.

The J Y Pillay Professors will join in developing and teaching our programmes in Philosophy, Politics and Economics (PPE) and Global Affairs. They will also contribute to the College's distinctive Common Curriculum (<http://www.yale-nus.edu.sg/curriculum/common-curriculum>). They will provide academic leadership through their research and teaching by engaging in significant research, teaching well, helping to develop the curriculum in the College, and mentoring other faculty. The College places emphasis on productive and impactful research programs, akin to other top liberal arts colleges in the world.

The appointee will be expected to begin duties in time for the start of the 2020-2021 academic year.

Faculty receive salaries that are competitive with the most prestigious liberal arts colleges in the world, a substantial start-up grant as well as a yearly travel and research allowance, and are able to access additional funding from Yale-NUS, National University of Singapore, and Singapore's Ministry of Education. Most international faculty qualify for highly subsidized faculty housing. Yale-NUS College is located in Singapore, a multicultural city of six million that is known for its high quality of life and sits at the heart of a vibrant region.

Application Procedure

Applications should consist of the following: a cover letter explaining why the position at Yale-NUS is of interest; a full curriculum vitae, including a complete list of publications; statements on research interests, teaching experience, and teaching philosophy, including how these might fit with the College's particular mission and curriculum; names and contact information of three academic referees; and other relevant documents.

Applications should be submitted via <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/YaleNUS>.

Review of applications begins in August 2019 and continues until the positions are filled. For general enquiries, please email: Enquiry_SocialSciencesDiv@yale-nus.edu.sg

Equal Opportunity Employer

Yale-NUS College achieves excellence through the diversity of its students, faculty, and staff and by embracing inclusivity, equity, and global engagement. Appointment Three Tenure-Track or Tenured (open rank: assistant, associate, full and endowed professors) faculty positions in Global Affairs/Philosophy, Politics and Economics (PPE)

Position Description Yale-NUS College is a collaboration between the National University of Singapore and Yale University, offering a liberal arts curriculum combining Western and Eastern traditions with contemporary skills. Our community of 1000 students represent 66 countries and are intellectually elite, with an acceptance rate of <7%. Our 100 full-time faculty teach two small seminars per semester, with a guaranteed pre-tenure sabbatical and generous research support. The College invites outstanding applications for at least three open rank, tenure-track or tenured positions in the social sciences. Candidates would teach in our Philosophy, Politics, and Economics (PPE) and / or Global Affairs (GA) majors, as well as in Yale-NUS's flagship common curriculum (<http://www.yale-nus.edu.sg/curriculum/common-curriculum>).

For GA, we particularly welcome applications from scholars who can teach international development or international/comparative political economy or quantitative methods, or who have regional expertise in the Middle East, Africa, or Latin America.

For PPE, evidence of scholarship or teaching that integrates two or more PPE fields (politics, economics, philosophy) would be an asset. Applicants require a PhD in a relevant discipline, such as politics, economics, sociology, development studies, or geography. They should be active researchers with a commitment to creative and effective undergraduate teaching and mentoring. The College places emphasis on productive and impactful research programs, akin to other top liberal arts colleges in the world. The appointee will be expected to begin duties in the 2020-2021 academic year.

Outstanding candidates at the junior level will be considered for the NUS Presidential Young Professorship. Outstanding senior candidates will be considered for a JY Pillay Chair in the Social Sciences - <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/13904>.

Faculty receive highly competitive salaries, a generous start-up grant, and yearly travel and research allowance, with access on a competitive basis to substantial additional grant funding. Most qualify for subsidized housing. Yale-NUS College is located in Singapore, a vibrant, multicultural city of six million, with a very high quality of life.

Application Procedure

Applications should include a cover letter; a full curriculum vitae; a research statement; a teaching philosophy statement; and teaching evaluations (if available). These should be submitted via <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/YaleNUS>. The cover letter should: indicate for which position(s) the candidate wishes to be considered, explain the interest in Yale-NUS, and how the candidate's experience and expertise might fit with our mission and curriculum.

Additionally, applicants for the tenure-track position should ensure that three (3) academic referees submit a letter via <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/YaleNUS>. For tenured positions, applicants should provide names and contact information of three (3) academic referees.

Review of complete applications will begin August 1, 2019 and continue until the position is filled. Inquiries should be made to the Social Sciences Divisional Manager at Enquiry_SocialSciencesDiv@yale-nus.edu.sg.

Bucknell University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science (Political Theory)

Bucknell University's Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in political theory beginning in the fall semester of 2020. We expect to hire at the Assistant Professor level but are open to considering outstanding candidates at other ranks. We seek candidates whose scholarly and teaching interests include American political thought. The successful candidate will be prepared to teach a core course in political theory, a course in American political thought, and other courses in the candidate's areas of specialization.

We are especially interested in candidates whose teaching and research will contribute to the department's commitment to both diversity and academic excellence. Evidence of teaching experience and excellence as well as the promise of being a productive scholar are critically important. The teaching load is five courses over two semesters. By the start date of the position, candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. in Political Science with a sub-field specialization in political theory, but ABD candidates will also be considered with the understanding that the Ph.D. must be completed before the beginning of the second year.

For additional information and to apply, please go to careers.bucknell.edu. The application should include a cover letter, CV, statement of teaching philosophy, statement of commitment to diversity, three letters of recommendation, graduate transcripts, sample publications or papers, course evaluations, and sample syllabi relevant to this position. Questions about the position should be addressed by email to: Professor Scott Meinke at smeinke@bucknell.edu. The review of applications will begin on September 23, 2019.

Candidates who wish to meet for an optional preliminary interview at APSA should email a CV to smeinke@bucknell.edu by August 14 and indicate their expected availability during the conference.

About Bucknell

Founded in 1846 and located along the banks of the Susquehanna River in historic Lewisburg, Pa., Bucknell University is an undergraduate-focused institution that stands uniquely at the intersection of top-ranked liberal arts, engineering and management programs. Our students choose from more than 50 majors and 60 minors in the arts, engineering, humanities, management, and natural and social sciences, as well as extensive global study, service-learning and research opportunities. Bucknell's 3,600 undergraduate and 100 graduate students enjoy a low 9:1 student-faculty ratio and exceptional opportunities to collaborate with faculty mentors.

Bucknell's beautiful 450-acre campus includes first-rate facilities and is home to more than 90 percent of its students. Residential life is vibrant with about 150 student-run organizations, 27 NCAA Division I athletic teams, a robust arts culture, and a strong student commitment to community and global service work.

Bucknell is committed to fostering an environment that embraces diversity, equity and inclusion, and we seek candidates who will contribute to a climate that supports the growth and development of a diverse campus community. The University provides equal opportunity without regard to race, color, gender, gender identity, gender expression, sexual orientation, age, religion, national or ethnic origin, marital status, veteran status or disability in admissions, employment and in all of its educational programs and activities. We encourage individuals from historically underrepresented groups to apply.

The Community

Located in central Pennsylvania, Lewisburg features a variety of restaurants, beautiful Victorian homes, the restored art deco Campus Theatre (owned by the University), charming shops and boutiques, and the Barnes and Noble at Bucknell University Bookstore. About 33,000 residents live in the region.

The city of Williamsport is about a 30-minute drive from campus, and Penn State University's main campus is about an hour away, as is Harrisburg, Pennsylvania's state capital. Bucknell is about three hours from New York City, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, D.C.

The cost of living here is low compared to that of major U.S. cities and suburbs. Bucknell's surroundings yield fresh produce, cultural activities and events, and many opportunities for outdoor activity on the Susquehanna River and in the nearby state parks and forests. The Lewisburg Area School District receives excellent reviews for its schools at all grade levels. Lewisburg Area High School is consistently ranked among the top 50 high schools in Pennsylvania for SAT scores and statewide exams.

Michigan State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Specializations: Religion & Politics, American Politics, Ethnic & Feminist Theory

James Madison College seeks to fill an assistant professor position in the Political Theory and Constitutional Democracy field. The position contributes substantially to a major that focuses on modern liberal democracy (its origins, practice, critics and defenders) from the perspective of political philosophy. We seek a teacher-scholar broadly trained in the history of political philosophy, knowledgeable about the debates regarding modern constitutional democracy and democratic politics. Potential areas of research and teaching focus include European politics, international war and peace, religion and politics, American constitutional politics, and feminist political theory.

Successful candidates will have demonstrated ability to teach core courses in the history of political thought, combining serious study of foundational texts with contemporary debates about constitutional democracy and its future. Applicants should demonstrate commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching in an interdisciplinary program and to achieving a substantial record of scholarship. Ph.D. in a related field is required by time of appointment.

Applicants should supply a statement addressing how their teaching and research interests would contribute to the Political Theory and Constitutional Democracy curriculum specifically and to James Madison College's curriculum and mission more broadly. Supporting materials should include a CV, transcript, evidence of teaching approach and effectiveness, sample syllabi, and a sample of scholarship (e.g., dissertation chapter, article, conference paper). The names and contact information for three confidential references that speak to teaching expertise and scholarly promise must be provided as part of the application process. MSU will contact these references within five business days after a candidate completes and submits their application with instructions for the references on how to upload their confidential letter into MSU's application system.

Applications must be submitted electronically to the Michigan State University Human Resources web site: <http://jobs.msu.edu>. Please see posting number 579640 for complete instructions on how to apply. Review of applications will begin on September 13, 2019 and will continue until the position is filled. McGill University

Rank: Visiting Fulbright Research Chair in Constitutional and Political Theory

Applications are invited for a one-semester or full-year Visiting Fulbright Research Chair in Constitutional and Political Theory in academic year 2020-21. This fellowship for US citizens includes a $US 25,000 stipend with no teaching responsibilities.

Hosted in the Research Group on Constitutional Studies (RGCS), a unit of the Yan P. Lin Centre for the Study of Freedom and Global

Orders in the Ancient and Modern Worlds, this award is open to scholars in political theory and is open with respect to methodology and approach in that field. Applications are also invited from scholars in neighbouring areas of legal theory and jurisprudence, political philosophy and political science. The Chair will pursue research in political and constitutional theory broadly construed. The ability to engage with scholars and students across methodologies — normative, empirical, intellectual-historical, jurisprudential, and formal, for example — is more important than particular areas of emphasis.

While Ph.D. must be in hand, the fellowship is otherwise open as to seniority. Most applicants will be on sabbatical or other leave from an existing faculty position, but it is not a requirement that the applicant already hold a faculty appointment.

The Chair-holder will be in residence at RGCS for one semester, will deliver one public lecture, regularly attend and also present work at an RGCS workshop, and, if appropriate, guest-lecture or lead guest discussions in political science classes. The Chair will more generally take an active part in the intellectual life of McGill, RGCS, and the Groupe de Recherche Interuniversitaire en Philosophie Politique.

Full eligibility information and the online application are available at <https://www.fulbright.ca/programs/american-scholars/primary-awards/policy.html>. Those interested are encouraged to contact Jacob Levy at rgcs.mcgill@gmail.com (especially for questions about thematic fit) and Bred Hector at bhector@fulbright.ca (especially for procedural questions) early in the application process. Applications must be fully complete by September 16.

The University of Hong Kong

Rank: Tenure-Track Associate Professor/Assistant Professor in International Relations

The University of Hong Kong

Tenure-Track Associate Professor/Assistant Professor in International Relations in the Department of Politics and Public Administration (Ref.: 498401)

Applications are invited for appointment as Tenure-Track Associate Professor/Assistant Professor in International Relations in the Department of Politics and Public Administration (Ref.: 498401), to commence on August 1, 2020 or as soon as possible thereafter, on a three-year fixed-term basis, with the possibility of renewal and consideration for tenure before the expiry of a second three-year fixed-term contract.

The Department has played a leading role in Politics and Public Administration research and education since its establishment in 1970. The Department offers two highly successful taught postgraduate programmes - Master of Public Administration (MPA) and Master in International and Public Affairs (MIPA) - as well as a thriving undergraduate programme. More information about the Department can be obtained at <https://ppa.hku.hk/>.

Applicants should have a Ph.D. degree by the expected start date, and demonstrate excellence in research and teaching. Those with the potential to make significant contributions to the field and complement the strengths of our department are preferred. The position is open with respect to specialization, but applicants should have a clear geographical and/or functional focus in their research with strong empirical skills. Teaching duties may include undergraduate courses, common core courses, and courses in our Master of International and Public Affairs (MIPA) programme.

This position sits within the Faculty of Social Sciences. The Faculty values diverse research methodologies. We are particularly committed to upgrading our expertise in quantitative methods, and welcome applicants with relevant expertise.

A highly competitive salary commensurate with qualifications and experience will be offered, in addition to annual leave and medical benefits. At the current rates, salaries tax does not exceed 15% of the gross income. The appointment will attract a contract-end gratuity and University contribution to a retirement benefits scheme, totalling up to 15% of the basic salary. Housing benefits will be provided as applicable.

The University only accepts online application for the above post. Applicants should apply online at the University's career site (<https://jobs.hku.hk>) and upload an up-to-date C.V., a letter of interest, graduate transcripts, writing samples, a research statement, a teaching statement and teaching evaluations. They should also arrange for three confidential references (quoting the applicant's name) to be sent directly by the referees to ppahr@hku.hk. Review of applications will begin on November 1, 2019 and continue until January 5, 2020.

University of Minnesota

Rank: Advanced Assistant or Associate Professor in Global Policy

Subfield(s): Public Policy, International Relations, Public Administration

Specializations: Foreign Policy, Environmental Policy, International Political Economy

The Humphrey School of Public Affairs is committed to academic excellence and diversity within the faculty, staff, and student body. The School's mission is to inspire, educate, and support innovative leaders to advance the common good in a diverse and changing world. The School is NASPAA-accredited, ranked nationally in the top ten U.S. based schools of public affairs, and widely recognized for examining public issues and shaping public policy and governance at the local, state, national, and international levels. The Humphrey School works to enrich the diversity of the University community and encourages faculty applicants from a wide range of backgrounds to apply. We seek candidates whose approach to teaching and research is innovative and inclusive in terms of structurally or historically underrepresented groups.

With this current search, the Humphrey School seeks to hire a tenure-track advanced Assistant Professor, or Associate Professor eligible for tenure at the University of Minnesota whose research, scholarship, academic leadership and service focus broadly on global policy. Evidence of established scholarship with the potential for contributions of national and international significance is required for candidates at the pre-tenure assistant professor level. Appointment at the tenured level of associate professor requires evidence of excellence and national/international policy-relevant impact in scholarly research, teaching and service.

The successful candidate must have strong, demonstrated applied research and teaching interests in comparative foreign policy, international relations, international economics and trade policy, and/or global environmental policy. Candidates with specific country expertise and strong regional and/or international interests will also be considered. Although the tenure home and position will be at the Humphrey School, there are ample opportunities to collaborate and affiliate with scholars in departments across the University of Minnesota.

Candidates must be committed to scholarly and policy-relevant research at the highest levels; willing and able to teach in the School's core curriculum; provide leadership to its established public policy Masters and public affairs Ph.D. programs; be willing to help prepare students for professional careers; and function collaboratively in a multi-and inter-disciplinary environment.

A Ph.D. is required in public policy, international relations, development studies, economics, political science, political economy, sociology or related fields with a focus on international policy and global affairs. The Humphrey School is especially interested in candidates with a demonstrated interest in public policy, broadly construed, whose approach to teaching and research is both innovative and inclusive in terms of race, gender, class and ethnicity.

Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, research statement and three samples of recent research (publications or manuscripts), teaching statement, and the names/addresses of three references (reference letters will be requested for short-listed candidates). All candidates must hold a PhD by the time of employment.

All interested candidates must apply online. Applications will be reviewed beginning October 7, 2019. The position will remain open until filled.

Public Policy Position – Assistant Professor
Singapore Management University, School of Social Sciences

The School of Social Sciences (SOSS), Singapore Management University, invites applications for a tenure-track position in Public Policy at the rank of Assistant Professor.

The ideal candidate is one who conducts innovative research in topics related to comparative public policy, public administration, or global governance, and who can teach introductory as well as special-topic elective courses in public policy that will contribute towards the SOSS Public Policy and Public Management (PPPM) second major. We are open to research focus, although an interest in Asia would be a plus. The successful candidate will display a record of, or high potential for, scholarly research, as well as demonstrated teaching aptitude in Public Policy topics. The position requires a doctorate in Public Policy, Public Administration, Political Science, or a closely related field.

Singapore Management University is a research university committed to an interdisciplinary and integrated curriculum, providing opportunities to work with faculty across the social sciences. The research support is excellent and salary and benefits are highly competitive. The teaching load is comparable to other research universities, and typically, junior faculty receive a 3-course per year teaching load for their first contract.

Full evaluation of applications will start 16 September 2019. Only shortlisted candidates will be notified for interviews, which will begin in October 2019. The successful candidate will be expected to start at Singapore Management University in July 2020. All hires are contingent upon the successful completion of a background check.

The application package should be in electronic form and include: (1) a cover letter describing research and teaching interests, (2) a curriculum vitae (including teaching experience and a list of referees), (3) a professional writing sample, and (4) evidence of teaching effectiveness (such as teaching evaluations).

Applicants should also arrange for three confidential letters of recommendation to be delivered to: The Dean's Office, School of Social Sciences, Singapore Management University, 90 Stamford Road, Level 4, Singapore 178903 or email to: socialsciencescv@smu.edu.sg

We offer nationally recognized programs in science, the arts, business, criminal justice, engineering, nursing, education, ethnic studies, and the humanities. Our faculty have a strong commitment to scholarship, research, creative pursuits, community engagement, and service.

Our 240,000 alumni reflect the City and County's dynamic mix of populations. The University has one of the most diverse student populations of any college or university in the nation. As a federally recognized Hispanic-Serving Institution, and Asian-American, Native American, and Pacific Islander-Serving Institution, Cal State LA recognizes the transformative power of education and embraces its duty to identify and serve the needs of all of its students. The University is committed to creating a community in which a diverse population can live, work and learn in an atmosphere of civility and respect for the rights and sensibilities of each individual.

The Department/Division/School:

The Department of Political Science at Cal State LA consists of ten full time faculty with teaching and research interests in public administration, public law, American government, political theory, comparative politics and international relations. The department is one of 15 departments within the College of Natural and Social Sciences, which supports the academic programs for 6000 students and 660 instructional personnel. Faculty are active scholars, as well as innovative teachers, who participate in University governance and serve in numerous student advisory capacities. We have a very robust public administration program and congenial faculty who are strongly committed to a long-range strategic vision that links our urban focus with global issues and opportunities. Our highly regarded NASPAA-accredited MPA program, which serves Southern California, has become an important resource for government and nonprofit agencies seeking graduates with skills in all areas of public administration, including policy analysis, budgetary process and financial administration, human resource management, program and policy evaluation, and intergovernmental and intersectoral relations. In a given year, well over half of our 90+ MPA students are employed professionals seeking an MPA for purposes of advancement to managerial positions.

Required Documentation:

Please submit the following to the Search Committee Chair at the email address below:

- 1) A cover letter specifically addressing minimum and preferred qualifications.
- 2) A curriculum vitae.
- 3) A narrative statement describing your commitment to working effectively with faculty, staff, and students in a multicultural/multiethnic urban campus environment with a substantial population of first-generation students.

- 4) A list of three professional references.

Appalachian State University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Government and Justice Studies at Appalachian State University invites applications for a tenure-track position in Public Administration at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning Fall semester 2020. Areas of interest are open, however, there is a particular interest for candidates with expertise in Human Resource Management. Professional experience in Public Administration, particularly at the local or state level and/or in non-profit management, is desired. A doctorate in Public Administration, Political Science, or a related discipline is required at the time of appointment. A J.D. is not sufficient for this position.

The teaching load is three courses per semester for faculty who maintain an active research agenda. Responsibilities include instruction at the graduate and undergraduate levels, an active program of scholarship, instruction at on-campus and off-campus sites, student advising, and participation in service activities.

The Master of Public Administration program is NASPAA-accredited and has over 60 students, most of whom specialize in local government or non-profit administration (see mpa.appstate.edu). The Department houses undergraduate programs in criminal justice and political science and graduate programs in political science and public administration. Additional information about the Department of Government and Justice Studies can be found at <http://gjs.appstate.edu>.

Appalachian State University, in North Carolina's Blue Ridge Mountains, prepares students to lead purposeful lives as global citizens who understand and engage their responsibilities in creating a sustainable future for all. The transformational Appalachian experience promotes a spirit of inclusion that brings people together in inspiring ways to acquire and create knowledge, to grow holistically, to act with passion and determination, and embrace diversity and difference. As one of 17 campuses in the University of North Carolina system, Appalachian enrolls about 19,000 students, has a low student-to-faculty ratio and offers more than 150 undergraduate and graduate majors.

The initial review of applications will begin on September 9, 2019, and will continue until the position is filled. Applicants must send a completed application consisting of a letter outlining teaching and research interests, a current vitae, a transcript from the doctoral-granting institution, and recommendation letters from three references. References will not be contacted without prior notice to the candidate. Applications and inquiries should be sent to Dr. Kathryn Webb Farley at pubadmsearch@appstate.edu.

Proper documentation of identity and employability will be required before the hiring process can be finalized. Any offer of employment to a successful candidate will be conditioned upon the University's receipt of a satisfactory criminal background report. The University of Missouri-St. Louis invites applications for a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor level with expertise in the areas of Nonprofit Management & Leadership and in American Politics. The ability to teach a graduate course in quantitative methods is desirable. The person filling this position will have an appointment in the Political Science department and the NASPAA-accredited Public Policy Administration program within Political Science. Applicants should have a Ph.D. in Nonprofit Management, Public Administration, Political Science, or a closely related field by the date of the appointment, August 15, 2020.

We seek an active scholar oriented to research and publication, high-quality teaching and community engagement. The department is also interested in candidates whose research and teaching interests respect and integrate a variety of methodological approaches. The normal teaching load, assuming an active research agenda, is two courses per semester. Salary is competitive.

The Department of Political Science

The mission of the Department of Political Science is to promote greater understanding of politics, government, and public policy by creating new knowledge, bringing new perspectives to existing knowledge, and disseminating scholarship to students and to the regional, national, and global communities. We offer a BA, an MA and a PhD in Political Science, a BA in International Relations, and a BS and a Master's in Public Policy Administration. Our department has a special responsibility to anchor our community with objective knowledge, civility, empathy, and democratic engagement; faculty work with UMSL's Community Innovation and Action Center and with community organizations.

The department maintains a high, steady level of quality publication of peer reviewed books, articles and chapters. The UMSL Political Science faculty rank about in the top ten percent of faculty in peer departments in all Public and Carnegie R-2 universities. The department also emphasizes first-rate teaching, and faculty have received numerous teaching awards. UMSL Political Scientists are very active, very visible representatives of the campus who are actively engaged in our community. The department's long-standing commitment to inclusion is reflected in the diversity of its faculty, students, and curriculum.

The University of Missouri–St. Louis

Established in 1963 in suburban St. Louis, UMSL is the largest public university in eastern Missouri with a current enrollment of over 16,000 in day and evening sessions. This metropolitan research and teaching institution is consistently recognized for its strong programs across disciplines, and it is considered a primary driver of the St. Louis economy, providing industries with educated and capable employees and leaders. UMSL is committed to meeting the diverse needs in the state's largest metropolitan community and, accordingly, is educating traditional and nontraditional students in undergraduate, graduate, and professional programs so they are prepared to be leaders in health professions; liberal and fine arts; science and technology; and in metropolitan and international affairs such as business, education and public policy. UMSL is a leader in partnerships with key institutions in the St. Louis Region. Alliances and programs have resulted from collaborations with the Missouri Botanical Garden, Saint Louis Zoo, St. Louis Science Center, Danforth Plant Science Center, and many others.

UMSL is one of four institutions in the University of Missouri land-grant system and is classified as RU-H (high research activity) and as a Community Engaged Campus by Carnegie rankings. Both the campus and the College of Arts and Science are committed to an inclusive campus community that values and respects all its members and achieves educational excellence through diversity. We encourage applications from individuals from diverse and minority backgrounds, including individuals with disabilities and veterans. University of Richmond

Rank: Assistant Professor of Leadership Studies

Specializations: Leadership Studies, Education Policy, Political Economy

The University of Richmond's Jepson School of Leadership Studies (JSLS) invites applications for a full-time tenure-track social scientist position at the rank of Assistant Professor for the 2020-21 academic year. Although ABDs will be considered, the successful candidate must have completed a Ph.D. in public administration, public policy, educational policy, political economy, political science, sociology, or a related field, by August 19, 2020.

JSLS is a collaborative, inclusive community of scholars in anthropology, economics, history, literature, philosophy, politics, social psychology and religion. We seek applicants who study, or have the potential and desire to study, leadership by drawing on their disciplinary expertise to inform their work. We are particularly interested in candidates whose demonstrated scholarly interests focus on the empirical analysis of data related to justice and explaining social and economic inequality.

Applicants should have the potential and desire to teach in an interdisciplinary undergraduate liberal arts environment. The successful candidate will be expected to teach elective courses related to his or her disciplinary training and to contribute to the curriculum by teaching such required courses as Leadership and the Social Sciences, Quantitative Social Science, and Theories and Models of Leadership. In their cover letter, candidates should demonstrate how their scholarly and teaching interests connect, or have the potential to connect, to leadership, broadly construed. (See <http://jepson.richmond.edu/> for more information.)

The University of Richmond is a private university located just a short drive from downtown Richmond, Virginia. Through its five schools and wide array of campus programming, the University combines the best qualities of a small liberal arts college and a large university. With nearly 4,000 students, an 8:1 student-faculty ratio, and 92% of traditional undergraduate students living on campus, the University is remarkably student-centered, focused on preparing students "to live lives of purpose, thoughtful inquiry, and responsible leadership in a global and pluralistic society."

The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse workforce and student body, and to modeling an inclusive campus community which values the expression of difference in ways that promote excellence in teaching, learning, personal development, and institutional success. Our academic community strongly encourages applications that are in keeping with this commitment.

Applicants should apply online at <http://jobs.richmond.edu> and submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter, and teaching statement. The teaching statement should articulate the candidate's teaching philosophy, interests, and future professional development goals as well as involvement in and commitment to inclusive pedagogy. The JSLS supports the University's commitment to promoting an inclusive campus community. For full consideration, applicants must specify in their cover letters how they are prepared to contribute to the imperatives of diversity and inclusion. In addition, please include the names and emails of three references who will receive an email asking them to submit their reference letters to the University's Human Resources department at URHR@richmond.edu. Review of applications will commence August 15, 2019. Phone or Skype interviews will be conducted in September. Committee members will be in attendance at the APSA Conference; attendance is not required for consideration. We anticipate inviting candidates to campus in October.

We invite applications for one or more positions as Tenure Track Assistant Professor at the Department of Political Science, Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Copenhagen. The position(s) are available from 1 March 2020 or as soon as possible thereafter.

Applications are sought from eminent candidates, who can enhance the Department's research, education and societal impact in public administration and public policy.

For more on the Department and its pluralistic academic environment, please consult our webpage: <http://politicalscience.ku.dk/about/>

Job Description

General duties attached to the position as Assistant Professor are:

- Research within the field of public administration and public policy
- Teaching, supervision and examination of undergraduate and post-graduate students
- Administrative tasks
- Knowledge sharing with the rest of the society

Emphasis will be put on the applicant's ability to contribute to the intellectual life of the Department through conducting and publishing outstanding quality research, engaging in high quality teaching, disseminate knowledge and make a knowledge-based societal impact. An assistant professor is expected to develop competences and experience within research, teaching and dissemination. In time, the assistant professor should develop competences to attract funding within his or her specialist area.

An assistant professorship is a further-education post. Supervision as well as pedagogical training is provided. The position(s) will be covered by the tenure track programme at the University of Copenhagen. The programme offers tenure-track candidates a contract of six years that can result in a tenured associate professorship. For additional information about assistant professorships, tenure-track assistant professorships and the Job Structure for Academic Staff at the University, see: <http://employment.ku.dk/faculty/career-at-upch/> and: <http://employment.ku.dk/tenure-track/tenure-track-at-ucph/>

Essential Qualifications

To be qualified for the position the applicant must have a PhD in Political Science or equivalent academic qualifications as well as:

- An aspiration to increase our understanding of the world and its problems based on a proven record of outstanding research, as evidenced primarily by a well-received PhD dissertation and an emerging international reputation based on a publication profile that complements the existing research strengths of the Department
- A commitment to contribute to the delivery of an excellent student experience based on a track record of excellence in teaching in one or more of the main areas covered by the Department. The Department prefers candidates, who can cover more than one of the main courses taught at BSc level.

- An engagement in knowledge exchange and policy-impact in Denmark as well as in an international context. We encourage proactive engagement with government, business and community partners to enhance the impact of research and education and improve the employability of our students.

- Robust interpersonal skills which enables the candidate to be a constructive and empathic colleague in a diverse and vibrant working environment.

We will expect candidates to present a clear, well-developed and viable strategy for future outstanding research that will result in further world-leading publications, external research funding as well as a commitment to innovate teaching.

- Demonstrated experience or significant promise in maintaining and/or building reciprocal community partnerships with local and regional organizations to support student civic engagement through service learning, internships, or other engaged learning opportunities
- A track record of and/or strong potential for scholarly publication and/or funded research in areas of scholarly interests
- Demonstrated experience teaching, mentoring and/or advising culturally diverse students, including underrepresented students of color, LGBTQ students and first-generation college students
- Demonstrated experience working in and with an ethnically and linguistically diverse campus community, including students, faculty, staff and administrators
- Demonstrated experience working effectively in ethnically and culturally diverse communities

Preferred Qualification:

- J.D. degree
- Expertise in such areas as Critical Race Theory, LatCrit, Race, Ethnicity and Politics, Feminist Legal Theory, and/or intersection of ethnic studies and the law
- Experience with pre-law advising and/or curriculum development
- Experience mentoring students for internships and/or undergraduate research
- Demonstrated leadership skills in professional, academic or community-based areas

Other Related Information:

HCOM prepares a diverse group of students, many from historically underserved communities, for leadership in a multicultural society and is committed to inclusive excellence, innovation in interdisciplinary teaching and learning, quality scholarship, as well as collaborative and imaginative program development. HCOM values an educational environment of cultural and linguistic diversity and gender equity, ethical reflection and practice, and a commitment to working across disciplinary boundaries. The curriculum prepares students to be ethical, creative, and critical thinkers and doers in a multicultural and interconnected global society. Toward that end, through its degree programs, HCOM offers students a comprehensive, interdisciplinary humanities and liberal arts education for the 21st century.

Rutgers University, Camden

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor – Public Law, Political Theory

Rutgers University – Camden Campus

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor – Public Law, Political Theory

The Political Science Department at Rutgers University-Camden invites applications for a full time, tenure track appointment at the rank of assistant or associate professor. Teaching responsibilities will be two classes per semester in the fields of Political Theory and Public Law, including an array of courses on the Constitution and Legal Process. The successful candidate will also provide pre-law advising to undergraduate students and contribute to the department's minor in Legal Studies. Ph.D. must be awarded no later than June 30, 2020.

The Camden Campus is a unit of Rutgers University and as such all applicants must demonstrate a record of scholarly potential commensurate with expectations at a public research university. Rutgers-Camden places a high value on providing meaningful undergraduate opportunities for research <http://fas.camden.rutgers.edu/student-experience/undergraduate-research/curca/> and for civic engagement <http://www.camden.rutgers.edu/office-civic-engagement>.

The Political Science Department includes nine full-time faculty members serving approximately 250 majors. While the course load, research support, and publishing expectations reflect those of a large research institution, our class size and commitment to individualized attention, especially in our departmental honors program, reflect the advantages of a smaller liberal arts environment. Camden is located directly across the Delaware River from Philadelphia, offering a diversity of transportation, housing, cultural and educational options. Candidates should submit the following materials electronically to Ms. Lisa Alston, lisa.alston@rutgers.edu: (1) a letter of interest emphasizing teaching experience as well as research accomplishments and agenda; (2) a CV; (3) three letters of reference; and (4) an unofficial transcript documenting doctoral studies to date. Please be sure to submit documents as pdf files or MS Word documents. Hiring for this position is contingent on final University funding approval. The Department will be interviewing candidates at the APSA meetings and applications will be accepted until October 15, 2019. Rutgers is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. The University and our Department seek to attract diverse faculty and staff of the highest caliber. Women and minorities are strongly encouraged to apply.

McGill University

Rank: Visiting Fulbright Research Chair in Constitutional and Political Theory

Applications are invited for a one-semester or full-year Visiting Fulbright Research Chair in Constitutional and Political Theory in academic year 2020-21. This fellowship for US citizens includes a $US 25,000 stipend with no teaching responsibilities.

Hosted in the Research Group on Constitutional Studies (RGCS), a unit of the Yan P. Lin Centre for the Study of Freedom and Global Orders in the Ancient and Modern Worlds, this award is open to scholars in political theory and is open with respect to methodology and approach in that field. Applications are also invited from scholars in neighbouring areas of legal theory and jurisprudence, political philosophy and political science. The Chair will pursue research in political and constitutional theory broadly construed. The ability to engage with scholars and students across methodologies — normative, empirical, intellectual-historical, jurisprudential, and formal, for example — is more important than particular areas of emphasis.

While Ph.D. must be in hand, the fellowship is otherwise open as to seniority. Most applicants will be on sabbatical or other leave from an existing faculty position, but it is not a requirement that the applicant already hold a faculty appointment.

The Chair-holder will be in residence at RGCS for one semester, will deliver one public lecture, regularly attend and also present work at an RGCS workshop, and, if appropriate, guest-lecture or lead guest discussions in political science classes. The Chair will more generally take an active part in the intellectual life of McGill, RGCS, and the Groupe de Recherche Interuniversitaire en Philosophie Politique.

Full eligibility information and the online application are available at <https://www.fulbright.ca/programs/american-scholars/primary-awards/policy.html>. Those interested are encouraged to contact Jacob Levy at rgcs.mcgill@gmail.com (especially for questions about thematic fit) and Bred Hector at bhector@fulbright.ca (especially for procedural questions) early in the application process. Applications must be fully complete by September 16.

SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor - Autonomous Systems Policy

Assistant or Associate Professor - Autonomous Systems Policy

The Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs, Syracuse University, seeks to hire a social scientist with expertise in the regulation, use, and social impacts of autonomous systems and emerging technologies at the rank of assistant or associate professor. This recruitment is part of an ambitious Invest Syracuse Cluster Hire Initiative in the broad area of Artificial Intelligence and Autonomous Systems. As an integral part of this investment, Syracuse University will recruit multiple candidates for faculty positions for a research cluster in the focus area of Autonomous Systems and Artificial Intelligence. Faculty hired into these positions will build on our existing strengths in the focus area and will participate in an organized research cluster that spans multiple departments in the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs, the College of Law, the College of Engineering and Computer Science, and the School of Information Studies. This is a tenure-track appointment. Ph.D. required at time of appointment.

We seek a social scientist whose research focuses on either the policy needs or the social impacts of autonomous systems – driverless vehicles, unmanned aerial vehicles, pilotless ships and submarines, and so on. We expect to hire a scholar poised to make a significant contribution to deeper understandings of and suggestions for the policies and frameworks that will and should shape the development, use, and impacts of these systems. We are especially interested in candidates who connect their research to one or more of the following related themes: technology policy and regulation; transportation policy; transportation infrastructure; privacy and surveillance concerns; artificial intelligence; international security and law; the environmental impacts of emerging technologies; the future of work and mobility, particularly for marginalized communities; society and technology; and urban and regional planning.

Candidates should demonstrate clear evidence of a strong research program moving forward and significant promise in teaching at both advanced and introductory levels. Applications from candidates who study autonomous systems in a comparative framework and from an interdisciplinary perspective are especially welcome. The ideal candidate will see opportunities to engage with existing strengths across the Maxwell School and share its commitment to socially relevant scholarship oriented toward citizenship and public engagement. The Maxwell School seeks candidates whose research, teaching, and/or lived experiences has prepared them to contribute to our commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion not only in higher education but also in the emerging fields associated with autonomous systems.

The successful candidate will play a key role in the Autonomous Systems Policy Institute (ASPI), which is housed in the Maxwell School and centers on interdisciplinary scholarship and teaching related to the design, policy, and social implications of autonomous systems. Besides contributing to ASPI's research and teaching, we seek a scholar who might also contribute to initiatives across the Maxwell School. Opportunities for interdisciplinary research include the Center for Environmental Policy and Administration; the Center for Policy Research; the Aging Studies Institute; and the Program for the Advancement of Research on Conflict and Cooperation. Across Syracuse University, the Maxwell School maintains collaborative links to schools and programs ranging from law and engineering to design and architecture.

The Maxwell School strongly values excellent teaching, and the successful candidate will be expected to teach both undergraduate and graduate courses. Faculty members normally teach two courses per semester. The successful candidate will be housed in his/her disciplinary department.

APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS:

For consideration, candidates must complete an online faculty demographic summary (available at <http://www.sujobopps.com/postings/81471>) and attach online the following: a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, and the names and contact information of three references.

Applications will be reviewed as they arrive with full consideration given to those received by October 15th, 2019. However, the Maxwell School will continue to consider applications until this position is filled.

Syracuse University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer with a strong commitment to equality of opportunity and a diverse work force. Women, military veterans, individuals with disabilities, and members of other traditionally underrepresented groups are encouraged to apply.

University of California, Los Angeles

Rank: Tenure-Track Faculty Position in Critical Black Urbanism

UCLA

Luskin School of Public Affairs

Department of Urban Planning

Tenure-Track Faculty Position in Critical Black Urbanism

The Department of Urban Planning at the UCLA Luskin School of Public Affairs seeks to hire a tenure-track faculty member at the rank of Assistant Professor in the area of Critical Black Urbanism. We seek a scholar who studies the Black experience and whose research and teaching has direct relevance for urban planning. Attractive candidates for this position might study racial segregation, Black migration, Black geographies, community organizing, community and/or economic development, the Black diaspora, policing and incarceration, urban and planning history, critical legal studies, or related topics.

Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in Urban Planning, Ethnic Studies, Geography, Sociology, Political Science, or a related social science discipline, have a robust research agenda, and be prepared to teach and mentor students at the undergraduate, Master's, and Ph.D. levels.

To apply, please submit a brief cover letter, CV, a research statement of less than 500 words highlighting scholarly contributions of recent research and plans for the near future, one publication or writing sample that best represents your work, a teaching statement of less than 300 words outlining the content of a class you would like to teach, a statement that addresses past and/or potential contributions to equity, diversity, and inclusion, and three letters of recommendation.

This position reflects a commitment by the UCLA Luskin School of Public Affairs and the Department of Urban Planning to emphasize communities of color in scholarship, teaching, and professional practice. Faculty in the school and department have ongoing collaborations with ethnic studies departments and centers at UCLA. We expect that the faculty member who holds this position will benefit from and strengthen existing linkages to the Ralph J. Bunche Center for African American Studies, the Department of African American Studies, and other relevant units.

The Department of Urban Planning currently hosts 18 tenured/tenure-track planning faculty, 6 affiliated tenured/tenure-track faculty, 7 long-term adjunct/practice faculty, 3 active professors emeriti, 35 PhD students, 150 master's students, and a growing number of undergraduate majors. Department faculty also teach undergraduate students in the Luskin School's Major in Public Affairs, which just completed its inaugural academic year. We have a tradition of intellectual leadership in urban and regional studies and design, and our faculty, students, and alumni are committed to social justice and progressive planning ideals.

Los Angeles is a global city renowned for its dynamism, robust economy, cultural diversity, spectacular climate, as well as high levels of inequality, poverty and homelessness, residential segregation, and traffic. The UCLA Luskin School of Public Affairs is an interdisciplinary school with highly ranked departments of Social Welfare and Public Policy. All faculty in the Luskin School of Public Affairs (including the Departments of Social Welfare, Urban Planning, and Public Policy) have opportunities to participate in current school initiatives in global affairs, digital technologies, the environment, democracy and inequality, global development, Latin American cities, and social justice, equity, and opportunity.

UCLA offers competitive salary and attractive benefits packages, including a housing assistance program for new faculty members. The University of California seeks to recruit and retain a diverse workforce as a reflection of our commitment to serve the people of California, to maintain the excellence of the University, and to offer our students richly varied disciplines, perspectives, and ways of knowing and learning. The Department of Urban Planning in particular is committed to diversity and excellence in our faculty, students, and scholarship, and we especially encourage candidates who share and can contribute to this commitment.

The expected start date is July 1, 2020. All materials must be submitted via UCLA Academic Recruit by October 15, 2019, to be guaranteed full consideration.

University of Texas at El Paso

Rank: Public Policy and/or American Behavioral Politics

The University of Texas at El Paso (UTEP) invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track position in Public Policy and/or American Behavioral Politics beginning August 2020. As a Carnegie R1 university, we seek scholars with a strong research agenda in either of these specializations to help grow the prestige of our department. The successful candidate will help to continue UTEP's strong tradition of providing under-represented students with access to a quality education and facilitating their success in professional careers. The successful candidate will teach undergraduate and graduate courses in Public Policy and/or American Behavioral Politics. The ability to teach courses in research methods (graduate and undergraduate) is desirable. Our needs in Public Policy (American or Comparative) are broad and can include a focus in one or more areas (urban and regional planning, health policy, political economy, and policy analysis, etc). Our needs in American Behavioral Politics are also broad and can include a focus in one or more areas (citizen decision-making, public opinion, media and politics, voting behavior, and race/gender and politics, etc.). A strong record of peer-reviewed publications will ultimately be required for tenure.

Required Qualifications: Applicants must have a Ph.D. in Political Science, Public Policy, or a closely related field. ABD applicants near completion will be considered. The degree must be completed by the time of appointment. Candidates must show promise of excellence in research and teaching to be considered; evidence of excellence in research and teaching is preferred.

Salary: Competitive and commensurate with experience.

About UTEP and El Paso: Set against the backdrop of the Franklin Mountains in the Chihuahuan Desert, The University of Texas at El Paso is located along the U.S.–Mexico border in one of the world's largest binational communities. UTEP's award-winning, sustainably designed campus landscape and unique Bhutanese architecture create an energizing and tranquil oasis in the bustling El Paso–Juárez metroplex of 2.7 million residents. El Paso is a highly livable, bicultural community of almost 700,000 people that offers affordable homes and attractive neighborhoods. It has consistently been named among the safest large U.S. cities. El Paso experiences almost 300 days of sunshine annually, and residents enjoy outdoor activities year-round. The City of El Paso is adjacent to the state of New Mexico and the country of Mexico, making it an ideal venue for academic programs and research studies on topics of national interest, such as bilingual education/language acquisition, border environment and immigration, environmental sustainability and infrastructure, health disparities, and international trade and commerce.

Application Procedure: The deadline for applications is October 21, 2019 and the review of applications will continue until the position is filled. Interested individuals must submit a curriculum vita, letter of interest, graduate transcripts, evidence of teaching quality (sample syllabi/statement of teaching philosophy), article/chapter length writing sample, and three letters of recommendation. Please contact Dr. Todd A. Curry by email (tacurry@utep.edu) for questions about the position.

Indiana University- Bloomington, Hamilton Lugar School of Global and International Studies

Rank: Assistant Professor, Contemporary Japanese Politics and Society

Specializations: Japan, State Politics, Social Movements

Indiana University Bloomington's Hamilton Lugar School of Global and International Studies (HLS) seeks a full-time tenure-track assistant professor of contemporary Japanese politics and society, broadly defined, to begin August 1, 2020. The position is 100% in HLS's renowned multidisciplinary Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures (EALC). The teaching load is two courses per semester. Teaching responsibilities encompass both undergraduate and graduate courses and will include the teaching of a new course on "Japanese Politics and Society."

This is an exciting moment to join the newly named and expanding Hamilton Lugar School of Global and International Studies as it leads the university's international research and teaching missions. Established nearly sixty years ago, the EALC department has a long history of interdisciplinarity and boasts faculty strengths in a wide array of social sciences.

Minimum requirements are a Ph.D. in a relevant social science discipline (e.g., sociology, anthropology, political science) and active research agendas examining contemporary political and/or social issues that involve Japanese-language sources and in-country fieldwork.

We are particularly interested in candidates combining disciplinary rigor and area studies expertise to examine real-world challenges facing contemporary Japan and who are interested in contributing to and benefiting from EALC's new 21st Century Japan Politics and Society Initiative (established in 2018).

Applicants should submit a letter of application describing research and teaching interests, a C.V., and a writing sample along with three letters of reference. ABD candidates are welcome to apply, but must have the Ph.D. in hand by July 31, 2020. Interested candidates should review the application requirements and submit their application at: <https://indiana.peopleadmin.com/postings/8197>

Questions regarding the position or application process can be directed to: Ethan Michelson at emichels@indiana.edu. Applications received by October 18, 2019 are guaranteed full consideration.

Indiana University is an equal employment and affirmative action employer and a provider of ADA services. National University of Singapore

Rank: Lecturer/Senior Lecturer

Subfield(s): Methodology, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The Department of Political Science at the National University of Singapore invites applications for an educator-track Lectureship or Senior Lectureship in Political Science to teach research methods as well as other modules in Comparative Politics and/or Governance and Public Policy for our undergraduate curriculum. The teaching load is six modules per academic year (three per semester), of which at least two should be in methods.

Lectureships at NUS are career positions in which advancement (to open-contracted Associate Professor and Professor) is possible. Appointments are for three years initially and are renewable on an ongoing basis, subject to good performance and departmental teaching needs. Compensation and benefits are similar to those of faculty members on the tenure track and are competitive.

Candidates should have a PhD in Political Science. The Department recognizes four main subfields: Comparative Politics; Governance and Public Policy; International Relations; and Political Theory. The Department also hosts the programme in Global Studies.

Candidates should send a CV, a letter detailing their research and teaching interests, at least two samples of written work, and letters from three referees to the Chair of the Search Committee at pol-box5@nus.edu.sg

All applicants should also submit sample syllabi, student evaluations, and other evidence of teaching quality. To ensure full consideration, applications should be received by 21 October 2019.

University of Minnesota

Rank: Advanced Assistant or Associate Professor in Global Policy

Subfield(s): Public Policy, International Relations, Public Administration

Specializations: Foreign Policy, Environmental Policy, International Political Economy

The Humphrey School of Public Affairs is committed to academic excellence and diversity within the faculty, staff, and student body. The School's mission is to inspire, educate, and support innovative leaders to advance the common good in a diverse and changing world. The School is NASPAA-accredited, ranked nationally in the top ten U.S. based schools of public affairs, and widely recognized for examining public issues and shaping public policy and governance at the local, state, national, and international levels. The Humphrey School works to enrich the diversity of the University community and encourages faculty applicants from a wide range of backgrounds to apply. We seek candidates whose approach to teaching and research is innovative and inclusive in terms of structurally or historically underrepresented groups.

With this current search, the Humphrey School seeks to hire a tenure-track advanced Assistant Professor, or Associate Professor eligible for tenure at the University of Minnesota whose research, scholarship, academic leadership and service focus broadly on global policy. Evidence of established scholarship with the potential for contributions of national and international significance is required for candidates at the pre-tenure assistant professor level. Appointment at the tenured level of associate professor requires evidence of excellence and national/international policy-relevant impact in scholarly research, teaching and service.

The successful candidate must have strong, demonstrated applied research and teaching interests in comparative foreign policy, international relations, international economics and trade policy, and/or global environmental policy. Candidates with specific country expertise and strong regional and/or international interests will also be considered. Although the tenure home and position will be at the Humphrey School, there are ample opportunities to collaborate and affiliate with scholars in departments across the University of Minnesota.

Candidates must be committed to scholarly and policy-relevant research at the highest levels; willing and able to teach in the School's core curriculum; provide leadership to its established public policy Masters and public affairs Ph.D. programs; be willing to help prepare students for professional careers; and function collaboratively in a multi-and inter-disciplinary environment.

A Ph.D. is required in public policy, international relations, development studies, economics, political science, political economy, sociology or related fields with a focus on international policy and global affairs. The Humphrey School is especially interested in candidates with a demonstrated interest in public policy, broadly construed, whose approach to teaching and research is both innovative and inclusive in terms of race, gender, class and ethnicity.

Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, research statement and three samples of recent research (publications or manuscripts), teaching statement, and the names/addresses of three references (reference letters will be requested for short-listed candidates). All candidates must hold a PhD by the time of employment.

All interested candidates must apply online. Applications will be reviewed beginning October 7, 2019. The position will remain open until filled.

University of Toronto, Mississauga

Rank: Assistant Professor, Teaching Stream - Urban Policy and Politics

Assistant Professor, Teaching Stream – Urban Policy and Politics

The Department of Political Science at the University of Toronto Mississauga invites applications for a full-time teaching-stream position in the area of Urban Policy and Politics. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor, Teaching Stream and will begin on July 1, 2020, or shortly thereafter.

Candidates are expected to have earned a Ph.D. degree in Political Science or a closely related field by date of appointment or soon thereafter. Applicants with a Ph.D. in a related field and a strong track record in the civil service or a non-government organization are also encouraged to apply. We seek enthusiastic and innovative individuals pursuing a long-term academic career in pedagogy. In addition to excellence in teaching, the successful candidate will also be expected to create and support experiential learning opportunities, participate in the development of undergraduate curriculum, to engage in undergraduate mentorship, and to help foster a vibrant intellectual environment for our undergraduate programs.

We seek candidates whose teaching interests complement and strengthen our existing departmental strengths. Candidates must have teaching expertise in a degree granting program at the undergraduate program level, including lecture preparation and delivery, curriculum development, and/or development of online material/lectures. Additionally, candidates must possess a demonstrated commitment to excellent pedagogical practices and a demonstrated interest in teaching-related scholarly activities.

Evidence of excellence in teaching and pedagogical inquiry can be demonstrated through teaching accomplishments, awards and accolades, presentations at significant conferences, the teaching dossier submitted as part of the application including a strong teaching statement, sample syllabi, course materials, and teaching evaluations, as well as strong letters of reference from referees of high standing.

At the University of Toronto Mississauga, the expectation of faculty members in the teaching stream is that they bring a dimension of teaching excellence and educational innovation that enhances undergraduate or graduate education and adds significantly to the quality of the student experience. The Department of Political Science is interested in expanding its experiential learning opportunities, specifically developing an internship program relating to Urban Policy/Politics and seeks candidates with strong relevant experience and the desire to take the lead in development of such a program.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

To be considered for this position, all application materials must be submitted online by clicking the apply link below. Please include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a statement of teaching philosophy (1 page), sample syllabi and course assignments (max 10 pages) and prior student evaluation or other assessments of teaching effectiveness (max 10 pages).

Equity and diversity are among UTM's core values and are essential to academic excellence. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover topics such as (but not limited to): teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

Applicants must arrange for three referees to send confidential letters of recommendation, including one primarily addressing the candidate's teaching, directly via email (on letterhead, signed and scanned) to the Chair, Professor Andrea Olive, at polsci.utm@utoronto.ca by the closing date.

Applications and all materials (including reference letters) must be received by October 17th, 2019.

Please submit attachments in PDF format only. Submission guidelines can be found at: uoft.me/how-to-apply. If you have questions about this position, please contact chair.pol.utm@utoronto.

The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous / Aboriginal People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. McMaster University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at McMaster University invites applications for a full-time tenure-track appointment in Comparative Public Policy. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor, with a preferred starting date of July 1, 2020.

Candidates must have earned a PhD in Political Science, or a related discipline, by the date of appointment or shortly thereafter. The main criteria for selection are research and teaching excellence. Candidates must demonstrate an emerging record of research accomplishments that contribute to and advance the comparative study of public policy. Candidates must also demonstrate a commitment to excellence in undergraduate and graduate teaching, and strong potential for excellence as a graduate supervisor.

The successful candidate will have evidence of high-quality scholarly output and excellence in research. They will be expected to carry out an independent research program yielding significant peer-reviewed publications, and to compete successfully for external funding to support this research program. Candidates from a wide range of disciplinary perspectives and substantive policy interests are encouraged to apply, including those who apply innovative approaches involving socially engaged and participatory research.

The successful candidate will also demonstrate strong potential for outstanding teaching contributions at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, and an ongoing commitment to academic and pedagogical excellence in support of the department's programs. At the undergraduate level, the appointee will be expected to teach introductory as well as more advanced courses in an area of their expertise. At the graduate level, the appointee will teach courses as part of the Masters in Political Science and the PhD program in Comparative Public Policy, and be expected to supervise graduate students in their areas of research expertise. These can include mainstream policy studies as well as projects that adopt critical approaches to policy. The capacity to strengthen the department's commitment to practice-based learning is an asset.

The person who fills this position is expected to contribute to the department's supportive and collegial working environment, and to make substantive contributions through service to the department, the Faculty, the University, and/or the broader community.

McMaster University consistently ranks among the top 5 research intensive universities in Canada and among the top 100 universities worldwide. It has a strong focus on community-based research and experiential learning that complements classroom studies with hands-on experience. Community engagement and a commitment to service and to the public good has been a key part of McMaster's history. The Department of Political Science provides a strong, supportive and collegial research culture, building the research capacity of faculty and graduate students. It offers MA degrees in Political Science and International Relations, and PhD degrees in Comparative Public Policy and International Relations, as well as a range of undergraduate programs. Further information on the Department can be found at <http://www.politicalscience.mcmaster.ca>.

McMaster is strongly committed to employment equity within its community and to recruiting a diverse faculty and staff. The diversity of our workforce is at the core of our innovation and creativity and strengthens our research and teaching excellence. The University encourages applications from all qualified candidates, particularly women, persons with disabilities, First Nations, Métis and Inuit peoples, members of racialized communities, and LGBTQ+ identified persons. The University seeks qualified candidates who share our commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion. Applicants are asked to include, as part of their application package, a statement describing their commitment to and demonstrated experience advancing equity, diversity and inclusion in post-secondary education, community-based or other professional settings.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens and permanent residents will be given priority. To comply with the Government of Canada's reporting requirements, the University is obliged to gather information about applicants' status as either Permanent Residents of Canada or Canadian citizens. Applicants need not identify their country of origin or current citizenship, however, all applications must include in the cover letter one of the following statements: "I am a citizen / permanent resident of Canada" OR "I am not a citizen or permanent resident of Canada." Applications that do not include this information will be deemed incomplete.

How to apply:

Applicants should submit the following documents electronically as PDFs through www.workingatmcmaster.ca/careers/

- Cover letter;
- Curriculum Vitae;
- Statement of research;
- Statement of contributions and commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion – addressing past, ongoing, and/or potential contributions through teaching, research, professional activity, and/or service;
- Evidence of teaching excellence;
- Academic writing sample.

In addition, applicants must arrange for three letters of reference to be sent directly by referees to Dr. Karen Bird, Chair, Department of Political Science at polisci@mcmaster.ca

Applicants will also be sent a link to complete an online voluntary Diversity Survey. All information collected is confidential and will be used to support efforts to broaden the diversity of the applicant pool and to promote a fair, equitable, and inclusive hiring process.

Job applicants requiring accommodation to participate in the hiring process should contact the Human Resources Service Centre at 905-525-9140 ext. 222-HR (22247) or the Faculty of Social Sciences Human Resources Advisor at ext. 24552 to communicate accommodation needs.

Consideration of applications will begin on October 11, 2019.

Smith College

Specializations: Women & Politics, Race & Ethnic Politics, Electoral Behavior

The Department of Government (GOV) and the Program in Statistical & Data Sciences (SDS) at Smith College invite applications for a joint, tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor, to begin July 1, 2020.

By time of appointment the applicant must have a Ph.D. in Political Science or a closely-related discipline (e.g., public policy) -- as well as advanced training in statistics, data science, or a closely-related field at the graduate level. Candidates specializing in American political institutions and public policy are preferred. Statistical and Data Science specializations might include, for example, the public policy implications of data storage and mining, machine learning and public health, modeling of voting behavior, surveillance and data privacy policy, or computer algorithms for law enforcement and sentencing.

The position has a teaching load of 2:2 -- i.e., four semester-long courses over the academic year -- and will have a joint teaching commitment to GOV and SDS, split evenly. In GOV, we anticipate that the person would teach introduction to public policy, introduction to American Government, and upper-level courses related to their area of expertise in which students analyze data. In SDS, the person would teach introductory statistics or data science, as well as intermediate and advanced-level courses in their area of interest, for example multiple regression, machine learning, data journalism, data visualization, data ethics, or text mining. Candidates from groups underrepresented in STEM or quantitative political science are encouraged to apply.

Located in Northampton, MA, Smith College is the largest women's college in the country and is dedicated to excellence in teaching and research across the liberal arts. The faculty of outstanding scholars interact with students in small classes. Tenure-track faculty members teach two courses each semester, mentor and advise undergraduates, and enjoy a generous sabbatical policy. Smith College offers opportunities to foster faculty success at every career stage, such as those listed here: <https://www.smith.edu/about-smith/provost/faculty-development>. The Five College Consortium -- comprising Smith, Amherst, Mount Holyoke and Hampshire Colleges, and the University of Massachusetts-Amherst -- provides a rich intellectual and cultural life. Details about GOV and SDS may be found at <https://www.smith.edu/gov/> and <https://www.smith.edu/sds/>.

Submit application at <http://apply.interfolio.com/66801> with a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a statement of research interests, a statement of teaching philosophy, an article- or chapter-length writing sample, and three confidential letters of recommendation. The research and teaching statements should address the candidate's commitment to diversity and inclusion, as well as their interest in working at a women's college. Review of applications will begin October 1, 2019.

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Comparative Politics

Public Policy Position – Assistant Professor
 Singapore Management University, School of Social Sciences

The School of Social Sciences (SOSS), Singapore Management University, invites applications for a tenure-track position in Public Policy at the rank of Assistant Professor.

The ideal candidate is one who conducts innovative research in topics related to comparative public policy, public administration, or global governance, and who can teach introductory as well as special-topic elective courses in public policy that will contribute towards the SOSS Public Policy and Public Management (PPPM) second major. We are open to research focus, although an interest in Asia would be a plus. The successful candidate will display a record of, or high potential for, scholarly research, as well as demonstrated teaching aptitude in Public Policy topics. The position requires a doctorate in Public Policy, Public Administration, Political Science, or a closely related field.

Singapore Management University is a research university committed to an interdisciplinary and integrated curriculum, providing opportunities to work with faculty across the social sciences. The research support is excellent and salary and benefits are highly competitive. The teaching load is comparable to other research universities, and typically, junior faculty receive a 3-course per year teaching load for their first contract.

Full evaluation of applications will start 16 September 2019. Only shortlisted candidates will be notified for interviews, which will begin in October 2019. The successful candidate will be expected to start at Singapore Management University in July 2020. All hires are contingent upon the successful completion of a background check.

The application package should be in electronic form and include: (1) a cover letter describing research and teaching interests, (2) a curriculum vitae (including teaching experience and a list of referees), (3) a professional writing sample, and (4) evidence of teaching effectiveness (such as teaching evaluations).

Applicants should also arrange for three confidential letters of recommendation to be delivered to: The Dean's Office, School of Social Sciences, Singapore Management University, 90 Stamford Road, Level 4, Singapore 178903 or email to: socialsciencescv@smu.edu.sg

Davidson College

Rank: Assistant Professor in Education Politics and Policy

The Departments of Educational Studies and Political Science invite applications for a tenure-track assistant professor specializing in Education Politics and Policy to begin July 1, 2020. Demonstrated potential for excellence in teaching, active and high-quality scholarship, and commitment to student advising and support are essential. We are interested in candidates whose teaching and research interests focus on contemporary educational policy issues in the United States including, but not limited to, inequality, educational change, K-12 education, and/or higher education. The candidate should be broadly enough trained to be able to contribute to wider course offerings in the field of public policy. We are especially interested in candidates with a demonstrated commitment to diversity and inclusion. Successful candidates will demonstrate potential to make a major contribution to the college's aspirations to build its curricular and co-curricular offerings in policy studies. This includes potential to establish community and college connections through education policy initiatives.

Candidates holding Ph.D.s in Educational Policy, Political Science, or Public Policy are preferred but we welcome candidates with other degrees that give them strong grounding in the theory and practice of policy analysis. We welcome applications from candidates with strong multi-methodological skills, and with a pluralistic approach to social science methodology; with trans-disciplinary interests that complement Davidson College's growing inter-disciplinary programs; and with potential to contribute to the college's existing strength integrating liberal arts education with policy engagement. The successful applicant will be expected to offer five courses per year (four in the first year of employment). Candidates will generally teach 3 courses per year in Educational Studies, principally serving the Education Policy track, and 2 courses per year in Political Science, such as Introduction to Policy Analysis, Public Policy, Comparative Public Policy, and/or State and Local Politics. We welcome candidates who are enthusiastic about teaching a first-year writing seminar annually or every other year. Applications from both Ph.D.-holders and very advanced ABDs will be considered.

The following materials are required: letter of application; curriculum vitae; three letters of reference; statements addressing the candidate's teaching experience and interests and research agenda; graduate school transcript; and evidence of demonstrated or potential excellence in and enthusiasm for undergraduate teaching. Also include a statement on how teaching, research, and/or service might contribute to Davidson's institutional commitment to diversity and inclusion. Answers to additional questions can be found at The deadline for receipt of applications is October 1, 2019. All application materials can be submitted at <http://employment.davidson.edu>.

University of Chicago

Rank: Collegiate Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

The College at the University of Chicago is now accepting applications for four-year postdoctoral teaching appointments as Harper and Schmidt Fellows who hold the rank of Collegiate Assistant Professor. Collegiate Assistant Professors are members of the College Faculty whose primary responsibility is to teach in the general education (Core) program.

Core courses in the Humanities typically deal with fundamental issues and texts in history, philosophy, and literature. Currently, the Core is organized into eight year-long sequences: Readings in World Literature; Human Being and Citizen; Greece and Rome: Texts, Traditions, Transformations; Philosophical Perspectives on the Humanities; Media Aesthetics; Reading Cultures; Poetry and the Human; and Language and the Human. For a description of these sequences see: <https://societyoffellows.uchicago.edu/page/humanities-course-descriptions>

Core courses in the Social Sciences explore, on the basis of significant works, the fundamental concepts and the different modes of inquiry that have defined the social sciences in the modern period. Currently, Collegiate Assistant Professors teach in five of the year-long sequences into which the Core is organized: Self, Culture and Society; Classics of Social and Political Thought; Power, Identity, and Resistance; Global Society; and Social Science Inquiry. Some Collegiate Assistant Professors also teach in the History of European Civilization Core sequence. European Civilization is taught on the basis of intensive readings of significant primary source documents.

For a description of these sequences see: <https://societyoffellows.uchicago.edu/page/social-sciences-course-descriptions>

The positions are open to scholars in all disciplines and areas of specialization who will have completed all requirements for their Ph.D. degree no later than August 31, 2020. Candidates must demonstrate excellence in their original scholarship as well as in teaching.

In most years, Collegiate Assistant Professors teach two courses (usually of identical preparation) for each of three quarters. Each Collegiate Assistant Professor also has the opportunity to design an independent course and each is eligible for one quarter of research sabbatical in the third year of residence. The position comes with an annual salary for 2020-21, of $72,307.80, carries full benefits, and an annual professional development fund of $5,000. The effective date for these teaching appointments is September 1, 2020.

To apply for these positions, please see our web site at <http://fellows.uchicago.edu>. The web site will be available to accept applications beginning August 26, 2019.

These positions are part of the Service Employees International Union.

Important deadlines:

On line application deadline: 11:59:59 PM EDT, Friday, October 11, 2019.

Deadline for receipt of letters of recommendations: 11:59:59 PM EDT, Friday, October 25, 2019. This includes letters of recommendation from your three recommenders or those received from a dossier service.

University of California, San Diego

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow

Subfield(s): Public Policy, International Relations, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Economic Policy, International Political Economy, International Law & Organizations

The Center for Commerce and Diplomacy (CCD) at UC San Diego's School of Global Policy and Strategy (GPS) invites applications for a postdoctoral research position for the 2020-2021 academic year.

These awards are designed to promote high-quality research on the challenges and institutions of international economic diplomacy in a changing world. Research projects that seek to understand the causes and consequences of the institutions of economic globalization (e.g. GATT/WTO, FTAs, BITs, IMF, World Bank, Fast-Track, TPA, RTAA, etc) are particularly welcome. Commercial diplomats operate within a set of domestic and international institutions that governs their behavior in international negotiations. But we know little about the specifics of these rules and procedures, how they came into being, how they vary over time and across countries, and how they affect economic outcomes. Post-doctoral research on the institutions of economic globalization can help answer questions about the welfare and distributional consequences of these institutions and, ultimately, result in the better design of these institutions.

Outstanding scholars anywhere in the world are eligible to apply. The Center invites applications from candidates with a background in Economics, Political Science, Economic History, Legal History, or other disciplines bearing on the study of Economic Diplomacy. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence for the duration of the appointment (September 28, 2020 – June 11, 2021), and to interact with faculty and Ph.D. students, giving at least one research talk. Selected fellows are also expected to attend CCD events and related seminars, and to post their research on the CCD website.

Application Deadline: Applicants should apply by Friday, November 29, 2019, for full consideration; however, the posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process: All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: <https://apol-recruit.ucsd.edu/JPF02196>

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. or receive a Ph.D. degree in Economics, Political Science, Economic History, Legal History, or other disciplines related to the study of Economic Diplomacy by the start of appointment.

Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day on December 6, 2019. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Salary - Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. CCD Fellows will receive applicable UCSD benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a research fund.

Successful applicants will be notified of the outcome of their application in February 2020. These positions are subject to the UCSD's background check policy.

Specializations: American Politics, Bureaucracy & Organizational Behavior, Electoral Systems

Description:

The Robert F. Wagner Graduate School of Public Service at New York University invites applications for an open-rank tenure-track or tenured professor position with appointment to begin September 1, 2020. We are particularly interested in candidates with expertise and a record of research in American politics and a specialization in public administration, public management, executive politics, bureaucratic politics (e.g., agency design, management, rulemaking, program implementation), policy implementation, voting and elections, or public opinion. Successful candidates will teach in our Master of Public Administration program and will have demonstrated excellence in research.

NYU Wagner is a multidisciplinary school that prepares public service leaders to translate ideas into actions that have an effective and lasting impact on the public good. Wagner's nearly 40 full-time faculty members are trained in a wide variety of disciplines and share a commitment to addressing issues of public importance in their teaching and research. Wagner faculty members collaborate with other schools and departments across the University, including the Departments of Politics, Economics, and Sociology in Arts & Science; School of Law; Stern School of Business; Tandon School of Engineering; and the College of Global Public Health.

Qualifications:

A Ph.D. in political science, public policy, public administration, or a related field is required and must be conferred by August 31, 2020.

Application Instructions:

Qualified candidates may apply using the following link: <https://apply.interfolio.com/66363>

Candidates should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, two completed research papers, and three letters of reference. Because diversity is an important part of the mission at Wagner and the University, candidates should also describe how they would address issues of equity, diversity, and inclusion in their teaching.

Application review will begin on October 1, 2019, and will continue until the position is filled.

The College of New Jersey

Rank: Assistant Professor, Public Policy

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, Methodology

The Department of Political Science at The College of New Jersey (TCNJ) invites applications for a tenure-track position in Public Policy at the rank of Assistant Professor. We are open to candidates studying a range of policy areas; candidates should demonstrate an active and rigorous research agenda in their chosen policy specialty.

The successful candidate will excel in the classroom and seek ways to integrate their scholarship and teaching. Candidates should be prepared to teach undergraduate courses on U.S. public policy. Candidates who can also expand our course offerings in other areas such as public administration, race & ethnic politics, gender & politics, or urban/local politics would be desirable, as would candidates who could teach research methods or specialized courses in data analytics/science. The typical teaching load is three courses per semester, with the possibility of a course release per year for research after the first year through a competitive proposal process. A Ph.D. is preferred, but the College will consider ABDs if the degree will be granted by time of appointment. Applications received by September 13, 2019, will receive full consideration.

The Department of Political Science is a supportive and dynamic community of scholars and students. The Department has seven tenured or tenure-track members and is conducting searches this year for two additional tenure-track positions. Over 180 students major in Political Science, and another 130 major in the interdisciplinary International Studies program. The Department offers minors in public policy and pre-law which draw students from across a wide range of academic disciplines.

Founded in 1855, TCNJ is a highly selective institution that has earned national recognition for its commitment to excellence. Emphasizing a residential experience for its 6,500 undergraduates, TCNJ is one of Barron's 75 "Most Competitive" American colleges, and U.S. News & World Report's No. 1 public institution of its kind in the northern region of the country. The College also offers focused graduate programs in nursing, business, education and English. In 2006, TCNJ was awarded a Phi Beta Kappa chapter—an honor shared by less than 10 percent of colleges and universities nationally. A strong liberal arts core forms the foundation for programs offered through TCNJ's seven schools—Arts & Communication; Business; Education; Humanities & Social Sciences; Science; Nursing, Health, and Exercise Science; and Engineering. TCNJ faculty members are teacher-scholars who share a commitment to the liberal arts. TCNJ is located within an hour, by train, of NYC and Philadelphia. The College's campus is set on 289 tree-lined acres in suburban Ewing Township and is known for its natural beauty. TCNJ has 39 major buildings, including the 4th-best college library in the nation, according to the Princeton Review.

Applicants should submit the following materials using the online application system at link: <https://chm.tbe.taleo.net/chm03/ats/careers/v2/viewRequisition?org=TCNJ&cws=37&rid=1016>. A final offer of employment will be contingent upon successful completion of a background investigation.

- 1) A cover letter describing qualifications and research and teaching interests,
- 2) curriculum vitae,
- 3) one scholarly writing sample,
- 4) evidence of teaching effectiveness,
- 5) a statement on diversity and inclusion detailing how diversity and inclusion are incorporated into their work as teachers, scholars, and mentors, and
- 6) contact information for 3-5 references.

Applicants should also have three referees submit confidential letters of recommendation directly to publicpolicysearch-group@tcnj.edu. Questions about the position can be directed to Daniel Bowen (bowend@tcnj.edu), Public Policy Search Committee Chair.

Council on Foreign Relations

Rank: 2020–2021 International Affairs Fellowship Applications

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

Specializations: International Political Economy, African American Politics, Foreign Policy

CFR Call for 2020–2021 Fellowship Applications

The Council on Foreign Relations is seeking fellowship applicants for the 2020–2021 academic year. The programs offer unique opportunities, domestic and abroad, for mid and senior career U.S. citizens who have a demonstrated commitment to a career in foreign policy. Selected fellows broaden their perspective of foreign affairs either by pursuing work in a policymaking settings or research in an academic environment.

International Affairs Fellowship (IAF)

Established in 1967, the IAF is the hallmark fellowship program of CFR. It aims to bridge the gap between the study and making of U.S. foreign policy by creating the next generation of scholar-practitioners. The program offers its fellows the unique chance to experience a new field and gain a different perspective at a pivotal moment in their careers. Academics are thus placed in public service and policy-oriented settings, while government officials are placed in scholarly settings. Over the years, the IAF program has produced approximately six hundred alumni that span the who's who of the U.S. foreign policy community, including a former secretary of state and several undersecretaries of state, U.S. ambassadors to NATO and the United Nations, and many other influential leaders in government, academia, and the private sector. The duration of the fellowship is twelve months, preferably beginning in September, and the program awards a stipend of $100,000.

IAF in Canada, sponsored by the Power Corporation of Canada

Launched in 2016, the IAF in Canada, sponsored by the Power Corporation of Canada, seeks to strengthen mutual understanding and cooperation between rising generations of leaders and thinkers in the United States and Canada. The program provides for one to two mid-career professionals per year to spend six to twelve months hosted by a Canadian institution to deepen their knowledge of Canada. Fellows are drawn from academia, business, government, media, NGOs, and think tanks. The duration of the fellowship is between six and twelve months. The program awards a stipend of $95,000 for a period of twelve months (or a prorated stipend if the duration is less than twelve months) as well as a modest travel allowance.

IAF in Japan, sponsored by Hitachi, Ltd.

Founded in 1997, the IAF in Japan, sponsored by Hitachi, Ltd., seeks to strengthen mutual understanding and cooperation between the rising generations of leaders in the United States and Japan. The program provides a select group of mid-career professionals the opportunity to carry out research while affiliated with appropriate institutions in Japan, and to establish long-term professional and personal ties through their activities. Fellows are drawn from academia, business, government, media, NGOs, and think tanks. Knowledge of Japanese is not a requirement. The duration of the fellowship is between three and twelve months. The program awards a stipend in yen, which covers travel and living expenses in Japan.

IAF in India, with a grant contributed by Bharti

The IAF in India, with a grant contributed by Bharti seeks to strengthen mutual understanding and cooperation between rising generations of leaders and thinkers in the United States and India. The program provides for one to four mid-career U.S. professionals who have had little or no substantial prior experience in India, the opportunity to spend three to twelve months conducting research and working in India. CFR will work with its network of contacts to assist selected fellows in finding suitable host organizations that best match the fellow's proposed work in India. Fellows are drawn from academia, business, government, journalism, NGOs, and think tanks. It awards a stipend of $90,000 for a period of twelve months (or a prorated stipend if the duration is less than twelve months) as well as a modest travel allowance.

IAF in International Economics, sponsored by Kimberly Querrey

The IAF in International Economics, sponsored by Kimberly Querrey, provides the next generation of economic scholars and business economist hands-on experience in the policymaking field. Through the program, fellows expand their range of thinking and apply their work to international economic policy. Possible host placements for the fellowship include but are not limited to the U.S. Department of the Treasury, U.S. Department of Commerce, the Federal Reserve Bank, and relevant parts of the U.S. Department of State and the White House. The duration of the fellowship is 6 to 9 months, and a stipend in the range of $150,000 to $180,000 is awarded along with relocation assistance.

University of Michigan, Ann Arbor

Rank: Professor of Public Policy

The University of Michigan's Gerald R. Ford School of Public Policy invites applications for a tenured or tenure-track position in International Relations, especially at the rank of associate or full professor. We welcome a broad range of applicants who have a PhD in Political Science, Public Policy, or a Juris Doctorate degree in Law who conduct policy-relevant research on international politics. We are particularly interested in candidates who focus on human security broadly defined, including political/military affairs, diplomacy, development, international law and institutions, and human rights. Successful candidates must demonstrate a record of outstanding research impact; ability and willingness to teach core and elective courses in undergraduate, master and PhD degree programs in public policy; effective public and policy engagement; and a keen interest in interacting with students, faculty, staff, and policy practitioners in an interdisciplinary professional school environment. Candidates should combine relevant substantive expertise with strong interests in public policy.

The following application materials are required: a letter of interest; curriculum vitae; a statement of research and policy interests; a statement of teaching experience and philosophy; the names of three references; and a statement describing how your work would contribute to the Ford School's and University of Michigan's strategic commitment to diversity, equity and inclusion (fordschool.umich.edu/dei).

Interested applicants may upload their application materials to <http://apply.interfolio.com/65601>. This is an ongoing search. First consideration will be given to applications received by October 1, 2019, but applications will be considered until the position is filled.

The University of Michigan is an AA/EO employer. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply. The University is supportive of the needs of dual career couples.

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: Assistant Professor, Politics and Policy of China -- Cluster Hire

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

The University of Wisconsin-Madison seeks to hire a faculty member with research and teaching interests in comparative politics or international relations, with a primary focus on China and a secondary focus on East Asia and the Pacific Rim. Potential areas of substantive expertise in the politics and policy of China include: political and economic development, human rights, environmental politics and policy, international political economy, international security, international organizations/governance, non-governmental organizations, or political sociology.

This faculty position is part of a three-position research cluster, Rethinking East Asia and the World, which was proposed by the Title VI-funded National Resource Center, the Center for East Asian Studies, for the University's Cluster Hiring Initiative to enhance cross-disciplinary expertise on contemporary East Asia. Two candidates have been hired into this Cluster: Assistant Professor, Sociology of Contemporary Korea; and Assistant Professor, Educational Policy Studies in East Asia. Candidates for this position - Assistant Professor, Chinese Politics and Policy - should show a clear commitment to collaborating with the Cluster and to contributing to the intellectual life of the Center for East Asian Studies, the Department of Political Science, and the La Follette School of Public Affairs.

The successful candidate will have a primary appointment in either the Department of Political Science or the La Follette School of Public Affairs, with preference given to candidates interested in both political science and public affairs/public policy. Tenure home will be determined at the time of hiring. Expectations include a commitment to the important functions of research, instruction, and outreach, as well as professional and university service as appropriate to faculty rank.

Responsibilities include conducting research and teaching at all levels required with service at the professional and university level.

Teaching will include courses to undergraduate students, as well as graduate students. The teaching load in a typical academic year will consist of two courses taught in the Department of Political Science and two courses taught in the La Follette School of Public Affairs. Mentoring graduate students will be required as well.

To apply, go to <http://jobs.wisc.edu> and search for PVL 98888. To begin the application process, please click on the 'Apply Now' button. You will be asked to create a profile and upload a C.V., cover letter, a research statement, a teaching statement, and 2 samples of written work (please upload these 2 samples together). You will also be asked to provide contact information for three (3) references as part of your online application.

The deadline for assuring full consideration is September 18, 2019; however, positions will remain open and applications may be considered until the position is filled.

University of Wisconsin, Madison

Rank: Assistant Professor, Public Policy Approaches to Sexual Violence - Cluster Hire

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, International Relations

Specializations: Gender Politics & Policy, Criminal Justice, Health Care

The University of Wisconsin-Madison seeks to hire a faculty member with research and teaching interests in policy issues around sexual violence.

The scholar should have expertise in the interplay between social science, policy, and government. This may include scholars who are interested in issues such as rehabilitation and reintegration of sexual violence criminals, disparities in policing and sentencing policies for sexual violence criminals, sexual harassment policy issues in the public sector or workplace, Title IX issues in educational policy, child and adult sex trafficking, or the geopolitics of gender-based violence and sexual violence such as the context of war (and political violence more broadly), migration, refugee experiences, and disaster experiences. Or, this may include scholars who study the policy issues attached to: sexual violence imposed by domestic partners; gender/social inequality and its impact on sexual violence; substance abuse (e.g., alcohol and drug) and sexual violence; sexual violence against sex workers; weapon use and sexual violence; history of child abuse and sexual violence; sexual violence and HIV and other sexually transmitted diseases; the role of physicians in screening for sexual assault; marriage laws and sexual violence; mental health and sexual violence; and the relationship between sexual violence and economic pressure, social norms, inter-generational transmission, forced marriage, or education levels.

Ideally the candidate will be positioned to contribute knowledge to improve laws, or the implementation of laws or policies, to prevent and address sexual violence. Public policy experts could use their expertise in the policymaking process, as well as policy analysis and evaluation to identify "what works" and (what doesn't & "work" within existing sexual violence policies and laws, and then, in the spirit of the Wisconsin Idea, to share these evidence-based solutions with the public, as well as public sector leaders.

This faculty position is part of a faculty cluster search, "Sexual Violence: Connecting Social Science Research with Policy." The cluster defines "Sexual Violence" broadly, and it includes sexual assault, sexual harassment, sex trafficking, violence against sexual minorities, as well as gender-based violence.

Three faculty positions will be hired in the cluster, which will build a world-class, new core of interdisciplinary strength in research to address issues of sexual violence domestically and/or globally-making UW-Madison a research leader in this critical area. The first faculty position [PVL 99483] focuses on "Psychological Aspects of Sexual Violence" (including potentially research on psychological aspects of victimization, psychological factors contributing to perpetration, and/or theory-based development of interventions designed to prevent sexual assault), while the second faculty position [PVL 99523] is around "Societal Aspects of Sexual Violence" (including potentially research on the social causes and consequences of sexual violence, addressing the disproportionate impact of sexual violence in particular communities (e.g., sexual minority groups, people with disabilities) or the geopolitics of sexual violence and trauma. The third faculty position is "Policy Approaches to Sexual Violence," the subject of this search [PVL 99600].

These positions are part of the UW's Cluster Hiring Initiative, designed to foster innovative, outstanding research programs that will stimulate productive interactions among faculty and students in sexual violence research across campus and to expand interdisciplinary research in this area. Further information regarding this initiative can be found at: <https://facstaff.provost.wisc.edu/cluster-hiring-initiative/>

The successful candidate will have a primary appointment at the La Follette School of Public Affairs or another pertinent unit on campus. Tenure home will be determined at the time of hiring. Expectations include a commitment to the important functions of research, instruction, and outreach, as well as professional and university service as appropriate to faculty rank.

Responsibilities include conducting research and teaching at all levels required, with service at the professional and university level.

Teaching will include courses to undergraduate students, as well as graduate students. For example, the teaching load at the La Follette School of Public Affairs in a typical academic year consists of four courses each year. Mentoring graduate students will be required as well.

To apply, go to <http://jobs.wisc.edu> and search for PVL 99600. To begin the application process, please click on the 'Apply Now' button. You will be asked to create a profile and upload a C.V., cover letter, a research statement, a teaching statement, and 2 samples of written work (please upload these 2 samples together). You will also be asked to provide contact information for three (3) references as part of your online application.

The deadline for assuring full consideration is October 15, 2019; however, positions will remain open and applications may be considered until the position is filled.

Copenhagen Business School

Rank: Tenure Track Assistant Professor in Business and Government

Tenure Track Assistant Professorship in Business & Government at the Department of International Economics, Government and Business (EGB) at Copenhagen Business School (CBS) – Call for expression of interest.

The Department of International Economics, Government and Business (EGB) at CBS invites expressions of interest for a six-year Tenure-Track Assistant Professorship in Business & Government.

Candidates should hold, or be close to completing, a PhD in the fields of political science, political economy, international business, or related disciplines. Candidates should be able to demonstrate strong potential in research at the intersection of business and government. Applications are particularly encouraged from candidates with a research record in the fields of:

- Business-government relations
- Public Policy
- Comparative Politics
- Political Economy

Candidates should have excellent methodological skills. Participation in teaching in existing CBS programs and an interest in developing research-based teaching courses is expected. In addition, tenure track assistant professors are expected to live in Denmark and to actively contribute to department activities.

The Department of International Economics, Government and Business (EGB) brings together the study of states, markets, and international firms in the context of the challenges faced by emerging and advanced economies. EGB's research is based in international business, economics, and politics, and is of direct relevance to business, policy-makers, and scholars. Within this framework, the department has three principal areas of focus: States and markets, Firms and International Business and Societal challenges. The research environment is highly international. Department faculty directs a range of programs: BSc and MSc International Business, BSc and MSc International Business & Politics, International Business in Asia (IBA) and a graduate diploma program (HD) in International Business. For more information, please visit the department's homepage: <https://www.cbs.dk/en/research/departments-and-centres/department-of-international-economics-government-and-business>

Copenhagen Business School has more than 21,000 students and approximately 630 full-time faculty members. CBS thus is one of the largest business schools in Northern Europe, covering a wide range of academic fields related to business studies and the social sciences. CBS is ranked highly in an array of international rankings and aims to become a world-leading business university that recognizes the vital role of business and government in shaping society – and the equally important manner in which business practices and processes are shaped by governments and society.

Candidates who are available for an informal interview during the 2019 APSA Annual Conference in Washington D.C. (August 29 – September 1, 2019) should submit a letter of interest, a CV, and a job market paper by email to Professor (mso) Mogens K. Justesen, mkj.egb@cbs.dk. The deadline for submitting an expression of interest is August 20, 2019. Candidates invited for interview during APSA will be notified directly.

Informal interviews at APSA Annual Conference are highly encouraged, but it is also possible to apply for the position without an interview at the conference. To apply for the position, you must submit your application through CBS' online system: <https://www.cbs.dk/en/about-cbs/jobs-cbs/vacant-positions/tenure-track-assistant-professorship-in-business-government>. Bentley University

Rank: Assistant Professor, Comparative Public Policy/International Public Policy

JOB DESCRIPTION SUMMARY:

The Global Studies Department at Bentley University, invites applications for a tenure-track position in Comparative Public Policy/International Public Policy at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning Fall 2020. We particularly welcome candidates with expertise in policy areas such as sustainability, development, and health—areas that complement existing programs and appeal to students at a business university.

The successful candidate will be asked to contribute to enhancing our two departmental majors - Public Policy and International Affairs - and to complement the department's existing strengths, which are grounded in political science, geography and cultural studies. While the position is open with respect to region, we especially welcome candidates whose work focuses on regions with emerging economies, particularly in Asia or Africa.

Founded in 1917, Bentley University is a private, Business-focused university with a strong commitment to the Arts and Sciences. Bentley enrolls approximately 5,500 students at the undergraduate, graduate and doctoral levels. Located in Waltham, Massachusetts, Bentley is on the doorstep of one of the nation's leading cities. With over 35 colleges and universities, the greater Boston area is a vibrant place to work and live.

MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS:

The successful candidate will be expected to teach core courses in public policy/international affairs and electives in their area of expertise.

Candidates must demonstrate evidence of a continuing research agenda focused on publication and a strong dedication to excellence in teaching, with preference for candidates with classroom experience. We especially welcome candidates who bring diverse perspectives and experiences to the classroom.

PhD required. (Requirements for your doctoral degree must be confirmed prior to the start of the fall 2020 semester.)

Position will remain open until filled. However, priority consideration will be given to applications received by September 30, 2019.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS TO APPLICANTS:

All application materials should be submitted through Bentley's online employment site at <https://bentley.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/faculty>. Applications should include a letter of interest and CV. Names and contact information for three references are required upon application. Bentley will contact these confidential references for those candidates moving forward in the process.

Bentley University requires references checks and may conduct other pre-employment screening.

DIVERSITY STATEMENT:

Bentley University strives to create a campus community that welcomes the exchange of ideas, and fosters a culture that values differences and views them as a strength in our community.

Bentley University is an Equal Opportunity Employer, building strength through diversity. The University is committed to building a community of talented students, faculty and staff who reflect the diversity of global business. We strongly encourage applications from persons from underrepresented groups, individuals with disabilities, covered veterans and those with diverse experiences and backgrounds.

University of Richmond

Rank: Assistant Professor of Leadership Studies

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Public Policy, American Government and Politics

Specializations: Leadership Studies, Education Policy, Political Economy

The University of Richmond's Jepson School of Leadership Studies (JSLS) invites applications for a full-time tenure-track social scientist position at the rank of Assistant Professor for the 2020-21 academic year. Although ABDs will be considered, the successful candidate must have completed a Ph.D. in public administration, public policy, educational policy, political economy, political science, sociology, or a related field, by August 19, 2020.

JSLS is a collaborative, inclusive community of scholars in anthropology, economics, history, literature, philosophy, politics, social psychology and religion. We seek applicants who study, or have the potential and desire to study, leadership by drawing on their disciplinary expertise to inform their work. We are particularly interested in candidates whose demonstrated scholarly interests focus on the empirical analysis of data related to justice and explaining social and economic inequality.

Applicants should have the potential and desire to teach in an interdisciplinary undergraduate liberal arts environment. The successful candidate will be expected to teach elective courses related to his or her disciplinary training and to contribute to the curriculum by teaching such required courses as Leadership and the Social Sciences, Quantitative Social Science, and Theories and Models of Leadership. In their cover letter, candidates should demonstrate how their scholarly and teaching interests connect, or have the potential to connect, to leadership, broadly construed. (See <http://jepson.richmond.edu/> for more information.)

The University of Richmond is a private university located just a short drive from downtown Richmond, Virginia. Through its five schools and wide array of campus programming, the University combines the best qualities of a small liberal arts college and a large university. With nearly 4,000 students, an 8:1 student-faculty ratio, and 92% of traditional undergraduate students living on campus, the University is remarkably student-centered, focused on preparing students "to live lives of purpose, thoughtful inquiry, and responsible leadership in a global and pluralistic society."

The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse workforce and student body, and to modeling an inclusive campus community which values the expression of difference in ways that promote excellence in teaching, learning, personal development, and institutional success. Our academic community strongly encourages applications that are in keeping with this commitment.

Applicants should apply online at <http://jobs.richmond.edu> and submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter, and teaching statement. The teaching statement should articulate the candidate's teaching philosophy, interests, and future professional development goals as well as involvement in and commitment to inclusive pedagogy. The JSLS supports the University's commitment to promoting an inclusive campus community. For full consideration, applicants must specify in their cover letters how they are prepared to contribute to the imperatives of diversity and inclusion. In addition, please include the names and emails of three references who will receive an email asking them to submit their reference letters to the University's Human Resources department at URHR@richmond.edu. Review of applications will commence August 15, 2019. Phone or Skype interviews will be conducted in September. Committee members will be in attendance at the APSA Conference; attendance is not required for consideration. We anticipate inviting candidates to campus in October.

About the Position:

The Department of Political Science invites applications from qualified candidates for a Tier 2 CRC Chair appointment in Diversity and Politics in Global North Democracies at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor beginning July 1, 2020. The Department seeks an emerging scholar specializing in Indigenous, racialized, and/or gendered dimensions of political processes and institutions in democracies in the Global North and, in particular scholars whose research focus includes Canadian politics. An appointment with tenure is possible, depending on qualifications of the successful candidate.

Tier 2 Chairs are intended for exceptional emerging researchers (i.e. candidate will typically be less than 10 years from their highest degree at the time of nomination, or more than 10 years and has experienced legitimate career interruptions), acknowledged by their peers as having potential to lead in their field. Applicants who are more than 10 years from their highest degree may have their eligibility for a Tier 2 Canada Research Chair assessed through the program's Tier 2 justification process (<http://www.chairs-chaire.gc.ca/>). Carleton's research grants office can also provide more information (<https://carleton.ca/coris/>).

The successful candidate will work with the Faculty of Public Affairs to prepare the application for the Tier 2 CRC Chair. Academic appointment is conditional on the approval of the application by the CRC Program.

About the Academic Unit:

The Department of Political Science is a research-intensive unit, particularly proud of its pathbreaking tradition and continuing strength in the study of gender and politics, including establishing one of Canada's first political science PhD fields in Gender and Diversity. For more information, please visit: <https://carleton.ca/polisci/>.

Qualifications:

The successful applicant will possess:

- a PhD in Political Science or a cognate discipline;
- an outstanding record of research and peer-reviewed publications on diversity and politics, relative to stage of career;
- a record of high-quality teaching and supervision, appropriate to stage of career;
- commitment to continuing improvement and excellence in teaching;
- capacity to attract external research funding;

Application Instructions:

Please submit your application electronically in three PDF files, including: (1) a cover letter and CV; (2) a statement of research interests and samples of research, ideally including peer-reviewed publications; and (3) a teaching portfolio with evidence of teaching experience. Please identify any past experiences in supporting equity, diversity and inclusion in your previous institutional environment such as in curriculum development and in supporting diverse students. Applicants should also arrange to have three referees send supporting letters electronically.

All application materials should be directed to: Ms. Sandy Herbert, Department Administrator, Department of Political Science, Carleton University at sandy.herbert@carleton.ca.

To help us develop our equity programs, a confidential equity and diversity self-identification survey will be sent to all applicants separately.

Please indicate in your application if you are a Canadian citizen or permanent resident of Canada.

About Carleton University:

Carleton University is a dynamic and innovative research and teaching institution with a national and international reputation as a leader in collaborative teaching and learning, research and governance. With over 30,000 students in more than 100 programs of study, we encourage creative risk-taking, discovery, and the generation of transformative knowledge. We are proud to be one of the most accessible campuses in North America and our Paul Menton Centre for Students with Disabilities has been heralded as the gold standard for disability support services in Canada. To learn more about our university and the Ottawa, please visit www.carleton.ca/about.

We are strongly committed to equity, diversity, and inclusion in the nomination and appointment process. Carleton University is committed to fostering diversity within its community as a source of excellence, cultural enrichment, and social strength. We welcome those who would contribute to the further diversification of our university including, but not limited to: women; visible minorities; First Nations, Inuit and Métis peoples; persons with disabilities; and persons of any sexual orientation, gender identity and/or expression. Carleton understands that career paths vary. Legitimate career interruptions will in no way prejudice the assessment process and their impact will be carefully considered.

Applicants selected for an interview are asked to contact the Chair as soon as possible to discuss any accommodation requirements. Arrangements will be made in a timely manner.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority. All positions are subject to budgetary approval.

The Department of Political Science and Economics at Rowan University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science position beginning in Fall 2020. The Department seeks candidates with expertise in public policy. Applicants must demonstrate a commitment to excellence in both research and teaching, as well as the potential to secure external grant/fellowship support. Teaching responsibilities include introductory and advanced courses in public policy and American politics. A 3/3 teaching load is guaranteed for the first two years and can be renewed annually with evidence of continuing scholarship. Female candidates and candidates of color are strongly encouraged to apply. Rowan University is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, color, disability, gender, gender expression, gender identity, genetic information, national origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or status as a protected veteran.

If you plan to attend the American Political Science Association (APSA) conference in Washington D.C. and would like to meet, please send your CV and a letter of application by August 1 to pluta@rowan.edu. We plan to meet with a limited number of applicants during the conference; however, all applicants will have equal consideration, regardless of attendance at APSA. Full applications should be submitted through the online applicant tracking system as discussed below.

Rowan University is a comprehensive state-designated research institution with approximately 15,000 students. Its main campus is located in Glassboro, N.J., 20-miles southeast of Philadelphia and it has a branch campus and medical school in Camden and a second medical school in nearby Stratford. The University boasts seven colleges—Rohrer College of Business and colleges of Communication and Creative Arts, Education, Engineering, Humanities and Social Sciences, Performing Arts, and Science and Mathematics.

The College of Humanities and Social Sciences (CHSS) is the second largest college at Rowan University with seven departments, seven interdisciplinary programs, and seventeen majors. The College also has a number of established graduate programs and is in the process of developing more programs at the Master's and Doctoral level. The College also houses a number of Centers and Institutes that serve both research and pedagogical functions. CHSS places a strong emphasis on exceptional teaching, research and service. Our mission is to empower, transform, and engage students and faculty, as well as the global communities in which we live. We actively support faculty research and strive to include faculty as full partners in governance within the College.

Candidates should have an earned doctorate in Political Science (or related field) by August 1, 2020. Applications will be accepted on a rolling basis until the position is filled. The first full review of applications will begin on October 28, 2019. Applications must be submitted through our online applicant tracking system at <http://jobs.rowan.edu/cw/en-us/job/493760/assistant-professor-of-political-science-tenure-track>.

Applications must include a cover letter, a CV, unofficial transcripts, a writing sample, and a teaching portfolio (including a statement of teaching philosophy, courses taught, teaching evaluations, etc.). Please do not submit letters of reference at this time.

Rowan University values diversity and is committed to equal opportunity in employment. Candidates must demonstrate authorization to work in the United States. All positions are contingent upon budget appropriations.
