Resources and Guidance on Finding a Job in Political Science

Hundreds of academic positions are advertised each year in political science. Finding the openings is the easy part; knowing how to approach the application and interview process is a little more challenging. At APSA, we have collected resources to assist candidates in the academic job search. We would like to highlight a few of these key resources here. The complete list of job resources is available online at www.apsanet.org/jobs.

eJobs: This online resource contains comprehensive online listing of political science jobs, is updated daily with new job listings and candidate resumes, and is fully searchable by field of interest, name of employer/candidate, region, keyword, position, salary, type of institution, and most recent posts.

Data on Jobs Market: APSA gathers and releases data regarding the placement of political science Ph.Ds. View this information at www.apsanet.org/content_7623.cfm.

Mentoring: Enroll in the APSA Mentoring Program online at www.apsanet.org/mentoring.

eJobs Placement Interview Services: The eJobs Annual Meeting Placement Interview Service provides space and facilities for employers who have eJobs posted to interview candidates at the APSA meeting. Many other conferences, such as the Northeastern and Western, also use the APSA online service to schedule placement interviews. Check the listings online in eJobs.

Ethics Guide: The APSA Guide to Professional Ethics in Political Science includes specific guidance on hiring and employment practices. Order a print copy or view online at www.apsanet.org/ethics.

Asking the Right Questions: APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask Program

Asking the right questions provides valuable information for career decisions. As part of the APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask (JCQ) Program participating political science departments have agreed to answer the following questions from job candidates.

Salary

1. What is the salary structure?
2. How is salary normally negotiated?
3. How are annual increases handled?
4. Is there an automatic escalator to ensure the salaries of future hires will not outpace those of existing department members?

Service Activities

1. What are the expectations of pre-tenure and tenured faculty regarding:
 - departmental and institutional committee work,
 - professional or disciplinary activities, and
 - outreach activities to communities external to institution?

Research Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
 - access to research materials and equipment,
 - the employment of research assistants,
 - research expenses on/off campus, and
 - travel expenses for conferences?

2. What departmental or institutional resources are available to seek external funding and to administer external funding awards?

Teaching Support

1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
 - the development of teaching expertise,
 - innovations in teaching, and
 - the introduction of new courses and new technologies?
2. What are departmental expectations regarding:
 - the average course load,
 - the number of different courses taught by faculty, and
 - advising of graduate and undergraduate students?

Tenure, Renewal, and Annual Review

1. What policies and procedures govern the granting of tenure, renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty, and annual reviews of faculty performance?
2. What are the department's expectations for successful performance leading to the granting of tenure or renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty?
3. What are the department's expectations for a positive annual review?

Mentoring and Faculty Support Initiatives

1. What attention does the department give to integrating new faculty into the department, the institution, and in the profession?
2. Does the department or institution have programs that address:
 - the employment of dual-career professional couples,
 - family needs of faculty and staff, and
 - issues associated with minority faculty and staff?

Health and Life Insurance

1. What are the plans offered?
2. How are benefits disbursed?
3. What are the out-of-pocket expenses?
4. Are partners and/or children covered, and to what extent?
5. What portion of my paycheck will be deducted for these benefits?

Retirement

1. How many types of retirement plans are offered?
2. What is the matching percentage of the institution?
3. Is contribution required (and how much)?

ADMINISTRATION

GASPPA

Rank: Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair and Professor in Public Policy and Administration

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Administration, American Government and Politics

Apply at: <https://csus.peopleadmin.com/postings/5191>.

The position is for the Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair. Through this endowed chair position, the university is making a further commitment to its role as an anchor institution in the region by focusing on long-term, systemic solutions to entrenched social, economic, and political problems. Given that this is an endowed chair position, the work differs significantly from a traditional faculty member, and additional funds will be provided to ensure that the chair can meet those expectations.

The work of the Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair will result in an enhancement of the reputation of the Department of Public Policy and Administration, the College of Social Sciences and Interdisciplinary Studies, and California State University, Sacramento. This position's teaching responsibility is reduced and additional funds will be allocated from the Hazel Cramer Endowment to support the chair in executing the unique expectations of the position (e.g. research assistance, related travel, meeting and conferences, convenings, lectures, and other outreach related costs). The initial Hazel Cramer appointment is for five years. For reappointment, the incumbent endowed chair must undergo a thorough review.

The Department is seeking a community-engaged scholar willing to make significant contributions to the community through California State University's Downtown Center (<https://www.csus.edu/experience/anchor-university/sac-state-downtown/>) and the Anchor University Initiative (<https://www.csus.edu/experience/anchor-university/>). The successful applicant should have a distinguished and sustained record in the areas of teaching, scholarship, and service – and have demonstrated the ability to utilize evidence-based research to examine and address public policy problems especially relevant to the Sacramento Metropolitan Area and State of California. Emphasis is placed on the candidate's substantial and continued contributions. Given the demographics of the Sacramento Region and California, the successful applicant must have evidence of a record in teaching, scholarship, and service that emphasizes service to diverse populations. Through previous work, and a clear plan, the successful applicant must have an applied research agenda, focused on solving practical problems. Examples of desired subject areas include the study of public policy and administration related to social justice, political engagement, education, public finance, urban redevelopment, transportation, health care, affordable housing, homelessness, criminal justice, unemployment, poverty, environmental justice, or other similar issues.

ESSENTIAL DUTIES

- Teach a reduced course load over an academic year of two semesters.
- Continue distinguished scholarly and professional contributions related to public policy and administration.
- Create and execute a sustainable plan to serve the community through Sac State Downtown (examples include, but are not limited to, developing and executing a community engaged research agenda that includes translating research into possible solution sets/ideas for practice; creating new work-based learning opportunities for PPA students; developing and implementing innovative educational programs and curricula; fostering collaborations across the college, university, academic field, and entities in the community; recruiting and supervising graduate students; and providing outreach to the broader community).

- Supervise master's projects related to the area of public policy and administration.
- Provide service to the community around public policy and administration.
- Provide service to the department, college, and university.
- Embrace the mission of the California State University and its students (<https://www2.calstate.edu/csu-system/about-the-csu/Pages/mission.aspx>). Our students are diverse and represent populations that have been historically underserved in both undergraduate and graduate education. A successful applicant must be excited to serve our student populations.

QUALIFICATIONS

REQUIRED

- Ph.D. or equivalent terminal degree (e.g., Doctorate in Public Administration, Juris Doctorate) in public policy or a discipline (Public Administration, Political Science, Economics, Urban Studies, etc.) closely related to it.
- Knowledge, experience, and commitment to diversity and issues of just, equitable, and inclusive education and practice.
- Experience in public service with a commitment to working with the Sacramento community through California State University, Sacramento's Anchor Initiative and Downtown Center.
- Teaching experience and success in at least one of the core topics in the MPPA curriculum that includes public policy, public administration, qualitative or quantitative research methods, political environment of policymaking, and public budgeting and finance.
- Professional experience (outside of the classroom) and success in areas related to public policy and administration.
- Strong commitment to master's level university teaching and project supervision to a diverse student body and broader community.

PREFERRED

- Experience working in an interdisciplinary academic department.
- Interest in experimenting with different forms of student engagement in the classroom.
- Publications (peer-reviewed journal articles and/or professional articles) in areas related to public policy and administration.
- Teaching experience and success in more than one of the core topics in the MPPA curriculum that includes public policy, qualitative or quantitative research methods, political environment of policymaking, and public budgeting and finance; or the elective courses of collaborative governance, urban public policy, or urban land development.

Coastal Carolina University

Dean of the Spadoni College of Education and Social Sciences

Coastal Carolina University invites applications for the position of founding Dean of the Spadoni College of Education and Social Sciences. The University seeks an individual who has the ability to collaboratively lead a team of faculty and staff in developing a vision for this new academic unit and who will provide the direction and leadership needed to enhance the outstanding academic programs housed in the new college. Reporting to the Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs, the Dean is administratively responsible for planning, organizing, budgeting, coordinating, directing and evaluating the instructional, research, scholarly, and service activities of the College. The Dean is also expected to take an active leadership role in recruiting and retaining faculty, staff, and students, and to represent the needs and interests of the College to the University and the greater community. It is anticipated that the new Dean will begin responsibilities July 1, 2021.

Coastal Carolina University is a public comprehensive liberal arts institution located in Conway, South Carolina, just nine miles from the Atlantic coastal resort city of Myrtle Beach. Coastal Carolina University enrolls over 10,000 students from 45 states and 58 nations. The University is accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools to award the baccalaureate and selective master's degrees of national and regional significance across a range of disciplines, a specialist degree in educational leadership and instructional technology, and Ph.D. degrees in Marine Science and Education. The education programs at Coastal Carolina University were reaccredited by the Council for the Accreditation of Educator Preparation (CAEP) in spring 2020. All individual teacher preparation programs are nationally Specialized Professional Associations (SPA) or state recognized.

The Spadoni College of Education and Social Sciences

This newly organized academic unit includes over 1000 students within undergraduate programs in anthropology and geography, early childhood education, elementary education, middle level education, physical education, political science, sociology, and special education. The college also offers a number of graduate degree programs, including a Ph.D. in education, Ed.S. degrees in instructional technology and educational leadership, M.Ed. programs in educational leadership, instructional technology, special education, and language, literacy, and culture, and an M.A.T. in secondary education. The new dean will also oversee a number of academic institutes and programs, including the Call Me MISTER Program, the Dalton and Linda Floyd Family Mentoring Program, the Edgar Dyer Institute for Leadership and Public Policy, the South Carolina Teaching Fellows program, the Teacher Cadet Program, and the LIFE Program.

The successful candidate will have demonstrated:

- At least five years of progressive responsibility with achievements in administrative positions, including Department Chair, Center Director and/or Associate Dean, as well as experience with complex problem-solving, budgeting, personnel issues, program development, and fundraising;
- Experience in successfully leading and implementing a collaborative visioning process for a new academic unit;
- An understanding and appreciation of both education and the social sciences; ideally, the candidate's experience or area of expertise will bridge education and the social sciences;
- An ability to listen and communicate well, engage in effective conflict resolution, inspire and motivate others, and build collaborative teams;
- A commitment to developing community within the college and an egalitarian approach to supporting the needs of each program within the college;
- A commitment to support the ongoing professional development of faculty and staff colleagues;
- Experience in and a commitment to building relationships between the College and the university's service region via outreach, collaborative initiatives, and internships for students;
- The ability to promote and advance the University's teacher-scholar faculty model in a student-centered environment, and the ability to advocate for and mediate the diverse aspirations and needs of faculty, staff, and students;
- A proven ability to recruit and retain a diverse faculty and staff and to foster a community that values cultural, ethnic, and racial inclusivity, intercultural engagement, and an understanding of diversity with regard to sexuality and gender identity;
- Experience in and commitment to developing innovative academic programs that advance and support the mission of the University, including new programs that will meet regional needs, including a global perspective;
- Experience with master planning and the ability to effectively negotiate for the College's diverse space needs;
- Experience in and commitment to soliciting and increasing external gifts and fostering productive partnerships and connections between the College and the surrounding community, including cultural, social, educational, and economic development, as well as alumni and local/regional business partnerships;
- An ability to represent comprehensively the College to internal and external constituencies;
- Familiarity with assessment and accreditation processes and the ability to ensure institutional good standing with CAEP, with state protocols and policies, as well as disciplinary accreditors in education and the social sciences;
- An earned doctorate or appropriate terminal degree from an accredited institution in one of the disciplines represented in the College, along with a rigorous record of teaching, scholarly and/or creative accomplishments that will support appointment as a tenured full professor and overall leader of the College; and,
- The ability to foster and manage positive change in a dynamic environment.

Coastal Carolina University is committed to fostering an environment that embraces diversity, equity and inclusion, and we seek candidates who will contribute to a climate that supports the growth and development of a diverse campus community. The University provides equal opportunity without regard to race, color, gender, gender identity, gender expression, sexual orientation, age, religion, national or ethnic origin, veteran status or disability in admissions, employment and in all of its educational programs and activities. We encourage individuals from underrepresented groups to apply.

Coastal Carolina University is an EO/AA employer.

Applicants should include a cover letter, a comprehensive CV, and the names, addresses and telephone numbers of at least five (5) professional references. West Virginia University

Rank: Director of Institute for Policy Research and Public Affairs

Subfield(s): Administration, Public Policy, Public Administration

Job No. 16108

West Virginia University (WVU) seeks a visionary and enterprising leader to serve as the inaugural Director of the Institute for Policy Research and Public Affairs affiliated with Eberly College of Arts and Sciences and the John D. Rockefeller, Jr. School of Policy and Politics. This is a tenured faculty position at the rank of Professor or Associate Professor in the Eberly College. The Director will lead a new initiative to advance public policy and public affairs research and translational activities. This initiative is one of three divisions planned to be established within the Rockefeller School. The other two deal with academic programs and engaged learning and service. In addition to the duties outlined below, the Director would work closely with WVU leadership to help fully establish the Rockefeller School.

As Director, the successful applicant will support faculty and researchers across complementary disciplines to collaboratively build research capacity in public policy. They will strengthen related resources, build on expertise and research capabilities that currently exist across campus, increase externally sponsored research in social and public policy, as well as create partnerships with foundations, industry, government agencies and other universities. As part of this effort, the Director will be expected to recruit Research Fellows to work within the school. In addition to Departments affiliated with the Rockefeller School, Research Fellows may be recruited from within other WVU programs and external institutions and agencies. The Director will connect policy research to the teaching and outreach mission of the Rockefeller School and will report to the office of the Dean of the Eberly College. The Director will have a dedicated administrative assistant as well as support for graduate research students.

Qualifications include a Ph.D. or equivalent degree in Public Policy, Political Science, Public Administration, or a closely related field; a sustained record of externally funded research in the area of public policy; a record of multidisciplinary scholarship; ability to translate academic research into information for public dissemination and engagement; a record of successful administrative leadership; ability to work collaboratively in a diverse environment with a range of faculty, students, administrators, and external constituents to reach a common goal; ability to develop partnerships with foundations and industry in support of the Institute's programs; understanding of WVU's mission as a land-grant institution; ability to manage budgets and establish fiscal priorities; strong written and oral communication skills; and an established record of research and teaching that will merit appointment at, or promotion to, the rank of Professor or Associate Professor with a grant of tenure at WVU.

WVU is a comprehensive land grant university with approximately 30,000 students and is classified by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education as a very high research (R1) Institution. The Rockefeller School of Policy and Politics currently consists of 21 tenured and tenure-track faculty and is affiliated with the Eberly College of Arts and Sciences.

To apply for this position, please visit <http://hr.research.wvu.edu> and click on the "View Jobs" link. Qualified applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a description of the applicant's potential to further our progress in building a diverse and inclusive academic community (which will be evaluated without regard to the applicant's personal demographics), and contact information for three references. The cover letter should address the applicant's qualifications for each aspect of the responsibilities listed above. For questions or additional information, contact Prof. Duncan Lorimer via e-mail: duncan.lorimer@mail.wvu.edu. The screening process will begin on March 1, 2021 and will continue until the position is filled.

The University community of Morgantown offers plentiful educational opportunities as well as recreational outlets, is within easy driving distance of Pittsburgh, PA, and is about 200 miles northwest of Washington, D.C. WVU is an Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer and the recipient of an NSF ADVANCE award for gender equity. The university is committed to diversity and welcomes applications from all qualified individuals, including minorities, females, individuals with disabilities, and veterans.

AMERICAN GOVERNMENT AND POLITICS

Rank: Fellow (Job ID: 2021-2545)

Overview

Join one of the most influential, most quoted and most trusted think tanks!

The Brookings Institution is a nonprofit public policy organization based in Washington, DC. Our mission is to conduct in-depth research that leads to new ideas for solving problems facing society at the local, national and global level.

We bring together leading experts in government and academia from all over the world, rooted in open-minded inquiry and representing diverse points of view, who provide the highest quality research, policy recommendations, and analysis. Research topics cover a full range of public policy issues in economics, foreign policy, development, governance and metropolitan policy.

With fair and transparent business practices, clear communication, mutual respect, and a collaborative atmosphere that offers both professional and personal development opportunities, Brookings offers an inclusive and welcoming workplace that values the efforts of all contributors.

The Governance Studies program at Brookings aims to be the leading, independent voice in the domestic policymaking sphere through analyzing policy issues, political institutions and processes, and contemporary governance challenges. Lawfare, founded as a small blog in 2010, has grown to become one of the nation's most trusted sources of information and analysis on issues of national security law, covering a broad range of issues from cybersecurity and terrorism investigations to war powers and government surveillance.

Please note: This position is based in Brookings' Washington, DC office. In response to COVID-19, Brookings staff are temporarily teleworking. The person hired for this position must be willing to move to or currently reside in Washington DC, Maryland, or Northern Virginia by their date of hire.

Responsibilities

Ready to contribute to Brookings success?

The Governance Studies program at The Brookings Institution ("Brookings") is accepting applications for a two year Fellow appointment in support of Lawfare, a high-impact, rapidly-growing, nonpartisan website examining issues at the intersection of national security and the law, published in cooperation with Brookings. The successful candidate will have demonstrated expertise in national security policy, a working knowledge of and strong interest in Congress and legislative politics, and experience reading and analyzing legislation.

The Fellow will have the opportunity to join the Lawfare editorial team and contribute to Lawfare's unparalleled analysis of complex challenges in the US national security arena, specifically as it intersects with legislative and executive efforts to reform executive branch authorities. This includes: writing thoughtful summaries and analyses of passed and proposed legislation for publication on the site, translating complex, technical documents for wider audience consumption, participating in relevant events, and discussing topics on the Lawfare Podcast. As a part of the editorial team, the Fellow will collaborate with multiple stakeholders to edit works for publication and generate ideas for site content in a fast-paced, deadline-driven environment. She/he will also have the opportunity to do independent research within the Governance Studies program at Brookings.

Qualifications

Ready to make an impact? In this role, you will support Brookings values of collegiality, respect, inclusion, diversity and community, and bring the following qualifications:

Bachelor's degree required. 3-5 years post-graduate experience in legislative or national security writing required. Master's degree preferred. Candidates are required to have demonstrated expertise in national security policy, and a proven record of publication on the subject of executive-legislative disputes. The successful candidate will have a rare combination of superlative writing and editing skills, familiarity with Congress, experience reading and analyzing legislation, and a demonstrated record of writing high-impact work on executive abuse and reform. He/she should also be able to work well as a part of a team and thrive in a fast-paced environment and react quickly to changes in the news cycle.

Must be authorized to work for any employer in the U.S.

Additional Information:

What can we offer you? Brookings provides a generous benefit package that is comprehensive and includes both traditional benefits and unique offerings.

Brookings requires that all applicants submit a cover letter and CV/resume. Please attach your cover letter and C/V resume as one document when you apply. Applicants should submit a CV with a list of publications, a cover letter describing research interests, and at least three references by March 5, 2021. Start date is negotiable; however, filling the position by April 1 is strongly preferred.

Successful completion of a background investigation is required for employment at Brookings.

Brookings welcomes and celebrates diversity in all its forms. We welcome applications that reflect a variety of backgrounds based on ideology, race, ethnicity, religion, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, disability, veteran status, first generation college goers, and other factors protected by law. Brookings is proud to be an equal-opportunity employer that is committed to promoting a diverse and inclusive workplace.

Ohio Northern University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Assistant Professor of Political Science

The School of Social Sciences and Human Interaction at Ohio Northern University in Ada, Ohio, seeks a dynamic tenure-track Assistant Professor of Political Science with a major field in American Politics to begin in Fall 2021. The ability to teach courses in public policy is strongly desired; health policy is preferred and gender/racial issues a plus.

In addition to having strong teaching skills and an active scholarly agenda, the successful candidate will teach courses focusing on American politics and public policy and be able to contribute to the university's newly formed Institute for Civics and Public Policy (ICAPP). The ability to offer courses focused on gender or race would be welcome. The person selected for this position will be a visible and engaged faculty member in our school, the college, the university, and the community. The successful candidate will have experience or demonstrable interest in working closely with students in research and advising.

Principle Responsibilities: Teach courses in American politics and public policy, mentor undergraduate students, and maintain an active research agenda.

Required Skills: Excellent teaching, ability to mentor student research, ability to maintain a productive research agenda.

Minimum Qualifications: ABD in Political Science, Public Policy, or related field

GASPPA

Rank: Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair and Professor in Public Policy and Administration

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Administration, American Government and Politics

Apply at: <https://csus.peopleadmin.com/postings/5191>.

The position is for the Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair. Through this endowed chair position, the university is making a further commitment to its role as an anchor institution in the region by focusing on long-term, systemic solutions to entrenched social, economic, and political problems. Given that this is an endowed chair position, the work differs significantly from a traditional faculty member, and additional funds will be provided to ensure that the chair can meet those expectations.

The work of the Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair will result in an enhancement of the reputation of the Department of Public Policy and Administration, the College of Social Sciences and Interdisciplinary Studies, and California State University, Sacramento. This position's teaching responsibility is reduced and additional funds will be allocated from the Hazel Cramer Endowment to support the chair in executing the unique expectations of the position (e.g. research assistance, related travel, meeting and conferences, convenings, lectures, and other outreach related costs). The initial Hazel Cramer appointment is for five years. For reappointment, the incumbent endowed chair must undergo a thorough review.

The Department is seeking a community-engaged scholar willing to make significant contributions to the community through California State University's Downtown Center (<https://www.csus.edu/experience/anchor-university/sac-state-downtown/>) and the Anchor University Initiative (<https://www.csus.edu/experience/anchor-university/>). The successful applicant should have a distinguished and sustained record in the areas of teaching, scholarship, and service – and have demonstrated the ability to utilize evidence-based research to examine and address public policy problems especially relevant to the Sacramento Metropolitan Area and State of California. Emphasis is placed on the candidate's substantial and continued contributions. Given the demographics of the Sacramento Region and California, the successful applicant must have evidence of a record in teaching, scholarship, and service that emphasizes service to diverse populations. Through previous work, and a clear plan, the successful applicant must have an applied research agenda, focused on solving practical problems. Examples of desired subject areas include the study of public policy and administration related to social justice, political engagement, education, public finance, urban redevelopment, transportation, health care, affordable housing, homelessness, criminal justice, unemployment, poverty, environmental justice, or other similar issues.

ESSENTIAL DUTIES

- Teach a reduced course load over an academic year of two semesters.
- Continue distinguished scholarly and professional contributions related to public policy and administration.
- Create and execute a sustainable plan to serve the community through Sac State Downtown (examples include, but are not limited to, developing and executing a community engaged research agenda that includes translating research into possible solution sets/ideas for practice; creating new work-based learning opportunities for PPA students; developing and implementing innovative educational programs and curricula; fostering collaborations across the college, university, academic field, and entities in the community; recruiting and supervising graduate students; and providing outreach to the broader community).

- Supervise master's projects related to the area of public policy and administration.
- Provide service to the community around public policy and administration.
- Provide service to the department, college, and university.
- Embrace the mission of the California State University and its students

(<https://www2.calstate.edu/csu-system/about-the-csu/Pages/mission.aspx>). Our students are diverse and represent populations that have been historically underserved in both undergraduate and graduate education. A successful applicant must be excited to serve our student populations.

QUALIFICATIONS

REQUIRED

- Ph.D. or equivalent terminal degree (e.g., Doctorate in Public Administration, Juris Doctorate) in public policy or a discipline (Public Administration, Political Science, Economics, Urban Studies, etc.) closely related to it.
- Knowledge, experience, and commitment to diversity and issues of just, equitable, and inclusive education and practice.
- Experience in public service with a commitment to working with the Sacramento community through California State University, Sacramento's Anchor Initiative and Downtown Center.
- Teaching experience and success in at least one of the core topics in the MPPA curriculum that includes public policy, public administration, qualitative or quantitative research methods, political environment of policymaking, and public budgeting and finance.
- Professional experience (outside of the classroom) and success in areas related to public policy and administration.
- Strong commitment to master's level university teaching and project supervision to a diverse student body and broader community.

PREFERRED

- Experience working in an interdisciplinary academic department.
- Interest in experimenting with different forms of student engagement in the classroom.
- Publications (peer-reviewed journal articles and/or professional articles) in areas related to public policy and administration.
- Teaching experience and success in more than one of the core topics in the MPPA curriculum that includes public policy, qualitative or quantitative research methods, political environment of policymaking, and public budgeting and finance; or the elective courses of collaborative governance, urban public policy, or urban land development.

Lafayette College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

The Department of Government and Law invites applications for a one-year visiting position in American Politics with a focus on Race and Ethnic Politics. The position runs for academic year 2021-2022 and will be at the rank of Visiting Assistant Professor if Ph.D. is in hand by the start date, or, for ABD, at the rank of Visiting Instructor. Teaching requirements include three courses each semester, and candidates should be prepared to teach Introduction to U.S. Politics, as well as intermediate and advanced courses in their areas of expertise.

Applications should include a letter of intent that contains a statement of teaching philosophy and scholarly interests, curriculum vitae, sample of scholarly work, graduate school transcript, evidence of teaching ability (including, if available, syllabi and teaching evaluations), and three letters of recommendation. In the letter of intent, applicants should address the ways in which their teaching, scholarship, and/or community engagement will support Lafayette College's commitment to diversity and inclusion articulated in the college's diversity statement (<https://diversity.lafayette.edu/diversity-statement/>).

Please upload application material electronically through Interfolio at <http://apply.interfolio.com/84111>. Review of applications will begin on March 8, 2021 and continue until the position is filled. Questions may be directed to Helena Silverstein, Department Head, at silversh@lafayette.edu.

Lafayette College is committed to creating a diverse community, one that is inclusive and responsive, and is supportive of each and all of its faculty, students, and staff. All members of the College community share a responsibility for creating, maintaining, and developing a learning environment in which difference is valued, equity is sought, and inclusiveness is practiced. Lafayette College is an equal opportunity employer and encourages applications from women and minorities. Located within 70 miles of New York and Philadelphia, Lafayette College is a highly selective undergraduate institution with significant resources to support faculty members in their teaching and scholarship.

Butler University

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Gender Politics & Policy, Native American Politics

The Department of Political Science at Butler University invites applications for a full-time non-tenure-track lecturer for a two-year appointment with possibility of renewal. Applicants should have a strong commitment to excellent, inclusive undergraduate teaching. We are particularly interested in candidates whose teaching and scholarship engages intersectional, abolitionist, or critical historical institutional perspectives on race/ethnicity/indigeneity, gender/sexuality, and politics in the United States and potentially beyond it. The successful candidate will teach lower-level and upper-level undergraduate political science courses (including an introductory American politics survey), will contribute to the Core Curriculum, and will help build an inclusive learning environment for our increasingly diverse student population. This faculty member could choose to affiliate with the International Studies; Peace and Conflict Studies; Race, Gender, and Sexuality Studies; and/or Science, Technology, and Environmental Studies interdisciplinary programs. This lecturer will teach four courses per semester, typically with no more than six distinct course preparations per year.

Review of applications will begin January 11, but the position will remain open until filled. Applicants should have earned a doctorate in political science or a related field at the time of appointment before August 1, 2021. Applicants should submit the following to psearch@butler.edu: a cover letter that highlights the applicant's teaching interests, experience, and commitment to inclusive, excellent teaching and summarizes their research interests; a curriculum vitae; a statement of teaching philosophy, a sample syllabus, and a list of 3-5 references including name, title and contact information. Shortlisted candidates will be asked to provide additional evidence of inclusive teaching excellence including one or more additional syllabi, descriptions of course activities or assignments, and student evaluations or teaching observations; 3 letters of recommendation, and unofficial transcripts. Final round candidates will need to provide official transcripts and will be asked to consent to background checks. The successful candidate will start August 2021, subject to final budgetary approval.

The Butler Political Science Program, distinctively grounded in a firm commitment to social justice, democracy, and human rights, engages students in the study and practice of politics to promote the collective good at the local, national, and global level. The program defines politics broadly as the formal and informal ways societies govern themselves. The program offers an innovative curriculum that crosses traditional disciplinary boundaries to provide students with the knowledge and skills necessary to pursue positive social change. Political science alumni have pursued careers in electoral politics, teaching, law, government, journalism, business, and non-profit organizations, and have earned graduate and professional degrees in several fields.

Radford University

Rank: Chair/Professor or Associate Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Public Policy

The Department of Political Science at Radford University invites applications for the position of Chair of the Political Science Department beginning August 10, 2021. This is a tenured appointment, subject to budgetary approval, at the rank of associate or full professor, commensurate with qualifications. Specialists in American Government, Public Administration, or Public Policy are preferred as is the ability to teach courses in American Institutions and Race and Ethnicity Politics. The Department Chair is expected to provide administrative leadership to seven faculty members and staff; nurture relationships across campus and with stakeholders; and seek out and steward resources. The chair should model excellence in teaching; maintain an active program of scholarship; and engage in appropriate college-level service. We seek a department chair who is eager to energetically lead the department in the climate of challenges to higher education nationally and in the context of a brand new general education program (known as REAL) at our university.

Required Qualifications: Applicants should possess (1) a Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field; (2) the rank of either Full or Associate Professor; (3) an established record of research and teaching excellence; and (4) previous administrative experience or university service that would demonstrate the applicant's capacity to carry out the duties of department chair.

Radford University is a comprehensive public university of approximately 9,500 students that has received national recognition for many of its undergraduate and graduate academic programs, as well as its sustainability initiatives. Radford University serves the Commonwealth of Virginia and the nation through a wide range of academic, cultural, human service, and research programs and is one of the premier teacher preparation universities in the Commonwealth. Well known for its strong faculty/student bonds, a growing, diverse student population, innovative use of technology in the learning environment and vibrant student life on a beautiful 204-acre American classical campus, Radford University offers students many opportunities to get involved and succeed in and out of the classroom. Information about the current university strategic plan can be found at: <https://www.radford.edu/content/strategic-planning/home.html>.

The city of Radford, Virginia is located in the heart of the New River Valley in southwest Virginia. Nestled in the Blue Ridge Mountains, the region is a haven for music lovers and outdoor enthusiasts. Just a short drive from Blacksburg and Roanoke, the region boasts a vibrant art scene and local food culture as well as many community-university partnership opportunities. Radford is also a two-hour drive from the Piedmont Triad and two and a half hours from Charlotte, North Carolina.

As the largest college at Radford University and home to Liberal Arts instruction on campus, the College of Humanities and Behavioral Sciences is central to the mission of the university. Faculty members strive to develop in their students a range of intellectual skills and habits of mind that will serve them well throughout their academic and professional lives, as well as in their personal lives as productive citizens. Students regularly engage with faculty in experiential learning activities as well as in professional internships that provide opportunities to serve communities while preparing for careers. Faculty members' scholarly and creative activity is viewed as a vital corollary to the instructional mission of the institution, with faculty encouraged to co-author research with undergraduate and graduate students.

The College of Humanities and Behavioral Sciences at Radford University is located in the new 145,000 square foot state-of-the-art instructional facility that is home to all 120+ college faculty members. Centrally located on the main quad of the campus, it is the largest academic building at the university and houses an array of specialized teaching and research facilities. Apply online at <https://jobs.radford.edu/postings/8961>. Only online applications will be accepted. Candidates should submit the following: 1) a letter of application; 2) a current and complete curriculum vitae; 3) a statement of management philosophy; 4) a diversity statement; 5) evidence of teaching effectiveness (which should include recent teaching evaluations and either a teaching philosophy or a narrative about a new class or revisions to an existing class); 6) a research sample; 7) contact information for three references (not the letters themselves); and 8) copies of unofficial transcripts.

Review of applications will begin March 10, 2021 and will continue until the position is filled. Radford University is an EO/AA employer committed to diversity. Individuals with disabilities requiring accommodations in the application process should call (540) 831-5008 (voice) or (540) 831-5128 (TTY). If you need access to a computer, you may visit our office at 600 Tyler Avenue, Radford, Virginia, or the local Virginia Employment Commission.

Utah Valley University

Rank: Faculty, Tenure-Track - POLS Campaigns and Elections

The History and Political Science Department at Utah Valley University invite applicants for a teaching-focused tenure-track Assistant Professor position with a teaching load of 12 credits per semester. Under the supervision of the Department's chair, the successful candidate will be required to teach upper-division courses in Campaigns and Elections, Media and Politics, and Campaign Management within the American Government emphasis as well as the department's introductory American Government course. The ideal candidate will also be expected to maintain an active record of scholarly activity commensurate with a 4/4 teaching load while enhancing UVU's dual-integrated mission with a focus on engagement, inclusion, and student success by contributing to the department's continuing applied politics approach within the American Government emphasis.

The History and Political Science Department currently consists of 11 full-time faculty members in Political Science and serves almost 300 students majoring in Political Science. Our approach to professional education is student-centered and demands a high level of faculty-student engagement, with substantial institutional support for engaging students in faculty research. UVU values diverse opinions and perspectives and seeks to be inclusive in all practices.

As the largest university in the state of Utah, Utah Valley University is a rapidly growing regional university of nearly 40,000 students and is located in Orem, Utah at the foot of the beautiful Wasatch Mountains about 30 miles south of Salt Lake City. Utah Valley University is an open-enrollment institution that values candidates whose experiences in teaching and scholarship have prepared them to contribute to the university's commitment to diversity and inclusive excellence with students from diverse backgrounds, and who possess a strong commitment to improving access to higher education for historically underrepresented students.

Applicants must submit the following materials by March 4, 2021, for full consideration: Unofficial Transcripts, CV, Cover Letter, Teaching Statement, and Research Statement.

Middle Georgia State University

Rank: Assistant Professor, American and/or comparative politics

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Public Law

Specializations: American Politics, Africa, Judicial Politics

JOB SUMMARY: The Department of Political Science at Middle Georgia State University (<https://www.mga.edu/political-science>) invites applications for a tenure-track appointment in political science, with a specialization in American politics or comparative politics, at the rank of assistant professor, to be primarily based on the Cochran campus. This is a 10-month position with a teaching load of 12 credit hours per semester (4-4) of undergraduate courses in political science, typically including multiple sections of the introductory American Government course, as well as more advanced undergraduate courses in political science in the candidate's area of specialization. The ability to contribute to at least one of the minors offered by the department (African and African diaspora studies, environmental policy studies, or pre-law) is desirable.

MAJOR DUTIES: Teaching responsibilities may include day and/or evening courses, partially and fully online courses, and courses taught via video conferencing; faculty are also expected to travel to teach and attend meetings at other campus locations when needed. Tenure-track faculty are expected to have an active scholarly agenda, including publication in peer-reviewed outlets; student advising and service to the department, school, university, and community are also expected for promotion and tenure. Summer teaching opportunities may also be available, contingent on student demand.

QUALIFICATIONS: Candidates should have earned a doctorate in political science, or a doctorate in related field including at least 18 semester hours of graduate coursework in political science, from a regionally-accredited institution; ABD candidates will only be considered if they will earn their doctorate by August 1, 2021. Experience as an instructor of record, demonstrated expertise in American politics or comparative politics, and/or the ability to contribute to one or more of the minors offered by the department are desirable. Candidates must have a record of teaching and potential for scholarship that warrants appointment at the rank of assistant professor.

ABOUT THE UNIVERSITY AND SCHOOL OF EDUCATION AND BEHAVIORAL SCIENCES: Middle Georgia State University is a 4-year public, doctoral level university. MGA was formed through the consolidation of Macon State College and Middle Georgia College in 2013. Serving over 8,000 students who reflect the diversity of the state, the university encompasses all five campuses of the prior two institutions, with campuses in Cochran, Dublin, Eastman, Macon, and Warner Robins. Annual tuition and fees make MGA the most affordable public university in the state of Georgia. MGA is regionally accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges.

SALARY: Commensurate with qualifications and experience.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: The search committee will review complete applications beginning no earlier than February 22, 2021, and will continue to accept applications until the position is filled.

FOR MORE INFORMATION: Informal inquiries about the position may be made to Dr. Christopher N. Lawrence, chair of the Department of Political Science at christopher.lawrence@mga.edu.

TO APPLY: All application materials must be submitted by email to recruitment@mga.edu, as a single PDF attachment, with the subject line “10018045 Assistant Professor of Political Science 2.5.2021”. Application materials must include (1) a completed MGA faculty application, (2) a letter of interest that describes how you meet the qualifications for the position, (3) a curriculum vitae, (4) a statement of teaching philosophy, (5) names and contact information of three references, and (6) unofficial transcripts of all post-secondary/college-level work. Paper application materials will not be accepted.

Background checks will be conducted on all final candidates.

University of Toronto

Rank: Assistant Professor American political development/ethics, society, and law

Assistant Professor American political development/ethics, society, and law

Description:

The Department of Political Science and the Ethics, Society, and Law Program, Trinity College, in the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of Toronto invite applications for a full-time tenure stream position in the area of American political development/ethics, society and law. This will be a joint appointment between the Department of Political Science (51%) and Trinity College (49%). The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor and will commence on July 1, 2021 or shortly thereafter.

We seek candidates who work at the interface between the structural foundations of American political development (such as federalism, separation of powers, and constitutional values) and core questions of ethics (such as human rights and human dignity). Applicants must have earned a PhD degree in Political Science or a related field and have a minimum of one year of postdoctoral training by the time of appointment, or shortly thereafter, with a demonstrated record of excellence in research and teaching in relevant disciplinary areas.

We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and strengthen our existing departmental and program strengths. The successful candidate will undertake undergraduate and graduate teaching responsibilities on the University's downtown (St. George) campus. Applicants are encouraged to review the research and teaching profiles of current faculty members. Please visit our homes pages to learn more about us (Department of Political Science <https://politics.utoronto.ca>; and Ethics, Society, and Law program <https://www.trinity.utoronto.ca/study-arts-science/ethics-society-law/>).

The successful candidate will be expected to pursue innovative and independent research at the highest international level and to establish an outstanding, competitive and externally funded research program. Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence which can be demonstrated by a record of publications in top-ranked and field relevant journals or forthcoming publications meeting high international standards, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, awards and accolades, and strong endorsements from referees of high standing.

Evidence of excellence in teaching will be provided through teaching accomplishments, the teaching dossier including a teaching statement, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations submitted as part of the application, as well as strong letters of reference.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment demonstrated through the application materials.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter; a current curriculum vitae; a research statement outlining current and future research interests; a recent writing sample; and a teaching dossier to include a teaching statement, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations. Equity and diversity are essential to academic excellence. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of their contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover (but need not be limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups. Applicants must provide the name and contact information of three references. The University of Toronto's recruiting tool will automatically solicit and collect letters of reference from each once an application is submitted. Applicants, however, remain responsible for ensuring that references submit letters (on letterhead, dated and signed) by the closing date. Submission guidelines can be found at <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>. If you have any questions about this position, please contact Sari Sherman at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by Monday, March 15, 2021.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Diversity Statement

The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous / Aboriginal People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ2S+ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

University of California, Davis

Rank: Assistant Adjunct Professorship

The UC Center Sacramento (UCCS) is pleased to announce a one-year Assistant Adjunct Professorship for 2021-2022 in American Politics and Public Policy. We welcome new or recent Ph.D scholars with an interest in California state politics and policy. Degree must be completed by June 30, 2021.

The University of California Center, Sacramento (UCCS) is a system-wide program of the University of California. Since its inception in 2004, the program has offered UC students from across the 10-campus system opportunities to study public policy and journalism through seminars and internships in and around the state Capitol. The Center also serves as a conduit through which research-based knowledge generated on the 10 campuses is disseminated to lawmakers, legislative staff, and executive branch officials.

The Assistant Adjunct Professor will be responsible for teaching Political Science undergraduate courses as well as performing administrative duties assigned as part of the UCCS leadership team. Duties include teaching four undergraduate courses per year, and in addition, to contribute materially towards the Center's mission to increase student and alumni outreach, enhance the student experience, and expand the Center's research and knowledge sharing function.

The appointment will be housed at UCCS located in Sacramento, California. The UCCS Assistant Adjunct Professor salary is competitive and includes health benefits.

In evaluating the candidates, the following criteria will be used: coursework and demonstrated knowledge of American Politics and public policy; quality of the graduate training program; demonstration of teaching ability; experience with research methods and evidence-based policy analysis; letters of recommendation; ability to complete degree before appointment; and interview. An acquaintance with California politics and policy making is considered advantageous.

To apply, please submit a cover letter, CV, teaching evaluations, statement on teaching, writing sample, and three letters of reference through the online application form found at <https://recruit.ucdavis.edu/JPF03950>. For full consideration applications must be received by March 4, 2021. The position is open until filled.

The University of California is an equal opportunity employer with a strong institutional commitment to the achievement of diversity among its faculty and staff.

Wheaton College

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at Wheaton College in Norton, Massachusetts invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in American politics to begin Fall 2021. The ideal candidate will possess the ability to teach introductory and upper-level courses in American politics and public law, including courses focused on the American legal system, Constitutional law/interpretation, civil liberties, civil rights, judicial politics and other courses in the candidate's areas of specialization. Teaching responsibilities include introductory sections of U.S. government & politics, and research methods. We are especially interested in candidates with research and teaching specializations at the intersection of race, class, gender, and/or sexuality.

Classroom experience is highly desirable. The promise of excellence in teaching and scholarship is required. We are committed to providing our students with excellent educational and co-curricular opportunities, and our faculty has significant mentoring experience with new teachers in postdoctoral and junior faculty appointments. For example, we offer regular programming in professional development and all tenure-track faculty are entitled to a fully paid pre-tenure sabbatical and research funds to support scholarship. A Ph.D. in Political Science (with an emphasis in judicial politics) is preferred. ABDs will be considered. If the candidate does not have the Ph.D. in hand, they will be hired as an instructor until the degree is obtained. Inquiries about the faculty position or department should be directed to Gerry Huiskamp, Chair and Professor, Political Science, huiskamp_gerard@wheaton.edu wheatoncollege.edu. Inquiries about the application process and document submission may be addressed to careers@wheatoncollege.edu.

To apply please visit our website <https://jobs.wheatoncollege.edu>. Instructions to applicants will be listed on our website, with the following materials required: letter of application describing your areas of specialty and a statement about your interest in teaching in a liberal arts environment; curriculum vitae; three letters of reference; a graduate transcript; at least one scholarly writing sample; materials on your teaching history, including sample syllabi, course evaluations, and any other materials you wish to provide. Wheaton strives to be a community supportive of diverse perspectives and identities. Candidates should describe in their cover letter how their teaching and scholarship might support the college's commitment to diversity and inclusion. Applications will be reviewed beginning February 15, 2021 and will be accepted until the position is filled. To ensure full consideration, complete applications must be received by February 15, 2021.

Rank: Reagan Postdoctoral Visiting Fellow

Specializations: American Politics, History & Politics, Foreign Policy

The purpose of the Visiting Fellows Program is to advance scholarship focused on the political, economic, and national security ideas and values of President Ronald Reagan. Visiting Fellows will be selected based on the relevance of their research to these principles. Proposals will also be judged on the likelihood of completion of a book manuscript during the fellowship period.

The fellowship year will begin in Washington, DC in September 2021 and last until August 2022. Reagan Visiting Fellows are required to be resident at the Institute's new headquarters in downtown Washington, DC. Each fellow will be provided with office space. The Institute will facilitate research, expand the fellows' contacts, and grow the fellows' visibility in the Washington policy community.

Program Benefits

- In addition to a stipend of $75,000, each Fellow will receive a $5,000 budget for research related travel.
- Mentorship from senior academics who will advise the Fellows and review a book manuscript.
- One-on-one support from an archivist at the Reagan Presidential Library.
- Opportunity to participate and present at the Reagan Virtual Scholars Roundtable, a monthly convening of academics and policymakers who study topics related to the Reagan Presidency.

Program Requirements

- All applicants must submit proof of having successfully defended their dissertation by August 15, 2021.
- Acceptance of the award constitutes a commitment by each fellow to produce a book manuscript by the end of the Fellowship year.

- Applications should be emailed to ReaganFellowship@reaganfoundation.org no later than 11:59 EST on Friday, March 5, 2021.

Application Instructions (please send all files in PDF form)

1. Executive Summary (Maximum of 1 page)

- Name, Address, Contact Information
- University Affiliation and Dissertation Advisor and contact information
- Names and contact information for 2 recommenders
- One paragraph summary description of research question and project's relevance to Ronald Reagan

2. Project Proposal (Maximum of 3 pages)

- Proposal should begin with a clear description of the policy issue being examined and a description of how this issue is linked to the ideas and vision of Ronald Reagan.
- Proposal should consider contemporary implications of the policy issue being examined.
- Description of research methods and approach – if the Reagan Library is likely to be a source for research, please explain.
- Notional book outline

3. Writing Sample (less than 20 pages)

4. CV/Resume

5. Transcripts & Letters of Recommendation

- Unofficial school transcripts and two letters of recommendation must be sent directly from your university and your recommenders to ReaganFellowship@ReaganFoundation.org.

Samford University

Rank: Teaching Postdoctoral Instructor

Teaching Postdoctoral Instructor Position, Department of Political Science (9-month, Non-Tenure)

Samford University's Howard College of Arts and Sciences invites individuals interested in serving in a Christian university environment to apply for a teaching postdoctoral instructor position in the Political Science Department, beginning August 2021. This non-tenure position is a full-time, one-year appointment and may be renewable one time for a maximum of two years.

Qualified candidates will have earned a Ph.D. in Political Science within the past three years from an institutionally accredited university and be able to teach upper-level courses in American political institutions (e.g., Courts, Congress, Presidency) as well as two courses per semester in the university's interdisciplinary core curriculum, which includes a freshman writing seminar on humanities or social science topics. The teaching load is three courses per semester.

The successful candidate should have a strong commitment to classroom teaching, student development and mentorship, and collegial collaboration. The candidate also should be familiar with online teaching technology and have an active research agenda. Departmental funds may be available for research support and other research funds can be earned on a competitive basis.

Samford University (www.samford.edu) is the largest privately supported and fully accredited institution for higher learning in Alabama. Located in suburban Birmingham, the University was founded in 1841 and has 425 full time faculty and more than 5,700 students representing 44 states and 30 countries. Samford has been nationally recognized for academics, affordability and value by a number of prestigious publications and rankings. The Wall Street Journal ranks Samford 2nd nationally for student engagement and Kiplinger's Personal Finance ranks Samford 34th among private universities in the U.S. for value and affordability. The University is dedicated to the promotion of rigorous academic inquiry in a Christian setting. The University offers competitive salaries with a generous benefits package.

Applications will be accepted beginning January 6th, 2021. Review of applications will begin April 1, 2021 and applications will not be accepted beyond that date. Please submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae with names and contact information of three references, description of teaching experience, description of research interests and activities, along with an application for faculty position and the faculty applicant Christian mission statement, both accessible at the links below. The successful candidate must pass a background check. Applicants must be authorized to work in the United States, as Samford will not sponsor any employment visas for this position. Samford University and Howard College of Arts and Sciences embrace diversity in their faculty, students, and staff and encourage applications from those who would add to the diversity of our academic community.

California State University, San Bernardino

Rank: Assistant Professor in Constitutional Law and American Politics

California State University, San Bernardino (CSUSB) is located in San Bernardino in the Inland Empire, 60 miles east of Los Angeles and operates a satellite campus in Palm Desert located in Coachella Valley. CSUSB serves approximately 20,000 students, of which 81% are first-generation college students and graduates about 5,000 students annually. As a designated Hispanic Serving Institution, CSUSB reflects the dynamic diversity of the region and has one of the most diverse student populations of any university in the Inland Empire, and the second highest Hispanic enrollment of all public universities in California. CSUSB employs 467 full-time faculty and offers 48 undergraduate, 35 graduate, and one doctoral degree programs and 14 academic programs with national accreditation.

At CSUSB, diversity, equity and inclusion are values central to our mission. We recognize that diversity and inclusion in all its forms are necessary for our institutional success. By fully leveraging our diverse experiences, backgrounds and insights, we inspire innovation, challenge the status quo and create better outcomes for our students and community. As part of CSUSB's commitment to hire, develop and retain a diverse faculty, we offer a variety of networking, mentoring and development programs for our junior faculty. We are committed to building and sustaining a CSUSB community that is supportive and inclusive of all individuals. Qualified applicants with experience in ethnically diverse settings and/or who demonstrate a commitment to serving diverse student populations are strongly encouraged to apply. CSUSB has received the Carnegie Community Engagement classification, which recognizes CSUSB's ongoing commitment to service-learning, a high-impact practice that combines classroom instruction with meaningful volunteer service and correlates strongly to student success.

JOB SUMMARY

The Department of Political Science seeks applicants for a tenure-track position with primary expertise in the fields of Constitutional Law, including civil liberties and civil rights, and American Politics, including political institutions and public policy, to begin in the Fall Semester of 2021. A Ph.D. is required at the time of appointment. We expect successful candidates for this tenure-track position to teach courses in Constitutional Law and American Politics. The successful candidate will teach a variety of upper-division courses in these and related areas of specialization and also teach lower-division American Government courses. In addition, the candidate may be asked to teach graduate courses. The successful candidate will produce scholarly research and provide service to the university and community.

TYPICAL ACTIVITIES

Preferred candidates will be expected to meet the traditional requirements of excellence in teaching, active scholarly and professional work, mentoring a diverse student population, and service to the university and community.

MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS

Candidates must hold Ph.D. in Political Science or related field at time of employment and demonstrate evidence of teaching and research promise.

SPECIAL CONDITIONS

The person holding this position is considered a 'mandated reporter' under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment.

Following a conditional offer of employment, a background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed satisfactorily before any candidate may start work with CSUSB. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may result in the withdrawal of the offer of employment. Note: CSUSB cannot deny an applicant a position solely or in part due to a criminal conviction history until it has performed an individualized assessment and linked the relevant conviction history with specific job duties in the position being sought.

Please note: Current employees who are offered positions on campus will be required to undergo a background check for any position where a background check is required by law or that CSUSB has designated as sensitive. Sensitive positions are those requiring heightened scrutiny of individuals holding the position based on potential for harm to children, concerns for the safety and security of people, animals, or property, or heightened risk of financial loss to CSUSB or individuals in the university community.

For health and well-being, CSUSB is a smoke & tobacco-free campus. The university is committed to promoting a healthy environment for all members of our community.

San Diego State University

Rank: Public Law and Race in America

Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Other
Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Judicial Politics, American Politics

The Political Science Department at San Diego State University invites applications for a tenure-track position in Public Law and Race in America at the rank of Assistant Professor, to begin Fall 2021. Applicants should demonstrate a well-developed research agenda, a promise of sustained scholarship and a record of effective teaching.

The department seeks a scholar who does research on the evolving role of law in both shaping and challenging racist structures and attitudes toward racial minorities, especially African Americans. The scholar should demonstrate a capacity to engage underlying normative issues and debates on such themes. Within the framework of law and race in America, topics of interest may include but are not limited to protest movements, economic justice, gender and sexuality, legal mobilization, the U.S. Constitution, and comparative analyses. The department is open to a diversity of scholarly approaches, including but not limited to Critical Race Theory and Law and Society. The successful candidate will be able to teach a range of courses in public law as well as courses on the intersection of politics and race.

The Political Science Department at San Diego State is dedicated to the ideal of the engaged teacher-scholar. It has over five hundred undergraduate majors and provides course offerings for students with a wide variety of backgrounds and interests. At the graduate level, the department maintains an M.A. program of high quality. The members of the faculty share a strong commitment to collegiality, active participation in the governing of the department, innovative scholarship, methodological pluralism, rigorous teaching, and robust intellectual and normative engagement. Candidates are encouraged to consult the department website: <http://politicalscience.sdsu.edu/>

San Diego State University is the largest university in San Diego and the third largest in California. The highly diverse campus community has a student population of over 36,000 and approximately 5,849 faculty and staff. SDSU is included in the Carnegie Foundation's Doctoral Universities: High Research Activity category. Established in 1897, SDSU offers bachelor degrees in 84 areas, masters in 76 and doctorates in 21. See <http://www.sdsu.edu> for more information. SDSU is a large, diverse, urban university and Hispanic-Serving Institution with a commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusive excellence. Our campus community is diverse in many ways, including race, religion, color, sex, age, disability, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, national origin, pregnancy, medical condition, and covered veteran status. We strive to build and sustain a welcoming environment for all.

Consistent with SDSU's mission, we seek applicants with demonstrated experience in and/or commitment to teaching and working effectively with individuals from diverse backgrounds and members of underrepresented groups. This search is part of an SDSU cluster initiative to hire "faculty who have a demonstrated history of working with and supporting the African-American community." For more information, see <https://sacd.sdsu.edu/diversity-initiatives/aa-cluster-hires>. Candidates must satisfy three or more of the eight Building on Inclusive Excellence (BIE) criteria, adjusted according to the cluster initiative of this hire: (a) committed to engaging in service with African American populations; (b) demonstrated knowledge of barriers for African American students and faculty; (c) experience or has demonstrated commitment to teaching and/or mentoring African American students; (d) experience or has demonstrated commitment to integrating understanding of African American populations and communities into research; (e) experience in or has demonstrated commitment to extending knowledge of opportunities and challenges in achieving artistic/scholarly success to African Americans; (f) experience in or has demonstrated commitment to research that engages African American communities; (g) interest in developing expertise in cross-cultural communication and collaboration; (h) research interests that contribute to diversity and equal opportunity in higher education. Indicate in your cover letter how you meet at least three of these criteria.

Applicants must apply via Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/82445>. A completed file includes a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, complete teaching evaluations (quantitative evaluations and complete sets of qualitative evaluations of recent courses), sample syllabi, academic writing samples and three letters of recommendation. To ensure full consideration, submit all materials by February 15, 2021. Screening of applications will begin then. Applicants who will have completed the Ph.D. by the start of the term of appointment will be given priority. Those without a Ph.D. in-hand should include in their letter of interest a statement of progress on the dissertation and reasons to expect completion in a timely fashion.

The person holding this position is considered a "mandated reporter" under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment. St. Lawrence University

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor in American Politics

Specializations: Legislative Studies, Congress, Political Parties & Organizations

The Government Department at St. Lawrence University invites applications for a one-year visiting assistant professor position in American Politics to bridge a phased retirement in our department. We seek an individual who can teach the introductory course in American politics as well as upper-level American politics courses in legislative politics (national or state/local-level) and other topics of the candidate's choosing that do not duplicate the department's current strengths in the presidency, judicial politics, and the politics of race & ethnicity. The ability to also teach Introduction to Political Theory on occasion is a plus. The position begins August 2021 and the teaching load is three courses per semester. The successful candidate will join a department of 11 full-time faculty members who are passionate about supporting our liberal arts curriculum through diverse and inclusive pedagogies and scholarly agendas. Our supportive department colleagues regularly provide feedback and mentoring to visiting faculty to foster pedagogical and professional development.

Applicants should have their Ph.D. in Political Science by August 15, 2021, but ABD candidates may be considered.

To apply, please visit: <https://employment.stlawu.edu/postings/2224>

Interested candidates should submit a cover letter indicating teaching and research interests, curriculum vitae, graduate school transcript, writing sample, and evidence of teaching effectiveness. Applicants should also submit a separate document with a statement indicating how they can contribute in tangible ways to St. Lawrence University's commitment to cultivating a diverse and inclusive community and classrooms. These documents can be uploaded in the "Applicant Documents" section of your online application.

Additionally, three confidential references are required [the required information input in the reference contact information section of your application will be utilized to send a system-derived email requesting a recommendation letter from each reference].

Review of applications will begin on February 8, 2021. Applications submitted after this date will be reviewed as needed. Questions about the position may be sent to Dr. Kristin McKie (kmckie@stlawu.edu), Search Chair.

All offers of employment are contingent upon the finalist successfully passing a background (including criminal records) check.

Dartmouth College

Rank: Professor of Government (open rank) in Cybersecurity, Technology, and Society

The Department of Government at Dartmouth College invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor in Cybersecurity, Technology, and Society. Although we anticipate hiring at the assistant professor level, candidates at the tenured associate and full professor level will also be considered. The Cyber Security Chair is one of three positions in a cluster hire in cybersecurity, Technology, and Society (the other two positions are in the Computer Science Department), and the successful applicant will have an opportunity to collaborate with other faculty in the cluster and to be a member of Dartmouth's Institute for Security, Technology and Society. We will consider applicants working on a broad range of topics related to the intersection of cyber-technologies, domestic or international politics, and society. Candidates may study questions such as how emerging digital technologies, social media and the internet affect critical democratic processes, contribute to political radicalization and extremism, enable foreign influence operations, undermine or protect privacy, contribute to repression and/or resistance to authoritarianism, enable new forms of conflict between groups or states, and/or are used to promote or counteract political misinformation. Candidates might also study the national and international policies and regulations that states, firms, and international organizations use to address these or related issues. We encourage applicants who study these and similar questions to apply. Dartmouth is highly committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive population of students, faculty, and staff. We are especially interested in applicants who are able to work effectively with students, faculty, and staff from all backgrounds, including but not limited to: racial and ethnic minorities, women, individuals who identify with LGBTQ+ communities, individuals with disabilities, individuals from lower income backgrounds, and/or first generation college graduates. Applicants should state in their cover letter how their teaching, research, service, and/or life experiences prepare them to advance Dartmouth's commitments to diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Qualifications:

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field. Although we anticipate hiring at the assistant professor level, candidates at the tenured associate and full professor level will also be considered.

Application instructions:

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, a CV and three letters of recommendation. Applicants should state in their cover letter how their teaching, research, service, and/or life experiences prepare them to advance Dartmouth's commitments to diversity, equity, and inclusion. Application materials should be submitted electronically to: <http://apply.interfolio.com/81228>

Texas A&M University

Rank: Pre- and Post- Doctoral Fellowships

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Political Theory

The Albritton Center for Grand Strategy at the Bush School of Government and Public Service, Texas A&M University, is inviting applications to its residential fellowship program for the 2021-2022 academic year. The program will support one pre-doctoral and one post-doctoral fellow. The Albritton Center is particularly interested in scholars that are engaging with the fundamental questions surrounding grand strategy: How should the national interest be defined? What are the threats to the national interest? How should the United States use its power in response? Applications are invited from scholars of political science, history, and other relevant disciplines.

Fellows will be expected to be in residence at the Bush School for the duration of their fellowships (September 2021 - August 2022). They will be provided with office space and access to the resources of the Bush School and Texas A&M University. Fellows will participate in Center activities, to include seminars, workshops, and conferences. They will work with an active community of scholars in international affairs, political science, history, and other disciplines at Texas A&M University.

The pre-doctoral fellow is expected to make substantial progress toward – and ideally complete – a dissertation during the fellowship. The post-doctoral fellow is expected to complete a manuscript for publication. The post-doctoral fellow is also expected to teach one course to Bush School students. Finally, both fellows are asked to write a short, policy-relevant piece while in residence.

Eligibility:

Applicants for the pre-doctoral fellowship must be pursuing a Ph.D. in political science, history or other relevant discipline. Applicants must pass all qualifying exams and advance to the level of candidacy prior to the start of their appointment.

Applicants for the post-doctoral fellowship must have completed their PhD in political science, history, or other relevant discipline to begin the fellowship. Recent PhD recipients are especially encouraged to apply.

Award information:

The pre-doctoral fellow will receive a stipend of $39,000, as well as $5,000 in research funding. The post-doctoral fellow will receive a salary of $60,000 (payable monthly), as well as $10,000 in research funding. The post-doctoral fellow will also be eligible for the benefits package available to TAMU employees.

Application process:

Postdoctoral applicants should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, short writing sample (no more than 10,000 words), and a letter of recommendation (preferably by the applicant's dissertation advisor)

through Texas A&M's employment platform, Workday (https://tamus.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/TAMU_External/job/College-Station-TAMU/Postdoctoral-Research-Associate_R-033905-1).

Predoctoral applicants should complete submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, short writing sample (no more than 10,000 words), and a letter of recommendation (preferably by the applicant's dissertation advisor) to bushschoolCGS@tamu.edu.

Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis, with those arriving by January 29, 2021 receiving priority attention.

James Madison University

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR- POLITICS OF RACE AND ETHNICITY– {JobLink# F1520} – The Political Science Department at James Madison University is seeking a tenure-track faculty member specializing in the Politics of Race and Ethnicity at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning August 2021. A doctoral degree in political science (or a closely related field) is required by the starting date for appointment as Assistant Professor; candidates at the ABD level can be appointed at the rank of Lecturer. The successful applicant will teach an introductory-level course in U.S. government, courses on the politics of race and ethnicity, and other courses related to the candidate's expertise.

The department seeks candidates with strong research skills and demonstrated teaching potential. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until January 8, 2021. To apply for this position candidates must apply online at JobLink.jmu.edu regarding reference posting number {# F1520}. On that website, candidates will post a cover letter, vita, unofficial graduate transcript(s), contact information for three references, an example of research (15-25 pages preferred), and evidence of teaching effectiveness (including teaching evaluations, assignments, and course syllabi, if available). The cover letter should include a discussion of the candidate's research interests, teaching experience and philosophy, and contributions or potential contributions to the diversity of the classroom, program, and university. The cover letter should also address how the candidate would work productively with an interdisciplinary cohort of faculty (see below).

This position forms part of a first-of-its-kind initiative at James Madison University: a cohort hire of six outstanding, tenure-track faculty working collaboratively in several interconnected areas, which include social justice, minority cultures and politics, racial equity, non-Western thought, and critical race studies. Scholars hired into this cohort will be appointed in six of the College's ten departments: Sociology and Anthropology; History; Political Science; Justice Studies; Philosophy and Religion; and Writing, Rhetoric and Technical Communication. We seek excellent applicants within particular disciplines, but also scholars and teachers eager to work across them, both within the College and beyond. Arriving as a cohort with broadly shared interests, successful candidates will enhance existing strengths in Latinx, African American, African diaspora, ethnic and global studies. A complete description of this cohort hire may be found here <http://joblink.jmu.edu/postings/8052>.

To apply go to <http://joblink.jmu.edu/postings/8096> or visit JobLink.jmu.edu and reference posting number F1520. Salary shall be commensurate with experience.

Sewanee: The University of the South

Rank: Post-Doc in Public Policy

Specializations: Social Welfare, Environmental Policy, Urban Politics

The Department of Politics at The University of the South seeks applications for a postdoctoral fellowship in American politics with a specialization in public policy to begin August 2021. The position is for one year, renewable for a second. The Department is also hiring for a postdoctoral position in political theory, so academic couples are welcome to apply.

Candidates must demonstrate a strong commitment to excellence in teaching. The teaching load is reduced to three courses per year, with a focus on pedagogical mentoring and development. New faculty members have opportunity for teaching mentoring through the Center for Teaching and designing community engagement curricula through collaboration with the Carnegie-recognized Office of Community Engagement. In addition to the ability to teach introductory courses in public policy, we are particularly interested in candidates who can teach upper-level courses in their area of specialization (e.g., social welfare, criminal justice, environmental justice, public health, education, or urban policy) and connect them to our existing major concentrations.

The University of the South comprises a well-regarded College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and a distinguished School of Theology. It is an institution of the Episcopal Church that welcomes individuals of all backgrounds. The University is located on a striking, 13,000-acre campus on Tennessee's Cumberland Plateau.

The University of the South stands firmly for the principle that its employees, students, and participants of university-sponsored programs and activities have a right to be free from discrimination based on race, color, sex, religion, national origin, age, disability, sexual orientation, gender identity, veteran status, pregnancy and childbirth, and genetic information. As required by Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 and the ADA Amendments

Act of 2008, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, the University does not discriminate on the basis of sex or other protected categories in the educational programs or activities which it operates. This requirement of non-discrimination extends to admission to and employment in those programs or activities. The University is committed to sustaining a community in which the dignity of every individual is respected. Key to this value are efforts to nurture an environment of civility and mutual respect and to foster a culture of reporting concerns so that the University can respond promptly and equitably whenever an incident occurs. All employees, students, and participants of university-sponsored programs and activities have the right to be free from harassment and retaliation.

For preliminary review, applicants must submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and statement demonstrating how they can contribute to faculty diversity, such as through membership in a group that is historically underrepresented in a particular area of study, training, or other experience. These materials should be submitted through the application portal at <https://jobs.sewanee.edu/postings/4424>. Eligibility for employment is contingent upon successful prescreening. For full consideration, please submit materials by December 15, 2020.

Mercyhurst University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Assistant Professor – Political Science

The Political Science Department invites applications for an assistant professor position beginning Fall 2021. A strong commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching at a liberal arts university is essential. The department is seeking a generalist who is committed to developing courses in constitutional law and civil liberties as well as contributing to our department needs in institutions, behavior, methods, gender, or racial and ethnic politics. The candidate will also serve as advisor to our pre-law society. Energy, collegiality, and a commitment to liberal arts education are highly prized attributes in our department. Preference will be given to candidates who have completed the Ph.D. or will complete it before the Fall 2021 semester.

Application Process

Screening of applications will begin immediately, and the position will remain open until filled. Applicants should submit a letter of interest, current vitae, transcripts (initial submissions may be unofficial copies), three letters of recommendation, evidence of teaching excellence, and a one-page statement summarizing their philosophy of teaching to:

Jennifer Verga, Administrative Assistant
jverga@mercyhurst.edu.

Mercyhurst is a mid-sized, Catholic, liberal arts, primarily residential university, founded by the Sisters of Mercy, with an enrollment of approximately 2,500 students. Class sizes are small, and the normal teaching load is 8 courses per year.

For information about the political science program see the departmental website: <http://polisci.mercyhurst.edu>.

Mercyhurst does not unlawfully discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, sex, citizenship status, ancestry, national or ethnic origin, age, familial status, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, physical or mental disability, military or veteran status or any other legally protected characteristic or because of any individual's legally protected activities.

Mercyhurst complies with federal, state and local legislation and regulations regarding nondiscrimination. This policy applies to faculty, administration and staff, applicants for employment, students and applicants for educational programs and activities.

Candidates must be currently eligible to work in the United States.

Rank: 2021-2022 International Affairs Fellowship for Tenured International Relations Scholars (IAF-TIRS)

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Foreign Policy, International Security, History & Politics

The Fellowship:

The International Affairs Fellowship for Tenured International Relations Scholars (IAF-TIRS) offers professors from a variety of academic backgrounds practical experience in the foreign policymaking field, providing them with an opportunity to spend their sabbatical year working at a U.S. government agency, in Congress, or with an international organization.

The IAF-TIRS program helps close the gap between research and practice, enriching both teaching and scholarship by enabling fellows to become practitioners. The program also benefits policymakers by exposing them to critical scholarly research relevant to the foreign policy and national security issues facing the United States and the world.

The fellowship is for twelve months. The program will match 50 percent of the fellow's base salary for the academic year (up to a maximum of $80,000 for the year) as well as provide modest assistance for moving expenses for those who need to relocate for the fellowship.

Eligibility:

Applicants should be U.S. citizens

Applicants must be full-time tenured professors at a U.S. college or university

Applicants must have arranged a paid sabbatical with their home university

Applicants must hold a PhD

Applicants must propose to spend a year working on peace and security issues in the U.S. government, in Congress, or at an international organization.

Preference is given to candidates with no previous experience in the U.S. government or with an international organization.

*Note: fellows are considered independent contractors rather than employees of CFR and are not eligible for employment benefits, including health insurance. No indirect costs can be deducted from the stipend award.

How to Apply:

Interested candidates who meet the program eligibility requirements can apply online now through October 31 at cfr.org/fellowships/international-affairs-fellowship-tenured-international-relations-scholars.

If you have additional questions, please contact tirs.fellowships@cfr.org.

Brown University

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

Brown University invites applications for a two-year Postdoctoral Research Associate in Climate Solutions at the Watson Institute for International & Public Affairs. Two positions are available, associated with the Climate Solutions Lab and the William R. Rhodes Center for International Economics and Finance. We seek scholars to help us address one of two major topics: climate and trade, and financing decarbonization. The first position will lead task forces looking at questions like how climate should fit into the United States' China strategy, and how US policymakers can work with the EU on issues such as carbon tariffs and border adjustment measures. The second position will focus on how state and market actors can work together to finance decarbonization, with a specific focus on ameliorating the distributive politics inherent in such a transition. There are no teaching responsibilities for these positions. The selected candidate will devote 50 percent time to Watson's projects, under the supervision of Professors Jeff Colgan and Mark Blyth, and 50 percent time to his or her own (climate-related) research projects.

Founded in 1764, Brown is a leading research university distinct for its student-centered learning and deep sense of purpose. Brown University students, faculty, and staff are driven by the idea that their work will have an impact on the world. Brown is a place where rigorous scholarship, complex problem-solving, and service to the public good are defined by collaboration, intellectual discovery, and working in ways that transcend traditional disciplinary boundaries.

Scholars with a Ph.D. in political science, sociology, economics, public policy, or closely related disciplines will be considered. Dissertation must be signed by June 30, 2021. Candidates must be untenured and within 5 years of Ph.D.

Candidates should submit a cover letter, a CV, three letters of reference and a short writing sample (15-20 pages) through Interfolio <http://apply.interfolio.com/83618>

Applications received by March 15th, 2021 will receive full consideration.

Final notifications are expected to go out in May 2021. This two-year Postdoctoral Research Associate appointment will be effective July 1, 2021, and is not renewable.

Morehouse College

Rank: Assistant Professor

Position URL: apply.interfolio.com/84198

The Department of Political Science at Morehouse College invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor. Candidates should be trained in the area of international relations. The ideal candidate will also be able to teach an introductory-level course in comparative politics.

Responsibilities include teaching courses (a 3-3 load), advising, and mentoring students; developing and maintaining a scholarly research and publication agenda; and service to the department and the College. We also encourage faculty to be active in soliciting external funding through grants and other sources. The start date for the position is August 2021.

Morehouse College is a private historically black liberal arts college for men whose mission is to develop men with disciplined minds to lead lives of leadership and service by emphasizing the intellectual and character development of its students and by assuming a special responsibility for teaching the history and culture of black people. Since the founding of the College in 1867, the faculty, staff, and leadership have worked to inspire, nurture, challenge, support, and engage its students with the expressed intent of fomenting a very special kind of development.

Morehouse has a very proud tradition of having developed leaders, with the most notable of course being Martin Luther King, Jr. (class of 1948). Each era has defined the qualities of Morehouse Man—an expression of the expectations we have of our graduates—a bit differently, but there are some enduring constants. Backed by nearly 150 years of history, we see our work as helping to shape men of acuity, integrity and agency; men who will commit to brotherhood, standing together with their peers to cheer, challenge and support each other; and men who will strive to lead consequential lives, to not just do well for themselves, but to do good in the world.

Our strong legacy is continued now as we claim a number of successes. Morehouse is the number one baccalaureate origin institution for black male doctorate recipients in science and engineering, life sciences, physical sciences, social sciences, education, and humanities over the decade ending 2012 according to the National Science Foundation. We are the top producer of underrepresented minority physics baccalaureates among non-PhD granting institutions over the three years ending in 2013 as measured by the American Physical Society. And the College just this year became the only non-majority college or university to have produced four Rhodes Scholars. Our graduates include not only men like King and Julian Bond, but Spike Lee, David Satcher, Eddie Glaude, Jim Shelton, and many more operating in and out of academia in some way.

The College offers instructional programs in six divisions—humanities, social sciences and cultural studies, creative and performing arts, life sciences, mathematics and computational science, and business and economics—as well as extracurricular and co-curricular activities that, combined with the academic program: foster the development of oral and written communication skills; foster appreciation of world cultures, artistic, creative expression and the nature of the physical universe; promote understanding of the specific skills needed to pursue professional careers and graduate study; and cultivate the personal attributes of self-confidence, tolerance, morality, ethical behavior, spirituality, humility, global perspective, and commitment to justice.

Qualifications

Minimum qualifications include a PhD in political science; commitment to excellence in teaching; evidence of a productive research program; and service to the profession and community.

Application Instructions

A successful application will consist of the following:

1. A letter of application providing detail on how the candidate meets the qualifications for the position and why they are a good fit for Morehouse College in particular (no more than 2 pages);
2. A current curriculum vitae (no more than 4 pages);
3. A statement of teaching philosophy (no more than 2 pages);
4. A research/scholarship agenda (no more than 2 pages);
5. Unofficial transcripts
6. Three letters of recommendation

Candidates also have the option of sharing the following:

1. Sample syllabi (no more than 2 courses)
2. Samples of research (no more than 2 samples)
3. Teaching evaluations or summaries of evaluations (no more than 2 courses, but if submitted, only submit full class evaluations and not samples of class evaluations)

Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. For questions about the search, please contact Dr. Andrew Douglas, andrew.douglas@morehouse.edu, 470-639-0732.

Temple University

Rank: Postdoctoral Diversity Fellow in Political Science
Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Law, Comparative Politics
Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, International Law & Organizations, Civil Rights & Liberties

The Department of Political Science at Temple University invites applications for a one-year Postdoctoral Fellowship to support the development of early career scholars from diverse backgrounds with particular attention to historically underrepresented groups on the professorial faculties of colleges and universities in the United States. This year we seek a fellow with expertise in human rights law and politics in either domestic or international contexts. The successful applicant will contribute intellectually to the department and College of Liberal Arts by conducting research while teaching one course during the year. We would welcome, but not limit our search to candidates who study race, sexual orientation, and/or religious affiliation as components of states' legal traditions both domestically and internationally. Applicants should hold or be completing a doctorate in Political Science or a related discipline.

Our department (<https://www.cla.temple.edu/political-science/>) organizes formal colloquia from outside scholars and hosts or cohosts many internal research talks with interdisciplinary centers such as Global Studies, Public Policy Lab, Master of Public Policy, Gender, Sexuality and Women's Studies (GSWS), the Center for Force and Diplomacy (CENFAD), and the Center for Humanities at Temple (CHAT).

The Postdoctoral Diversity Fellowship is a competitive program whose goal is to increase the diversity of the community of scholars devoted to academic research at Temple University. Candidates must have completed their Ph.D. by September 1, 2021. Please submit a letter of application that includes (1) proposed research plan for the fellowship, (2) a statement of teaching interests and/or philosophy, (3) a brief statement of the grounds of eligibility and progress toward completion of the dissertation, (4) curriculum vitae, and (5) three letters of recommendation by April 1, 2021 via the Interfolio link below. Letter writers should address the likelihood of completing the degree before September 1, 2021. Applications are due April 1, 2021 but review will commence immediately.

The current postdoctoral fellowship is non-renewable. The award includes a salary of $50,000, full Temple University employee benefits, a research/travel fund of $3,000, and a $2,000 moving allowance. The postdoctoral fellow will teach one course during the year of appointment and will meet regularly with other postdocs and faculty in the department and college through participation in seminars, colloquia, teaching circles, etc.

Temple University is a state-related Carnegie Research University (highest research activity) located in Philadelphia. The Department of Political Science is in the College of Liberal Arts, which is home to 38 undergraduate majors, 38 minors, 22 certificate programs, 14 doctoral programs, and 6 graduate certificates. With its vibrant and diverse array of educational programs, the College of Liberal Arts plays a tremendous role in Temple University's academic success and its mission mirrors both the historical importance of the liberal arts in society and the principles on which the University was founded. Temple University is an Affirmative Action equal opportunity employer and particularly encourages applications from women and persons of color, members of under-represented groups, persons with disabilities, and veterans. The University has pledged not to discriminate on the basis of race, color, sex, age, religion, national origin, sexual orientation, marital status, or disability.

Johns Hopkins University

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow – China Africa Research Initiative

Specializations: China, Africa, Political Economy

Founded in 1943 and a Johns Hopkins division since 1950, The Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of the Johns Hopkins University (SAIS) has been educating global leaders for almost 60 years. As a highly selective graduate institution with a distinguished faculty, SAIS consistently ranks as one of the top schools of international relations in the world. SAIS was founded to provide a practical approach to training students in international leadership and foreign relations, and to provide mid-career educational opportunities for those already working in related fields. Today, SAIS offers the M.A., M.I.P.P., and Ph.D. degrees and enrolls some 700 full-time students on the Washington, DC campus, 190 students at the SAIS Center in Bologna, Italy, and about 180 Chinese and international students at the Hopkins-Nanjing Center in Nanjing, China.

The China-Africa Research Initiative at Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS-CARI), directed by Professor Deborah Brautigam, will offer one pre- or post-doctoral research fellow position for a ten-month period during the 2021-2022 academic year (approximately June 2021 to May 2022). Fellow will spend half of their time on their own Chinese loan-related research projects, and half providing support to CARI research on Chinese lending. This support could include drafting research papers, policy briefs, and related op-eds and “public square” pieces; presenting at conferences and public events; and assisting with, and participating in, interviews, outreach activities and communications as necessary.

Qualifications

An understanding of China’s overseas economic engagement (trade, investment, aid, loans, other forms of cooperation) is essential for this position. Our preference is for candidates who have conducted field research, preferably in Africa although we are open to comparative perspectives. Econometric skills would be an asset but are not required. Ability to read and do research in Chinese is essential.

We prefer candidates who have completed all Ph.D. training and have defended their dissertations, but will consider exceptional candidates who are still writing their dissertations as pre-doctoral fellows. Candidates may not be more than five years beyond receipt of the Ph.D. at the start of the fellowship.

Only applications through Interfolio will be considered. To apply, please go to <https://apply.interfolio.com/83123>.

To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining your fit for the position, including your scholarly interest in China's overseas lending, the use (if any) that you would make of CARI's extensive data on Chinese lending in Africa, and prospective or actual doctoral defense date;
- Current C.V. including publications;
- 1000-word description of the research project you would work on at SAIS, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample;
- Three letters of recommendation requested directly through the Interfolio system.

We will begin reviewing applications on February 28, 2021 and will continue to review new applications until the position is filled, or until March 31, 2021, 11:59pm EST, whichever is earlier.

Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications.
Planned start date: June 2021 (Flexible)
Location: Washington, DC.
Duration of position: 10 months from the start date.

Please contact sais-cari@jhu.edu with any questions. Please place "Postdoctoral Fellow Application" in the subject line.

This position is funded by a grant from Carnegie Corporation of New York.

Middle Georgia State University

Rank: Assistant Professor, American and/or comparative politics

Specializations: American Politics, Africa, Judicial Politics

JOB SUMMARY: The Department of Political Science at Middle Georgia State University (<https://www.mga.edu/political-science>) invites applications for a tenure-track appointment in political science, with a specialization in American politics or comparative politics, at the rank of assistant professor, to be primarily based on the Cochran campus. This is a 10-month position with a teaching load of 12 credit hours per semester (4-4) of undergraduate courses in political science, typically including multiple sections of the introductory American Government course, as well as more advanced undergraduate courses in political science in the candidate's area of specialization. The ability to contribute to at least one of the minors offered by the department (African and African diaspora studies, environmental policy studies, or pre-law) is desirable.

MAJOR DUTIES: Teaching responsibilities may include day and/or evening courses, partially and fully online courses, and courses taught via video conferencing; faculty are also expected to travel to teach and attend meetings at other campus locations when needed. Tenure-track faculty are expected to have an active scholarly agenda, including publication in peer-reviewed outlets; student advising and service to the department, school, university, and community are also expected for promotion and tenure. Summer teaching opportunities may also be available, contingent on student demand.

QUALIFICATIONS: Candidates should have earned a doctorate in political science, or a doctorate in related field including at least 18 semester hours of graduate coursework in political science, from a regionally-accredited institution; ABD candidates will only be considered if they will earn their doctorate by August 1, 2021. Experience as an instructor of record, demonstrated expertise in American politics or comparative politics, and/or the ability to contribute to one or more of the minors offered by the department are desirable. Candidates must have a record of teaching and potential for scholarship that warrants appointment at the rank of assistant professor.

ABOUT THE UNIVERSITY AND SCHOOL OF EDUCATION AND BEHAVIORAL SCIENCES: Middle Georgia State University is a 4-year public, doctoral level university. MGA was formed through the consolidation of Macon State College and Middle Georgia College in 2013. Serving over 8,000 students who reflect the diversity of the state, the university encompasses all five campuses of the prior two institutions, with campuses in Cochran, Dublin, Eastman, Macon, and Warner Robins. Annual tuition and fees make MGA the most affordable public university in the state of Georgia. MGA is regionally accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges.

SALARY: Commensurate with qualifications and experience.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: The search committee will review complete applications beginning no earlier than February 22, 2021, and will continue to accept applications until the position is filled.

FOR MORE INFORMATION: Informal inquiries about the position may be made to Dr. Christopher N. Lawrence, chair of the Department of Political Science at christopher.lawrence@mga.edu.

TO APPLY: All application materials must be submitted by email to recruitment@mga.edu, as a single PDF attachment, with the subject line “ 10018045 Assistant Professor of Political Science 2.5.2021”. Application materials must include (1) a completed MGA faculty application, (2) a letter of interest that describes how you meet the qualifications for the position, (3) a curriculum vitae, (4) a statement of teaching philosophy, (5) names and contact information of three references, and (6) unofficial transcripts of all post-secondary/college-level work. Paper application materials will not be accepted.

Background checks will be conducted on all final candidates.

Rank: The Center for the Advanced Study of India - Post Doc

The Center for the Advanced Study of India at the University of Pennsylvania invites applications to fill a postdoctoral fellowship position for the 2021-2022 academic year. The position is open to applicants from the humanities and social sciences whose work focuses on contemporary India. We welcome candidates from a wide range of disciplinary traditions and methodological orientations.

CASI welcomes applications from scholars who have received their Ph.D. or equivalent degrees in the last year, or who will complete their degree by June 30, 2021. The term of appointment is July 1, 2021-June 30, 2022 and Ph.D. must be in hand to begin the appointment. The position may be renewable for up to one additional year conditional on performance and budgetary approval.

Since its founding in 1992 within the School of Arts & Sciences (SAS), CASI has continued to uphold Penn's global reputation as a leading U.S. institution of research in South Asian studies and scholarship on India. CASI's goals are to engage in policy-relevant research focused on the challenges facing contemporary India; to nurture discussion in contemporary India through interactions with visiting scholars and opportunities to work and conduct research in India; and to act as a public forum on contemporary India through seminars, workshops, conferences, and publications.

The fellowship will provide candidates with opportunities to pursue their own research and ideally to also collaborate on research projects undertaken by the Center. There is no teaching requirement. Innovative new project proposals by fellows may also be considered and modestly funded by the Center.

Fellows will also be expected to help organize some of the Center's core activities, including seminars and workshops, and have opportunities to interact with a distinguished array of visiting speakers, scholars and fellows. Because fellows are expected to be fully integrated with the intellectual life of the Center, they must plan to physically reside in the vicinity of the University of Pennsylvania. The fellowship includes a stipend of $58,000, contingent upon proof of conferral of the Ph.D. degree, a $2,500 research fund, and health insurance.

Our program values interdisciplinary research, collaboration, and collegiality; is committed to promoting a culturally diverse intellectual community; and strongly encourages applications from women, minorities, and under-represented communities.

The University of Pennsylvania is strongly committed to Penn's Action Plan for Faculty Diversity and Excellence and to establishing a more diverse community at Penn (for more information see: <http://www.upenn.edu/almanac/volumes/v58/n02/diversityplan.html>).

Applications will be reviewed starting Monday, March 1, 2021. To receive full consideration, applications should be received by that date. To apply, please submit the following required documents.

Required:

- Cover Letter address to the "Selection Committee", CASI
- Curriculum Vitae
- Research Statement (maximum 5 pages, double spaced)
- Writing Sample (maximum 50 pages double spaced, or equivalent length published work. Can include a supplement / appendix which will not count against page limit)
- Two letters of recommendation from faculty advisors.

University of Oxford

Rank: Associate Professorship in European Union and Comparative East European Politics

Associate Professorship in European Union and Comparative East European Politics

Salary on the scale within the range £48,114 to £64,605 p.a. (plus College benefits including a housing allowance of £2,550 p.a. and other benefits)

The Department of Politics and International Relations (DPIR) at Oxford is an internationally renowned centre of excellence for teaching and research. The study of these disciplines at Oxford has a long and distinguished history and the department is one of the largest in the field in the UK.

The Oxford School of Global and Area Studies (OSGA) is one of the fifteen constituent Departments of the Social Sciences Division at Oxford. It represents a commitment by the University to enhancing teaching and research in Area Studies and is the largest community of Area Studies scholars anywhere in the world.

The Departments, in association with St Antony's College, now seek jointly to appoint an inspirational teacher and accomplished research scholar to an Associate Professorship in European Union and Comparative East European Politics.

Applications are welcomed from outstanding candidates with teaching experience and a strong research background in European Union politics and expertise in comparative East European politics.

Essential criteria include a completed doctorate in political science or a closely related field, an outstanding, world-class portfolio of research and publications, as well as an exciting research programme. Preference will be given to scholars with a research programme in the politics of European Union integration, the politics of European Union institutions, and/or European Union public policy, and to scholars with a regional, rather than single-country focus, on the post-socialist countries of the region, as well as on the nexus between these post-socialist countries and the European Union. The ability to work with source materials in one or more of the official languages of the post-socialist countries of Eastern Europe is highly desirable for this post.

The successful candidate will be expected to engage actively in research and to contribute through world-class publications to the departments' and University's international reputation for research excellence. The post-holder will also offer teaching in both the DPIR and OSGA, supervision of undergraduate and graduate students, contribute to administration and examining, and act as a College Adviser for graduate students.

The post will be held in conjunction with a Governing Body Fellowship at St Antony's College. The post-holder will have a room for teaching and research in the Department of Politics and International Relations and St Antony's College.

Associate Professor is the main academic career grade at Oxford with a focus on research and teaching, spanning the full range of professor grades in the USA. In exceptional cases, the title of full Professor may be awarded on appointment. Appointments to Associate Professorships are confirmed as permanent on successful completion of a review during the first 5 years. Any offer made will be subject to pre-employment checks. The post is offered on a full-time basis, available from 1 September 2021 or as soon as possible thereafter.

If you wish to apply please visit:

Rank: Post-Doctoral Associate - Center for Governance and Markets

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, American Government and Politics

Specializations: Political Economy, Economic Policy, International Law & Organizations

The Center for Governance and Markets at the Graduate School for Public and International Affairs at the University of Pittsburgh is now accepting applications for a Postdoctoral Research Associate for a one-year appointment beginning in August 2021, with a possible extension for a second year. The postdoctoral associate will play a significant role in advancing the mission of the Center, which explores how governance institutions and markets contribute to human well-being, prosperity, and security in the US and around the world. CGM achieves its mission by producing cutting-edge research, dialogue with policy communities, and through community engagement.

CGM is interested in a postdoctoral associate from any relevant discipline in the social sciences (e.g., economics, political science, sociology, public policy, public administration, anthropology, etc.) who can contribute to one or more of our core research areas: governance and political institutions; economic institutions and property rights; and/or governance of emerging technologies.

CGM seeks candidates with a strong research background in their own discipline who have a willingness and ability to develop research projects that align with CGM research initiatives. The candidate will conduct his/her teaching and research and participate in the Center's activities, including seminar series. The candidate is also expected to support CGM's mission by engaging with policy communities as well as working with the communities where we work.

Candidates must have received their PhD within the past three years. Salary is competitive and the benefits package includes health/vision/dental plans including spouse, domestic partner and/or dependents. Additional support for up to $3,000 will be made available to support research and conference attendance.

To apply, please include the following materials with your application:

CV

Minimum of three confidential letters of reference (send via email to cgm@pitt.edu)

Writing sample

Cover letter detailing how research interests align with the mission and research initiatives of CGM.

All applications must be received through Pitt's site: https://cfopitt.taleo.net/careersection/pitt_faculty_external/jobdetail.ftl?job=20006253&tz=GMT-05%3A00&tzname=America%2FNew_York

University of Oklahoma

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The University of Oklahoma invites applications for a tenure-track position in public administration at the assistant professor level beginning in August 2021. We seek candidates with a broad competence in public administration and whose research and/or teaching is inclusive of countries outside of the United States. The selected candidate will contribute to our core courses in our NASPAA-accredited MPA program and be able to teach public administration courses from a comparative perspective, focusing on countries outside of the US, as part of our efforts to have more courses that expose students to the diversity of politics and governments across the world. We are open as to substantive focus, but we are especially interested in candidates with expertise in non-governmental organizations, social equity in the US and/or other countries, indigenous issues, or development administration.

This position is within the Department of Political Science, a large department with two undergraduate majors (Political Science and Public & Nonprofit Administration), multiple minors, two master degree programs (Public Administration & Political Science, with the MPA offered in Norman and Tulsa), and a doctoral program. The department is housed within the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Oklahoma. The University of Oklahoma is the flagship research institution for the state of Oklahoma, enrolling over 30,000 students, located in Norman, OK, a vibrant college town just 20 miles south of Oklahoma City.

Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in public administration, political science, or public policy, and completed by August 2021, have the ability to contribute to the MPA core curriculum, and ability to teach public administration from a comparative perspective, focusing on countries outside of the US. Preference will be given to applicants with substantive focus in non-governmental organizations, social equity in the US and/or other countries, indigenous issues, or development administration, show evidence of a robust research agenda and potential for success in publishing in high-quality, peer-reviewed outlets, have teaching experience, especially in an online format. The teaching load for this position is two courses per semester.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter, teaching statement, unofficial graduate transcript(s) (official transcript will be required for finalist), writing sample, contact information for three references. Three letters of recommendation will be required for candidates who progress past the first screening. Review of applications will begin February 18, 2021 and continue until the position is filled. Any questions can be emailed to the search committee chairs, Dr. Alisa Fryar ahicklin@ou.edu and Dr. Charles Kenney ckennedy@ou.edu. University of Durham

Rank: Assistant Professor in Comparative Politics (SGIA21-54)

The School of Government and International Affairs (SGIA) at Durham University seeks to appoint a talented individual to the role of Assistant Professor in Comparative Politics. We welcome applications from those with research and teaching interests in the broad field of Comparative Politics. We are open-minded in relation to substantive and geographical focus, emphasising the excellence of research above all, and the use of rigorous approaches to address important political questions.

The successful candidate will join colleagues in the Centre for Institutions and Political Behaviour, which provides a stimulating and supportive environment for developing and refining research projects and outputs, networking with colleagues within and beyond Durham and providing pump-priming financial support for research.

This post offers an exciting opportunity to make a major contribution to the development of internationally excellent research and teaching while allowing you unrivalled opportunities to progress and embed your career in an exciting and progressive institution.

The successful candidate will benefit from individual research support funding, access to SGIA and University-wide research funding, and be entitled to apply for sabbatical leave on the basis of one term of leave in each seven terms of service. SGIA and Durham University provides high-quality administrative support to assist with applications for research funding, to facilitate research-based engagement and impact work with non-academic communities, and to enable the introduction and dissemination of new educational practice. SGIA attracts some of the most highly qualified undergraduates in the UK to its exciting undergraduate degree programmes. The postgraduate student community is large, at over 200 taught and research students, and highly international. Among other EDI initiatives, the department is currently in the process of diversifying its curriculum and this is a project we would be keen for the post-holder to contribute to. For more information, please visit our Department pages at <https://www.dur.ac.uk/sgia/>.

As one of the UK's leading universities, Durham is an incredible place to define your career while enjoying a high quality work/life balance. We are home to some of the most talented scholars and researchers from around the world who are tackling global issues and making a difference to people's lives.

The University sits in a beautiful historic city where it shares ownership of a UNESCO World Heritage Site with Durham Cathedral. A collegiate University, Durham recruits outstanding students from across the world and offers an unmatched wider student experience.

Less than 3 hours north of London, and an hour and a half south of Edinburgh, County Durham is a region steeped in history and natural beauty. The Durham Dales, including the North Pennines Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty, are home to breathtaking scenery and attractions. Durham offers an excellent choice of city, suburban and rural residential locations. Roanoke College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

The Department of Public Affairs at Roanoke College invites applications for a one-year Visiting Assistant Professor position in International Relations beginning in August 2021 and ending in May 2022. This is a full time, sabbatical-replacement position, with a teaching load of seven courses during the academic year.

We seek candidates with broad training in International Relations and who can offer courses in International Politics, International Relations Theory, and Research Methods. While the department has additional need for courses covering Comparative Politics of Europe and Human Rights Policy to fill specific programmatic requirements, we especially seek candidates who have passion for teaching and mentoring undergraduates and can diversify our offerings. The successful candidate will also contribute International Relations courses to the General Education curriculum. A Ph.D. with teaching experience is preferred, but an ABD will be considered.

The Public Affairs Department administers majors in Political Science, International Relations, and Criminal Justice. In addition to excellent teaching and collegiality, the Public Affairs Department supports and expects active professional participation and research. Visiting Professors are eligible to receive departmental funds and to apply for most of the College's internal grants in support of their research and teaching.

Roanoke College is an equal opportunity employer and actively seeks diversity among its faculty, staff, and students; women and members of under-represented groups are especially encouraged to apply. We also seek candidates with interests in mentoring under-represented students, diversifying curricular offerings, or sponsoring diverse community engagement. Applicants are asked to address their potential contributions in support of a diverse community in their cover letters.

Applicants should submit their cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching evaluations and three letters of recommendation to: Ms. Judith Pinckney, Department of Public Affairs, 119 West Hall, Roanoke College, Salem, VA 24153. Inquiries may be sent to: pinckney@roanoke.edu. Please visit our Departmental website at: https://www.roanoke.edu/inside/a-z_index/public_affairs for more information.

Review of applications will begin on January 8, 2021 and continue until the position is filled.

University of Richmond

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The University of Richmond Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor with expertise in the politics of development, broadly defined. The department has a strong preference for an area concentration in either Africa or the Middle East, which will complement its existing strengths in the politics of Asia, Europe, and Latin America. The position, to begin in 2021-2022 academic year, is intended to meet and expand curricular goals within the major; to broaden the department's research expertise; and to contribute to interdisciplinary initiatives in the School of Arts and Sciences and to the University of Richmond's mission of "preparing students for responsible leadership in a diverse world." More specifically, the position carries a 3-2 teaching load consisting of a regular offering of a survey course on the politics of development. Other courses would relate to the faculty's regional specialization, with particular preference for courses on the politics of Africa and/or the Middle East. The new hire would also share responsibility for teaching the department's ongoing offerings of Introduction to Comparative Politics and/or Introduction to International Relations and, as schedule permits, contribute to departmental First Year Seminar (FYS) offerings.

Applicants must either hold a Ph.D. in Political Science or show credible evidence that they will complete the dissertation by August 1, 2021. Applicants should apply online at <https://richmond.csod.com/ats/careersite/JobDetails.aspx?site=1&id=2062>.

The University of Richmond is a private university located just a short drive from downtown Richmond, Virginia. Through its five schools and wide array of campus programming, the University combines the best qualities of a small liberal arts college and a large university. With nearly 4,000 students, an 8:1 student-faculty ratio, and more than 90% of traditional undergraduate students living on campus, the University is remarkably student-centered, focused on preparing students "to live lives of purpose, thoughtful inquiry, and responsible leadership in a global and pluralistic society."

The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse workforce and student body, and to modeling an inclusive campus community which values the expression of difference in ways that promote excellence in teaching, learning, personal development, and institutional success. Our academic community strongly encourages applications that are in keeping with this commitment. For more information on the department and its programs, please see <https://polisci.richmond.edu/>.

Applicants should click "Apply Now" at the top of the page and submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter containing a brief summary of the candidate's research and teaching interests and indicating commitment to the teacher-scholar model, and separate research and teaching statements. The research statement should expand on the candidate's research agenda and expertise. The teaching statement should articulate the candidate's teaching philosophy, interests, experience and goals. It should also address commitment to inclusive pedagogy and to fostering thriving and inclusive intercultural community, as outlined in the President's Making Excellence Inclusive report (<https://president.richmond.edu/inclusive-excellence/report-pdfs/making-excellence-inclusive-final-report-2019.pdf>). In addition, please include copies of academic transcripts. Candidates for this position may be asked, at a later date, to provide the names and contact information for three references who will be asked to submit letters of recommendation. Review of applications will commence on October 1, 2020 and continue until the position is filled.

Please address any questions about the application to Dr. Jennifer Erkulwater (jerkulwa@richmond.edu), Chair, Department of Political Science, University of Richmond, Richmond, VA 23173.

Lycoming College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at Lycoming College invites applications for a tenure-track position in Public Law at the rank of Assistant Professor to begin August 2021. The successful candidate will be broadly trained to teach both introductory and advanced courses in Public Law. Candidates with a secondary specialization in Comparative Politics are encouraged to apply.

Lycoming's small, liberal arts environment allows faculty members, as part of their 3-3 teaching load, to create new courses in line with their area of specialization. Candidates with an interest in teaching in the College's interdisciplinary first year seminar program are desired. Candidates should demonstrate a strong promise of teaching effectiveness and scholarly achievement, and a serious commitment to teaching undergraduates in a liberal arts environment is essential. Additional duties include advising and mentoring students, as well as service to the department and institution.

Ph.D. in political science is preferred, but ABDs in their final stages of completion will be considered.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae along with submitting a teaching portfolio, 250-word statement on why they are interested in a liberal arts academic environment, a single-authored writing sample, 3 letters of recommendation, and graduate transcript using the link below. <https://lycomingcollege.applytojob.com/apply/CqDmzXdfUU/Assistant-Professor-Of-Political-Science-Public-Law>

Carleton College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science
Specializations: Asian American Politics, China, East Asia

The Carleton College Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Comparative Politics to begin September 1, 2021. We are specifically interested in candidates who have regional expertise in Chinese politics and prefer candidates who can speak both to domestic dynamics as well as China's role in a broader Asian and/or global context. Successful candidates should be able to teach a range of courses in Comparative Politics (including the introductory course) as well as offer instruction in research methods (qualitative and/or quantitative). The standard teaching load is five courses spread across three trimesters. The ideal candidate will also be interested in contributing to a vibrant college-wide culture of undergraduate research and have a commitment to attracting and retaining students from underserved groups. A PhD in hand or its imminent completion is required.

Carleton is a highly selective liberal arts college with a student body of approximately 2,000, located in the historic and thriving town of Northfield, Minnesota. We are in commuting distance of the Twin Cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul, whose greater metro area has a diverse population of three million people and a rich variety of cultural resources. The Political Science Department strives to introduce students—majors and non-majors alike—to a broad array of theoretical and philosophical perspectives while equipping them with the necessary analytic skills to engage with an increasingly diverse world and contribute constructively to one's community. For further information about the department, please consult the department website at carleton.edu/political-science.

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, a graduate transcript, and a statement about teaching in an undergraduate liberal arts environment and how you would contribute to a college community that embraces a diversity of people and perspectives as one of its core values. We also require a statement about research interests, one scholarly writing sample and contact information for three letters of reference. All applications should be submitted to jobs.carleton.edu. Inquiries can be directed to preiken@carleton.edu.

Providence College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor - Comparative Politics of Africa
Specializations: Africa, Developing Nations, Western Europe

The Political Science Department at Providence College invites applications for a one-year position as visiting assistant professor in Comparative Politics with a focus on African Politics. The Department welcomes applicants with a range of research foci, such as post-colonial institutions, democratization, social movements, parties and party systems, civil society, militarization and insurgencies, political economy, and statebuilding.

The teaching load is four courses per semester (two or three preparations); class size varies from about 12 to 25 students. The successful applicant will teach Comparative Politics, African Politics, and Politics 101, the introductory course for the major. There is a possibility the position may be extended for a second year.

The position includes competitive salary and benefits, as well as research support including travel funds, library resources, and grant writing assistance. The Political Science Department has thirteen faculty members dedicated to effective teaching and scholarship.

The City of Providence is vibrant and diverse city with a long history of welcoming immigrant populations, most recently from West Africa, Latin America, and Southeast Asia.

Applicants should possess a Ph.D. in political science or be close to completion, and demonstrate evidence of teaching excellence, strong research skills, and potential for research productivity.

Applicants should apply online at <https://careers.providence.edu> and submit a cover letter, curriculum vita, and contact information for three professional references. For additional information, please contact Dr. Joe Cammarano, Chair of the Political Science Department, at jpcammar@providence.edu with questions.

Shanghai University of Finance and Economics

Rank: Assistant and Associate Professors of Political Science - Tenure Track
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Methodology, Political Theory

Job Title: Assistant and Associate Professors of Political Science - Tenure Track

School of Public Economics and Administration (SPEA)
Shanghai University of Finance and Economics (SUFE)

Job Type: Full-Time

Job Summary: The School of Public Economics and Administration (SPEA) at Shanghai University of Finance and Economics (SUFE)

seeks applicants for two tenure-track faculty positions at the rank of assistant or associate (non-tenured) professor. The employment starts in Fall semester of 2021. The openings are in the field of comparative politics, research methodology, and political theory. Candidates who have a research focus on issues of public policy are strongly encouraged to apply for the positions. A completed Ph.D. in Political Science is required before the employment. Applicants should demonstrate their potentials to employ rigorous research methods, either quantitative or qualitative, to answer important theoretical questions in the field. Although the working environment in SUFE is international, the ability to communicate fluently in Mandarin Chinese is highly preferred.

The position is a full-time appointment for a period of six years. A tenure evaluation will be conducted after five years of employment. The tenure-track faculty are expected to publish research on highly reputable international journals, offer high-quality teaching to undergraduate and graduate students, and contribute to the development of political science at SUFE. The rules of evaluation and promotion are standardized at the university and similar to those for tenure positions in a regular American university.

We offer a globally competitive salary based on a full-time appointment and depending on experience and knowledge. The starting salary is 380,000 RMB for entry-level appointment, pending university approval. The offer also includes a broad package of fringe benefits (240K RMB housing subsidy, medical insurance, moving expenses, startup fund, and travel grants) per university regulation.

Institution background: Shanghai University of Finance and Economics, founded in 1917, is a top-ranked research university in China. The university has recruited more than 200 faculty members with overseas Ph.D. degrees. SPEA has 20 faculty members who own overseas Ph.D. degrees. The university and the school have developed a competitive and collegial environment for junior scholars trained overseas. The university has decided to establish and develop a strong political science program in the Thirteenth Five-Year Plan. The newly established Institute of Political Science has eight members who hold a Ph.D. degree from overseas.

Application documents: Your application must contain the following documents (all in English):

1. A cover letter;
2. An extensive curriculum vitae including a publication list;
3. A statement of research interest and agenda;
4. Up to three working papers;
5. And names and contact information of three references.

The deadline for accepting applications is September 31, 2020, for this round of recruitment. We will arrange on-site interviews at SUFE or other forms of interviews such as Skype and Wechat during November and December 2020.

Contact: Please send your application and request to recruit committee at polscisufe@gmail.com.

Rank: 2021-2022 International Affairs Fellowship for Tenured International Relations Scholars (IAF-TIRS)

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Foreign Policy, International Security, History & Politics

The Fellowship:

The International Affairs Fellowship for Tenured International Relations Scholars (IAF-TIRS) offers professors from a variety of academic backgrounds practical experience in the foreign policymaking field, providing them with an opportunity to spend their sabbatical year working at a U.S. government agency, in Congress, or with an international organization.

The IAF-TIRS program helps close the gap between research and practice, enriching both teaching and scholarship by enabling fellows to become practitioners. The program also benefits policymakers by exposing them to critical scholarly research relevant to the foreign policy and national security issues facing the United States and the world.

The fellowship is for twelve months. The program will match 50 percent of the fellow's base salary for the academic year (up to a maximum of $80,000 for the year) as well as provide modest assistance for moving expenses for those who need to relocate for the fellowship.

Eligibility:

Applicants should be U.S. citizens

Applicants must be full-time tenured professors at a U.S. college or university

Applicants must have arranged a paid sabbatical with their home university

Applicants must hold a PhD

Applicants must propose to spend a year working on peace and security issues in the U.S. government, in Congress, or at an international organization.

Preference is given to candidates with no previous experience in the U.S. government or with an international organization.

*Note: fellows are considered independent contractors rather than employees of CFR and are not eligible for employment benefits, including health insurance. No indirect costs can be deducted from the stipend award.

How to Apply:

Interested candidates who meet the program eligibility requirements can apply online now through October 31 at cfr.org/fellowships/international-affairs-fellowship-tenured-international-relations-scholars.

University of Pittsburgh

Rank: Visiting Lecturer in Global Studies

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Political Theory

The Department of Political Science at the University of Pittsburgh invites applications for a one-year, full-time position as Visiting Lecturer in Global Studies for the 2021-2022 academic year. Teaching obligations involve 18 credit hours (6 courses) and will include several sections of PS 0550, Introduction to Global Studies, a course the Department offers in close coordination with Pitt's Global Studies Center. Additional teaching will depend on the interests of the successful candidate (e.g., courses in comparative politics, international relations, or political theory). We are particularly interested in candidates who could offer upper-level courses in political theory that complement our existing offerings (e.g., courses in non-western or comparative political theory, post-colonial theory, etc.) as well as in comparative politics or international relations. All applicants should explain their qualifications to teach Intro to Global Studies (a large-format lecture course) and describe what additional courses they might offer.

Review of applications will begin on March 15, 2021 and continue until the position is filled; applications received by the deadline will receive full consideration. Applicants should have a Ph.D. in hand or expected by August 31, 2021. Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, graduate transcript, teaching portfolio, and two letters of reference (email letters of recommendation to Wynn Maloney at wynn2@pitt.edu).

Please apply to the University of Pittsburgh's Talent Center, https://cfopitt.taleo.net/careersection/pitt_faculty_external/jobdetail.ftl?job=21001153&tz=GMT-05%3A00&tzname=America%2FNew_York. The position requisition number is 21001153.

The University of Pittsburgh is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer and values equality of opportunity, human dignity and diversity. EOE, including disability/vets.

Brown University

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

Brown University invites applications for a two-year Postdoctoral Research Associate in Climate Solutions at the Watson Institute for International & Public Affairs. Two positions are available, associated with the Climate Solutions Lab and the William R. Rhodes Center for International Economics and Finance. We seek scholars to help us address one of two major topics: climate and trade, and financing decarbonization. The first position will lead task forces looking at questions like how climate should fit into the United States' China strategy, and how US policymakers can work with the EU on issues such as carbon tariffs and border adjustment measures. The second position will focus on how state and market actors can work together to finance decarbonization, with a specific focus on ameliorating the distributive politics inherent in such a transition. There are no teaching responsibilities for these positions. The selected candidate will devote 50 percent time to Watson's projects, under the supervision of Professors Jeff Colgan and Mark Blyth, and 50 percent time to his or her own (climate-related) research projects.

Founded in 1764, Brown is a leading research university distinct for its student-centered learning and deep sense of purpose. Brown University students, faculty, and staff are driven by the idea that their work will have an impact on the world. Brown is a place where rigorous scholarship, complex problem-solving, and service to the public good are defined by collaboration, intellectual discovery, and working in ways that transcend traditional disciplinary boundaries.

Scholars with a Ph.D. in political science, sociology, economics, public policy, or closely related disciplines will be considered. Dissertation must be signed by June 30, 2021. Candidates must be untenured and within 5 years of Ph.D.

Candidates should submit a cover letter, a CV, three letters of reference and a short writing sample (15-20 pages) through Interfolio <http://apply.interfolio.com/83618>

Applications received by March 15th, 2021 will receive full consideration.

Final notifications are expected to go out in May 2021. This two-year Postdoctoral Research Associate appointment will be effective July 1, 2021, and is not renewable.

Position: Assistant/Associate/Full Professor level

Location: Rabat, Morocco

Hours: Full-time

Application deadline: May 31, 2021

Mohammed VI Polytechnic University (UM6P) is a recently established non-profit Higher Education institution with campuses throughout Morocco, and with the ambition to promote high-quality, world-class education and research. It aims to contribute to the development of African countries through a two-fold objective: to train the next generation of African social science scholars and leaders, and to produce cutting-edge research that informs policy and solve the challenges facing society. To further this aim, the Faculty of Governance, Economics and Social Sciences (FGSES) is looking to appoint a number of tenure-track positions in International Relations.

Job Description and Duties: We are open to candidates with a research expertise in any area of International Relations, but particularly value candidates with expertise in International Relations Theory; Critical Security; Post/Decolonial International Relations; International Political Economy; or the International Relations of Africa. Regardless of area of interest however, solid candidates with strong teaching and supervision experience as well as a robust publication record will be given serious consideration. The expected start date for the position is September 2021. For this reason, successful candidates are expected to be ready to take on teaching responsibilities at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Academic staff members are expected to actively participate in the Faculty's intellectual life and public engagement and to advance the purposes and the ambition of UM6P. We are looking for serious scholars and dedicated teachers who can engage a diverse, multicultural community of students and researchers.

Qualifications: the candidates must have a Ph.D. in International Relations, Political Science or cognate disciplines, demonstrated experience in teaching, and solid publications in peer-reviewed journals. Preference will be given to candidates who can teach one or more of the following subjects:

- Political History
- Africa and middle East
- International Political Economy
- Geopolitics and geostrategy
- Quantitative and qualitative methods in the Social Sciences

Salary and Benefits: We offer a generous expatriate contract with a competitive salary and benefits that meet international standards. Salary packages are commensurate with experience. Benefits include a generous housing allowance, tuition allowance for dependents, medical insurance, retirement pension, free access to wellness services, and much more. The University also provides start-up and relocation support.

Job location: Our state-of-the-art facilities in the Faculty of Governance, Economics and Social Sciences (FGSES) are in Rabat. The Kingdom's capital offers easy access to scholars interested in conducting field research in Africa and the Middle East. In addition, Rabat offers a good quality of life, a moderate weather all year round, and direct flights to most African, European and North American capitals.

Application requirements: the application consists of the following:
 ? Application Statement (candidates must specify at which level they wish their application to be considered)

? Curriculum Vitae

? Full list of publications

? Copy of the Ph.D. degree

? Previous teaching experience including teaching evaluations and at least one course outline

Applications must be submitted to recruitment.humanities@um6p.ma, by May 31, 2021.

Please attach a single file containing all the above and use "International Relations" in the subject line. An interdisciplinary committee will review all applications. Shortlisted candidates will be invited for an interview via videoconference. All enquiries should be sent to: recruitment.humanities@um6p.ma

Morehouse College

Rank: Assistant Professor

Position URL: apply.interfolio.com/84198

The Department of Political Science at Morehouse College invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor. Candidates should be trained in the area of international relations. The ideal candidate will also be able to teach an introductory-level course in comparative politics.

Responsibilities include teaching courses (a 3-3 load), advising, and mentoring students; developing and maintaining a scholarly research and publication agenda; and service to the department and the College. We also encourage faculty to be active in soliciting external funding through grants and other sources. The start date for the position is August 2021.

Morehouse College is a private historically black liberal arts college for men whose mission is to develop men with disciplined minds to lead lives of leadership and service by emphasizing the intellectual and character development of its students and by assuming a special responsibility for teaching the history and culture of black people. Since the founding of the College in 1867, the faculty, staff, and leadership have worked to inspire, nurture, challenge, support, and engage its students with the expressed intent of fomenting a very special kind of development.

Morehouse has a very proud tradition of having developed leaders, with the most notable of course being Martin Luther King, Jr. (class of 1948). Each era has defined the qualities of Morehouse Man—an expression of the expectations we have of our graduates—a bit differently, but there are some enduring constants. Backed by nearly 150 years of history, we see our work as helping to shape men of acuity, integrity and agency; men who will commit to brotherhood, standing together with their peers to cheer, challenge and support each other; and men who will strive to lead consequential lives, to not just do well for themselves, but to do good in the world.

Our strong legacy is continued now as we claim a number of successes. Morehouse is the number one baccalaureate origin institution for black male doctorate recipients in science and engineering, life sciences, physical sciences, social sciences, education, and humanities over the decade ending 2012 according to the National Science Foundation. We are the top producer of underrepresented minority physics baccalaureates among non-PhD granting institutions over the three years ending in 2013 as measured by the American Physical Society. And the College just this year became the only non-majority college or university to have produced four Rhodes Scholars. Our graduates include not only men like King and Julian Bond, but Spike Lee, David Satcher, Eddie Glaude, Jim Shelton, and many more operating in and out of academia in some way.

The College offers instructional programs in six divisions—humanities, social sciences and cultural studies, creative and performing arts, life sciences, mathematics and computational science, and business and economics—as well as extracurricular and co-curricular activities that, combined with the academic program: foster the development of oral and written communication skills; foster appreciation of world cultures, artistic, creative expression and the nature of the physical universe; promote understanding of the specific skills needed to pursue professional careers and graduate study; and cultivate the personal attributes of self-confidence, tolerance, morality, ethical behavior, spirituality, humility, global perspective, and commitment to justice.

Qualifications

Minimum qualifications include a PhD in political science; commitment to excellence in teaching; evidence of a productive research program; and service to the profession and community.

Application Instructions

A successful application will consist of the following:

1. A letter of application providing detail on how the candidate meets the qualifications for the position and why they are a good fit for Morehouse College in particular (no more than 2 pages);
2. A current curriculum vitae (no more than 4 pages);
3. A statement of teaching philosophy (no more than 2 pages);
4. A research/scholarship agenda (no more than 2 pages);
5. Unofficial transcripts
6. Three letters of recommendation

Candidates also have the option of sharing the following:

1. Sample syllabi (no more than 2 courses)
2. Samples of research (no more than 2 samples)
3. Teaching evaluations or summaries of evaluations (no more than 2 courses, but if submitted, only submit full class evaluations and not samples of class evaluations)

Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. For questions about the search, please contact Dr. Andrew Douglas, andrew.douglas@morehouse.edu, 470-639-0732.

Auburn University Montgomery

Rank: Khaled Chair in Political Science and International Policy

The Department of Political Science and Public Administration at Auburn University at Montgomery invites applications for the endowed Khaled Chair in Political Science and International Policy, starting in August 2021. Appointment will be made at the associate or full professor level depending on the applicant's credentials. We seek a diverse pool and will consider applicants with any specialization in international relations. Applicants must have a Ph.D. in political science, international affairs, international relations, public policy, or a related discipline.

The successful applicant will be expected to work closely with the department chair to expand the masters and doctoral programs, including recruitment and program development. Teaching expectations include undergraduate and graduate courses in the field of expertise. The position comes with a summer research stipend, research and travel support, a graduate assistant, and a reduced teaching load.

Review of applications will begin March 12, 2021. To apply, complete an online application at <https://www.jobs.aum.edu/postings/4601> and upload the following materials: 1) a letter of application to include areas of specialization, current and future research agenda, teaching areas with course titles and teaching philosophy, and most significant professional service; 2) curriculum vitae; 3) two recent writing samples; 4) graduate transcript (official transcript will be needed at time of hire); and 5) contact information for at least three professional references. Separately, three confidential letters of reference are required and must be sent by email to politicalscience@aum.edu by the application deadline.

The Department of Political Science and Public Administration includes eight tenure-track faculty and offers an undergraduate and master's degree in political science and a nationally ranked, NASPAA-accredited master's degree in public administration. We also offer a Ph.D. in Public Administration and Public Policy jointly with Auburn University's Department of Political Science.

Auburn University at Montgomery (AUM), a comprehensive public university, is the metropolitan campus of Auburn University. Located in the state capital on a 500-acre campus, AUM enrolls approximately 5000 undergraduate and graduate students and attracts a diverse student body. AUM is ranked by U.S. News and World Report as one of the top twenty-five Comprehensive Regional Universities in the South and by the Princeton Review as one of the best colleges in the Southeast. Montgomery is a diverse city offering an array of cultural and recreational opportunities including the Alabama Shakespeare Festival, world-class museums and memorials including the new Legacy Museum and the National Memorial for Peace and Justice, a ballet company, a natural habitat zoo, a chamber music society, an independent film theater, and the Montgomery Biscuits Double-A baseball team; it is home to Maxwell-Gunter Air Force Base and Air University, Hyundai Motor's first U.S. production facility, and the headquarters of leading non-profits including Equal Justice Initiative and the Southern Poverty Law Center. The campus is within a two-and-a-half-hour drive to Atlanta, ninety minutes to Birmingham, and less than three hours to the Gulf Coast.

Auburn University at Montgomery is an Equal Opportunity Employer committed to achieving excellence through diversity; therefore, we encourage applications from historically underrepresented groups, veterans, and individuals with disabilities.

While this position is open until filled, Auburn University at Montgomery reserves the right to stop accepting applications once interviewing has begun.

Temple University

Rank: Postdoctoral Diversity Fellow in Political Science
Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, International Law & Organizations, Civil Rights & Liberties

The Department of Political Science at Temple University invites applications for a one-year Postdoctoral Fellowship to support the development of early career scholars from diverse backgrounds with particular attention to historically underrepresented groups on the professorial faculties of colleges and universities in the United States. This year we seek a fellow with expertise in human rights law and politics in either domestic or international contexts. The successful applicant will contribute intellectually to the department and College of Liberal Arts by conducting research while teaching one course during the year. We would welcome, but not limit our search to candidates who study race, sexual orientation, and/or religious affiliation as components of states' legal traditions both domestically and internationally. Applicants should hold or be completing a doctorate in Political Science or a related discipline.

Our department (<https://www.cla.temple.edu/political-science/>) organizes formal colloquia from outside scholars and hosts or cohosts many internal research talks with interdisciplinary centers such as Global Studies, Public Policy Lab, Master of Public Policy, Gender, Sexuality and Women's Studies (GSWS), the Center for Force and Diplomacy (CENFAD), and the Center for Humanities at Temple (CHAT).

The Postdoctoral Diversity Fellowship is a competitive program whose goal is to increase the diversity of the community of scholars devoted to academic research at Temple University. Candidates must have completed their Ph.D. by September 1, 2021. Please submit a letter of application that includes (1) proposed research plan for the fellowship, (2) a statement of teaching interests and/or philosophy, (3) a brief statement of the grounds of eligibility and progress toward completion of the dissertation, (4) curriculum vitae, and (5) three letters of recommendation by April 1, 2021 via the Interfolio link below. Letter writers should address the likelihood of completing the degree before September 1, 2021. Applications are due April 1, 2021 but review will commence immediately.

The current postdoctoral fellowship is non-renewable. The award includes a salary of $50,000, full Temple University employee benefits, a research/travel fund of $3,000, and a $2,000 moving allowance. The postdoctoral fellow will teach one course during the year of appointment and will meet regularly with other postdocs and faculty in the department and college through participation in seminars, colloquia, teaching circles, etc.

Temple University is a state-related Carnegie Research University (highest research activity) located in Philadelphia. The Department of Political Science is in the College of Liberal Arts, which is home to 38 undergraduate majors, 38 minors, 22 certificate programs, 14 doctoral programs, and 6 graduate certificates. With its vibrant and diverse array of educational programs, the College of Liberal Arts plays a tremendous role in Temple University's academic success and its mission mirrors both the historical importance of the liberal arts in society and the principles on which the University was founded. Temple University is an Affirmative Action equal opportunity employer and particularly encourages applications from women and persons of color, members of under-represented groups, persons with disabilities, and veterans. The University has pledged not to discriminate on the basis of race, color, sex, age, religion, national origin, sexual orientation, marital status, or disability.

Johns Hopkins University

Specializations: China, Africa, Political Economy

Founded in 1943 and a Johns Hopkins division since 1950, The Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of the Johns Hopkins University (SAIS) has been educating global leaders for almost 60 years. As a highly selective graduate institution with a distinguished faculty, SAIS consistently ranks as one of the top schools of international relations in the world. SAIS was founded to provide a practical approach to training students in international leadership and foreign relations, and to provide mid-career educational opportunities for those already working in related fields. Today, SAIS offers the M.A., M.I.P.P., and Ph.D. degrees and enrolls some 700 full-time students on the Washington, DC campus, 190 students at the SAIS Center in Bologna, Italy, and about 180 Chinese and international students at the Hopkins-Nanjing Center in Nanjing, China.

The China-Africa Research Initiative at Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS-CARI), directed by Professor Deborah Brautigam, will offer one pre- or post-doctoral research fellow position for a ten-month period during the 2021-2022 academic year (approximately June 2021 to May 2022). Fellow will spend half of their time on their own Chinese loan-related research projects, and half providing support to CARI research on Chinese lending. This support could include drafting research papers, policy briefs, and related op-eds and “public square” pieces; presenting at conferences and public events; and assisting with, and participating in, interviews, outreach activities and communications as necessary.

Qualifications

An understanding of China’s overseas economic engagement (trade, investment, aid, loans, other forms of cooperation) is essential for this position. Our preference is for candidates who have conducted field research, preferably in Africa although we are open to comparative perspectives. Econometric skills would be an asset but are not required. Ability to read and do research in Chinese is essential.

We prefer candidates who have completed all Ph.D. training and have defended their dissertations, but will consider exceptional candidates who are still writing their dissertations as pre-doctoral fellows. Candidates may not be more than five years beyond receipt of the Ph.D. at the start of the fellowship.

Only applications through Interfolio will be considered. To apply, please go to <https://apply.interfolio.com/83123>.

To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining your fit for the position, including your scholarly interest in China’s overseas lending, the use (if any) that you would make of CARI’s extensive data on Chinese lending in Africa, and prospective or actual doctoral defense date;

- Current C.V. including publications;
- 1000-word description of the research project you would work on at SAIS, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample;
- Three letters of recommendation requested directly through the Interfolio system.

We will begin reviewing applications on February 28, 2021 and will continue to review new applications until the position is filled, or until March 31, 2021, 11:59pm EST, whichever is earlier.

Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications.

Planned start date: June 2021 (Flexible)

Location: Washington, DC.

Duration of position: 10 months from the start date.

Please contact sais-cari@jhu.edu with any questions. Please place “Postdoctoral Fellow Application” in the subject line.

This position is funded by a grant from Carnegie Corporation of New York.

University of Cincinnati

Rank: Research Fellowships in Cyber Strategy and Policy

Subfield(s): Public Policy, International Relations, Open

Specializations: Defense, Science & Technology, International Security

The Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy (CCSP) at the University of Cincinnati is pleased to announce the opening of applications for Pre- and Post-Doctoral Research Fellowships in Cyber Strategy and Policy. The 10-13-month appointments can begin July 1, 2021 or August 1, 2021. There are two positions available.

Expectations

The CCSP Research Fellows will join a national team of researchers focused on examining aspects of a Whole-Of-Nation-Plus approach to cybersecurity. CCSP is examining the range of challenges that must be managed in linking intergovernmental coordination, public-private sector alignment, and a citizenry engaged in support of better cybersecurity, while adding the "plus" of alignment with allied governments, industry, and citizens. The specific research interest of the applicants is open relative to any aspect related to advancing strategy, policy, regulatory, operational, or technical aspects that contribute to a WON+ approach.

Fellows are expected to devote some portion of their time to one of two collaborative research projects: One, on cyber industrial policy that rests on a partnership with the Center for Embedded secure Systems and Trust (CHEST) a NSF-IUCRC project directed at the University of Cincinnati involving seven universities with national industry partners. CCSP will be examining CHEST research in the context of cyber industrial policy development. The second track of CCSP collaborative research will involve focus on state-level cyber security capacity and intergovernmental coordination leveraging our strong partnership with the Ohio National Guard and the Ohio Civilian Cyber Reserve.

Fellows will be provided the intellectual community support to contribute to the CCSP's research activities as well as work on—in the case of pre-dissertation fellows—advancing their doctoral dissertation or post-doctoral fellows advancing their publication agenda. All fellows are expected to be in residence for the duration of their fellowship contingent on Covid health campus policy. CCSP offers nationally competitive stipend levels and the benefit of relatively lower living costs than found on the East and West coasts.

A Multi-Disciplinary Research Environment

The Research Fellows will be supported by the Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy, which draws on a multidisciplinary set of researchers from political science, information technology, computer engineering, and computer science affiliated with the Ohio Cyber Range Institute at the University of Cincinnati. The OCRI and CCSP are organized around the proposition that cyber security is not a technical problem, but rather is a political, economic, social, organizational, and educational challenge in a technically fluid environment. The CCSP Research Fellowships are open to applicants from multiple backgrounds including the fields of strategic studies, international relations, national and foreign policy studies, law, political science, computing sciences or related professional experience gained as employees of government, military, international, humanitarian, and private research institutions in related fields.

The University of Cincinnati is one of only 18 universities in the country to hold both the National Security Agency's Center of Excellence designations in both Cyber Defense and Cyber Operations. Cyber Defense is anchored in UC's School of IT, Cyber Operations in Electrical Engineering and Computer Science, along with CHEST, and the Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy in the Department of Political Science. These four Centers contribute through disciplinary and multidisciplinary research to the overall OCRI ecosystem that includes 11 academic institutions across the state of Ohio as regional programming centers.

Essential Functions

Engage in and contribute to the research projects of CCSP

Minimum Qualifications and Requirements

Applicants for pre-doctoral fellowships must be in a doctoral program, have passed general examinations prior to appointment. Applications for postdoctoral research fellowships are welcome from recent recipients of the Ph.D. or equivalent relevant degree, university faculty members, and employees of government, military, international, humanitarian, and private research institutions who have relevant professional experience.

Required Experience

In-depth knowledge of specialized field, process or discipline.

University Job Posting and Application Process

Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis with preference to those submitted by February 22, 2021. Applications must be submitted online via this link with the following components:

Completion of the electronic employment application form

Cover Letter (two page max)

Statement of research interests/project(s) (1200 words max)

Current CV/ Resume

Additionally, 2 letters of recommendation should be sent separately to cyberstrategy@uc.edu with subject line: Recommendation for (name) CCSP Fellows

Physical Requirements / Work Environment

Sitting - Continuously

The University of Cincinnati, as a multi-national and culturally diverse university, is committed to providing an inclusive, equitable and diverse place of learning and employment. As part of a complete job application you will be asked to include a Contribution to Diversity and Inclusion statement.

As a UC employee, and an employee of an Ohio public institution, if hired you will not contribute to the federal Social Security system, other than contributions to Medicare. Instead, UC employees have the option to contribute to a state retirement plan (OPERS, STRS) or an alternative retirement plan (ARP).

The University of Cincinnati is an Affirmative Action / Equal Opportunity Employer / Minority / Female / Disability / Veteran.

University of Zurich

Rank: Post-doctoral researcher, Chair of International Relations and Political Economy

The Institute of Political Science (IPZ) at the University of Zurich invites applications for a 3-year position as Post-doctoral researcher at the Chair of International Relations and Political Economy (Prof. Dr. Stefanie Walter).

The post-doctoral researcher will pursue his or her own research agenda in the fields of international relations, especially international institutions and international political economy, and produce scholarship with the potential for publication in top outlets. He or she will contribute to teaching in the fields of international relations and political economy (3 hours per week, which translates into a 1-2 teaching load), advising of students and doctoral candidates, and some administrative tasks. Collaboration in research projects at the Chair, such as the ERC project DISINTEGRATION (www.disintegration.ch) and the Department is encouraged.

Requirements

- A PhD (or is very close to completion) in political science or international relations in the fields of international relations, especially international institutions or international political economy.
- Strong interest and ability to produce excellent academic research and the potential to develop an internationally recognized research track record, proven through peer-reviewed publications, conference presentations, third-party funding, or related research activities.
- Strong methodological skills.
- Willingness and ability to engage in high-quality teaching, proven through teaching evaluations, didactical training etc.
- Dedication, creativity, ability to work in a team, and ability to work independently
- Strong command of English. Knowledge of German is an asset.

The starting date for the position is 1 September 2021. A minimum of two-year commitment is requested; renewal up to six years is possible and contingent on research productivity, teaching quality, and continued substantive fit. The salary is approximately 75.000 CHF/year and can be increased with extra teaching. Limited funding for research activities (conference travel etc) is available. UZH's Department of Political Science offers excellent research support in a vibrant research community and is committed to advancing young scholars' careers.

Further enquiries can be directed to Prof. Stefanie Walter (walter@ipz.uzh.ch). Information about the research and teaching activities at the Chair of International Relations and Political Economy is available at <http://www.ipz.uzh.ch/lehrstuehle/ibipe.html>.

University of Zurich

Rank: Post-doctoral researcher, ERC-funded research project DISINTEGRATION

University of Zurich's Institute of Political Science (IPZ) invites applications for a 3-year position as Post-doctoral researcher interested in unilateral challenges to international institutions

The post-doc will be part of Prof. Dr. Stefanie Walter's ERC-funded research project DISINTEGRATION on "The Mass Politics of Disintegration" (www.disintegration.ch). The project explores when and how unilateral attempts to withdraw from international institutions encourages or deters demands for disintegration in other countries, how these contagion effects are transmitted through domestic publics, elites and discourse, and how the governments in the institution's other member states respond to such challenges in the negotiations on the terms of withdrawal and future cooperation.

The post-doctoral researcher will pursue his or her own research agenda in the context of the project. Ideally, he or she should take a leading role in the project's work package 2 on domestic discourse, which examines how contagion effects are transmitted to other countries through national elite and media discourse. In this capacity, the post-doc will organize and conduct data collection (including research design and implementation, data preparation and management, quality control) and data analysis. He or she will also collaborate closely with other project members; will provide support for project-related research, organizational, and administrative tasks; and will disseminate research results by presenting at academic conferences, publishing in top outlets, and outreach activities to the wider public

- A PhD (or very close to completion) in political science with a specialization in international relations, especially international organizations or issues related to international cooperation.
- Strong interest in and ability to produce excellent academic research and the potential to develop an internationally recognized research track record, proven through peer-reviewed publications, conference presentations, third-party funding, or related research activities.
- Strong methodological skills. Expertise in text-as-data methods or survey research is an asset.
- Dedication, ability to work in a team, and ability to work independently
- Strong command of English. Knowledge of German and other European languages is an asset.

University of Toronto

Rank: Assistant Professor

Assistant Professor - International Relations

Description:

The Department of Political Science in the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a full-time tenure stream position in the area of International Relations. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor, with an expected start date of July 1, 2021, or shortly thereafter.

Applicants must have earned a PhD degree in Political Science, International Relations, or a related area by the time of the appointment, or shortly thereafter, with a demonstrated record of excellence in research and teaching. The area of specialization within International Relations is open, but candidates working on global security or foreign policy challenges, broadly understood, are especially encouraged to apply. Theoretical and methodological approaches are open.

We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and strengthen our existing departmental strengths. The successful candidate will undertake undergraduate and graduate teaching responsibilities on the University of Toronto's downtown (St. George) campus. Applicants are encouraged to review the research and teaching profiles of current faculty members. Please visit our home page (Department of Political Science <https://politics.utoronto.ca>) to learn more about us.

The successful candidate will be expected to pursue innovative and independent research at the highest international level and to establish an outstanding, competitive, and externally funded research program. Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence which can be demonstrated by the submitted research statement, a record of publications in top-ranked and field relevant journals or forthcoming publications meeting high international standards, presentations at significant conferences, awards and accolades, and strong endorsements from referees of high standing.

Evidence of excellence in teaching will be provided through teaching accomplishments, the teaching dossier including a teaching statement, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations submitted as part of the application, as well as strong letters of reference.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment demonstrated through the application materials.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter; a current curriculum vitae; a research statement outlining current and future research interests; a recent writing sample; and a teaching dossier to include a teaching statement, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations. Equity and diversity are essential to academic excellence. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of their contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover (but need not be limited to) research and teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

Applicants must arrange to have three letters of reference (on letter-head, dated, signed and scanned) sent directly by the referee to the Chair of the search committee in the Department of Political Science, Professor Robert Vipond, via e-mail at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca by the closing date, Thursday, February 18, 2021. PLEASE NOTE: this search is not using the University's automatic solicitation and collection functionality for reference letters.

Submission guidelines can be found at <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>. If you have any questions about this position, please contact Sari Sherman at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by Thursday, February 18, 2021.

Ronald Reagan Presidential Foundation & Library

Specializations: American Politics, History & Politics, Foreign Policy

The purpose of the Visiting Fellows Program is to advance scholarship focused on the political, economic, and national security ideas and values of President Ronald Reagan. Visiting Fellows will be selected based on the relevance of their research to these principles. Proposals will also be judged on the likelihood of completion of a book manuscript during the fellowship period.

The fellowship year will begin in Washington, DC in September 2021 and last until August 2022. Reagan Visiting Fellows are required to be resident at the Institute's new headquarters in downtown Washington, DC. Each fellow will be provided with office space. The Institute will facilitate research, expand the fellows' contacts, and grow the fellows' visibility in the Washington policy community.

Program Benefits

- In addition to a stipend of $75,000, each Fellow will receive a $5,000 budget for research related travel.
- Mentorship from senior academics who will advise the Fellows and review a book manuscript.
- One-on-one support from an archivist at the Reagan Presidential Library.
- Opportunity to participate and present at the Reagan Virtual Scholars Roundtable, a monthly convening of academics and policymakers who study topics related to the Reagan Presidency.

Program Requirements

- All applicants must submit proof of having successfully defended their dissertation by August 15, 2021.
- Acceptance of the award constitutes a commitment by each fellow to produce a book manuscript by the end of the Fellowship year.
- Applications should be emailed to ReaganFellowship@reaganfoundation.org no later than 11:59 EST on Friday, March 5, 2021.

Application Instructions (please send all files in PDF form)

1. Executive Summary (Maximum of 1 page)
 - Name, Address, Contact Information
 - University Affiliation and Dissertation Advisor and contact information
 - Names and contact information for 2 recommenders
 - One paragraph summary description of research question and project's relevance to Ronald Reagan
2. Project Proposal (Maximum of 3 pages)
 - Proposal should begin with a clear description of the policy issue being examined and a description of how this issue is linked to the ideas and vision of Ronald Reagan.
 - Proposal should consider contemporary implications of the policy issue being examined.
 - Description of research methods and approach – if the Reagan Library is likely to be a source for research, please explain.
 - Notional book outline
3. Writing Sample (less than 20 pages)
4. CV/Resume
5. Transcripts & Letters of Recommendation
 - Unofficial school transcripts and two letters of recommendation must be sent directly from your university and your recommenders to ReaganFellowship@ReaganFoundation.org.

Syracuse University

Rank: Assistant Professors, International Relations

Syracuse University
International Relations

The Department of Political Science at Syracuse University is seeking applications for two tenure-track positions in International Relations at the Assistant Professor level – one with a focus on International Political Economy and one with a focus on International Security. These positions would begin in Fall 2021.

The political science department is housed within the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs, which is committed to citizenship education at the undergraduate level and to graduate education in public affairs and the social sciences. The Maxwell School is interested in candidates who can contribute to the inclusiveness and diversity of the academic community through their research, teaching, and/or service.

For the International Political Economy position, we seek candidates whose teaching and research focuses on trade and foreign aid, international organizations and law, NGOs and non-state actors, or international environment/climate change, among other specialties. For the International Security position, we seek candidates whose teaching and research focuses on gender and security, climate change and security, interstate war / conflict, or conflict prevention and peace-building, among other specialties. We are looking for candidates who complement the broader Maxwell mission and have interdisciplinary interests. Successful candidates may be invited to affiliate with the Moynihan Institute or one of Maxwell's other interdisciplinary centers (<http://www.maxwell.syr.edu/centers/>). The successful candidate will teach at both the undergraduate and graduate level. The typical course load is two classes a semester.

Applicants should have a Ph.D. in political science or a related field or a credible expectation of completing all requirements for the Ph.D. by August 2021.

APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS:

For consideration, candidates must complete an online application (available at <http://www.sujobopps.com/>) and attach online the following: a letter of interest, a CV, a research statement, a sample of professional writing, and a statement of teaching philosophy that includes some reflection on diversity, equity and inclusion in teaching. Files may be no larger than 5MB, but you may submit an external link to a larger file if needed.

In addition, applicants will be required to provide the full email addresses of three references.

Applications will be reviewed as they arrive with full consideration given to those received by February 1, 2020. However, the department will continue to consider applications until this position is filled.

The area of specialization within International Political Economy is open, but candidates focusing on cross-border issues with local implications (such as the politics of trade, finance, investment, migration, the environment, etc.) are particularly encouraged to apply. Ideal candidates will demonstrate their ability to contribute to existing program strengths in quantitative methods.

The department's faculty includes multiple winners of internal and external teaching awards. The candidate is expected to incorporate best practices as identified by the scholarship on teaching and learning into her/his pedagogical approach. The successful candidate will be expected to teach both undergraduate and graduate courses. Faculty typically teach two courses per semester.

The University of Texas at Dallas has the highest freshman SAT scores of any public University in Texas and was recently ranked 39th among the 100 best universities in the world under 50 years old by Times Higher Education magazine. UT Dallas is one of the youngest universities to achieve the Carnegie Commission's highest research classification of "Doctoral Universities – Very High Research Activity."

Applicants should upload a letter of application; current curriculum vitae; a sample of written work; statements of teaching and research philosophy; instructional materials such as syllabi and course evaluations and the full contact information for at least three academic or professional references.

Additional questions for the IPE position may be directed to the Search Committee Chair, Dr. Clint Peinhardt (clint.peinhardt@utdallas.edu).

Dartmouth College

Rank: Professor of Government (open rank) in Cybersecurity, Technology, and Society

The Department of Government at Dartmouth College invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor in Cybersecurity, Technology, and Society. Although we anticipate hiring at the assistant professor level, candidates at the tenured associate and full professor level will also be considered. The Cyber Security Chair is one of three positions in a cluster hire in cybersecurity, Technology, and Society (the other two positions are in the Computer Science Department), and the successful applicant will have an opportunity to collaborate with other faculty in the cluster and to be a member of Dartmouth's Institute for Security, Technology and Society. We will consider applicants working on a broad range of topics related to the intersection of cyber-technologies, domestic or international politics, and society. Candidates may study questions such as how emerging digital technologies, social media and the internet affect critical democratic processes, contribute to political radicalization and extremism, enable foreign influence operations, undermine or protect privacy, contribute to repression and/or resistance to authoritarianism, enable new forms of conflict between groups or states, and/or are used to promote or counteract political misinformation. Candidates might also study the national and international policies and regulations that states, firms, and international organizations use to address these or related issues. We encourage applicants who study these and similar questions to apply. Dartmouth is highly committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive population of students, faculty, and staff. We are especially interested in applicants who are able to work effectively with students, faculty, and staff from all backgrounds, including but not limited to: racial and ethnic minorities, women, individuals who identify with LGBTQ+ communities, individuals with disabilities, individuals from lower income backgrounds, and/or first generation college graduates. Applicants should state in their cover letter how their teaching, research, service, and/or life experiences prepare them to advance Dartmouth's commitments to diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Qualifications:

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field. Although we anticipate hiring at the assistant professor level, candidates at the tenured associate and full professor level will also be considered.

Application instructions:

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, a CV and three letters of recommendation. Applicants should state in their cover letter how their teaching, research, service, and/or life experiences prepare them to advance Dartmouth's commitments to diversity, equity, and inclusion. Application materials should be submitted electronically to: <http://apply.interfolio.com/81228>

The review of applications will begin on January 18, 2021, and will continue until the position is filled. Questions may be sent to Benjamin.A.Valentino@Dartmouth.edu.

Texas A&M University

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Political Theory

The Albritton Center for Grand Strategy at the Bush School of Government and Public Service, Texas A&M University, is inviting applications to its residential fellowship program for the 2021-2022 academic year. The program will support one pre-doctoral and one post-doctoral fellow. The Albritton Center is particularly interested in scholars that are engaging with the fundamental questions surrounding grand strategy: How should the national interest be defined? What are the threats to the national interest? How should the United States use its power in response? Applications are invited from scholars of political science, history, and other relevant disciplines.

Fellows will be expected to be in residence at the Bush School for the duration of their fellowships (September 2021 - August 2022). They will be provided with office space and access to the resources of the Bush School and Texas A&M University. Fellows will participate in Center activities, to include seminars, workshops, and conferences. They will work with an active community of scholars in international affairs, political science, history, and other disciplines at Texas A&M University.

The pre-doctoral fellow is expected to make substantial progress toward – and ideally complete – a dissertation during the fellowship. The post-doctoral fellow is expected to complete a manuscript for publication. The post-doctoral fellow is also expected to teach one course to Bush School students. Finally, both fellows are asked to write a short, policy-relevant piece while in residence.

Eligibility:

Applicants for the pre-doctoral fellowship must be pursuing a Ph.D. in political science, history or other relevant discipline. Applicants must pass all qualifying exams and advance to the level of candidacy prior to the start of their appointment.

Applicants for the post-doctoral fellowship must have completed their PhD in political science, history, or other relevant discipline to begin the fellowship. Recent PhD recipients are especially encouraged to apply.

Award information:

The pre-doctoral fellow will receive a stipend of $39,000, as well as $5,000 in research funding. The post-doctoral fellow will receive a salary of $60,000 (payable monthly), as well as $10,000 in research funding. The post-doctoral fellow will also be eligible for the benefits package available to TAMU employees.

Application process:

Postdoctoral applicants should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, short writing sample (no more than 10,000 words), and a letter of recommendation (preferably by the applicant's dissertation advisor) through Texas A&M's employment platform, Workday (https://tamus.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/TAMU_External/job/College-Station-TAMU/Postdoctoral-Research-Associate_R-033905-1).

Predoctoral applicants should complete submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, short writing sample (no more than 10,000 words), and a letter of recommendation (preferably by the applicant's dissertation advisor) to bushschoolCGS@tamu.edu.

Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis, with those arriving by January 29, 2021 receiving priority attention.

Brandeis University

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Politics at Brandeis University invites applications for a tenure-track position in International Relations at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning in academic year 2021-2022. This position is subject to budget approval. We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests focus on International Security. Duties include the teaching of undergraduate and graduate courses in International Relations, including Introduction to International Relations and U.S. Foreign Policy (or U.S. National Security); undergraduate thesis advising; graduate student advising; doctoral dissertation supervision; and university and departmental service. The course load is two courses per semester.

Candidates should have a Ph.D. in hand by August 2021. Applicants should submit a cover letter; curriculum vitae; a statement of research and teaching interests (including potential course offerings and, where available, syllabi and student evaluations); a statement on diversity, equity, and inclusion; two chapters or article-length writing samples; and names and contact information for three referees. Brandeis University is committed to advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion in all areas of faculty effort, including scholarship, instruction, and service. In the statement on diversity, equity, and inclusion, applicants should address how their experiences, interests, commitments, or future goals could promote and build departmental and institutional pluralism, justice, and unity.

Only online applications will be accepted. Application materials may be uploaded here: <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/17732>. First consideration will be given to applications received by 31 January 2021. Questions about the position can be directed to: Kerry Chase (chase@brandeis.edu), Chair, Search Committee on International Relations.

At Brandeis, we believe that diversity, equity, and inclusion are essential components of academic excellence. Brandeis University is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer that is committed to creating equitable access and opportunities for applicants to all employment positions. Because diversity, equity, and inclusion are at the core of Brandeis' history and mission, we value and are seeking candidates with a variety of social identities, including those that have been underrepresented in higher education, who possess skills that spark innovation, and who, through their scholarly pursuits, teaching, and/or service experiences, bring expertise in building, engaging and sustaining a pluralistic, unified, and just campus community.

Roanoke College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor

The Department of Public Affairs at Roanoke College invites applications for a one-year Visiting Assistant Professor position in International Relations beginning in August 2021 and ending in May 2022. This is a full time, sabbatical-replacement position, with a teaching load of seven courses during the academic year.

We seek candidates with broad training in International Relations and who can offer courses in International Politics, International Relations Theory, and Research Methods. While the department has additional need for courses covering Comparative Politics of Europe and Human Rights Policy to fill specific programmatic requirements, we especially seek candidates who have passion for teaching and mentoring undergraduates and can diversify our offerings. The successful candidate will also contribute International Relations courses to the General Education curriculum. A Ph.D. with teaching experience is preferred, but an ABD will be considered.

The Public Affairs Department administers majors in Political Science, International Relations, and Criminal Justice. In addition to excellent teaching and collegiality, the Public Affairs Department supports and expects active professional participation and research. Visiting Professors are eligible to receive departmental funds and to apply for most of the College's internal grants in support of their research and teaching.

Roanoke College is an equal opportunity employer and actively seeks diversity among its faculty, staff, and students; women and members of under-represented groups are especially encouraged to apply. We also seek candidates with interests in mentoring under-represented students, diversifying curricular offerings, or sponsoring diverse community engagement. Applicants are asked to address their potential contributions in support of a diverse community in their cover letters.

Applicants should submit their cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching evaluations and three letters of recommendation to: Ms. Judith Pinckney, Department of Public Affairs, 119 West Hall, Roanoke College, Salem, VA 24153. Inquiries may be sent to: pinckney@roanoke.edu. Please visit our Departmental website at: https://www.roanoke.edu/inside/a-z_index/public_affairs for more information.

University of Richmond

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The University of Richmond Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor with expertise in the politics of development, broadly defined. The department has a strong preference for an area concentration in either Africa or the Middle East, which will complement its existing strengths in the politics of Asia, Europe, and Latin America. The position, to begin in 2021-2022 academic year, is intended to meet and expand curricular goals within the major; to broaden the department's research expertise; and to contribute to interdisciplinary initiatives in the School of Arts and Sciences and to the University of Richmond's mission of "preparing students for responsible leadership in a diverse world." More specifically, the position carries a 3-2 teaching load consisting of a regular offering of a survey course on the politics of development. Other courses would relate to the faculty's regional specialization, with particular preference for courses on the politics of Africa and/or the Middle East. The new hire would also share responsibility for teaching the department's ongoing offerings of Introduction to Comparative Politics and/or Introduction to International Relations and, as schedule permits, contribute to departmental First Year Seminar (FYS) offerings.

Applicants must either hold a Ph.D. in Political Science or show credible evidence that they will complete the dissertation by August 1, 2021. Applicants should apply online at <https://richmond.csod.com/ats/careersite/JobDetails.aspx?site=1&cid=2062>.

The University of Richmond is a private university located just a short drive from downtown Richmond, Virginia. Through its five schools and wide array of campus programming, the University combines the best qualities of a small liberal arts college and a large university. With nearly 4,000 students, an 8:1 student-faculty ratio, and more than 90% of traditional undergraduate students living on campus, the University is remarkably student-centered, focused on preparing students "to live lives of purpose, thoughtful inquiry, and responsible leadership in a global and pluralistic society."

The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse workforce and student body, and to modeling an inclusive campus community which values the expression of difference in ways that promote excellence in teaching, learning, personal development, and institutional success. Our academic community strongly encourages applications that are in keeping with this commitment. For more information on the department and its programs, please see <https://polisci.richmond.edu/>.

Applicants should click "Apply Now" at the top of the page and submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter containing a brief summary of the candidate's research and teaching interests and indicating commitment to the teacher-scholar model, and separate research and teaching statements. The research statement should expand on the candidate's research agenda and expertise. The teaching statement should articulate the candidate's teaching philosophy, interests, experience and goals. It should also address commitment to inclusive pedagogy and to fostering thriving and inclusive intercultural community, as outlined in the President's Making Excellence Inclusive report (<https://president.richmond.edu/inclusive-excellence/report-pdfs/making-excellence-inclusive-final-report-2019.pdf>). In addition, please include copies of academic transcripts. Candidates for this position may be asked, at a later date, to provide the names and contact information for three references who will be asked to submit letters of recommendation. Review of applications will commence on October 1, 2020 and continue until the position is filled.

Please address any questions about the application to Dr. Jennifer Erkulwater (jerkulwa@richmond.edu), Chair, Department of Political Science, University of Richmond, Richmond, VA 23173.

Council on Foreign Relations

Rank: 2021-2022 International Affairs Fellowship for Tenured International Relations Scholars (IAF-TIRS)

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Foreign Policy, International Security, History & Politics

The Fellowship:

The International Affairs Fellowship for Tenured International Relations Scholars (IAF-TIRS) offers professors from a variety of academic backgrounds practical experience in the foreign policymaking field, providing them with an opportunity to spend their sabbatical year working at a U.S. government agency, in Congress, or with an international organization.

The IAF-TIRS program helps close the gap between research and practice, enriching both teaching and scholarship by enabling fellows to become practitioners. The program also benefits policymakers by exposing them to critical scholarly research relevant to the foreign policy and national security issues facing the United States and the world.

The fellowship is for twelve months. The program will match 50 percent of the fellow's base salary for the academic year (up to a maximum of $80,000 for the year) as well as provide modest assistance for moving expenses for those who need to relocate for the fellowship.

Eligibility:

Applicants should be U.S. citizens

Applicants must be full-time tenured professors at a U.S. college or university

Applicants must have arranged a paid sabbatical with their home university

Applicants must hold a PhD

Applicants must propose to spend a year working on peace and security issues in the U.S. government, in Congress, or at an international organization.

Preference is given to candidates with no previous experience in the U.S. government or with an international organization.

*Note: fellows are considered independent contractors rather than employees of CFR and are not eligible for employment benefits, including health insurance. No indirect costs can be deducted from the stipend award.

How to Apply:

Interested candidates who meet the program eligibility requirements can apply online now through October 31 at cfr.org/fellowships/international-affairs-fellowship-tenured-international-relations-scholars.

If you have additional questions, please contact tirs.fellowships@cfr.org.

University of California, San Diego

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

Postdoctoral positions are available with Dr. Erik Gartzke in the Center for Peace and Security Studies (cPASS) in the Political Science Department at the University of California, San Diego.

cPASS conducts rigorous, data-driven research on international affairs and U.S. foreign policy. Its mission is to apply cutting-edge social science to improve our collective understanding of how humans can best cooperate in an increasingly globalized and connected world with rapidly advancing technologies. cPASS is committed to promoting research excellence and diversity within cPASS and our academic field.

The postdoctoral fellows will assist in a Hewlett Foundation funded project on "CyberEscalation in Power Projection." This project focuses on understanding how humans and their institutions interact with technology to better assess how the introduction of a new kind of connectedness through cyberspace shapes decisions concerning power projection. This project hopes to overcome the challenges for young scholars interested in cyber escalation by investing in building expertise and creating quality data to test theories.

As part of their duties, the postdoctoral fellows will collaborate with the Machine-learning for Social Science Lab (<https://cpass.ucsd.edu/mssl>) to create a foundational dataset of cyber events focused on basic scientific standards that is transparent, replicable, and reproducible. The postdoctoral fellows will also work with cPASS staff to develop the Cyber Escalation Lab and build a community dedicated to cyber escalation topics. Additional duties may arise in line with the goals of the "Cyber-Escalation in Power Projection" project. Authorship/co-authorship of scholarly research will be strongly encouraged.

A PhD in Political Science, International Relations, Social Science, Computer Science, Information Science or a related field is required at the time of appointment. Applicants with appropriate skills are encouraged from a wide range of disciplines related to international relations and computer science. The appointment may be delayed for applicants expected to complete their PhD within the next six months.

Candidates must have extensive knowledge and experience in the cyber domain and a strong working knowledge of international relations theory.

Ideal candidates will also have experience with data science and machine learning. Candidates with demonstrated leadership or commitment to support diversity, equity, and inclusion in an academic setting are preferred.

Applicants must apply for this position at this link: <https://apol-recruit.ucsd.edu/JPF02537>

All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, or status as a protected veteran.

This position will be 12 months from the date of appointment. Renewal is possible. Some flexibility exists as to the starting date of the position with fall 2020 as the earliest. Candidates should expect to be in residence in San Diego by the start of the postdoc.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

World Justice Project

Rank: Director of Data Analytics

The World Justice Project (WJP) is seeking a full-time Director of Data Analytics. The WJP is looking for experienced researchers with the capacity to produce, publish, and communicate innovative, world-class research, with a strong desire to influence a global rule of law policy agenda. Specifically, we are looking to hire an experienced researcher who can lead teams or work independently in collaboration with other researchers to deliver high-quality, cutting-edge research on a wide range of topics related to governance and rule of law. The ideal candidate will be a doctoral or post-doctoral candidate who has superior research and analytical skills, has experience with survey research and analysis methods, and possess a deep understanding of the rule of law in global contexts.

Responsibilities

The main responsibilities of this position include:

- Leading and participating in research initiatives in collaboration with departmental and executive management;
- Research, analysis, and operational work related to the production of the WJP's portfolio of global, thematic, and country-specific reports;

- Development of research proposals in partnership with the Chief Research and Development Officers;
- Management of large datasets from different instruments and sources for validation and back-testing of models and algorithms;
- Creating and delivering original data analyses, written summaries, presentations, and reports summarizing the key findings and policy implications of the available data about justice systems around the world.

Qualifications

The ideal candidate will have completed coursework in statistics and quantitative methods, be comfortable with statistical concepts, and have experience writing and presenting scientific reports. In addition to significant data analysis, a key dimension of this role will be to translate and communicate WJP data into accessible narrative accounts of key findings and their policy implications, thus drawing on a broad range of skills developed in the social sciences.

Required

- PhD in economics, political science, or a similar degree and 2 years of experience; or a MA with 5+ years of experience leading research projects;
- Direct experience working with NGOs, think tanks, research firms, and/or international organizations;
- Significant experience in producing complete data analyses, including project design and development, statistical analysis, data collection, preparation and manipulation, programming, and written reports;
- Strong proficiency in statistical analytic tools such as R, Python, Stata, MATLAB, SPSS, and SQL;

WZB Berlin Social Science Center

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Fellow (f/m/x)

Specializations: Political Theory, Political Psychology, State Politics

The Wissenschaftszentrum Berlin für Sozialforschung gGmbH (WZB Berlin Social Science Center), research department Institutions and Political Inequality (IPI) (Director: Professor Macartan Humphreys) seeks to hire a

for an appointment starting September 2021 (negotiable) for a duration of up to three years. Shorter durations are possible for candidates with faculty positions in hand. The appointment is made at 100% of the regular working hours (currently 39 hours/week).

WZB is a non-profit organization and a member of the Leibniz Association. WZB engages in research of fundamental societal questions from the perspectives of different disciplines. It is one of the most renowned institutions in the field of social sciences. The scientists who work together at the institute come from such fields as sociology, political science, economics, law, and psychology. The findings of WZB research are directed at the science community, the interested public, and also experts dealing with political and economic issues, with media, and society. The institutions and political inequality research department focuses on the political economy of social and political inequality.

Your tasks and duties

- The research fellow will work independently, designing and implementing research projects and producing high-quality publications in at least one of the unit's thematic research areas (political inequality, between-group inequalities, cumulative learning).
- This position is part of a wider WZB effort to strengthen research in the area of digitalization, both as a substantive research topic and as a methodological tool. Candidates for this position should demonstrate a research agenda related to how processes of digitalization impact and interact with substantive research areas of the department. Examples include, but are not limited to: using digital data, such as mobility and communications data, to understand patterns of inequality and social/political fragmentation; assessing the role of Information and Communications Tools (ICTs) in altering political inequality and accountability; understanding the political implications of state surveillance technologies and how they affect inequality and the nature of protest and contestation; understanding polarization, intergroup relations, and political and social mobilization in online communities; using ICTs to deliver experimental interventions and collect information from populations. We particularly welcome agendas that focus on such questions in developing contexts.

- In addition, the fellow will be expected to collaborate with and mentor other scholars in the unit and play a leading role in developing the unit's workshops and research projects.

Your qualification and profile

- Applicants must have completed a PhD in political science, economics, statistics, or a related social science discipline by the time the position will start, and have a vibrant and creative research agenda. In exceptional circumstances, we will consider applications from candidates who will be a few months away from defending their PhD by the time the position starts.

- Excellent English writing and communication skills are required (English is the working knowledge of the unit).

- Applicants should have skills in quantitative methods or formal theory, preferably with training in causal inference and knowledge of Bayesian methods.

Our offer

- Remuneration in accordance with EG 14 TVöD Bund (in accordance with German public service collective agreement).

- Additional benefits for public service employees (VBLU).

- International, cooperative, and diversified working environment.

- In-depth integration into the scientific community in the form of colloquiums and conferences.

- Flexible working hours.

- We promote a good work-life balance, and our engagement has been certified by audit workandfamily and the European Commission's Human Resources Strategy for Researchers (HRS4R).

- Comprehensive program for continuous professional development and further qualification.

Equally qualified applicants with disabilities will be given preference. We value diversity and welcome all applications – irrespective of gender, nationality, ethnic or social origin, religion, disability, age, or sexual orientation. WZB expressly encourages women or persons with migration backgrounds to apply.

If you have any questions regarding the job opening, please contact application-ipi@wzb.eu.

Job interviews will likely take place in the week starting April 12.

For more information about the research group IPI, follow this link: <https://www.wzb.eu/en/research/political-economy-of-development/institutions-and-political-inequality>.

For more information about WZB, see <http://www.wzb.eu/en>.

Process

Have we sparked your interest? In that case, we are looking forward to receiving your application.

Candidates are requested to submit the following documents (all in English) in a single PDF file

- CV

- Cover letter

- Writing sample

The cover letter should outline a research agenda for the period of application which relates to the digitalization theme described above. Please start your application by following the steps outlined at: https://wzb.hr4you.org/job/apply/46/a-postdoctoral-research-fellow-f-m-x?page_lang=en. We will evaluate all complete applications received by (and including) March 1st, 2021.

In addition, applicants should separately submit one letter of recommendation (additional letters are welcome and will be sought for shortlisted candidates). Please ask your letter writer to send the letter of recommendation to the email address application-ipi@wzb.eu quoting “[your last name] IPI postdoc reference letter” in the subject line by March 1st, 2021.

Carleton College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

Specializations: Asian American Politics, China, East Asia

The Carleton College Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Comparative Politics to begin September 1, 2021. We are specifically interested in candidates who have regional expertise in Chinese politics and prefer candidates who can speak both to domestic dynamics as well as China's role in a broader Asian and/or global context. Successful candidates should be able to teach a range of courses in Comparative Politics (including the introductory course) as well as offer instruction in research methods (qualitative and/or quantitative). The standard teaching load is five courses spread across three trimesters. The ideal candidate will also be interested in contributing to a vibrant college-wide culture of undergraduate research and have a commitment to attracting and retaining students from underserved groups. A PhD in hand or its imminent completion is required.

Carleton is a highly selective liberal arts college with a student body of approximately 2,000, located in the historic and thriving town of Northfield, Minnesota. We are in commuting distance of the Twin Cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul, whose greater metro area has a diverse population of three million people and a rich variety of cultural resources. The Political Science Department strives to introduce students—majors and non-majors alike—to a broad array of theoretical and philosophical perspectives while equipping them with the necessary analytic skills to engage with an increasingly diverse world and contribute constructively to one's community. For further information about the department, please consult the department website at carleton.edu/political-science.

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, a graduate transcript, and a statement about teaching in an undergraduate liberal arts environment and how you would contribute to a college community that embraces a diversity of people and perspectives as one of its core values. We also require a statement about research interests, one scholarly writing sample and contact information for three letters of reference. All applications should be submitted to jobs.carleton.edu. Inquiries can be directed to pteiken@carleton.edu.

Shanghai University of Finance and Economics

Rank: Assistant and Associate Professors of Political Science -

Tenure Track

School of Public Economics and Administration (SPEA)

Shanghai University of Finance and Economics (SUFE)

Job Type: Full-Time

Job Summary: The School of Public Economics and Administration (SPEA) at Shanghai University of Finance and Economics (SUFE) seeks applicants for two tenure-track faculty positions at the rank of assistant or associate (non-tenured) professor. The employment starts in Fall semester of 2021. The openings are in the field of comparative politics, research methodology, and political theory. Candidates who have a research focus on issues of public policy are strongly encouraged to apply for the positions. A completed Ph.D. in Political Science is required before the employment. Applicants should demonstrate their potentials to employ rigorous research methods, either quantitative or qualitative, to answer important theoretical questions in the field. Although the working environment in SUFE is international, the ability to communicate fluently in Mandarin Chinese is highly preferred.

The position is a full-time appointment for a period of six years. A tenure evaluation will be conducted after five years of employment. The tenure-track faculty are expected to publish research on highly reputable international journals, offer high-quality teaching to undergraduate and graduate students, and contribute to the development of political science at SUFE. The rules of evaluation and promotion are standardized at the university and similar to those for tenure positions in a regular American university.

We offer a globally competitive salary based on a full-time appointment and depending on experience and knowledge. The starting salary is 380,000 RMB for entry-level appointment, pending university approval. The offer also includes a broad package of fringe benefits (240K RMB housing subsidy, medical insurance, moving expenses, startup fund, and travel grants) per university regulation.

Institution background: Shanghai University of Finance and Economics, founded in 1917, is a top-ranked research university in China. The university has recruited more than 200 faculty members with overseas Ph.D. degrees. SPEA has 20 faculty members who own overseas Ph.D. degrees. The university and the school have developed a competitive and collegial environment for junior scholars trained overseas. The university has decided to establish and develop a strong political science program in the Thirteenth Five-Year Plan. The newly established Institute of Political Science has eight members who hold a Ph.D. degree from overseas.

Application documents: Your application must contain the following documents (all in English):

1. A cover letter;
2. An extensive curriculum vitae including a publication list;
3. A statement of research interest and agenda;
4. Up to three working papers;
5. And names and contact information of three references.

The deadline for accepting applications is September 31, 2020, for this round of recruitment. We will arrange on-site interviews at SUFE or other forms of interviews such as Skype and Wechat during November and December 2020.

Contact: Please send your application and request to recruit committee at polscisufe@gmail.com.

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

Postdoctoral positions are available with Dr. Erik Gartzke in the Center for Peace and Security Studies (cPASS) in the Political Science Department at the University of California, San Diego.

cPASS conducts rigorous, data-driven research on international affairs and U.S. foreign policy. Its mission is to apply cutting-edge social science to improve our collective understanding of how humans can best cooperate in an increasingly globalized and connected world with rapidly advancing technologies. cPASS is committed to promoting research excellence and diversity within cPASS and our academic field.

The postdoctoral fellows will assist in a Hewlett Foundation funded project on "CyberEscalation in Power Projection." This project focuses on understanding how humans and their institutions interact with technology to better assess how the introduction of a new kind of connectedness through cyberspace shapes decisions concerning power projection. This project hopes to overcome the challenges for young scholars interested in cyber escalation by investing in building expertise and creating quality data to test theories.

As part of their duties, the postdoctoral fellows will collaborate with the Machine-learning for Social Science Lab (<https://cpass.ucsd.edu/mssl>) to create a foundational dataset of cyber events focused on basic scientific standards that is transparent, replicable, and reproducible. The postdoctoral fellows will also work with cPASS staff to develop the Cyber Escalation Lab and build a community dedicated to cyber escalation topics. Additional duties may arise in line with the goals of the "Cyber-Escalation in Power Projection" project. Authorship/co-authorship of scholarly research will be strongly encouraged.

A PhD in Political Science, International Relations, Social Science, Computer Science, Information Science or a related field is required at the time of appointment. Applicants with appropriate skills are encouraged from a wide range of disciplines related to international relations and computer science. The appointment may be delayed for applicants expected to complete their PhD within the next six months.

Candidates must have extensive knowledge and experience in the cyber domain and a strong working knowledge of international relations theory.

Ideal candidates will also have experience with data science and machine learning. Candidates with demonstrated leadership or commitment to support diversity, equity, and inclusion in an academic setting are preferred.

Applicants must apply for this position at this link: <https://apol-recruit.ucsd.edu/JPF02537>

All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, or status as a protected veteran.

This position will be 12 months from the date of appointment. Renewal is possible. Some flexibility exists as to the starting date of the position with fall 2020 as the earliest. Candidates should expect to be in residence in San Diego by the start of the postdoc.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

NON-ACADEMIC

Krea University

Rank: Post-Doctoral Research Fellow

Specializations: Economic Policy, India, Political Economy

Who We Are:

Inclusion Economics India at Krea University (formerly EPoD India at IFMR) works in close collaboration with Yale's Economic Growth Center and MacMillan Center. Drawing upon economics, political science, and related fields, we conduct cutting-edge research to understand how policy can promote inclusive, accountable economies and societies. Our core research focuses on gender as it relates to labor economics and broader economic empowerment; political economy and governance; and environmental economics. We also aim to build a culture of evidence and increase data literacy in the public sector, strengthening leaders' ability to identify and implement evidence-informed policies. Throughout the research life cycle, we engage closely with policy counterparts to ensure we address questions of immediate relevance, and we regularly communicate data-driven insights with policy counterparts and the general public.

The Role:

We are currently recruiting one or more Post-Doctoral Research Fellows to support our research in India. Final portfolio allocations will depend on candidates' interest, experience, and skillset; ideal candidates have experience and research in one of our core focus areas listed above. The position will provide the selected candidate(s) an opportunity to gain first-hand experience conducting policy-relevant economics research while contributing to an agreed upon project portfolio.

Responsibilities within the project portfolio include supporting research design and implementation, overseeing data collection and analysis, interacting with stakeholders, and managing research activities and staff. This position requires a self-starting candidate with proven expertise in applied economics research who can effectively navigate India's institutional landscape and appropriately represent our work to outside stakeholders. The position will provide a talented early career researcher the opportunity to work directly with top academics and begin building their own research portfolio.

Responsibilities:

- Manage and supervise technical aspects of assigned research studies in collaboration with the research team.
- Oversee field-based team to manage research study activities, including intervention implementation, and contribute to field-based scoping, survey design, survey testing, data quality monitoring, and more.
- Clean and process incoming or secondary data and conduct econometric analysis under the direction of senior researchers.
- Manage relationships with collaborating institutions, including policy counterparts and funding organizations; work with partner institutions and governments to set priorities and coordinate project administration and logistics.

- Compile, assess and synthesize research into policy briefs, white papers, memos and academic articles with guidance and oversight of Yale-affiliated research faculty.
- Provide appropriate inputs and support for administrative requirements of the project portfolio, upon request, which may include financial management, budgeting, procurement, contract set-up and compliance, grant reporting, deliverable tracking, etc.
- Contribute to our team's overall management and strategic vision by identifying new research projects and partners and applying for additional sources of funding in partnership with research team.

Basic Qualifications:

- PhD in economics, public policy, political science, statistics, econometrics or related field by mid-2021
- Advanced coursework in empirical methods, including econometrics and economics, with strong demonstrated academic performance
- Solid understanding of research design and experience with data collection and field work
- Proven analytical skills and proficiency in Stata and/or R; experience in Python a plus
- Proven ability to manage multiple tasks and propose timely solutions with minimal supervision
- Excellent attention to detail
- Capacity to maintain an organized and structured work style in a fast-paced environment
- Ability to adapt to quickly to changing environments
- Strong interpersonal skills, and willingness to interact with a wide range of individuals ranging from Research Associates to academics, donors, research institutions, etc.
- Excellent oral and written communication skills in English and Hindi
- Ability to work in a multicultural environment
- Willingness to travel frequently and spend significant time at research project sites, as needed

Preferred Qualifications:

- Ability to independently drive research projects and produce independent, high-quality original empirical research in mutually agreed upon areas
- 3 to 5 years of field research or field research management experience in international development or related field
- Experience with research grant management and project management
- Proven success in fundraising for research studies with clear policy relevance
- Demonstrated interest in public policy and South Asia

This position will be based in Delhi, India, with frequent travel throughout the country when Covid-19 restrictions are lifted. Fellowships are one-year positions with the possibility of extension upon mutual agreement.

How to Apply:

If you are interested in this position, please fill out our Screening Questionnaire (<https://forms.gle/XbBeNgprSoRxHpxN7>); you will be asked to upload a single PDF containing your CV, cover letter, writing sample, and academic transcripts. Label your file "Last name, First name – Post-Doctoral Research Fellow".

Council on Foreign Relations

Rank: Fellow/Senior Fellow for International Economics and Finance

Overview

The David Rockefeller Studies Program at the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) is seeking to hire a fellow or senior fellow for international economics and finance. The global economy and the international financial system are of critical importance for American prosperity and power, making it essential to explore questions such as the potential for a reversal of globalization, the future of the dollar as a reserve currency, and the likely future evolution of regimes governing international economic relations. The position, which is open with respect to subfield specialization, is an extraordinary opportunity for an individual looking to shape the conversation over what policies the United States should pursue in its economic engagement with the world. The selected candidate will be expected to produce original, policy-relevant research. The position will be assigned at either the fellow or senior fellow level, depending on the selected applicant's credentials and accomplishments.

The major responsibilities of this position will include (but are not limited to):

- Writing books, articles, op-eds, and blogs.
- Organizing and leading roundtables, study groups, and workshops at CFR on international economic and financial issues, identifying the consequences for the United States and possible U.S. policy responses.
- Interacting with CFR's distinguished membership and participating in CFR programs and activities.
- Meeting with administration officials, members of Congress, their staffs, and other relevant groups to brief them on research findings and recommendations.
- Educating a broader public audience through media interviews and public speaking.
- Developing fundraising proposals for the program in collaboration with senior staff.

Qualifications

- PhD in a relevant field, or equivalent experience in government, journalism, or business.
- Demonstrated expertise on international economics or finance.
- An established publication record on international economics or finance.
- Strong research, writing, and speaking skills.
- Experience mentoring junior staff preferred.

Drexel University

Rank: Assistant Professor, Humanities or Social Sciences and Africana Studies

About Drexel

Drexel is a comprehensive global research university ranked among the top 100 in the nation. With over 24,000 students, Drexel is one of America's 15 largest private universities. Drexel is one of Philadelphia's top 10 private employers, and a major engine for economic development in the region. Drexel has committed to being the nation's most civically engaged university, with community partnerships integrated into every aspect of service and academics. The College of Arts and Sciences (CoAS) consists of 13 departments and several research centers. CoAS and Drexel University are working to repair institutional legacies of anti-Black racism in the university and its community, and through this cluster hire are actively committed to supporting African and diasporic knowledge, practices, histories, and people.

The College of Arts and Sciences is home to several ongoing initiatives that reflect commitment to these goals, from community-based learning initiatives to a new Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion advisory council and Associate Dean. At the University level, new and ongoing initiatives include the Center for Black Culture, a university-wide unit focused on Black community at Drexel; the soon to be launched Center on Racism and Health, located in the Dornsife School of Public Health; and, in the School of Education, an active research group dedicated to Black student success. The University's Lindy Center for Civic Engagement, the Dornsife Center for Neighborhood Partnerships, and the Global Classroom program also support colleagues building engaged teaching and scholarship in Africana Studies. This cluster hire joins two concurrent searches for two tenure-track faculty in the Center on Racism and Health, and one faculty search in the Westphal College of Media, Art and Design for a joint position between the Music Industry Program and Music Program to create modern music courses with a focus on the African diaspora.

Job Summary

The College of Arts and Science of Drexel University, a Carnegie R1-classified research institution located in Philadelphia, announces a cluster hire of 3 tenure-track faculty (two at the Assistant Professor level, one at open rank) in the area of Africana Studies, with an expected start date of September 1, 2021. Two of the appointments will have tenure homes in the Department of History, this position will potentially be located in any Humanities and/or Social Science discipline within the College of Arts and Science. Joint appointments will be considered.

The Africana Studies Program

The Africana Studies Program is housed in the Department of History which has particular strengths in the History of Science, Technology and the Environment, and in Global History. The minor in Africana Studies allows students across the University to gain an understanding of, and background in, the history and cultures of peoples of African descent in North and South America, the Caribbean, Africa, and elsewhere. It includes courses in anthropology, history, literature, music, political science and sociology, and provides an opportunity for directed study in areas of special interest.

The current cluster will comprise 2 tenure track historians of Africana Studies (including an open rank hire who will serve as Director of the Africana Studies Program) and 1 additional tenure track faculty with a disciplinary location in any of the College's Humanities and/or Social Sciences departments: Communication, Criminology & Justice Studies, English & Philosophy, Global Studies & Modern Languages, Politics, Psychology, and Sociology. Tenure home will be departmental with teaching responsibilities in the Africana Studies Program. Candidates are expected to teach Introductory courses in Africana Studies, including an Introduction to Africana Studies course and a Cross-Currents in Africana Studies course centered on the Black Atlantic.

Essential Functions: Teaching; Research; Service; Other related duties.

Required Qualifications:

PhD in Humanities or Social Sciences, with an interdisciplinary specialty in Africana/African Diaspora/Black/African American/Afro-American or Race and Ethnic Studies, broadly conceptualized. (Must have PhD by September 1, 2021). 2 years of demonstrated graduate or post-graduate teaching, research or related experience.

Preferred Qualifications:

Exceptional promise of research potential commensurate with rank; Commitment to excellence in teaching, service, community outreach and engagement; Ability to teach introductory courses in Africana Studies, including methods and its intellectual traditions, in addition to courses in home department; Ability to mentor graduate students across the university and enhance the research profile of undergraduates

Required Application materials:

- Cover letter (with a description of the candidate's research program and philosophy of teaching)
- Curriculum Vitae
- One writing sample (e.g., article, book chapter, book)

Candidates who move forward in the process will be notified to submit sample syllabi for an Introduction to Africana Studies course and another syllabus for a special topics course in Africana Studies, and a brief research statement and teaching statement. Three letters of reference will also be requested at this later stage.

All candidates must apply through the Drexel University's Human Resources Careers Website. Please contact Amy Slaton, Interim Department Head of History at aeslaton@drexel.edu for more information.

Butler University

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Gender Politics & Policy, Native American Politics

The Department of Political Science at Butler University invites applications for a full-time non-tenure-track lecturer for a two-year appointment with possibility of renewal. Applicants should have a strong commitment to excellent, inclusive undergraduate teaching. We are particularly interested in candidates whose teaching and scholarship engages intersectional, abolitionist, or critical historical institutional perspectives on race/ethnicity/indigeneity, gender/sexuality, and politics in the United States and potentially beyond it. The successful candidate will teach lower-level and upper-level undergraduate political science courses (including an introductory American politics survey), will contribute to the Core Curriculum, and will help build an inclusive learning environment for our increasingly diverse student population. This faculty member could choose to affiliate with the International Studies; Peace and Conflict Studies; Race, Gender, and Sexuality Studies; and/or Science, Technology, and Environmental Studies interdisciplinary programs. This lecturer will teach four courses per semester, typically with no more than six distinct course preparations per year.

Review of applications will begin January 11, but the position will remain open until filled. Applicants should have earned a doctorate in political science or a related field at the time of appointment before August 1, 2021. Applicants should submit the following to psearch@butler.edu: a cover letter that highlights the applicant's teaching interests, experience, and commitment to inclusive, excellent teaching and summarizes their research interests; a curriculum vitae; a statement of teaching philosophy, a sample syllabus, and a list of 3-5 references including name, title and contact information. Shortlisted candidates will be asked to provide additional evidence of inclusive teaching excellence including one or more additional syllabi, descriptions of course activities or assignments, and student evaluations or teaching observations; 3 letters of recommendation, and unofficial transcripts. Final round candidates will need to provide official transcripts and will be asked to consent to background checks. The successful candidate will start August 2021, subject to final budgetary approval.

The Butler Political Science Program, distinctively grounded in a firm commitment to social justice, democracy, and human rights, engages students in the study and practice of politics to promote the collective good at the local, national, and global level. The program defines politics broadly as the formal and informal ways societies govern themselves. The program offers an innovative curriculum that crosses traditional disciplinary boundaries to provide students with the knowledge and skills necessary to pursue positive social change. Political science alumni have pursued careers in electoral politics, teaching, law, government, journalism, business, and non-profit organizations, and have earned graduate and professional degrees in several fields.

University of Cincinnati

Rank: Research Fellowships in Cyber Strategy and Policy

Specializations: Defense, Science & Technology, International Security

The Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy (CCSP) at the University of Cincinnati is pleased to announce the opening of applications for Pre- and Post-Doctoral Research Fellowships in Cyber Strategy and Policy. The 10-13-month appointments can begin July 1, 2021 or August 1, 2021. There are two positions available.

Expectations

The CCSP Research Fellows will join a national team of researchers focused on examining aspects of a Whole-Of-Nation-Plus approach to cybersecurity. CCSP is examining the range of challenges that must be managed in linking intergovernmental coordination, public-private sector alignment, and a citizenry engaged in support of better cybersecurity, while adding the "plus" of alignment with allied governments, industry, and citizens. The specific research interest of the applicants is open relative to any aspect related to advancing strategy, policy, regulatory, operational, or technical aspects that contribute to a WON+ approach.

Fellows are expected to devote some portion of their time to one of two collaborative research projects: One, on cyber industrial policy that rests on a partnership with the Center for Embedded secure Systems and Trust (CHEST) a NSF-IUCRC project directed at the University of Cincinnati involving seven universities with national industry partners. CCSP will be examining CHEST research in the context of cyber industrial policy development. The second track of CCSP collaborative research will involve focus on state-level cyber security capacity and intergovernmental coordination leveraging our strong partnership with the Ohio National Guard and the Ohio Civilian Cyber Reserve.

Fellows will be provided the intellectual community support to contribute to the CCSP's research activities as well as work on—in the case of pre-dissertation fellows—advancing their doctoral dissertation or post-doctoral fellows advancing their publication agenda. All fellows are expected to be in residence for the duration of their fellowship contingent on Covid health campus policy. CCSP offers nationally competitive stipend levels and the benefit of relatively lower living costs than found on the East and West coasts.

A Multi-Disciplinary Research Environment

The Research Fellows will be supported by the Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy, which draws on a multidisciplinary set of researchers from political science, information technology, computer engineering, and computer science affiliated with the Ohio Cyber Range Institute at the University of Cincinnati. The OCRI and CCSP are organized around the proposition that cyber security is not a technical problem, but rather is a political, economic, social, organizational, and educational challenge in a technically fluid environment. The CCSP Research Fellowships are open to applicants from multiple backgrounds including the fields of strategic studies, international relations, national and foreign policy studies, law, political science, computing sciences or related professional experience gained as employees of government, military, international, humanitarian, and private research institutions in related fields.

The University of Cincinnati is one of only 18 universities in the country to hold both the National Security Agency's Center of Excellence designations in both Cyber Defense and Cyber Operations. Cyber Defense is anchored in UC's School of IT, Cyber Operations in Electrical Engineering and Computer Science, along with CHEST, and the Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy in the Department of Political Science. These four Centers contribute through disciplinary and multidisciplinary research to the overall OCRI ecosystem that includes 11 academic institutions across the state of Ohio as regional programming centers.

Essential Functions

Engage in and contribute to the research projects of CCSP

Minimum Qualifications and Requirements

Applicants for pre-doctoral fellowships must be in a doctoral program, have passed general examinations prior to appointment. Applications for postdoctoral research fellowships are welcome from recent recipients of the Ph.D. or equivalent relevant degree, university faculty members, and employees of government, military, international, humanitarian, and private research institutions who have relevant professional experience.

Required Experience

In-depth knowledge of specialized field, process or discipline.

University Job Posting and Application Process

Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis with preference to those submitted by February 22, 2021. Applications must be submitted online via this link with the following components:

Completion of the electronic employment application form
Cover Letter (two page max)

Current CV/ Resume

Additionally, 2 letters of recommendation should be sent separately to cyberstrategy@uc.edu with subject line: Recommendation for (name) CCSP Fellows

Physical Requirements / Work Environment

Sitting - Continuously

The University of Cincinnati, as a multi-national and culturally diverse university, is committed to providing an inclusive, equitable and diverse place of learning and employment. As part of a complete job application you will be asked to include a Contribution to Diversity and Inclusion statement.

As a UC employee, and an employee of an Ohio public institution, if hired you will not contribute to the federal Social Security system, other than contributions to Medicare. Instead, UC employees have the option to contribute to a state retirement plan (OPERS, STRS) or an alternative retirement plan (ARP).

The University of Cincinnati is an Affirmative Action / Equal Opportunity Employer / Minority / Female / Disability / Veteran.

Stanford University

Rank: Stanford Impact Labs: Postdoctoral Fellowship Program

Stanford Impact Labs is launching a Postdoctoral Fellowship Program beginning in fall of 2021, offering fellowships to young scholars committed to generating public impact through their research.

A new initiative at Stanford University, Stanford Impact Labs invests in highly-motivated teams of researchers and practitioners from government, business, nonprofit organizations, and philanthropy. These teams—impact labs—work together to generate new insights and solutions to persistent social problems.

Participating in the inaugural postdoctoral fellowship program are three social science labs tackling some of the most challenging social problems including:

- Deep polarization in our politics, with the Polarization and Social Change Lab, led by Professor of Sociology, Psychology, and Organizational Behavior, Robb Willer;
- Barriers to productive immigration, and police violence and abuse, with the Poverty, Violence and Governance Lab, led by Professor of Political Science, Beatriz Magaloni;
- Gender and racial inequity in the workplace, with the VMware Women's Leadership Innovation Lab, led by Professor of Sociology and Organizational Behavior, Shelley Correll.

Stanford Impact Labs offers a competitive fellowship stipend to postdoctoral fellows, who will work collaboratively as a member of one of these labs, and join the Stanford Impact Labs community of scholars who are using research to advance practical solutions to social problems.

Review of applications will begin on March 1, 2021 with decisions communicated by early April.

The Stanford Impact Labs Postdoctoral Fellowship Program particularly encourages applications from women and minority candidates, as well as from others whose backgrounds and experience would contribute to the diversity (broadly defined) of the program.

Coastal Carolina University

Rank: Professor of Practice

Professor of Practice

The College of Humanities and Fine Arts at Coastal Carolina University invites applications for a Professor of Practice position in the newly-created Department of Intelligence and Security Studies. This new department is the result of a highly successful major program that has been in operation since 2012. In that time, the program has grown to more than 300 students and has a strong placement record for our graduates. This is a one-year appointment (renewable for a second year) that begins in August 2021.

Preference will be given to applicants with broad training and practical experience in homeland security and intelligence issues, particularly with specializations related to counter-proliferation, border/transportation security, or cyber security. The ability to offer courses in other areas such as emergency management, law enforcement intelligence, and counter-narcotics would also be of interest.

Candidates are required to have a master's degree in a relevant field of study, as well as substantial professional experience, by the time of appointment. The successful candidate will teach undergraduate courses in the field, as well as support the continued growth and development of the Intelligence and Security Studies Department. The teaching load is 21 credit hours per academic year structured as a 4-3 load. Prior experience with distance learning would be beneficial.

Coastal Carolina University is a public comprehensive liberal arts institution located in Conway, South Carolina, just nine miles from the Atlantic coastal resort city of Myrtle Beach. Coastal Carolina University enrolls over 10,000 students from 45 states and 58 nations. The University is accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools to award the baccalaureate and selective master's degrees of national and/or regional significance in the arts and sciences, business, humanities, education, and health and human services, a specialist degree in educational leadership, and Ph.D. degrees in Marine Science and Education.

Candidates should submit a letter of application (outlining interest in the position, qualifications, and approach to teaching and learning), a current CV, contact information for at least three references, and transcripts for all graduate work (copies are acceptable at this time) electronically at: <https://jobs.coastal.edu>. Screening of candidates will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled.

Coastal Carolina University is committed to fostering an environment that embraces diversity, equity and inclusion, and we seek candidates who will contribute to a climate that supports the growth and development of a diverse campus community. The University provides equal opportunity without regard to race, color, gender, gender identity, gender expression, sexual orientation, age, religion, national or ethnic origin, veteran status or disability in admissions, employment and in all of its educational programs and activities. We encourage individuals from underrepresented groups to apply.

Division of Social Science

NYU Abu Dhabi

The Division of Social Science at NYU Abu Dhabi is searching for new faculty to conduct cutting edge research and teach the next generation of global leaders. We are inviting applications from social scientists for a position focusing on public policy. The position is an open rank, tenured/tenure-track position in the program in Social Research and Public Policy, for appointment on September 1, 2021, subject to final budget approval. We will consider applicants with an active research agenda in all areas of theoretically-informed public policy research, but are especially interested in those whose research and teaching focuses on public policy in a comparative and global context. We particularly welcome applications from female scholars as well as members of traditionally underrepresented groups.

NYUAD values diversity, inclusion, belonging, and equity; such principles are fundamental to the university's commitment to excellence. Our faculty are the engines that sustain our inclusive environment; NYUAD students come from more than 115 countries, with no single one nationality exceeding more than 15 percent of the total student population. Likewise, our faculty are highly diverse and community-minded: our modern campus is home to over 320 faculty who represent more than 45 different nationalities, all of whom bring a global perspective to their classrooms and research projects. Research is advanced by over 400 highly qualified research staff, who are likewise drawn from all over the world.

NYU Abu Dhabi's unique location in the Middle East makes it an ideal headquarters for social scientists working to better understand global societies, both past, and present.

About NYU Abu Dhabi

Established in partnership between New York University (NYU) and the emirate of Abu Dhabi, NYU Abu Dhabi (NYUAD) has assembled over the past decade a remarkable community of scholars, students, researchers, artists, inventors, and others who have contributed to the growth of the UAE's capital as a global hub of knowledge and culture while establishing a new model of higher education for today's complex world.

NYUAD is animated by inspiring, diverse faculty, students, and staff working together in an exciting and dynamic city. As an international center of excellence in teaching and research, our goal is to attract outstanding faculty who are leaders in their fields, encouraging them to create programs that draw outstanding students and providing an intellectually rich environment.

Students are drawn from among the world's best. They are bright, intellectually passionate, and committed to building a campus environment anchored in mutual respect, understanding, and care. The NYUAD undergraduate student body has garnered an impressive record of scholarships, graduate-school appointments, and many other global honors. Graduate education is an area of growth for the university and the current graduate student population of over 100 students is expected to expand in the next decade.

NYUAD is committed to building and strengthening a university-wide culture of inclusion, diversity, belonging, and equity (IDBE). For more information on NYUAD's commitment to IDBE and how these values create fundamental to our mission please visit <https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/about/inclusion-diversity-belonging-and-equity.html>

Working for NYUAD

A world-class institution deserves world-class benefits. At NYUAD, we recognize that Abu Dhabi is more than where you work, it's your home. In order for faculty to thrive, we offer a comprehensive benefits package to our top talent. This starts with a generous relocation allowance to ensure a smooth transition to Abu Dhabi, followed by a competitive salary, housing and transportation allowance; educational assistance for your dependents; access to health and wellness services, plus more. NYUAD is committed to faculty success throughout the academic career trajectory, providing support for ambitious and world-class research projects and innovative, interactive teaching approaches. Support for dual-career families is a priority.

Dean of the Jonathan M. Tisch College of Civic Life (Tisch College) of Tisch College at Tufts University

Subfield(s): Open, Open, Open

Specializations: Life Sciences & Politics, Civil Rights & Liberties, American Politics

Tufts University (Tufts) seeks an entrepreneurial, collaborative leader with a demonstrated passion and commitment to civic engagement to serve as the Pierre and Pamela Omidyar Dean of the Jonathan M. Tisch College of Civic Life (Tisch College). The next dean will have the opportunity to build on Tisch College's intellectual and programmatic leadership, continuing to move Tufts to the forefront of academic and co-curricular civic engagement programs. Tisch College is the only American institution focused on civic life that is constituted as a college and led by a dean who serves alongside other deans, thereby influencing the direction of an entire University.

Today, Tisch College is a national leader in civic education and engagement, setting the standard for higher education's role in advancing the greater good. With a broad and vital mission to prepare students for a lifetime of engagement in civic life, to study civic life and its intersections with public and private institutions, and to promote practices that strengthen civic life, Tisch College has the opportunity to continue to deeply engage Tufts in cross-cutting, interdisciplinary initiatives and programs. The next dean will be a creative and entrepreneurial leader, who will seize the opportunity to advance and shape the future of the College's civic impact, world-class research, student programming, and interdisciplinary activities. The Dean will be responsive to local, national, and global challenges, and will work to strengthen Tisch College's commitment to ensuring that the work and offerings are rooted in the values and practices of diversity, equity, inclusion, anti-racism, and social justice, which are essential to effective civic practice.

Tisch College has an annual operating budget of nearly $8.5 million and is supported by an annual endowment income of nearly $2.5 million. The College is non-degree-granting, though it does co-lead an undergraduate major in Civic Studies and is mostly supported by philanthropy. The programs and the six research centers at Tisch College are supported by a team of more than 50 dedicated staff. The Dean will report to Provost Nadine Aubry, and their direct reports will include an Associate Dean for Programs and Administration, an Associate Dean of Academic Affairs, and a Director of Communications, Strategy, and Planning. The Dean also works closely with a 35-member Board of Advisors. Newly renovated Barnum Hall, on the main quad of the Tufts Medford campus, is home to the offices of Tisch College.

Tufts University has retained Isaacson, Miller, a national search firm, to assist in the recruitment of the Dean of the Jonathan M. Tisch College of Civic Life.

Please direct all nominations, inquiries, and application materials to:

Isaacson, Miller via www.imsearch.com/7637

Rebecca Swartz, Partner, and Berlinda Mojica, Associate

Tufts University is an equal opportunity employer and strongly encourages individuals of all backgrounds and cultures to consider this leadership position. The university's commitment to inclusivity encompasses but is not limited to, diversity in nationality, ethnicity, race, religion, gender, sexual orientation, age, and disability.

Wake Forest University

Rank: Teacher-Scholar Postdoctoral Fellow in Leadership and Character and Interdisciplinary Humanities

Job Description Summary

The Program for Leadership and Character and Interdisciplinary Humanities Program at Wake Forest University seek a thoughtful, engaged, and creative scholar to become a Teacher-Scholar Postdoctoral Fellow for one year. The Postdoctoral Fellow will join an innovative cohort of emerging scholars from the humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences to develop and teach leadership and character-related courses in their respective disciplines. The Postdoctoral Fellow will teach 3 courses per year (a 1:2) and contribute to the co-curricular programming of the Program for Leadership and Character and Interdisciplinary Humanities Program. The Postdoctoral Fellow will benefit from course development workshops and mentoring from faculty in the Program for Leadership and Character and Interdisciplinary Humanities Program. The Postdoctoral Fellow will have an opportunity to work with a senior research scholar to assess the impact of their courses and potentially publish relevant research.

The one-year fellowship is funded by a grant from the Lilly Endowment and is open to candidates from across the humanities. We welcome recent PhDs in a variety of fields, including literature, history, classics, philosophy, political theory, religious studies, African American studies, and/or women's, gender, and sexuality studies who specialize in ethics and have interest in working across disciplines to pursue ethics-related teaching and research. Compelling applicants will demonstrate a commitment to excellence in teaching and mentoring undergraduate students from diverse backgrounds, including international students, first-generation students, and those who identify as members of historically marginalized communities.

Wake Forest University welcomes and encourages diversity and inclusivity and seeks applicants with demonstrated success in working with diverse populations. Wake Forest University is an AA/EO employer and values an inclusive and diverse learning community and campus climate. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

Wake Forest University is a private, coeducational institution dedicated to academic excellence in liberal arts, graduate and professional education. Located in Winston-Salem, NC ("The City of Arts and Innovation"), the University is ranked among the top thirty national universities by U.S. News and World Report. The University has a deep institutional commitment to public service and engagement with the world, as indicated by the motto Pro Humanitate (for humanity), which encourages students to develop the qualities of human character needed to serve humanity. With the aim to educate the whole person, the University has established an innovative Program for Leadership and Character that plans creative, liberal arts-based programming to help students develop the virtues of character needed to lead in an increasingly complex world. The Program is based on cutting-edge academic research on leadership and character, including research conducted by Wake Forest faculty in philosophy and psychology who are leading experts on the study of character. The program has established a partnership with the Oxford Character Project and has been profiled as a model for how universities can educate character. The Program recently received a major grant from the Lilly Endowment to develop leaders of character at Wake Forest and support other colleges and universities who seek to infuse leadership and character at their campuses. The Interdisciplinary Humanities Program is an exciting academic program that draws insights from multiple disciplines to explore what it means to be human. The Interdisciplinary Humanities Program offers an undergraduate minor and a wide range of courses that address big questions from a variety of disciplinary and ethical perspectives.

OTHER

Krea University

Rank: Post-Doctoral Research Fellow

Specializations: Economic Policy, India, Political Economy

Who We Are:

Inclusion Economics India at Krea University (formerly EPoD India at IFMR) works in close collaboration with Yale's Economic Growth Center and MacMillan Center. Drawing upon economics, political science, and related fields, we conduct cutting-edge research to understand how policy can promote inclusive, accountable economies and societies. Our core research focuses on gender as it relates to labor economics and broader economic empowerment; political economy and governance; and environmental economics. We also aim to build a culture of evidence and increase data literacy in the public sector, strengthening leaders' ability to identify and implement evidence-informed policies. Throughout the research life cycle, we engage closely with policy counterparts to ensure we address questions of immediate relevance, and we regularly communicate data-driven insights with policy counterparts and the general public.

The Role:

We are currently recruiting one or more Post-Doctoral Research Fellows to support our research in India. Final portfolio allocations will depend on candidates' interest, experience, and skillset; ideal candidates have experience and research in one of our core focus areas listed above. The position will provide the selected candidate(s) an opportunity to gain first-hand experience conducting policy-relevant economics research while contributing to an agreed upon project portfolio.

Responsibilities within the project portfolio include supporting research design and implementation, overseeing data collection and analysis, interacting with stakeholders, and managing research activities and staff. This position requires a self-starting candidate with proven expertise in applied economics research who can effectively navigate India's institutional landscape and appropriately represent our work to outside stakeholders. The position will provide a talented early career researcher the opportunity to work directly with top academics and begin building their own research portfolio.

Responsibilities:

- Manage and supervise technical aspects of assigned research studies in collaboration with the research team.
- Oversee field-based team to manage research study activities, including intervention implementation, and contribute to field-based scoping, survey design, survey testing, data quality monitoring, and more.
- Clean and process incoming or secondary data and conduct econometric analysis under the direction of senior researchers.
- Manage relationships with collaborating institutions, including policy counterparts and funding organizations; work with partner institutions and governments to set priorities and coordinate project administration and logistics.
- Compile, assess and synthesize research into policy briefs, white papers, memos and academic articles with guidance and oversight of Yale-affiliated research faculty.
- Provide appropriate inputs and support for administrative requirements of the project portfolio, upon request, which may include financial management, budgeting, procurement, contract set-up and compliance, grant reporting, deliverable tracking, etc.
- Contribute to our team's overall management and strategic vision by identifying new research projects and partners and applying for additional sources of funding in partnership with research team.

Basic Qualifications:

- PhD in economics, public policy, political science, statistics, econometrics or related field by mid-2021
- Advanced coursework in empirical methods, including econometrics and economics, with strong demonstrated academic performance
- Solid understanding of research design and experience with data collection and field work
- Proven analytical skills and proficiency in Stata and/or R; experience in Python a plus
- Proven ability to manage multiple tasks and propose timely solutions with minimal supervision
- Excellent attention to detail
- Capacity to maintain an organized and structured work style in a fast-paced environment
- Ability to adapt to quickly to changing environments
- Strong interpersonal skills, and willingness to interact with a wide range of individuals ranging from Research Associates to academics, donors, research institutions, etc.
- Excellent oral and written communication skills in English and Hindi
- Ability to work in a multicultural environment
- Willingness to travel frequently and spend significant time at research project sites, as needed

Preferred Qualifications:

- Ability to independently drive research projects and produce independent, high-quality original empirical research in mutually agreed upon areas
- 3 to 5 years of field research or field research management experience in international development or related field
- Experience with research grant management and project management
- Proven success in fundraising for research studies with clear policy relevance
- Demonstrated interest in public policy and South Asia

This position will be based in Delhi, India, with frequent travel throughout the country when Covid-19 restrictions are lifted. Fellowships are one-year positions with the possibility of extension upon mutual agreement.

How to Apply:

If you are interested in this position, please fill out our Screening Questionnaire (<https://forms.gle/XbBeNgrSoRxHpxN7>); you will be asked to upload a single PDF containing your CV, cover letter, writing sample, and academic transcripts. Label your file “Last name, First name – Post-Doctoral Research Fellow”.

Columbia University

Rank: Senior Staff Associate

The Department of Sociology at Columbia University invites applications for a Senior Staff Associate I to work jointly with the Initiative for a Just Society and the Square One Project. The Senior Staff Associate I will spearhead, over the course of three years and in collaboration with the project PIs and their team, the development of an upper-division action-oriented multi-disciplinary curricular program in the humanities, arts, social sciences, public policy, and law, on “Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy.” This model curriculum will be infused with active policy engagement, litigation, and social movement organizing, and builds on ongoing teaching and research at Columbia University. Once developed, the curriculum will be available for adoption, adaptation, and use across the nation in universities and colleges, in prisons, and in community settings.

Summary of Responsibilities

- Working on syllabus design and preparing curricula for approval from Committee on Instruction
- Working with collaborating institutions of higher education to ensure that the courses can be taught at the partner institutions by qualified instructors
- Researching and developing the best methods to make the curriculum available to institutions around the country
- Helping to develop a website to house the syllabi, teaching materials, MOOCs, and resources developed over the three-year project period
- Fostering relationships with faculty, administrators, and students at Columbia and partner institutions whose scholarly interests and research focus on racial justice and abolition democracy

The Senior Staff Associate I will hold a Masters degree in criminal justice policy, sociology or other social sciences and have a background in curriculum development and/or design of undergraduate or master's degree programs, experience in course design and in undergraduate or graduate program administration; will have a demonstrated commitment to promoting social justice, strong organizational and writing skills, and experience working in an interdisciplinary environment.

The Senior Staff Associate I will be appointed for one year, with renewal of up to two additional years, contingent on satisfactory performance and funding. Salary will be commensurate with experience.

Minimum Degree Required

Masters degree in criminal justice policy, sociology or other social sciences

Minimum Qualifications

A demonstrated commitment to promoting social justice and interest and background in curriculum development and/or of designing of undergraduate or masters degree programs, and experience with course design and undergraduate or graduate program administration. Additional requirements include, but are not limited to, strong organizational and writing capabilities; experience working in an interdisciplinary environment; excellent interpersonal and communication skills; initiative, motivation, and ability to think creatively and strategically.

About the Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy Project

The project is a multidisciplinary and multi-institutional effort spanning the humanities, the arts, the social sciences, and public policy and law, including not only Columbia University but also collaborators in other academic settings, at justice-in-arts institutions, and within the broader community of activists and community leaders. In collaboration with its partner institutions, this project will develop a prototype for a national upper-division action-oriented multi-disciplinary curricular program in the humanities, arts, social sciences, public policy, and law, on “Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy.” The curriculum will be designed, developed, and tested collaboratively with community and higher-educational partners and a dedicated, diverse team of scholars at Columbia University. We aim to infuse the curriculum with the narrative-changing work of the Columbia Justice Lab's Square One Project and with the practice-oriented justice engagement and abolition democracy work being done at the Initiative for a Just Society. The Justice Lab is a research and justice reform collaboration between the Department of Sociology and the School of Social Work at Columbia; it hosts the Square One Project, a narrative change and policy development effort focused on reimagining the foundations of justice in America. The Initiative for a Just Society is a practice and research collaboration between the Law School and Arts & Sciences at Columbia that integrates social justice litigation and policy efforts within critical theoretic frameworks; it is a project of the Columbia Center for Contemporary Critical Thought.

The Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy curriculum will be available for adoption, adaptation, and use across the nation in universities and colleges, in prisons, and in community settings. The curriculum will include a cluster of academic and clinical courses and experiential learning opportunities, with full syllabi and teaching materials, including on-line teaching resources (videos, lectures, lesson plans) and several MOOCs (“massive open online courses”), all of which will have been developed, designed, and tested collaboratively at partner organizations and institutions. Working with a large network of existing partners at the Square One Project and the Initiative for a Just Society, the project will design and provide teaching material that will be suitable for advanced undergraduates or for a one-year master's degree on "Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy" that spans the humanities, arts, social sciences, policy, and law.

Mohammed VI Polytechnic University

Rank: Tenure-Track Position in sociology - Assistant/Associate/Full Professor levels

Call for Application.

Professor in Sociology – Teaching and Research

Mohammed VI Polytechnic University is hiring a Professor in Sociology for the next academic year, starting September 2021.

Mohammed VI Polytechnic University (UM6P) is a recently established non-profit university that has the ambition to promote high-quality education and research in respect of international academic standards. Furthermore, it aims to contribute to the development of the African countries.

African Center for Behavioral Sociology (ACBS):

The African Center for Behavioral Sociology is a research center founded in 2019, in the Faculty of Governance, Economics and Social Sciences at the Mohammed VI Polytechnic University of Benguerir. The center aims to address issues of social, economic, political, cultural, and environmental importance for public policy in Morocco and in Africa more broadly. See <https://www.fgses-um6p.ma/acbs>

Job Description and Duties: The activity of the professor is divided between teaching and research. Teaching is provided at different levels of higher education, from bachelor to Ph D. The professor will be responsible for regularly publishing in high-ranking academic journals. Resources will be allocated to him or her to carry out his or her research, which falls under the themes of the African Center for Behavioral Sociology. However, the recruited person must be able to attract external resources to develop the research within the Center. He or she is also expected to be involved in the administrative activities of the faculty. The status of the position - assistant professor, associate professor or full professor - will depend on the experience of the candidate.

Qualifications: The candidate must have a PhD/Doctorat in Sociology, with solid skills in data collection and analysis, qualitative or quantitative. He or she must have solid scientific publications in indexed journals, research experience and teaching experience in higher education. This call for applications is also open to professors or research fellows who wish to spend sabbatical time at the Mohammed VI Polytechnic University

Selection procedure: The candidate must send to the contact below:

1) a full CV, 2) an exhaustive list of publications, 3) a summary of his or her PhD with table of contents, 4) proof of his research and teaching experience in higher education, and 5) A research proposal of 2-3 pages drawing a research program the candidate could lead at the ACBS. A scientific selection committee will meet to examine the application files. The preselected candidates will have an oral interview, which can be carried out, if necessary, by videoconference. The candidates selected at the end of these interviews will be invited, during a final phase, to present their research and to make a course simulation.

Salary and Benefits: salary scales and allowances are competitive, meet international standards, and commensurate with experience. Subject to certain conditions, the University provides practical assistance in relocating and accommodation. Job location: Rabat, Morocco.

Applications must be submitted to: ACBS@um6p.ma, by March 31, 2021. Please attach to your email a single electronic zipped folder containing all above, with the mention "Professor Sociology" in the subject.

University of Notre Dame

Rank: Peace Accords Matrix Post-Doctoral Associate

Background and Motivation

The Peace Accords Matrix (PAM) program at the Keough School of Global Affairs's Kroc Institute for International Peace Studies is a unique source of qualitative and quantitative longitudinal data on the implementation of comprehensive peace agreements negotiated since 1989. Composed of researchers and practitioners seeking to promote and facilitate a higher order of integration between these domains, PAM pioneers innovations in peace-process research and real-time monitoring of peace agreement implementation. One of PAM's central features is the Barometer Initiative in Colombia, which is entrusted with the responsibility for real-time technical support and monitoring of the implementation of the 2016 Colombian Peace Accord.

With the goal of engaging in new peace processes and expanding its impact on the policy world, PAM seeks a person to help bridge research, policy, and practice about peace accord implementation and make PAM's knowledge more relevant and pertinent to policy makers.

The successful candidate will work under the supervision of the PAM Director, Josefina Echavarría Alvarez, and in close association with the PAM team, including researchers, managers and particularly with the communications specialists. This position is based at the University of Notre Dame in South Bend, Indiana, but consideration will be given to candidates desiring remote work.

Essential Duties

PAM seeks a person who has a deep understanding of the global policy community of peacemakers and peacebuilders, their roles, functions, needs, and orientation in order to communicate with them, influence them and increase the relevance of PAM's work. The successful candidate will:

- Produce policy-relevant research products (including policy reports and briefs), drawing on PAM's experience and research, incorporating but not limited to the PAM's work in monitoring the Colombian peace agreement in real time since 2016
- Contribute to relationship building with current and potential benefactors and donors.

Required Qualifications

- a Ph.D. in political science, sociology, peace studies, economics, or another relevant discipline, with research interests related to evidence-based policy research, inclusive and participatory peace processes, and mediation and global affairs
- knowledge-management experience in the peacebuilding sector and deep understanding of the research products that policy makers in that sector find useful
- demonstrated experience writing evidence-based, policy-relevant reports and briefs
- demonstrated data analysis and interpretation skills
- proficiency in both English and Spanish

Preferred Qualifications

- multicultural background, international experience, and/or demonstrated interest in global affairs and human development

Please submit your interest with sending your cover letter, resume and a writing sample to Laurel Quinn at laurelquinn@nd.edu.

Naval Postgraduate School
Monterey, CA 93943

The Naval Postgraduate School Foundation is seeking applicants for the Donald R. Beall Defense Fellowship Program located in Monterey, California, for academic year 2021-2022, starting July 20, 2021. Fellows will be assigned to the Department of Defense Analysis at the Naval Postgraduate School (NPS). A defense-oriented research university, NPS provides a broad range of high-quality graduate education and advanced research programs in support of national and international security. The Beall Fellowship was designed to further the NPS mission by preparing the next generation of security scholars for service in the U.S. Government, academia, industry or on national defense advisory bodies.

The Fellowship is designed for postdoctoral scholars whose research in the general field of security studies (or another relatable field) can enrich existing NPS curricula, by infusing new ideas and concepts into the classroom. At the same time, Fellows will be exposed to leading faculty and researchers, serving military officers, and inter-agency officials, facilitating greater understanding of U.S. national security policy and the DoD, in general. Fellows will be expected to deliver guest lectures on their areas of expertise, serve as readers on graduate theses or capstone projects, and conduct significant research leading to the publication of professional papers, monographs, and/or other major works.

The Donald R. Beall Defense Fellowship Program is a one or two-year appointment, with options for renewal in certain circumstances. To be eligible, candidates must demonstrate a strong record of scholarship in an applicable field. An earned doctorate is mandatory. Applicants should submit curriculum vitae, official transcripts, and two letters of recommendation to: h temple@npsfoundation.org. Applications can also be mailed to:

University of Oklahoma

Rank: Assistant Professor - Ancient Political Philosophy

Ancient Political Philosophy

University of Oklahoma Norman Campus: College of Arts and Sciences: Classics and Letters

Location

Norman, OK

Open Date

Jan 10, 2021

Description

The Department of Classics and Letters at the University of Oklahoma is seeking to hire a faculty member of exceptional ability with a specialization in Greek and/or Roman Political Philosophy. Subfields of interest include but are not limited to: the political thought of individual philosophers or schools; education, citizenship, and virtue; freedom, justice, and punishment; comparative forms of government or empire; the history of democracy; or the classical tradition in American political history. We seek a tenure-track Assistant Professor who can be a key bridge-builder, through both research and teaching, between ancient political philosophy and modern constitutional thought and history. The first department founded at the University, OU Classics and Letters now houses the Institute for American Constitutional Heritage, a nationally recognized, independent center for the study of American constitutionalism, with which the successful candidate will work closely (<https://www.ou.edu/iach>). This position is, therefore, a link between academic pillars within Classics and Letters and represents an exciting opportunity to foster a creative and interdisciplinary program. In addition, the successful candidate will benefit from dynamic interactions outside the department, including with the Department of Philosophy, its successful graduate program, and the Institute for the Study of Human Flourishing (<https://www.ou.edu/flourish>), an award-winning center that seeks to revitalize and renew the study and cultivation of virtue in higher education. The assigned teaching load will be two courses per semester.

Qualifications

The successful candidate will have a Ph.D. in Classics, Philosophy, or closely related discipline. Evidence of an exceptional research agenda and successful teaching are prerequisites.

Application Instructions

Interested applicants should initially submit a cover letter, a current C.V., a writing sample (chapter or article), a statement of teaching philosophy and experience, and three letters of recommendation to <http://apply.interfolio.com/82055>.

Review of applications will begin on March 1, 2021. The search will remain open until filled.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement

The University of Oklahoma, in compliance with all applicable federal and state laws and regulations does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, genetic information, gender identity, gender expression, age, religion, disability, political beliefs, or status as a veteran in any of its policies, practices, or procedures. This includes, but is not limited to: admissions, employment, financial aid, housing, services in educational programs or activities, or health care services that the University operates or provides.

Lehigh University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The faculty members in the Department of Political Science at Lehigh University are seeking applications for a full-time, tenure-track faculty position at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning in August 2021. The successful candidate will possess a doctoral degree in Political science with a specialization in constitutional and public law. The teaching load for this position is two four-credit courses per semester. A Ph.D. in Political Science is required by the date of hire. The successful candidate will work closely with the pre-law advisor in the Career Services office. In addition, the individual hired will play an instrumental role in the department's annual Tresolini Lecture in Law series (more details are available at <https://polisci.cas.lehigh.edu/content/tresolini-lectures>).

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, research statement, and teaching statement via Academic Jobs Online (<https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/17841>). Applicants are required to describe how they will contribute to a diverse and equitable community in their letters of interest. Applicants should arrange for three letters of recommendation to be submitted via (<https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/17841>).

Serving approximately 85 undergraduate majors and 15 graduate students, the Department of Political Science offers a B.A. and M.A. degree as well as a Master of Public Policy. Interested applicants are invited to visit the Political Science Department website: <https://polisci.cas.lehigh.edu/>

Founded in 1865, Lehigh University has combined outstanding academic and learning opportunities with leadership in fostering innovative research. Recognized among the nation's highly ranked research universities, Lehigh offers a rigorous academic community for nearly 7,000 students. Lehigh University has some 5,000 undergraduates, 2,000 graduate students, and about 550 full-time faculty members. Lehigh University is located in Bethlehem, PA., a vibrant and historic area. Over 820,000 people live in the Lehigh Valley, which is in close proximity to New York City and Philadelphia. Lehigh University ranks in the top 50 among national universities in U.S. News & World Report ratings and is in the most competitive category in both Peterson's Guide and Barron's Profiles of American Colleges. The university is located on a scenic, 1,600-acre campus in historic Bethlehem in a region of eastern Pennsylvania (USA) known as the Lehigh Valley. About 90 minutes from New York and Philadelphia, the Lehigh Valley is an attractive place to live and work with reasonable cost of living, easy commuting, good schools, and abundant cultural activities.

The colleagues and staff in the College of Arts and Sciences at Lehigh University are committed to increasing the diversity of the college community and curriculum. Candidates who can contribute to that goal are encouraged to apply and to identify their strengths or experiences in this area. Lehigh University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Applications from women and minorities are encouraged. Lehigh offers excellent benefits including domestic partner benefits. Please see Lehigh Work/Life Balance for Faculty: <https://www.lehigh.edu/-inprv/faculty/worklifebalance.html>.

Review of applications will begin on February 1, 2021 and will continue until the position is filled. Questions about this position should be directed to the search committee chair, Dr. Terry-Ann Jones, at tej320@lehigh.edu.

San Diego State University

Rank: Public Law and Race in America

Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Other

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Judicial Politics, American Politics

The Political Science Department at San Diego State University invites applications for a tenure-track position in Public Law and Race in America at the rank of Assistant Professor, to begin Fall 2021. Applicants should demonstrate a well-developed research agenda, a promise of sustained scholarship and a record of effective teaching.

The department seeks a scholar who does research on the evolving role of law in both shaping and challenging racist structures and attitudes toward racial minorities, especially African Americans. The scholar should demonstrate a capacity to engage underlying normative issues and debates on such themes. Within the framework of law and race in America, topics of interest may include but are not limited to protest movements, economic justice, gender and sexuality, legal mobilization, the U.S. Constitution, and comparative analyses. The department is open to a diversity of scholarly approaches, including but not limited to Critical Race Theory and Law and Society. The successful candidate will be able to teach a range of courses in public law as well as courses on the intersection of politics and race.

The Political Science Department at San Diego State is dedicated to the ideal of the engaged teacher-scholar. It has over five hundred undergraduate majors and provides course offerings for students with a wide variety of backgrounds and interests. At the graduate level, the department maintains an M.A. program of high quality. The members of the faculty share a strong commitment to collegiality, active participation in the governing of the department, innovative scholarship, methodological pluralism, rigorous teaching, and robust intellectual and normative engagement. Candidates are encouraged to consult the department website: <http://politicalscience.sdsu.edu/>

San Diego State University is the largest university in San Diego and the third largest in California. The highly diverse campus community has a student population of over 36,000 and approximately 5,849 faculty and staff. SDSU is included in the Carnegie Foundation's Doctoral Universities: High Research Activity category. Established in 1897, SDSU offers bachelor degrees in 84 areas, masters in 76 and doctorates in 21. See <http://www.sdsu.edu> for more information. SDSU is a large, diverse, urban university and Hispanic-Serving Institution with a commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusive excellence. Our campus community is diverse in many ways, including race, religion, color, sex, age, disability, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, national origin, pregnancy, medical condition, and covered veteran status. We strive to build and sustain a welcoming environment for all.

Consistent with SDSU's mission, we seek applicants with demonstrated experience in and/or commitment to teaching and working effectively with individuals from diverse backgrounds and members of underrepresented groups. This search is part of an SDSU cluster initiative to hire "faculty who have a demonstrated history of working with and supporting the African-American community." For more information, see <https://sacd.sdsu.edu/diversity-initiatives/aa-cluster-hires>. Candidates must satisfy three or more of the eight Building on Inclusive Excellence (BIE) criteria, adjusted according to the cluster initiative of this hire: (a) committed to engaging in service with African American populations; (b) demonstrated knowledge of barriers for African American students and faculty; (c) experience or has demonstrated commitment to teaching and/or mentoring African American students; (d) experience or has demonstrated commitment to integrating understanding of African American populations and communities into research; (e) experience in or has demonstrated commitment to extending knowledge of opportunities and challenges in achieving artistic/scholarly success to African Americans; (f) experience in or has demonstrated commitment to research that engages African American communities; (g) interest in developing expertise in cross-cultural communication and collaboration; (h) research interests that contribute to diversity and equal opportunity in higher education. Indicate in your cover letter how you meet at least three of these criteria.

Applicants must apply via Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/82445>. A completed file includes a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, complete teaching evaluations (quantitative evaluations and complete sets of qualitative evaluations of recent courses), sample syllabi, academic writing samples and three letters of recommendation. To ensure full consideration, submit all materials by February 15, 2021. Screening of applications will begin then. Applicants who will have completed the Ph.D. by the start of the term of appointment will be given priority. Those without a Ph.D. in-hand should include in their letter of interest a statement of progress on the dissertation and reasons to expect completion in a timely fashion.

The person holding this position is considered a "mandated reporter" under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment. A background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed before any candidate can be offered a position with the CSU. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect the application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position. SDSU is a Title IX, equal opportunity employer and does not discriminate against persons on the basis of race, religion, national origin, sexual orientation, gender, gender identity and expression, marital status, age, disability, pregnancy, medical condition, or covered veteran status

University of Rhode Island

Rank: Associate or Full Professor / Department Chair

POSITION DESCRIPTION

This is a full-time, tenure-track, academic year appointment to commence in Fall 2021, with the tenure home in the Department of Africana Studies.

The College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Rhode Island seeks an associate or full professor to chair the newly created Department of Africana Studies. Its predecessor, the Africana Studies program, established in the mid-1990s, has a long history of advocacy for peoples of the African diaspora. The department is home to an interdisciplinary undergraduate major and minor devoted to the study of the histories, politics, and cultures of peoples of the African diaspora. The department includes faculty with tenure homes in History, English, Political Science, Music, Art, and Art History who maintain affiliations with Africana Studies.

URI is Rhode Island's flagship public university, serving undergraduate and graduate populations from the state, New England, the greater northeast, and beyond. Rhode Island is home to vibrant communities of the African diaspora, with significant populations of people from Cabo Verde, Liberia, and the Caribbean. New research increasingly reveals the deep and rich history of the African diaspora in Rhode Island, as a site of critical freedom struggles borne of the state's involvement in the transatlantic slave trade and subsequent nineteenth and twentieth century civil rights movements.

We are especially interested in social science scholars trained in Africana Studies, with vision for the new department's academic profile and whose work bridges various disciplines, geographies, and cultures. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to establish innovative curricula, to develop future scholars, and to participate in an energetic community. We seek candidates who have a demonstrated potential for excellence in leadership, a distinguished scholarly record, and a deep investment in community engagement and interdisciplinary collaboration.

This is a tenure-track academic appointment to commence in Fall 2021, with the tenure home in the Department of Africana Studies. For consideration at the rank of full professor with tenure, candidates for this position must meet the requirements at URI. If hired at the associate professor level, URI requires that the individual be employed by university for at least two years before being eligible for tenure. Salary is commensurate with experience. Please see Articles 15 through 20 of AAUP collective bargaining agreement for information on promotion and tenure processes at the University of Rhode Island.

2. Multiple refereed publications in academic journals and presses.
3. Demonstrated potential or experience in a leadership role at the institutional level.
4. Experience as an associate or full professor. Exceptional candidates at the advanced assistant professor level will be considered.
5. Active academic record that meets URI research and teaching standards for tenure and rank of associate or full professor.
6. Demonstrated commitment to working with students from diverse backgrounds and BIPOC populations.
7. Demonstrated potential for community engagement.

All requirements are subject to possible modification to reasonably accommodate individuals with disabilities.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS

1. Success as chair, program director, or other academic leadership position.
2. Successful engagement with the broader academic and non-academic community.

University of Texas at Dallas

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Public Policy and Political Economy program in the School of Economic, Political and Policy Sciences (EPPS) is seeking applications for a tenure-system assistant professor in Cyber Security and Technology Policy.

The successful candidate will have a PhD in a social science or public policy-related field. The candidate's research agenda should focus on issues of cybersecurity and technology with an international/cross-national dimension. Research topics of special interest include economic and legal aspects of the technology regulation across countries, the economics of information security, the interaction of security and privacy considerations, and the politics of developing and administering cybersecurity policies and programs. While experience in the private sector, government agency, NGO or public policy organization will be an advantage, all exceptional candidates will be considered. Ideal candidates will demonstrate their ability to contribute to existing program strengths in quantitative methods.

University of California, San Diego

Subfield(s): International Relations, Methodology, Other

Postdoctoral positions are available with Dr. Erik Gartzke in the Center for Peace and Security Studies (cPASS) in the Political Science Department at the University of California, San Diego.

cPASS conducts rigorous, data-driven research on international affairs and U.S. foreign policy. Its mission is to apply cutting-edge social science to improve our collective understanding of how humans can best cooperate in an increasingly globalized and connected world with rapidly advancing technologies. cPASS is committed to promoting research excellence and diversity within cPASS and our academic field.

The postdoctoral fellows will assist in a Hewlett Foundation funded project on "CyberEscalation in Power Projection." This project focuses on understanding how humans and their institutions interact with technology to better assess how the introduction of a new kind of connectedness through cyberspace shapes decisions concerning power projection. This project hopes to overcome the challenges for young scholars interested in cyber escalation by investing in building expertise and creating quality data to test theories.

As part of their duties, the postdoctoral fellows will collaborate with the Machine-learning for Social Science Lab (<https://cpass.ucsd.edu/mssl>) to create a foundational dataset of cyber events focused on basic scientific standards that is transparent, replicable, and reproducible. The postdoctoral fellows will also work with cPASS staff to develop the Cyber Escalation Lab and build a community dedicated to cyber escalation topics. Additional duties may arise in line with the goals of the "Cyber-Escalation in Power Projection" project. Authorship/co-authorship of scholarly research will be strongly encouraged.

A PhD in Political Science, International Relations, Social Science, Computer Science, Information Science or a related field is required at the time of appointment. Applicants with appropriate skills are encouraged from a wide range of disciplines related to international relations and computer science. The appointment may be delayed for applicants expected to complete their PhD within the next six months.

Candidates must have extensive knowledge and experience in the cyber domain and a strong working knowledge of international relations theory.

Ideal candidates will also have experience with data science and machine learning. Candidates with demonstrated leadership or commitment to support diversity, equity, and inclusion in an academic setting are preferred.

Applicants must apply for this position at this link: <https://apol-recruit.ucsd.edu/JPF02537>

identity, national origin, disability, or status as a protected veteran.

This position will be 12 months from the date of appointment. Renewal is possible. Some flexibility exists as to the starting date of the position with fall 2020 as the earliest. Candidates should expect to be in residence in San Diego by the start of the postdoc.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

The successful applicant will teach courses that also contribute to the College's interdisciplinary program in Gender, Women, and Sexuality Studies.

Major/Essential Functions: The annual teaching assignment will be 6 courses, one of which may be a one-month January Term intensive course determined by the candidate and appropriate to the candidate's expertise. Primary teaching responsibilities will include multiple sections of Political and Legal Thinking (POL 160), and courses that contribute to both the POL and GWS programs (i.e., Sex, Power, and Politics (POL 285) and Feminist Political Thought (POL 380)).

Institution Information: Gustavus Adolphus College seeks employees who are committed to and will be resolute in advancing inclusion and equity. We seek candidates whose experience has prepared them to help us realize our college-wide goal of engagement and inclusion of culturally and racially diverse audiences in liberal arts and sciences. The Gustavus Acts strategic plan renews our commitment to equip students to lead purposeful lives, and to act on the great challenges of our time by diversifying and expanding the Gustavus community and delivering a distinctive and integrated liberal arts education.

Minnesota is home to a vibrant African American community and growing communities of Hmong, Latinx, and Somali peoples, as well as significant numbers of Indigenous people. We believe that representation from all of these groups contributes positively to our student body.

We are committed to fostering a community that embodies the value of a liberal arts education rooted in pluralism. We engage in this work at a coeducational, private, Lutheran (ELCA) College of Swedish immigrant heritage that is a leading residential, national liberal arts institution of 2200 students.

The Department of Political Science helps students develop an understanding of political processes and institutions and to acquaint them with the issues and problems that politics tries to manage. The Department also teaches students skills of analysis, research, and evaluation so that they can become more informed citizens.

The Gender, Women, and Sexuality Studies interdisciplinary program examines gender and sexuality as cultural and social categories that organize and shape human experience.

Minimum Qualifications:

- PhD in Political Science (or a related field); we will consider candidates who have achieved ABD status and who will complete their degree by September 1, 2021
- Demonstrated effectiveness in teaching
- Evidence of a commitment to undergraduate teaching and student advising

Butler University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Specializations: Political Philosophy & Theory, Ethnic & Feminist Theory, Political Theory

The Butler University Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor with expertise in contemporary political theory. The candidate should have a strong commitment to excellent, inclusive undergraduate teaching and an active scholarly agenda. We are particularly interested in candidates whose scholarship and teaching engages critical, transnational, or global political theory beyond the conventional Western canon such as indigenous, decolonial, modernity/coloniality, Black, or Latin American political thought, and who can offer one or more courses suitable for Core Curriculum Social Justice and Diversity designation. The standard teaching load is three courses per semester. The successful candidate will teach political theory courses, will teach a required political science course; and will contribute to the Core Curriculum and to building an inclusive learning environment for an increasingly diverse student population. The new faculty member could choose to affiliate with the International Studies; Peace and Conflict Studies; Race, Gender, and Sexuality Studies; and/or Science, Technology, and Environmental Studies interdisciplinary programs.

Review of applications will begin January 11, but the position will remain open until filled. Applicants should have earned a doctorate in political science or a related field at the time of appointment before August 1, 2021. Applicants should submit the following to ptsearch@butler.edu: a cover letter that summarizes the applicant's scholarship and their teaching interests and highlights their commitment to inclusive, excellent teaching; a curriculum vitae; a publication or other writing sample; a statement of teaching philosophy; a list of courses taught; a sample syllabus; and a list of 3-5 references. Shortlisted candidates will be asked to provide additional evidence of inclusive teaching excellence including one or more additional syllabi, descriptions of course activities or assignments, and student evaluations or teaching observations; 3 letters of recommendation; and unofficial transcripts, and may provide additional publications or writing samples. Final round candidates will be asked to provide official transcripts and to consent to background checks. The successful candidate will start August 2021, subject to final budgetary approval.

The Butler Political Science Program, distinctively grounded in a firm commitment to social justice, democracy, and human rights, engages students in the study and practice of politics to promote the collective good at the local, national, and global level. The program defines politics broadly as the formal and informal ways societies govern themselves. The program offers an innovative curriculum that crosses traditional disciplinary boundaries to provide students with the knowledge and skills necessary to pursue positive social change. Political science alumni have pursued careers in electoral politics, teaching, law, government, journalism, business, and non-profit organizations, and have earned graduate and professional degrees in several fields.

WZB is a non-profit organization and a member of the Leibniz Association. WZB engages in research of fundamental societal questions from the perspectives of different disciplines. It is one of the most renowned institutions in the field of social sciences. The scientists who work together at the institute come from such fields as sociology, political science, economics, law, and psychology. The findings of WZB research are directed at the science community, the interested public, and also experts dealing with political and economic issues, with media, and society. The institutions and political inequality research department focuses on the political economy of social and political inequality.

Your tasks and duties

- The research fellow will work independently, designing and implementing research projects and producing high-quality publications in at least one of the unit's thematic research areas (political inequality, between-group inequalities, cumulative learning).
- This position is part of a wider WZB effort to strengthen research in the area of digitalization, both as a substantive research topic and as a methodological tool. Candidates for this position should demonstrate a research agenda related to how processes of digitalization impact and interact with substantive research areas of the department. Examples include, but are not limited to: using digital data, such as mobility and communications data, to understand patterns of inequality and social/political fragmentation; assessing the role of Information and Communications Tools (ICTs) in altering political inequality and accountability; understanding the political implications of state surveillance technologies and how they affect inequality and the nature of protest and contestation; understanding polarization, intergroup relations, and political and social mobilization in online communities; using ICTs to deliver experimental interventions and collect information from populations. We particularly welcome agendas that focus on such questions in developing contexts.
- In addition, the fellow will be expected to collaborate with and mentor other scholars in the unit and play a leading role in developing the unit's workshops and research projects.

Your qualification and profile

- Applicants must have completed a PhD in political science, economics, statistics, or a related social science discipline by the time the position will start, and have a vibrant and creative research agenda. In exceptional circumstances, we will consider applications from candidates who will be a few months away from defending their PhD by the time the position starts.

- Excellent English writing and communication skills are required (English is the working knowledge of the unit).
- Applicants should have skills in quantitative methods or formal theory, preferably with training in causal inference and knowledge of Bayesian methods.

Our offer

- Remuneration in accordance with EG 14 TVöD Bund (in accordance with German public service collective agreement).
- Additional benefits for public service employees (VBLU).
- International, cooperative, and diversified working environment.
- In-depth integration into the scientific community in the form of colloquiums and conferences.
- Flexible working hours.
- We promote a good work-life balance, and our engagement has been certified by audit workandfamily and the European Commission's Human Resources Strategy for Researchers (HRS4R).
- Comprehensive program for continuous professional development and further qualification.

Equally qualified applicants with disabilities will be given preference. We value diversity and welcome all applications – irrespective of gender, nationality, ethnic or social origin, religion, disability, age, or sexual orientation. WZB expressly encourages women or persons with migration backgrounds to apply.

If you have any questions regarding the job opening, please contact application-ipi@wzb.eu.

Job interviews will likely take place in the week starting April 12.

Social Research and Public Policy Professor, Tenured/Tenure-Track - Open Rank

NYU Abu Dhabi

The Division of Social Science at NYU Abu Dhabi is searching for new faculty to conduct cutting edge research and teach the next generation of global leaders. We are inviting applications from social scientists for a position focusing on public policy. The position is an open rank, tenured/tenure-track position in the program in Social Research and Public Policy, for appointment on September 1, 2021, subject to final budget approval. We will consider applicants with an active research agenda in all areas of theoretically-informed public policy research, but are especially interested in those whose research and teaching focuses on public policy in a comparative and global context. We particularly welcome applications from female scholars as well as members of traditionally underrepresented groups.

NYUAD values diversity, inclusion, belonging, and equity; such principles are fundamental to the university's commitment to excellence. Our faculty are the engines that sustain our inclusive environment; NYUAD students come from more than 115 countries, with no single one nationality exceeding more than 15 percent of the total student population. Likewise, our faculty are highly diverse and community-minded: our modern campus is home to over 320 faculty who represent more than 45 different nationalities, all of whom bring a global perspective to their classrooms and research projects. Research is advanced by over 400 highly qualified research staff, who are likewise drawn from all over the world.

NYU Abu Dhabi's unique location in the Middle East makes it an ideal headquarters for social scientists working to better understand global societies, both past, and present.

About NYU Abu Dhabi

Established in partnership between New York University (NYU) and the emirate of Abu Dhabi, NYU Abu Dhabi (NYUAD) has assembled over the past decade a remarkable community of scholars, students, researchers, artists, inventors, and others who have contributed to the growth of the UAE's capital as a global hub of knowledge and culture while establishing a new model of higher education for today's complex world.

NYUAD is animated by inspiring, diverse faculty, students, and staff working together in an exciting and dynamic city. As an international center of excellence in teaching and research, our goal is to attract outstanding faculty who are leaders in their fields, encouraging them to create programs that draw outstanding students and providing an intellectually rich environment.

Students are drawn from among the world's best. They are bright, intellectually passionate, and committed to building a campus environment anchored in mutual respect, understanding, and care. The NYUAD undergraduate student body has garnered an impressive record of scholarships, graduate-school appointments, and many other global honors. Graduate education is an area of growth for the university and the current graduate student population of over 100 students is expected to expand in the next decade.

NYUAD is committed to building and strengthening a university-wide culture of inclusion, diversity, belonging, and equity (IDBE). For more information on NYUAD's commitment to IDBE and how these values create fundamental to our mission please visit <https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/about/inclusion-diversity-belonging-and-equity.html>

A world-class institution deserves world-class benefits. At NYUAD, we recognize that Abu Dhabi is more than where you work, it's your home. In order for faculty to thrive, we offer a comprehensive benefits package to our top talent. This starts with a generous relocation allowance to ensure a smooth transition to Abu Dhabi, followed by a competitive salary, housing and transportation allowance; educational assistance for your dependents; access to health and wellness services, plus more. NYUAD is committed to faculty success throughout the academic career trajectory, providing support for ambitious and world-class research projects and innovative, interactive teaching approaches. Support for dual-career families is a priority.

Colby College

Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor - Contemporary Political Theory

The Department of Government at Colby College invites applications for a one-year Visiting Assistant Professor position in contemporary political theory commencing September 1, 2021. Possible strengths might include democratic theory, multiculturalism, critical race theory, feminist theory, or comparative political theory. In addition to courses in their specialization, the ideal candidate would offer courses covering the canonical texts in ancient, modern, and contemporary political theory, including one section of the required introductory course in political theory. Teaching load is five courses during the year, with the option of offering one of the five during Colby's January term.

Candidates must have completed a Ph.D. in political science by September 1, 2021. Prior experience in undergraduate teaching as the instructor of record is strongly preferred. The successful candidate will provide evidence of excellence in teaching a diverse student body and a strong and on-going research program that is open to the inclusion of undergraduates. The college and the department are committed to enhancing the diversity and inclusivity of the campus community and the curriculum. Candidates who can contribute to this goal are encouraged to identify their strengths and experiences in this area when they apply.

Applicants should send a letter of application, a curriculum vitae, a statement expressing the candidate's teaching experience and philosophy, course descriptions and/or syllabi for three proposed courses, evidence of teaching excellence, a graduate school transcript, and three confidential letters of recommendation, including at least one that speaks to teaching experience. Please submit all of these materials via Interfolio. Review of applications will begin March 1, 2021, and will continue until the position is filled. To apply: <http://apply.interfolio.com/83143>

Texas A&M University

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Political Theory

The Albritton Center for Grand Strategy at the Bush School of Government and Public Service, Texas A&M University, is inviting applications to its residential fellowship program for the 2021-2022 academic year. The program will support one pre-doctoral and one post-doctoral fellow. The Albritton Center is particularly interested in scholars that are engaging with the fundamental questions surrounding grand strategy: How should the national interest be defined? What are the threats to the national interest? How should the United States use its power in response? Applications are invited from scholars of political science, history, and other relevant disciplines.

Fellows will be expected to be in residence at the Bush School for the duration of their fellowships (September 2021 - August 2022). They will be provided with office space and access to the resources of the Bush School and Texas A&M University. Fellows will participate in Center activities, to include seminars, workshops, and conferences. They will work with an active community of scholars in international affairs, political science, history, and other disciplines at Texas A&M University.

The pre-doctoral fellow is expected to make substantial progress toward – and ideally complete – a dissertation during the fellowship. The post-doctoral fellow is expected to complete a manuscript for publication. The post-doctoral fellow is also expected to teach one course to Bush School students. Finally, both fellows are asked to write a short, policy-relevant piece while in residence.

Eligibility:

Applicants for the pre-doctoral fellowship must be pursuing a Ph.D. in political science, history or other relevant discipline. Applicants must pass all qualifying exams and advance to the level of candidacy prior to the start of their appointment.

Applicants for the post-doctoral fellowship must have completed their PhD in political science, history, or other relevant discipline to begin the fellowship. Recent PhD recipients are especially encouraged to apply.

Award information:

The pre-doctoral fellow will receive a stipend of $39,000, as well as $5,000 in research funding. The post-doctoral fellow will receive a salary of $60,000 (payable monthly), as well as $10,000 in research funding. The post-doctoral fellow will also be eligible for the benefits package available to TAMU employees.

Application process:

Postdoctoral applicants should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, short writing sample (no more than 10,000 words), and a letter of recommendation (preferably by the applicant's dissertation advisor) through Texas A&M's employment platform, Workday (https://tamus.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/TAMU_External/job/College-Station-TAMU/Postdoctoral-Research-Associate_R-033905-1).

Predocoral applicants should complete submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, short writing sample (no more than 10,000 words), and a letter of recommendation (preferably by the applicant's dissertation advisor) to bushschoolCGS@tamu.edu.

Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis, with those arriving by January 29, 2021 receiving priority attention.

Sewanee: The University of the South

Rank: Post-Doc in Political Theory

The Department of Politics at The University of the South seeks applications for a postdoctoral fellowship in political theory to begin August 2021. The position is for one year, renewable for a second. The Department is also hiring for a postdoctoral position in public policy, so academic couples are welcome to apply.

Candidates must demonstrate a strong commitment to excellence in teaching and research productivity appropriate to the rank of appointment. The teaching load is reduced to three courses per year. New faculty members have opportunity for teaching mentoring through the Center for Teaching and designing community engagement curricula through collaboration with the Carnegie-recognized Office of Community Engagement. In addition to the ability to teach introductory courses in political theory, we are particularly interested in candidates who can teach upper-level courses in their area of specialization and connect them to our existing major concentrations.

The University of the South comprises a well-regarded College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and a distinguished School of Theology. It is an institution of the Episcopal Church that welcomes individuals of all backgrounds. The University is located on a striking, 13,000-acre campus on Tennessee's Cumberland Plateau.

The University of the South stands firmly for the principle that its employees, students, and participants of university-sponsored programs and activities have a right to be free from discrimination based on race, color, sex, religion, national origin, age, disability, sexual orientation, gender identity, veteran status, pregnancy and childbirth, and genetic information. As required by Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 and the ADA Amendments Act of 2008, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, the University does not discriminate on the basis of sex or other protected categories in the educational programs or activities which it operates. This requirement of non-discrimination extends to admission to and employment in those programs or activities. The University is committed to sustaining a community in which the dignity of every individual is respected. Key to this value are efforts to nurture an environment of civility and mutual respect and to foster a culture of reporting concerns so that the University can respond promptly and equitably whenever an incident occurs. All employees, students, and participants of university-sponsored programs and activities have the right to be free from harassment and retaliation.

For preliminary review, applicants must submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and statement demonstrating how they can contribute to faculty diversity, such as through membership in a group that is historically underrepresented in a particular area of study, training, or other experience. These materials should be submitted through the application portal at <https://jobs.sewanee.edu/postings/4430>. Eligibility for employment is contingent upon successful prescreening. For full consideration, please submit materials by December 15, 2020.

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, Methodology, Political Theory

School of Public Economics and Administration (SPEA)
Shanghai University of Finance and Economics (SUFU)

Job Type: Full-Time

Job Summary: The School of Public Economics and Administration (SPEA) at Shanghai University of Finance and Economics (SUFU)

seeks applicants for two tenure-track faculty positions at the rank of assistant or associate (non-tenured) professor. The employment starts in Fall semester of 2021. The openings are in the field of comparative politics, research methodology, and political theory. Candidates who have a research focus on issues of public policy are strongly encouraged to apply for the positions. A completed Ph.D. in Political Science is required before the employment. Applicants should demonstrate their potentials to employ rigorous research methods, either quantitative or qualitative, to answer important theoretical questions in the field. Although the working environment in SUFE is international, the ability to communicate fluently in Mandarin Chinese is highly preferred.

The position is a full-time appointment for a period of six years. A tenure evaluation will be conducted after five years of employment. The tenure-track faculty are expected to publish research on highly reputable international journals, offer high-quality teaching to undergraduate and graduate students, and contribute to the development of political science at SUFE. The rules of evaluation and promotion are standardized at the university and similar to those for tenure positions in a regular American university.

We offer a globally competitive salary based on a full-time appointment and depending on experience and knowledge. The starting salary is 380,000 RMB for entry-level appointment, pending university approval. The offer also includes a broad package of fringe benefits (240K RMB housing subsidy, medical insurance, moving expenses, startup fund, and travel grants) per university regulation.

Institution background: Shanghai University of Finance and Economics, founded in 1917, is a top-ranked research university in China. The university has recruited more than 200 faculty members with overseas Ph.D. degrees. SPEA has 20 faculty members who own overseas Ph.D. degrees. The university and the school have developed a competitive and collegial environment for junior scholars trained overseas. The university has decided to establish and develop a strong political science program in the Thirteenth Five-Year Plan. The newly established Institute of Political Science has eight members who hold a Ph.D. degree from overseas.

Application documents: Your application must contain the following documents (all in English):

1. A cover letter;
2. An extensive curriculum vitae including a publication list;
3. A statement of research interest and agenda;
4. Up to three working papers;
5. And names and contact information of three references.

The deadline for accepting applications is September 31, 2020, for this round of recruitment. We will arrange on-site interviews at SUFE or other forms of interviews such as Skype and Wechat during November and December 2020.

Contact: Please send your application and request to recruit committee at polscisufe@gmail.com.

San Diego State University Imperial Valley

Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor of Public Administration

Specializations: International Security, Political Development, Social Movements

General Information:

SDSU Imperial Valley

Founded in 1959 on the original site of the first Calexico High School, SDSU Imperial Valley (SDSU-IV) offers eleven bachelor's and four master's degrees, including a nationally-acclaimed teacher education program. With fewer than a thousand students, SDSU-IV provides a uniquely intimate educational experience. Due to its proximity to the Mexican border, the campus serves a student body comprised largely of groups that are historically under-represented in higher education. Given the regional focus, responsive curriculum and community engagement, the IV Campus has become a powerful engine of economic growth for the region. In Fall 2021, SDSU-IV will launch its first cohort of the Homeland Security Master of Science program. The Calexico campus, less than a two-hour drive from the SDSU main campus, is located on an eight-acre city block in the heart of Calexico's civic center along the Mexican border within Imperial County. The Imperial County area, known more generally as "Imperial Valley," consists of the Calexico, El Centro, and Brawley micropolitan areas along with several other small towns within the Colorado Desert section of the greater Sonoran Desert. Imperial County has an estimated population of over 180,000 residents. Visit our website, www.ivcampus.sdsu.edu

San Diego State University

SDSU is an established and acknowledged leader in the twenty-three-campus California State University system. With more than 7,700 faculty and staff and 35,000 students, it is one of the largest universities in the western United States. The University offers 91 bachelor degrees, 78 master degrees and 22 joint doctorates. SDSU main campus is located less than 25 miles from the United States/Mexico border and places an increasing emphasis on international research and preparing students for a global future. It is classified by the Carnegie Foundation as a doctoral-granting institution with high research activity and receives over $130 million in external research grants and awards annually. The student body is among the most diverse in the United States and the university is known for cultivating a welcoming environment with a strong commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusive excellence whether such diversity is presented through cultural, racial, sexual orientation, sexual identity, or veteran status. As such, SDSU has received national recognition ranging from the Higher Education Excellence in Diversity Award (HEED), being one of the nation's best universities for women as recognized by Professional Women's Magazine, ranked among the Best Colleges for Veterans by the Military Times, and a top LGBT Friendly campus according to CampusPride.org. The Division of Professional Studies

The SDSU Imperial Valley Division of Professional Studies offers several programs stressing both academic and practical experiences that prepare students for successful and productive careers in a variety of professional fields including Criminal Justice, Homeland Security, Nursing, Public Administration, and Social Work. Many of these programs are taught in an international or global context and focus on emerging transborder issues of concern to our region. The Division offers both undergraduate and graduate programs of study including three (3) undergraduate degrees, and three (3) graduate degrees.

Position Description (Public Administration):

SDSU Imperial Valley Division of Professional Studies is seeking applicants for a tenure-track position in Public Administration at the assistant or associate professor level. The position is a joint appointment to the Imperial Valley campus and the School of Public Affairs on the San Diego campus. The primary appointment is to the undergraduate and graduate programs at the Imperial Valley campus in Calexico. We welcome applications from scholars with training in public administration, as well as in related disciplines, including but not limited to public policy, public management, emergency management, homeland security, political science, sociology, and organizational studies by the date of appointment.

The position requires teaching core public administration courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels, through different modalities, including face-to-face, site-specific, and online. Given the interdisciplinary nature of the Division of Professional Studies faculty, teaching and contributing to our collaborative programs is desirable. The research area is open but preference will be given to candidates who are familiar with homeland security issues, as the Division will launch a new Homeland Security Master's program in Fall 2021.

Candidates must demonstrate a strong commitment to excellence in teaching and be able to work with students of diverse cultural backgrounds. Candidates should possess a strong research agenda and capability as demonstrated by an appropriate history of professional growth activity. This will include publication in refereed journals, professional conference participation, grant activity, as well as other evidence of an active research program. Candidates will be expected to work effectively with agencies in the local community.

We are seeking applicants with demonstrated experience in and/or commitment to teaching and working effectively with individuals from diverse backgrounds and members of underrepresented groups. Our definition of underrepresented populations (UP) is: African-American, Latino/Latina, Native American, Southeast Asian, Pacific Islander, groups of varying abilities, women in public administration. Candidates must satisfy two or more of the eight Building on Inclusive Excellence (BIE) criteria. Candidates that meet BIE criteria:

1. are committed to engaging in service with underrepresented populations within the discipline
2. have demonstrated knowledge of barriers for underrepresented students and faculty within the discipline
3. have experience or have demonstrated commitment to teaching and mentoring underrepresented students
4. have experience or have demonstrated commitment to integrating understanding of underrepresented populations and communities into research
5. have experience in or have demonstrated commitment to extending knowledge of opportunities and challenges in achieving artistic/scholarly success to members of an underrepresented group
6. have experience in or have demonstrated commitment to research that engages underrepresented communities
7. have expertise or demonstrated commitment to developing expertise in cross-cultural communication and collaboration
8. have research interests that contribute to diversity and equal opportunity in higher education

Candidates must indicate in their cover letter how they meet at least two or more of these criteria.

Qualifications:

Candidates should have an earned Ph.D. in public administration or a related field such as public policy, public management, emergency management, homeland security, political science, sociology, and organizational studies by the date of appointment (August 2021). Candidates should have demonstrated evidence of research publications, teaching excellence, and the willingness to participate in shared governance at the school and university level. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Application review will begin on March 01, 2021 and will continue until the position is filled. Effective Date of Appointment: August 2021.

Candidates should submit a cover letter/candidate statement (which must include a narrative of how the candidate meets two of the eight criteria on underrepresented populations), Curriculum Vitae, one writing sample and contact information for three academic references. Additional materials will be requested from short-listed candidates at a later time. To apply, please submit required materials via Interfolio at: <https://apply.interfolio.com/83776>

Questions about this position should be addressed to:

Dr. David Jancsics
Recruitment Committee Chair
San Diego State University Imperial Valley Campus
School of Public Affairs
Email: djancsics@sdsu.edu

Effective Date of Appointment: August 2021.

The person holding this position is considered a "mandated reporter" under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirement set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment.

A background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed satisfactorily before any candidate can be offered a position with the CSU. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect the application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position.

SDSU is a Title IX, equal opportunity employer and does not discriminate against persons on the basis of race, religion, national origin, sexual orientation, gender, gender identity and expression, marital status, age, disability, pregnancy, medical condition, or covered veteran status.

Radford University

Rank: Chair/Professor or Associate Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Public Policy

The Department of Political Science at Radford University invites applications for the position of Chair of the Political Science Department beginning August 10, 2021. This is a tenured appointment, subject to budgetary approval, at the rank of associate or full professor, commensurate with qualifications. Specialists in American Government, Public Administration, or Public Policy are preferred as is the ability to teach courses in American Institutions and Race and Ethnicity Politics. The Department Chair is expected to provide administrative leadership to seven faculty members and staff; nurture relationships across campus and with stakeholders; and seek out and steward resources. The chair should model excellence in teaching; maintain an active program of scholarship; and engage in appropriate college-level service. We seek a department chair who is eager to energetically lead the department in the climate of challenges to higher education nationally and in the context of a brand new general education program (known as REAL) at our university.

Required Qualifications: Applicants should possess (1) a Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field; (2) the rank of either Full or

Associate Professor; (3) an established record of research and teaching excellence; and (4) previous administrative experience or university service that would demonstrate the applicant's capacity to carry out the duties of department chair.

Radford University is a comprehensive public university of approximately 9,500 students that has received national recognition for many of its undergraduate and graduate academic programs, as well as its sustainability initiatives. Radford University serves the Commonwealth of Virginia and the nation through a wide range of academic, cultural, human service, and research programs and is one of the premier teacher preparation universities in the Commonwealth. Well known for its strong faculty/student bonds, a growing, diverse student population, innovative use of technology in the learning environment and vibrant student life on a beautiful 204-acre American classical campus, Radford University offers students many opportunities to get involved and succeed in and out of the classroom. Information about the current university strategic plan can be found at: <https://www.radford.edu/content/strategic-planning/home.html>.

The city of Radford, Virginia is located in the heart of the New River Valley in southwest Virginia. Nestled in the Blue Ridge Mountains, the region is a haven for music lovers and outdoor enthusiasts. Just a short drive from Blacksburg and Roanoke, the region boasts a vibrant art scene and local food culture as well as many community-university partnership opportunities. Radford is also a two-hour drive from the Piedmont Triad and two and a half hours from Charlotte, North Carolina.

As the largest college at Radford University and home to Liberal Arts instruction on campus, the College of Humanities and Behavioral Sciences is central to the mission of the university. Faculty members strive to develop in their students a range of intellectual skills and habits of mind that will serve them well throughout their academic and professional lives, as well as in their personal lives as productive citizens. Students regularly engage with faculty in experiential learning activities as well as in professional internships that provide opportunities to serve communities while preparing for careers. Faculty members' scholarly and creative activity is viewed as a vital corollary to the instructional mission of the institution, with faculty encouraged to co-author research with undergraduate and graduate students.

The College of Humanities and Behavioral Sciences at Radford University is located in the new 145,000 square foot state-of-the-art instructional facility that is home to all 120+ college faculty members. Centrally located on the main quad of the campus, it is the largest academic building at the university and houses an array of specialized teaching and research facilities. Apply online at <https://jobs.radford.edu/postings/8961>. Only online applications will be accepted. Candidates should submit the following: 1) a letter of application; 2) a current and complete curriculum vitae; 3) a statement of management philosophy; 4) a diversity statement; 5) evidence of teaching effectiveness (which should include recent teaching evaluations and either a teaching philosophy or a narrative about a new class or revisions to an existing class); 6) a research sample; 7) contact information for three references (not the letters themselves); and 8) copies of unofficial transcripts.

Review of applications will begin March 10, 2021 and will continue until the position is filled. Radford University is an EO/AA employer committed to diversity. Individuals with disabilities requiring accommodations in the application process should call (540) 831-5008 (voice) or (540) 831-5128 (TTY). If you need access to a computer, you may visit our office at 600 Tyler Avenue, Radford, Virginia, or the local Virginia Employment Commission.

Clemson University

Rank: Assistant / Associate Professor Public Administration

The Department of Political Science at Clemson University invites applications for two tenure-track appointments at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor, to begin in August 2021. Successful candidates' primary research and teaching responsibilities will be in the Master of Public Administration Program. We are especially interested in hiring colleagues who can work collaboratively with existing faculty members in the department and across campus, those who prioritize excellence in research and graduate teaching, and those who firmly believe in the land grant university mission. Openness to interdisciplinary scholarship is highly desirable.

Both positions require the ability to teach effectively in a synchronous, online environment, as Clemson's MPA program is delivered entirely online. Successful candidates will contribute to and complement at least one of the MPA program's existing specialization areas in Emergency Management, Homeland Defense and Security, Non-Profit Management, Regional Sustainability, and Local Government. An ability to teach and supervise dissertations in the department's Ph.D. program in Policy Studies is highly desirable. Successful candidates will also have the opportunity to teach undergraduate courses in political science.

Consistent with Clemson University's status as an R1 research institution, excellence in scholarship is required. Successful candidates must demonstrate evidence of a promising research program and readiness to seek external funding and generate impactful publications in peer-reviewed journals.

The Department of Political Science at Clemson University offers the BA and BS in Political Science, the Master of Public Administration, and the Ph.D. in Policy Studies. At present, we have roughly 350 undergraduate majors, 130 MPA students, and 15 Ph.D. students. The department has 16 full time faculty and 3 full-time staff.

Clemson University is a land-grant institution located along the shores of Lake Hartwell in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains. The area is valued by many for its wonderful outdoor recreation opportunities, great weather, low cost of living, and friendly people.

Qualifications

Professional qualifications include:

Earned doctorate at the time of start in public administration, public policy, political science or a related field such as emergency management, homeland defense and security, planning, or related degree, to be completed by August 2021

Evidence of ability to develop and teach innovative courses for master's and Ph.D. students

Evidence of a promising and innovative research agenda

Readiness to apply for external research funding

Evidence of ability to publish impactful work in peer-reviewed journals
Expertise or experience with interdisciplinary research using innovative approaches to address issues and challenges that cut across multiple areas of policy and public administration are of particular interest.

Motivation to undertake transdisciplinary research with colleagues across the College of Behavioral Social and Health Science (CBSHS) and the wider University.

Relevant professional experience is preferred but not required

Candidates seeking appointment at the rank of Associate Professor must meet the departmental requirements for rank and tenure (available upon request)

Application Instructions

Applicants should submit a letter of application, current CV, copies of graduate transcripts, a one-page research agenda statement, a one-page teaching philosophy statement, and the names and contact information of three recommenders. In the letter of application, candidates should comment on how they see themselves contributing to, diversifying, and/or complementing current areas of faculty expertise within the department and its graduate programs, especially the MPA program, and the college broadly.

Review of applications will begin March 1, 2021 and will continue until both positions are filled. To apply, upload the following to Interfolio (<https://apply.interfolio.com/83681>): a letter of application addressing the specified qualification criteria and position responsibilities, current CV, copies of graduate transcripts, a one-page teaching philosophy statement, and the names and contact information of three recommenders. Send email inquiries to: Dr. Lori Dickes (lorid@clemson.edu).

Miami University

Rank: Heanon Wilkins Faculty Fellows/Visiting Assistant Professor or Instructor

Subfield(s): Public Law, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Wilkins Fellows program is named after Professor Emeritus Heanon Wilkins, Miami University's first full-time African-American faculty member. A distinguished professor of Spanish, Portuguese, and Black World Studies, Professor Wilkins received Miami's highest honors in teaching, research, and service, and we honor him with the Wilkins Fellows program. The Wilkins Fellows program is designed to provide those with a strong interest in pursuing a career as a faculty member with dedicated mentoring and intentional preparation for a career in higher education as a faculty member. Our hope is that a significant number of Fellows will choose to apply for positions at Miami and join our ranks of exceptional and dedicated faculty.

Each academic year, we attempt to call for Fellows that align with expected areas of need in the future. The opportunities for Heanon Wilkins Fellows will vary based on the needs of the academic departments. We encourage applications from all areas with particular interest in faculty with expertise in the following areas:

African American History

Public Law or Race & Politics/Policy

Global and Intercultural Studies: International Studies; Women's, Gender and Sexuality Studies

French Second-Language Acquisition

Sociology & Social Justice

Engineering (all disciplines welcome)

Computer Science (all sub-disciplines welcome)

Farmer School of Business (all disciplines welcome)

Nursing

Physician Assistant

Public administration

The Fellowship is for one full academic year (9-month faculty appointment) with the possibility of reappointment to support longer-term research initiatives and projects. Heanon Wilkins Fellows have reduced teaching responsibilities in order to foster a vibrant research program, receive mentoring and career development support, and the opportunity to engage with highly accomplished teacher-scholar faculty colleagues and exceptionally strong students. The Fellows program is designed to prepare individuals to be highly competitive in future faculty searches, especially those we anticipate at Miami University. Thus, there is a strong potential for Fellows to be competitive for both tenure track and/or teaching/clinical professor or lecturer (TCPL) positions, although this is not guaranteed.

Minimum Qualifications:

Miami University welcomes early-career candidates who have completed (or anticipate completing) their doctorate or terminal degree not more than four years prior to the August 2021 appointment date.

This position is available to persons who are currently authorized to work in the United States on a full-time and indefinite basis. (Persons authorized to work on such a basis include US citizens, lawful permanent residents ("green card" holders), asylees, refugees, and temporary residents under IRCA.)

Special Instructions to Applicants:

Submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and a statement of proposed research (one to five pages) indicating area or discipline, statement of teaching philosophy, and sample scholarship. Letters of recommendation will be requested from the references listed in the application; the dissertation advisor should be one of those references. Inquiries about the position can be directed to Dana Cox at coxdc4@miamioh.edu.

University of Oklahoma

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The University of Oklahoma invites applications for a tenure-track position in public administration at the assistant professor level beginning in August 2021. We seek candidates with a broad competence in public administration and whose research and/or teaching is inclusive of countries outside of the United States. The selected candidate will contribute to our core courses in our NASPAA-accredited MPA program and be able to teach public administration courses from a comparative perspective, focusing on countries outside of the US, as part of our efforts to have more courses that expose students to the diversity of politics and governments across the world. We are open as to substantive focus, but we are especially interested in candidates with expertise in non-governmental organizations, social equity in the US and/or other countries, indigenous issues, or development administration.

This position is within the Department of Political Science, a large department with two undergraduate majors (Political Science and Public & Nonprofit Administration), multiple minors, two master degree programs (Public Administration & Political Science, with the MPA offered in Norman and Tulsa), and a doctoral program. The department is housed within the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Oklahoma. The University of Oklahoma is the flagship research institution for the state of Oklahoma, enrolling over 30,000 students, located in Norman, OK, a vibrant college town just 20 miles south of Oklahoma City.

Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in public administration, political science, or public policy, and completed by August 2021, have the ability to contribute to the MPA core curriculum, and ability to teach public administration from a comparative perspective, focusing on countries outside of the US. Preference will be given to applicants with substantive focus in non-governmental organizations, social equity in the US and/or other countries, indigenous issues, or development administration, show evidence of a robust research agenda and potential for success in publishing in high-quality, peer-reviewed outlets, have teaching experience, especially in an online format. The teaching load for this position is two courses per semester.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter, teaching statement, unofficial graduate transcript(s) (official transcript will be required for finalist), writing sample, contact information for three references. Three letters of recommendation will be required for candidates who progress past the first screening. Review of applications will begin February 18, 2021 and continue until the position is filled. Any questions can be emailed to the search committee chairs, Dr. Alisa Fryar ahicklin@ou.edu and Dr. Charles Kenney ckenny@ou.edu. West Virginia University

Subfield(s): Administration, Public Policy, Public Administration

West Virginia University (WVU) seeks a visionary and enterprising leader to serve as the inaugural Director of the Institute for Policy Research and Public Affairs affiliated with Eberly College of Arts and Sciences and the John D. Rockefeller, Jr. School of Policy and Politics. This is a tenured faculty position at the rank of Professor or Associate Professor in the Eberly College. The Director will lead a new initiative to advance public policy and public affairs research and translational activities. This initiative is one of three divisions planned to be established within the Rockefeller School. The other two deal with academic programs and engaged learning and service. In addition to the duties outlined below, the Director would work closely with WVU leadership to help fully establish the Rockefeller School.

As Director, the successful applicant will support faculty and researchers across complementary disciplines to collaboratively build research capacity in public policy. They will strengthen related resources, build on expertise and research capabilities that currently exist across campus, increase externally sponsored research in social and public policy, as well as create partnerships with foundations, industry, government agencies and other universities. As part of this effort, the Director will be expected to recruit Research Fellows to work within the school. In addition to Departments affiliated with the Rockefeller School, Research Fellows may be recruited from within other WVU programs and external institutions and agencies. The Director will connect policy research to the teaching and outreach mission of the Rockefeller School and will report to the office of the Dean of the Eberly College. The Director will have a dedicated administrative assistant as well as support for graduate research students.

Qualifications include a Ph.D. or equivalent degree in Public Policy, Political Science, Public Administration, or a closely related field; a sustained record of externally funded research in the area of public policy; a record of multidisciplinary scholarship; ability to translate academic research into information for public dissemination and engagement; a record of successful administrative leadership; ability to work collaboratively in a diverse environment with a range of faculty, students, administrators, and external constituents to reach a common goal; ability to develop partnerships with foundations and industry in support of the Institute's programs; understanding of WVU's mission as a land-grant institution; ability to manage budgets and establish fiscal priorities; strong written and oral communication skills; and an established record of research and teaching that will merit appointment at, or promotion to, the rank of Professor or Associate Professor with a grant of tenure at WVU.

WVU is a comprehensive land grant university with approximately 30,000 students and is classified by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education as a very high research (R1) Institution. The Rockefeller School of Policy and Politics currently consists of 21 tenured and tenure-track faculty and is affiliated with the Eberly College of Arts and Sciences.

To apply for this position, please visit <http://hr.research.wvu.edu> and click on the "View Jobs" link. Qualified applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a description of the applicant's potential to further our progress in building a diverse and inclusive academic community (which will be evaluated without regard to the applicant's personal demographics), and contact information for three references. The cover letter should address the applicant's qualifications for each aspect of the responsibilities listed above. For questions or additional information, contact Prof. Duncan Lorimer via e-mail: duncan.lorimer@mail.wvu.edu. The screening process will begin on March 1, 2021 and will continue until the position is filled.

The University community of Morgantown offers plentiful educational opportunities as well as recreational outlets, is within easy driving distance of Pittsburgh, PA, and is about 200 miles northwest of Washington, D.C. WVU is an Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer and the recipient of an NSF ADVANCE award for gender equity. The university is committed to diversity and welcomes applications from all qualified individuals, including minorities, females, individuals with disabilities, and veterans.

Temple University

Rank: Postdoctoral Diversity Fellow in Political Science

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, International Law & Organizations, Civil Rights & Liberties

The Department of Political Science at Temple University invites applications for a one-year Postdoctoral Fellowship to support the development of early career scholars from diverse backgrounds with particular attention to historically underrepresented groups on the professorial faculties of colleges and universities in the United States. This year we seek a fellow with expertise in human rights law and politics in either domestic or international contexts. The successful applicant will contribute intellectually to the department and College of Liberal Arts by conducting research while teaching one course during the year. We would welcome, but not limit our search to candidates who study race, sexual orientation, and/or religious affiliation as components of states' legal traditions both domestically and internationally. Applicants should hold or be completing a doctorate in Political Science or a related discipline.

Our department (<https://www.cla.temple.edu/political-science/>) organizes formal colloquia from outside scholars and hosts or cohosts many internal research talks with interdisciplinary centers such as Global Studies, Public Policy Lab, Master of Public Policy, Gender, Sexuality and Women's Studies (GSWS), the Center for Force and Diplomacy (CENFAD), and the Center for Humanities at Temple (CHAT).

The Postdoctoral Diversity Fellowship is a competitive program whose goal is to increase the diversity of the community of scholars devoted to academic research at Temple University. Candidates must have completed their Ph.D. by September 1, 2021. Please submit a letter of application that includes (1) proposed research plan for the fellowship, (2) a statement of teaching interests and/or philosophy, (3) a brief statement of the grounds of eligibility and progress toward completion of the dissertation, (4) curriculum vitae, and (5) three letters of recommendation by April 1, 2021 via the Interfolio link below. Letter writers should address the likelihood of completing the degree before September 1, 2021. Applications are due April 1, 2021 but review will commence immediately.

The current postdoctoral fellowship is non-renewable. The award includes a salary of $50,000, full Temple University employee benefits, a research/travel fund of $3,000, and a $2,000 moving allowance. The postdoctoral fellow will teach one course during the year of appointment and will meet regularly with other postdocs and faculty in the department and college through participation in seminars, colloquia, teaching circles, etc.

Temple University is a state-related Carnegie Research University (highest research activity) located in Philadelphia. Middle Georgia State University

Rank: Assistant Professor, American and/or comparative politics
Specializations: American Politics, Africa, Judicial Politics

JOB SUMMARY: The Department of Political Science at Middle Georgia State University (<https://www.mga.edu/political-science>) invites applications for a tenure-track appointment in political science, with a specialization in American politics or comparative politics, at the rank of assistant professor, to be primarily based on the Cochran campus. This is a 10-month position with a teaching load of 12 credit hours per semester (4-4) of undergraduate courses in political science, typically including multiple sections of the introductory American Government course, as well as more advanced undergraduate courses in political science in the candidate's area of specialization. The ability to contribute to at least one of the minors offered by the department (African and African diaspora studies, environmental policy studies, or pre-law) is desirable.

MAJOR DUTIES: Teaching responsibilities may include day and/or evening courses, partially and fully online courses, and courses taught via video conferencing; faculty are also expected to travel to teach and attend meetings at other campus locations when needed. Tenure-track faculty are expected to have an active scholarly agenda, including publication in peer-reviewed outlets; student advising and service to the department, school, university, and community are also expected for promotion and tenure. Summer teaching opportunities may also be available, contingent on student demand.

QUALIFICATIONS: Candidates should have earned a doctorate in political science, or a doctorate in related field including at least 18 semester hours of graduate coursework in political science, from a regionally-accredited institution; ABD candidates will only be considered if they will earn their doctorate by August 1, 2021. Experience as an instructor of record, demonstrated expertise in American politics or comparative politics, and/or the ability to contribute to one or more of the minors offered by the department are desirable. Candidates must have a record of teaching and potential for scholarship that warrants appointment at the rank of assistant professor.

ABOUT THE UNIVERSITY AND SCHOOL OF EDUCATION AND BEHAVIORAL SCIENCES: Middle Georgia State University is a 4-year public, doctoral level university. MGA was formed through the consolidation of Macon State College and Middle Georgia College in 2013. Serving over 8,000 students who reflect the diversity of the state, the university encompasses all five campuses of the prior two institutions, with campuses in Cochran, Dublin, Eastman, Macon, and Warner Robins. Annual tuition and fees make MGA the most affordable public university in the state of Georgia. MGA is regionally accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges.

SALARY: Commensurate with qualifications and experience.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: The search committee will review complete applications beginning no earlier than February 22, 2021, and will continue to accept applications until the position is filled.

FOR MORE INFORMATION: Informal inquiries about the position may be made to Dr. Christopher N. Lawrence, chair of the Department of Political Science at christopher.lawrence@mga.edu.

TO APPLY: All application materials must be submitted by email to recruitment@mga.edu, as a single PDF attachment, with the subject line "10018045 Assistant Professor of Political Science 2.5.2021". Application materials must include (1) a completed MGA faculty application, (2) a letter of interest that describes how you meet the qualifications for the position, (3) a curriculum vitae, (4) a statement of teaching philosophy, (5) names and contact information of three references, and (6) unofficial transcripts of all post-secondary/college-level work. Paper application materials will not be accepted.

Background checks will be conducted on all final candidates.

University of Toronto

Rank: Assistant Professor American political development/ethics, society, and law

Assistant Professor American political development/ethics, society, and law

Description:

The Department of Political Science and the Ethics, Society, and Law Program, Trinity College, in the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of Toronto invite applications for a full-time tenure stream position in the area of American political development/ethics, society and law. This will be a joint appointment between the Department of Political Science (51%) and Trinity College (49%). The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor and will commence on July 1, 2021 or shortly thereafter.

We seek candidates who work at the interface between the structural foundations of American political development (such as federalism, separation of powers, and constitutional values) and core questions of ethics (such as human rights and human dignity). Applicants must have earned a PhD degree in Political Science or a related field and have a minimum of one year of postdoctoral training by the time of appointment, or shortly thereafter, with a demonstrated record of excellence in research and teaching in relevant disciplinary areas.

We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and strengthen our existing departmental and program strengths. The successful candidate will undertake undergraduate and graduate teaching responsibilities on the University's downtown (St. George) campus. Applicants are encouraged to review the research and teaching profiles of current faculty members. Please visit our home pages to learn more about us (Department of Political Science <https://politics.utoronto.ca>; and Ethics, Society, and Law program <https://www.trinity.utoronto.ca/study-arts-science/ethics-society-law/>).

The successful candidate will be expected to pursue innovative and independent research at the highest international level and to establish an outstanding, competitive and externally funded research program. Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence which can be demonstrated by a record of publications in top-ranked and field relevant journals or forthcoming publications meeting high international standards, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, awards and accolades, and strong endorsements from referees of high standing.

Evidence of excellence in teaching will be provided through teaching accomplishments, the teaching dossier including a teaching statement, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations submitted as part of the application, as well as strong letters of reference.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment demonstrated through the application materials.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter; a current curriculum vitae; a research statement outlining current and future research interests; a recent writing sample; and a teaching dossier to include a teaching statement, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations. Equity and diversity are essential to academic excellence. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of their contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover (but need not be limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups. Applicants must provide the name and contact information of three references. The University of Toronto's recruiting tool will automatically solicit and collect letters of reference from each once an application is submitted. Applicants, however, remain responsible for ensuring that references submit letters (on letterhead, dated and signed) by the closing date. Submission guidelines can be found at <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>. If you have any questions about this position, please contact Sari Sherman at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by Monday, March 15, 2021.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Diversity Statement

The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous / Aboriginal People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ2S+ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see <http://uoft.me/UP>.

Accessibility Statement

The University strives to be an equitable and inclusive community, and proactively seeks to increase diversity among its community members. Our values regarding equity and diversity are linked with our unwavering commitment to excellence in the pursuit of our academic mission.

The University is committed to the principles of the Accessibility for Ontarians with Disabilities Act (AODA). As such, we strive to make our recruitment, assessment and selection processes as accessible as possible and provide accommodations as required for applicants with disabilities.

If you require any accommodations at any point during the application and hiring process, please contact uoft.careers@utoronto.ca.

Miami University

Subfield(s): Public Law, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Wilkins Fellows program is named after Professor Emeritus Heanon Wilkins, Miami University's first full-time African-American faculty member. A distinguished professor of Spanish, Portuguese, and Black World Studies, Professor Wilkins received Miami's highest honors in teaching, research, and service, and we honor him with the Wilkins Fellows program. The Wilkins Fellows program is designed to provide those with a strong interest in pursuing a career as a faculty member with dedicated mentoring and intentional preparation for a career in higher education as a faculty member. Our hope is that a significant number of Fellows will choose to apply for positions at Miami and join our ranks of exceptional and dedicated faculty.

Each academic year, we attempt to call for Fellows that align with expected areas of need in the future. The opportunities for Heanon Wilkins Fellows will vary based on the needs of the academic departments. We encourage applications from all areas with particular interest in faculty with expertise in the following areas:

- African American History
- Public Law or Race & Politics/Policy
- Global and Intercultural Studies: International Studies; Women's, Gender and Sexuality Studies
- French Second-Language Acquisition
- Sociology & Social Justice
- Engineering (all disciplines welcome)
- Computer Science (all sub-disciplines welcome)
- Farmer School of Business (all disciplines welcome)
- Nursing
- Physician Assistant
- Public administration

The Fellowship is for one full academic year (9-month faculty appointment) with the possibility of reappointment to support longer-term research initiatives and projects. Heanon Wilkins Fellows have reduced teaching responsibilities in order to foster a vibrant research program, receive mentoring and career development support, and the opportunity to engage with highly accomplished teacher-scholar faculty colleagues and exceptionally strong students. The Fellows program is designed to prepare individuals to be highly competitive in future faculty searches, especially those we anticipate at Miami University. Thus, there is a strong potential for Fellows to be competitive for both tenure track and/or teaching/clinical professor or lecturer (TCPL) positions, although this is not guaranteed.

Minimum Qualifications:

Miami University welcomes early-career candidates who have completed (or anticipate completing) their doctorate or terminal degree not more than four years prior to the August 2021 appointment date.

This position is available to persons who are currently authorized to work in the United States on a full-time and indefinite basis. (Persons authorized to work on such a basis include US citizens, lawful permanent residents ("green card" holders), asylees, refugees, and temporary residents under IRCA.)

Special Instructions to Applicants:

Submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and a statement of proposed research (one to five pages) indicating area or discipline, statement of teaching philosophy, and sample scholarship. Letters of recommendation will be requested from the references listed in the application; the dissertation advisor should be one of those references. Inquiries about the position can be directed to Dana Cox at coxdc4@miamioh.edu.

San Diego State University is the largest university in San Diego and the third largest in California. The highly diverse campus community has a student population of over 36,000 and approximately 5,849 faculty and staff. SDSU is included in the Carnegie Foundation's Doctoral Universities: High Research Activity category. Established in 1897, SDSU offers bachelor degrees in 84 areas, masters in 76 and doctorates in 21. See <http://www.sdsu.edu> for more information. SDSU is a large, diverse, urban university and Hispanic-Serving Institution with a commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusive excellence. Our campus community is diverse in many ways, including race, religion, color, sex, age, disability, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, national origin, pregnancy, medical condition, and covered veteran status. We strive to build and sustain a welcoming environment for all.

Consistent with SDSU's mission, we seek applicants with demonstrated experience in and/or commitment to teaching and working effectively with individuals from diverse backgrounds and members of underrepresented groups. This search is part of an SDSU cluster initiative to hire "faculty who have a demonstrated history of working with and supporting the African-American community." For more information, see <https://sacd.sdsu.edu/diversity-initiatives/aa-cluster-hires>. Candidates must satisfy three or more of the eight Building on Inclusive Excellence (BIE) criteria, adjusted according to the cluster initiative of this hire: (a) committed to engaging in service with African American populations; (b) demonstrated knowledge of barriers for African American students and faculty; (c) experience or has demonstrated commitment to teaching and/or mentoring African American students; (d) experience or has demonstrated commitment to integrating understanding of African American populations and communities into research; (e) experience in or has demonstrated commitment to extending knowledge of opportunities and challenges in achieving artistic/scholarly success to African Americans; (f) experience in or has demonstrated commitment to research that engages African American communities; (g) interest in developing expertise in cross-cultural communication and collaboration; (h) research interests that contribute to diversity and equal opportunity in higher education. Indicate in your cover letter how you meet at least three of these criteria.

Applicants must apply via Interfolio at <https://apply.interfolio.com/82445>. A completed file includes a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, complete teaching evaluations (quantitative evaluations and complete sets of qualitative evaluations of recent courses), sample syllabi, academic writing samples and three letters of recommendation. To ensure full consideration, submit all materials by February 15, 2021. Screening of applications will begin then. Applicants who will have completed the Ph.D. by the start of the term of appointment will be given priority. Those without a Ph.D. in-hand should include in their letter of interest a statement of progress on the dissertation and reasons to expect completion in a timely fashion.

The person holding this position is considered a "mandated reporter" under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment. A background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed before any candidate can be offered a position with the CSU. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect the application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position. SDSU is a Title IX, equal opportunity employer and does not discriminate against persons on the basis of race, religion, national origin, sexual orientation, gender, gender identity and expression, marital status, age, disability, pregnancy, medical condition, or covered veteran status

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science

The Department of Political Science at Lycoming College invites applications for a tenure-track position in Public Law at the rank of Assistant Professor to begin August 2021. The successful candidate will be broadly trained to teach both introductory and advanced courses in Public Law. Candidates with a secondary specialization in Comparative Politics are encouraged to apply.

Lycoming's small, liberal arts environment allows faculty members, as part of their 3-3 teaching load, to create new courses in line with their area of specialization. Candidates with an interest in teaching in the College's interdisciplinary first year seminar program are desired. Candidates should demonstrate a strong promise of teaching effectiveness and scholarly achievement, and a serious commitment to teaching undergraduates in a liberal arts environment is essential. Additional duties include advising and mentoring students, as well as service to the department and institution.

Ph.D. in political science is preferred, but ABDs in their final stages of completion will be considered.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae along with submitting a teaching portfolio, 250-word statement on why they are interested in a liberal arts academic environment, a single-authored writing sample, 3 letters of recommendation, and graduate transcript using the link below. <https://lycomingcollege.applytojob.com/apply/CqDmzXdfUU/Assistant-Professor-Of-Political-Science-Public-Law>

Letters of recommendations can be mailed to:

Brown University

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

Brown University invites applications for a two-year Postdoctoral Research Associate in Climate Solutions at the Watson Institute for International & Public Affairs. Two positions are available, associated with the Climate Solutions Lab and the William R. Rhodes Center for International Economics and Finance. We seek scholars to help us address one of two major topics: climate and trade, and financing decarbonization. The first position will lead task forces looking at questions like how climate should fit into the United States' China strategy, and how US policymakers can work with the EU on issues such as carbon tariffs and border adjustment measures. The second position will focus on how state and market actors can work together to finance decarbonization, with a specific focus on ameliorating the distributive politics inherent in such a transition. There are no teaching responsibilities for these positions. The selected candidate will devote 50 percent time to Watson's projects, under the supervision of Professors Jeff Colgan and Mark Blyth, and 50 percent time to his or her own (climate-related) research projects.

Founded in 1764, Brown is a leading research university distinct for its student-centered learning and deep sense of purpose. Brown University students, faculty, and staff are driven by the idea that their work will have an impact on the world. Brown is a place where rigorous scholarship, complex problem-solving, and service to the public good are defined by collaboration, intellectual discovery, and working in ways that transcend traditional disciplinary boundaries.

Scholars with a Ph.D. in political science, sociology, economics, public policy, or closely related disciplines will be considered. Dissertation must be signed by June 30, 2021. Candidates must be untenured and within 5 years of Ph.D.

Candidates should submit a cover letter, a CV, three letters of reference and a short writing sample (15-20 pages) through Interfolio <http://apply.interfolio.com/83618>

Applications received by March 15th, 2021 will receive full consideration.

Final notifications are expected to go out in May 2021. This two-year Postdoctoral Research Associate appointment will be effective July 1, 2021, and is not renewable.

GASPPA

Rank: Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair and Professor in Public Policy and Administration

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Administration, American Government and Politics

Apply at: <https://csus.peopleadmin.com/postings/5191>.

The position is for the Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair. Through this endowed chair position, the university is making a further commitment to its role as an anchor institution in the region by focusing on long-term, systemic solutions to entrenched social, economic, and political problems. Given that this is an endowed chair position, the work differs significantly from a traditional faculty member, and additional funds will be provided to ensure that the chair can meet those expectations.

The work of the Hazel Cramer Endowed Chair will result in an enhancement of the reputation of the Department of Public Policy and Administration, the College of Social Sciences and Interdisciplinary Studies, and California State University, Sacramento. This position's teaching responsibility is reduced and additional funds will be allocated from the Hazel Cramer Endowment to support the chair in executing the unique expectations of the position (e.g. research assistance, related travel, meeting and conferences, convenings, lectures, and other outreach related costs). The initial Hazel Cramer appointment is for five years. For reappointment, the incumbent endowed chair must undergo a thorough review.

The Department is seeking a community-engaged scholar willing to make significant contributions to the community through California State University's Downtown Center (<https://www.csus.edu/experience/anchor-university/sac-state-downtown/>) and the Anchor University Initiative (<https://www.csus.edu/experience/anchor-university/>). The successful applicant should have a distinguished and sustained record in the areas of teaching, scholarship, and service – and have demonstrated the ability to utilize evidence-based research to examine and address public policy problems especially relevant to the Sacramento Metropolitan Area and State of California. Emphasis is placed on the candidate's substantial and continued contributions. Given the demographics of the Sacramento Region and California, the successful applicant must have evidence of a record in teaching, scholarship, and service that emphasizes service to diverse populations. Through previous work, and a clear plan, the successful applicant must have an applied research agenda, focused on solving practical problems. Examples of desired subject areas include the study of public policy and administration related to social justice, political engagement, education, public finance, urban redevelopment, transportation, health care, affordable housing, homelessness, criminal justice, unemployment, poverty, environmental justice, or other similar issues.

ESSENTIAL DUTIES

- Teach a reduced course load over an academic year of two semesters.
- Continue distinguished scholarly and professional contributions related to public policy and administration.
- Create and execute a sustainable plan to serve the community through Sac State Downtown (examples include, but are not limited to, developing and executing a community engaged research agenda that includes translating research into possible solution sets/ideas for practice; creating new work-based learning opportunities for PPA students; developing and implementing innovative educational programs and curricula; fostering collaborations across the college, university, academic field, and entities in the community; recruiting and supervising graduate students; and providing outreach to the broader community).
- Supervise master's projects related to the area of public policy and administration.
- Provide service to the community around public policy and administration.
- Provide service to the department, college, and university.
- Embrace the mission of the California State University and its students

(<https://www2.calstate.edu/csu-system/about-the-csu/Pages/mission.aspx>). Our students are diverse and represent populations that have been historically underserved in both undergraduate and graduate education. A successful applicant must be excited to serve our student populations.

QUALIFICATIONS

REQUIRED

- Ph.D. or equivalent terminal degree (e.g., Doctorate in Public Administration, Juris Doctorate) in public policy or a discipline (Public Administration, Political Science, Economics, Urban Studies, etc.) closely related to it.
- Knowledge, experience, and commitment to diversity and issues of just, equitable, and inclusive education and practice.
- Experience in public service with a commitment to working with the Sacramento community through California State University, Sacramento's Anchor Initiative and Downtown Center.
- Teaching experience and success in at least one of the core topics in the MPPA curriculum that includes public policy, public administration, qualitative or quantitative research methods, political environment of policymaking, and public budgeting and finance.
- Professional experience (outside of the classroom) and success in areas related to public policy and administration.
- Strong commitment to master's level university teaching and project supervision to a diverse student body and broader community.

PREFERRED

- Experience working in an interdisciplinary academic department.
- Interest in experimenting with different forms of student engagement in the classroom.
- Publications (peer-reviewed journal articles and/or professional articles) in areas related to public policy and administration.
- Teaching experience and success in more than one of the core topics in the MPPA curriculum that includes public policy, qualitative or quantitative research methods, political environment of policymaking, and public budgeting and finance; or the elective courses of collaborative governance, urban public policy, or urban land development.

Radford University

Rank: Chair/Professor or Associate Professor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Public Policy

The Department of Political Science at Radford University invites applications for the position of Chair of the Political Science Department beginning August 10, 2021. This is a tenured appointment, subject to budgetary approval, at the rank of associate or full professor, commensurate with qualifications. Specialists in American Government, Public Administration, or Public Policy are preferred as is the ability to teach courses in American Institutions and Race and Ethnicity Politics. The Department Chair is expected to provide administrative leadership to seven faculty members and staff; nurture relationships across campus and with stakeholders; and seek out and steward resources. The chair should model excellence in teaching; maintain an active program of scholarship; and engage in appropriate college-level service. We seek a department chair who is eager to energetically lead the department in the climate of challenges to higher education nationally and in the context of a brand new general education program (known as REAL) at our university.

Required Qualifications: Applicants should possess (1) a Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field; (2) the rank of either Full or Associate Professor; (3) an established record of research and teaching excellence; and (4) previous administrative experience or university service that would demonstrate the applicant's capacity to carry out the duties of department chair.

Radford University is a comprehensive public university of approximately 9,500 students that has received national recognition for many of its undergraduate and graduate academic programs, as well as its sustainability initiatives. Radford University serves the Commonwealth of Virginia and the nation through a wide range of academic, cultural, human service, and research programs and is one of the premier teacher preparation universities in the Commonwealth. Well known for its strong faculty/student bonds, a growing, diverse student population, innovative use of technology in the learning environment and vibrant student life on a beautiful 204-acre American classical campus, Radford University offers students many opportunities to get involved and succeed in and out of the classroom. Information about the current university strategic plan can be found at: <https://www.radford.edu/content/strategic-planning/home.html>.

The city of Radford, Virginia is located in the heart of the New River Valley in southwest Virginia. Nestled in the Blue Ridge Mountains, the region is a haven for music lovers and outdoor enthusiasts. Just a short drive from Blacksburg and Roanoke, the region boasts a vibrant art scene and local food culture as well as many community-university partnership opportunities. Radford is also a two-hour drive from the Piedmont Triad and two and a half hours from Charlotte, North Carolina.

As the largest college at Radford University and home to Liberal Arts instruction on campus, the College of Humanities and Behavioral Sciences is central to the mission of the university. Faculty members strive to develop in their students a range of intellectual skills and habits of mind that will serve them well throughout their academic and professional lives, as well as in their personal lives as productive citizens. Students regularly engage with faculty in experiential learning activities as well as in professional internships that provide opportunities to serve communities while preparing for careers. Faculty members' scholarly and creative activity is viewed as a vital corollary to the instructional mission of the institution, with faculty encouraged to co-author research with undergraduate and graduate students.

The College of Humanities and Behavioral Sciences at Radford University is located in the new 145,000 square foot state-of-the-art instructional facility that is home to all 120+ college faculty members. Centrally located on the main quad of the campus, it is the largest academic building at the university and houses an array of specialized teaching and research facilities. Apply online at <https://jobs.radford.edu/postings/8961>. Only online applications will be accepted. Candidates should submit the following: 1) a letter of application; 2) a current and complete curriculum vitae; 3) a statement of management philosophy; 4) a diversity statement; 5) evidence of teaching effectiveness (which should include recent teaching evaluations and either a teaching philosophy or a narrative about a new class or revisions to an existing class); 6) a research sample; 7) contact information for three references (not the letters themselves); and 8) copies of unofficial transcripts.

Review of applications will begin March 10, 2021 and will continue until the position is filled. Radford University is an EO/AA employer committed to diversity. Individuals with disabilities requiring accommodations in the application process should call (540) 831-5008 (voice) or (540) 831-5128 (TTY). If you need access to a computer, you may visit our office at 600 Tyler Avenue, Radford, Virginia, or the local Virginia Employment Commission.

This contractor and subcontractor shall abide by the requirements of 41 CFR 60-300.5(a). University of Cincinnati

Rank: Research Fellowships in Cyber Strategy and Policy

Specializations: Defense, Science & Technology, International Security

The Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy (CCSP) at the University of Cincinnati is pleased to announce the opening of applications for Pre- and Post-Doctoral Research Fellowships in Cyber Strategy and Policy. The 10-13-month appointments can begin July 1, 2021 or August 1, 2021. There are two positions available.

Expectations

The CCSP Research Fellows will join a national team of researchers focused on examining aspects of a Whole-Of-Nation-Plus approach to cybersecurity. CCSP is examining the range of challenges that must be managed in linking intergovernmental coordination, public-private sector alignment, and a citizenry engaged in support of better cybersecurity, while adding the “plus” of alignment with allied governments, industry, and citizens. The specific research interest of the applicants is open relative to any aspect related to advancing strategy, policy, regulatory, operational, or technical aspects that contribute to a WON+ approach.

Fellows are expected to devote some portion of their time to one of two collaborative research projects: One, on cyber industrial policy that rests on a partnership with the Center for Embedded secure Systems and Trust (CHEST) a NSF-IUCRC project directed at the University of Cincinnati involving seven universities with national industry partners. CCSP will be examining CHEST research in the context of cyber industrial policy development. The second track of CCSP collaborative research will involve focus on state-level cyber security capacity and intergovernmental coordination leveraging our strong partnership with the Ohio National Guard and the Ohio Civilian Cyber Reserve.

Fellows will be provided the intellectual community support to contribute to the CCSP's research activities as well as work on—in the case of pre-dissertation fellows—advancing their doctoral dissertation or post-doctoral fellows advancing their publication agenda. All fellows are expected to be in residence for the duration of their fellowship contingent on Covid health campus policy. CCSP offers nationally competitive stipend levels and the benefit of relatively lower living costs than found on the East and West coasts.

A Multi-Disciplinary Research Environment

The Research Fellows will be supported by the Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy, which draws on a multidisciplinary set of researchers from political science, information technology, computer engineering, and computer science affiliated with the Ohio Cyber Range Institute at the University of Cincinnati. The OCRI and CCSP are organized around the proposition that cyber security is not a technical problem, but rather is a political, economic, social, organizational, and educational challenge in a technically fluid environment. The CCSP Research Fellowships are open to applicants from multiple backgrounds including the fields of strategic studies, international relations, national and foreign policy studies, law, political science, computing sciences or related professional experience gained as employees of government, military, international, humanitarian, and private research institutions in related fields.

The University of Cincinnati is one of only 18 universities in the country to hold both the National Security Agency's Center of Excellence designations in both Cyber Defense and Cyber Operations.

Cyber Defense is anchored in UC's School of IT, Cyber Operations in Electrical Engineering and Computer Science, along with CHEST, and the Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy in the Department of Political Science. These four Centers contribute through disciplinary and multidisciplinary research to the overall OCRI ecosystem that includes 11 academic institutions across the state of Ohio as regional programming centers.

Essential Functions

Engage in and contribute to the research projects of CCSP

Minimum Qualifications and Requirements

Applicants for pre-doctoral fellowships must be in a doctoral program, have passed general examinations prior to appointment. Applications for postdoctoral research fellowships are welcome from recent recipients of the Ph.D. or equivalent relevant degree, university faculty members, and employees of government, military, international, humanitarian, and private research institutions who have relevant professional experience.

Required Experience

In-depth knowledge of specialized field, process or discipline.

University Job Posting and Application Process

Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis with preference to those submitted by February 22, 2021. Applications must be submitted online via this link with the following components:

Completion of the electronic employment application form

Cover Letter (two page max)

Statement of research interests/project(s) (1200 words max)

Current CV/ Resume

Additionally, 2 letters of recommendation should be sent separately to cyberstrategy@uc.edu with subject line: Recommendation for (name) CCSP Fellows

Physical Requirements / Work Environment

Sitting - Continuously

The University of Cincinnati, as a multi-national and culturally diverse university, is committed to providing an inclusive, equitable and diverse place of learning and employment. As part of a complete job application you will be asked to include a Contribution to Diversity and Inclusion statement.

As a UC employee, and an employee of an Ohio public institution, if hired you will not contribute to the federal Social Security system, other than contributions to Medicare. Instead, UC employees have the option to contribute to a state retirement plan (OPERS, STRS) or an alternative retirement plan (ARP).

The University of Cincinnati is an Affirmative Action / Equal Opportunity Employer / Minority / Female / Disability / Veteran.

Miami University

Subfield(s): Public Law, Public Policy, Public Administration

The Wilkins Fellows program is named after Professor Emeritus Heanon Wilkins, Miami University's first full-time African-American faculty member. A distinguished professor of Spanish, Portuguese, and Black World Studies, Professor Wilkins received Miami's highest honors in teaching, research, and service, and we honor him with the Wilkins Fellows program. The Wilkins Fellows program is designed to provide those with a strong interest in pursuing a career as a faculty member with dedicated mentoring and intentional preparation for a career in higher education as a faculty member. Our hope is that a significant number of Fellows will choose to apply for positions at Miami and join our ranks of exceptional and dedicated faculty.

Each academic year, we attempt to call for Fellows that align with expected areas of need in the future. The opportunities for Heanon Wilkins Fellows will vary based on the needs of the academic departments. We encourage applications from all areas with particular interest in faculty with expertise in the following areas:

African American History

Public Law or Race & Politics/Policy

French Second-Language Acquisition

Sociology & Social Justice

Engineering (all disciplines welcome)

Computer Science (all sub-disciplines welcome)

Farmer School of Business (all disciplines welcome)

Nursing

Physician Assistant

Public administration

The Fellowship is for one full academic year (9-month faculty appointment) with the possibility of reappointment to support longer-term research initiatives and projects. Heanon Wilkins Fellows have reduced teaching responsibilities in order to foster a vibrant research program, receive mentoring and career development support, and the opportunity to engage with highly accomplished teacher-scholar faculty colleagues and exceptionally strong students. The Fellows program is designed to prepare individuals to be highly competitive in future faculty searches, especially those we anticipate at Miami University. Thus, there is a strong potential for Fellows to be competitive for both tenure track and/or teaching/clinical professor or lecturer (TCPL) positions, although this is not guaranteed.

Minimum Qualifications:

Miami University welcomes early-career candidates who have completed (or anticipate completing) their doctorate or terminal degree not more than four years prior to the August 2021 appointment date.

This position is available to persons who are currently authorized to work in the United States on a full-time and indefinite basis. (Persons authorized to work on such a basis include US citizens, lawful permanent residents ("green card" holders), asylees, refugees, and temporary residents under IRCA.)

Special Instructions to Applicants:

Submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and a statement of proposed research (one to five pages) indicating area or discipline, statement of teaching philosophy, and sample scholarship. Letters of recommendation will be requested from the references listed in the application; the dissertation advisor should be one of those references. Inquiries about the position can be directed to Dana Cox at coxdc4@miamioh.edu.

Social Research and Public Policy Professor, Tenured/Tenure-Track - Open Rank

NYU Abu Dhabi

The Division of Social Science at NYU Abu Dhabi is searching for new faculty to conduct cutting edge research and teach the next generation of global leaders. We are inviting applications from social scientists for a position focusing on public policy. The position is an open rank, tenured/tenure-track position in the program in Social Research and Public Policy, for appointment on September 1, 2021, subject to final budget approval. We will consider applicants with an active research agenda in all areas of theoretically-informed public policy research, but are especially interested in those whose research and teaching focuses on public policy in a comparative and global context. We particularly welcome applications from female scholars as well as members of traditionally underrepresented groups.

NYUAD values diversity, inclusion, belonging, and equity; such principles are fundamental to the university's commitment to excellence. Our faculty are the engines that sustain our inclusive environment; NYUAD students come from more than 115 countries, with no single one nationality exceeding more than 15 percent of the total student population. Likewise, our faculty are highly diverse and community-minded: our modern campus is home to over 320 faculty who represent more than 45 different nationalities, all of whom bring a global perspective to their classrooms and research projects. Research is advanced by over 400 highly qualified research staff, who are likewise drawn from all over the world.

NYU Abu Dhabi's unique location in the Middle East makes it an ideal headquarters for social scientists working to better understand global societies, both past, and present.

About NYU Abu Dhabi

Established in partnership between New York University (NYU) and the emirate of Abu Dhabi, NYU Abu Dhabi (NYUAD) has assembled over the past decade a remarkable community of scholars, students, researchers, artists, inventors, and others who have contributed to the growth of the UAE's capital as a global hub of knowledge and culture while establishing a new model of higher education for today's complex world.

NYUAD is animated by inspiring, diverse faculty, students, and staff working together in an exciting and dynamic city. As an international center of excellence in teaching and research, our goal is to attract outstanding faculty who are leaders in their fields, encouraging them to create programs that draw outstanding students and providing an intellectually rich environment.

Students are drawn from among the world's best. They are bright, intellectually passionate, and committed to building a campus environment anchored in mutual respect, understanding, and care. The NYUAD undergraduate student body has garnered an impressive record of scholarships, graduate-school appointments, and many other global honors. Graduate education is an area of growth for the university and the current graduate student population of over 100 students is expected to expand in the next decade.

NYUAD is committed to building and strengthening a university-wide culture of inclusion, diversity, belonging, and equity (IDBE). For more information on NYUAD's commitment to IDBE and how these values create fundamental to our mission please visit <https://nyuad.nyu.edu/en/about/inclusion-diversity-belonging-and-equity.html>

A world-class institution deserves world-class benefits. At NYUAD, we recognize that Abu Dhabi is more than where you work, it's your home. In order for faculty to thrive, we offer a comprehensive benefits package to our top talent. This starts with a generous relocation allowance to ensure a smooth transition to Abu Dhabi, followed by a competitive salary, housing and transportation allowance; educational assistance for your dependents; access to health and wellness services, plus more. NYUAD is committed to faculty success throughout the academic career trajectory, providing support for ambitious and world-class research projects and innovative, interactive teaching approaches. Support for dual-career families is a priority.

University of Oklahoma

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Public Administration, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

The University of Oklahoma invites applications for a tenure-track position in public administration at the assistant professor level beginning in August 2021. We seek candidates with a broad competence in public administration and whose research and/or teaching is inclusive of countries outside of the United States. The selected candidate will contribute to our core courses in our NASPAA-accredited MPA program and be able to teach public administration courses from a comparative perspective, focusing on countries outside of the US, as part of our efforts to have more courses that expose students to the diversity of politics and governments across the world. We are open as to substantive focus, but we are especially interested in candidates with expertise in non-governmental organizations, social equity in the US and/or other countries, indigenous issues, or development administration.

This position is within the Department of Political Science, a large department with two undergraduate majors (Political Science and Public & Nonprofit Administration), multiple minors, two master degree programs (Public Administration & Political Science, with the MPA offered in Norman and Tulsa), and a doctoral program. The department is housed within the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Oklahoma. The University of Oklahoma is the flagship research institution for the state of Oklahoma, enrolling over 30,000 students, located in Norman, OK, a vibrant college town just 20 miles south of Oklahoma City.

Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in public administration, political science, or public policy, and completed by August 2021, have the ability to contribute to the MPA core curriculum, and ability to teach public administration from a comparative perspective, focusing on countries outside of the US. Preference will be given to applicants with substantive focus in non-governmental organizations, social equity in the US and/or other countries, indigenous issues, or development administration, show evidence of a robust research agenda and potential for success in publishing in high-quality, peer-reviewed outlets, have teaching experience, especially in an online format. The teaching load for this position is two courses per semester.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter, teaching statement, unofficial graduate transcript(s) (official transcript will be required for finalist), writing sample, contact information for three references. Three letters of recommendation will be required for candidates who progress past the first screening. Review of applications will begin February 18, 2021 and continue until the position is filled. Any questions can be emailed to the search committee chairs, Dr. Alisa Fryar ahicklin@ou.edu and Dr. Charles Kenney ckkenney@ou.edu. West Virginia University

Subfield(s): Administration, Public Policy, Public Administration

Job No. 16108

West Virginia University (WVU) seeks a visionary and enterprising leader to serve as the inaugural Director of the Institute for Policy Research and Public Affairs affiliated with Eberly College of Arts and Sciences and the John D. Rockefeller, Jr. School of Policy and Politics. This is a tenured faculty position at the rank of Professor or Associate Professor in the Eberly College. The Director will lead a new initiative to advance public policy and public affairs research and translational activities. This initiative is one of three divisions planned to be established within the Rockefeller School. The other two deal with academic programs and engaged learning and service. In addition to the duties outlined below, the Director would work closely with WVU leadership to help fully establish the Rockefeller School.

As Director, the successful applicant will support faculty and researchers across complementary disciplines to collaboratively build research capacity in public policy. They will strengthen related resources, build on expertise and research capabilities that currently exist across campus, increase externally sponsored research in social and public policy, as well as create partnerships with foundations, industry, government agencies and other universities. As part of this effort, the Director will be expected to recruit Research Fellows to work within the school. In addition to Departments affiliated with the Rockefeller School, Research Fellows may be recruited from within other WVU programs and external institutions and agencies. The Director will connect policy research to the teaching and outreach mission of the Rockefeller School and will report to the office of the Dean of the Eberly College. The Director will have a dedicated administrative assistant as well as support for graduate research students.

Qualifications include a Ph.D. or equivalent degree in Public Policy, Political Science, Public Administration, or a closely related field; a sustained record of externally funded research in the area of public policy; a record of multidisciplinary scholarship; ability to translate academic research into information for public dissemination and engagement; a record of successful administrative leadership; ability to work collaboratively in a diverse environment with a range of faculty, students, administrators, and external constituents to reach a common goal; ability to develop partnerships with foundations and industry in support of the Institute's programs; understanding of WVU's mission as a land-grant institution; ability to manage budgets and establish fiscal priorities; strong written and oral communication skills; and an established record of research and teaching that will merit appointment at, or promotion to, the rank of Professor or Associate Professor with a grant of tenure at WVU.

WVU is a comprehensive land grant university with approximately 30,000 students and is classified by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education as a very high research (R1) Institution. The Rockefeller School of Policy and Politics currently consists of 21 tenured and tenure-track faculty and is affiliated with the Eberly College of Arts and Sciences.

To apply for this position, please visit <http://hr.research.wvu.edu> and click on the "View Jobs" link. Qualified applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a description of the applicant's potential to further our progress in building a diverse and inclusive academic community (which will be evaluated without regard to the applicant's personal demographics), and contact information for three references. The cover letter should address the applicant's qualifications for each aspect of the responsibilities listed above. For questions or additional information, contact Prof. Duncan Lorimer via e-mail: duncan.lorimer@mail.wvu.edu. The screening process will begin on March 1, 2021 and will continue until the position is filled.

The University community of Morgantown offers plentiful educational opportunities as well as recreational outlets, is within easy driving distance of Pittsburgh, PA, and is about 200 miles northwest of Washington, D.C. WVU is an Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer and the recipient of an NSF ADVANCE award for gender equity. The university is committed to diversity and welcomes applications from all qualified individuals, including minorities, females, individuals with disabilities, and veterans.

University of Rhode Island

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Administration/Public Policy

The Department of Political Science at the University of Rhode Island anticipates an opening for a faculty position in the area of Public Administration with a specialization in Public Management or Public Policy. This is a tenure-track, academic year appointment at the rank of assistant professor to commence in the Fall of 2021.

We are seeking to attract a diverse pool of job applicants for this position. A key pillar of URI's mission is to "inspire an enlightened community that is characterized by vibrant cultural diversity; that embraces difference; that is built upon a learning environment that fosters respect, understanding, and social justice; and that rejects prejudice and intolerance." Our department seeks candidates whose principles align with that mission.

DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Applicants will be expected to teach graduate-level political science courses in the area of Public Management or Public Policy that serve as requirements for an online Master of Public Administration (MPA) degree with online graduate certificates in Policy Analysis and Public Management. Applicants will also teach undergraduate political science courses on Public Administration, Public Management, Public Policy, and other areas of expertise.

Expected to publish original research in the field of Public Administration and Public Policy, support the governance and administration of an MPA program that is preparing to begin the process of NASPAA-accreditation, work with diverse populations, and advise students.

Provide service to the department, the university and the profession.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS:

- 1) Ph.D., or expectation of completion of degree requirements by appointment date of September 1, 2021, in Political Science, Public Administration, or Public Policy.
- 2) Primary or secondary specialization in the area of Public Management or a specialized public policy-related field.
- 3) Evidence of college level teaching commensurate with level of academic experience.
- 4) Demonstrated ability to excel in teaching graduate-level MPA courses in at least two of the following: Seminar in Public Administration and Policy, Ethics in Public Administration and Policy, Public Personnel Management, Public Budgeting and Finance, Public Policy, or other Public Management courses.
- 5) Demonstrated ability to teach undergraduate political science courses in at least one of the following areas: Public Administration, Public Management, or Public Policy.
- 6) Evidence of research in the field of Public Administration or Public Policy with scholarly work commensurate with level of academic experience.
- 7) Demonstrated experience working with diverse populations or in diverse environments.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS

- 1) Research expertise in at least one of the following or related areas: ethics in public administration or policy, performance management, representative bureaucracy, leadership, information and technology management, local government management, specific policy-related fields, or race and inequality.
- 2) Evidence of online instruction or extensive training in online pedagogy.
- 3) Ability to teach on race, gender, or inequality.
- 4) Experience advising students or ability to oversee a robust internship program.

The application deadline is January 15, 2021.

Please attach 5 (PDF) documents to your online application:

- 1) A letter of application that describes your interest in this position.
- 2) A Curriculum Vitae which includes the names/contact information for three references, a list of all completed graduate-level courses, and, if available, course syllabi and teaching evaluations for any courses you have taught (note: please scan and attach all of this information as a single CV document).

3) A brief research and teaching statement (as one complete pdf document).

4) "Other Document" - A statement on diversity, equity, and inclusion reflecting on URI's mission to "inspire an enlightened community that is characterized by vibrant cultural diversity; that embraces difference; that is built upon a learning environment that fosters respect, understanding, and social justice; and that rejects prejudice and intolerance" (as one complete pdf document).

5) "Other" - If applicable, submit an article-length sample of relevant scholarly work (Document is Optional).

Sewanee: The University of the South

Specializations: Social Welfare, Environmental Policy, Urban Politics

The Department of Politics at The University of the South seeks applications for a postdoctoral fellowship in American politics with a specialization in public policy to begin August 2021. The position is for one year, renewable for a second. The Department is also hiring for a postdoctoral position in political theory, so academic couples are welcome to apply.

Candidates must demonstrate a strong commitment to excellence in teaching. The teaching load is reduced to three courses per year, with a focus on pedagogical mentoring and development. New faculty members have opportunity for teaching mentoring through the Center for Teaching and designing community engagement curricula through collaboration with the Carnegie-recognized Office of Community Engagement. In addition to the ability to teach introductory courses in public policy, we are particularly interested in candidates who can teach upper-level courses in their area of specialization (e.g., social welfare, criminal justice, environmental justice, public health, education, or urban policy) and connect them to our existing major concentrations.

The University of the South comprises a well-regarded College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and a distinguished School of Theology. It is an institution of the Episcopal Church that welcomes individuals of all backgrounds. The University is located on a striking, 13,000-acre campus on Tennessee's Cumberland Plateau.

The University of the South stands firmly for the principle that its employees, students, and participants of university-sponsored programs and activities have a right to be free from discrimination based on race, color, sex, religion, national origin, age, disability, sexual orientation, gender identity, veteran status, pregnancy and childbirth, and genetic information. As required by Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 and the ADA Amendments Act of 2008, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, the University does not discriminate on the basis of sex or other protected categories in the educational programs or activities which it operates. This requirement of non-discrimination extends to admission to and employment in those programs or activities. The University is committed to sustaining a community in which the dignity of every individual is respected. Key to this value are efforts to nurture an environment of civility and mutual respect and to foster a culture of reporting concerns so that the University can respond promptly and equitably whenever an incident occurs. All employees, students, and participants of university-sponsored programs and activities have the right to be free from harassment and retaliation.

For preliminary review, applicants must submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and statement demonstrating how they can contribute to faculty diversity, such as through membership in a group that is historically underrepresented in a particular area of study, training, or other experience. These materials should be submitted through the application portal at <https://jobs.sewanee.edu/postings/4424>. Eligibility for employment is contingent upon successful prescreening. For full consideration, please submit materials by December 15, 2020.
