Resources and Guidance on Finding a Job in Political Science

Hundreds of academic positions are advertised each year in political science. Finding the openings is the easy part; knowing how to approach the application and interview process is a little more challenging. At APSA, we have collected resources to assist candidates in the academic job search. We would like to highlight a few of these key resources here. The complete list of job resources is available online at www.apsanet.org/jobs.

eJobs: This online resource contains comprehensive online listing of political science jobs, is updated daily with new job listings and candidate resumes, and is fully searchable by field of interest, name of employer/candidate, region, keyword, position, salary, type of institution, and most recent posts.

Data on Jobs Market: APSA gathers and releases data regarding the placement of political science Ph.Ds. View this information at www.apsanet.org/content_7623.cfm.

Mentoring: Enroll in the APSA Mentoring Program online at www.apsanet.org/mentoring.

eJobs Placement Interview Services: The eJobs Annual Meeting Placement Interview Service provides space and facilities for employers who have eJobs posted to interview candidates at the APSA meeting. Many other conferences, such as the Northeastern and Western, also use the APSA online service to schedule placement interviews. Check the listings online in eJobs.

Ethics Guide: The APSA Guide to Professional Ethics in Political Science includes specific guidance on hiring and employment practices. Order a print copy or view online at www.apsanet.org/ethics.

Asking the Right Questions: APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask Program

Asking the right questions provides valuable information for career decisions. As part of the APSA Job Candidate Questions to Ask (JCQ) Program participating political science departments have agreed to answer the following questions from job candidates.

Salary
1. What is the salary structure?
2. How is salary normally negotiated?
3. How are annual increases handled?
4. Is there an automatic escalator to ensure the salaries of future hires will not outpace those of existing department members?

Service Activities
1. What are the expectations of pre-tenure and tenured faculty regarding:
   - departmental and institutional committee work,
   - professional or disciplinary activities, and
   - outreach activities to communities external to institution?

Research Support
1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
   - access to research materials and equipment,
   - the employment of research assistants,
   - research expenses on/off campus, and
   - travel expenses for conferences?

2. What departmental or institutional resources are available to seek external funding and to administer external funding awards?

Teaching Support
1. What departmental or institutional resources are available to support:
   - the development of teaching expertise,
   - innovations in teaching, and
   - the introduction of new courses and new technologies?
2. What are departmental expectations regarding:
   - the average course load,
   - the number of different courses taught by faculty, and
   - advising of graduate and undergraduate students?

Tenure, Renewal, and Annual Review
1. What policies and procedures govern the granting of tenure, renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty, and annual reviews of faculty performance?
2. What are the department’s expectations for successful performance leading to the granting of tenure or renewal of contracts for pre-tenure faculty?
3. What are the department’s expectations for a positive annual review?

Mentoring and Faculty Support Initiatives
1. What attention does the department give to integrating new faculty into the department, the institution, and in the profession?
2. Does the department or institution have programs that address:
   - the employment of dual-career professional couples,
   - family needs of faculty and staff, and
   - issues associated with minority faculty and staff?

Health and Life Insurance
1. What are the plans offered?
2. How are benefits disbursed?
3. What are the out-of-pocket expenses?
4. Are partners and/or children covered, and to what extent?
5. What portion of my paycheck will be deducted for these benefits?

Retirement
1. How many types of retirement plans are offered?
2. What is the matching percentage of the institution?
3. Is contribution required (and how much)?

Texas A&M University

Rank: Tenured: Professor & Department Head

The International Affairs Department at the Bush School of Government and Public Service, Texas A&M University, invites applications for a full-time Department Head and Tenured Professor position. The Department Head supervises a well-resourced department that houses the accredited master's degree programs in International Affairs and International Policy as well as graduate certificate programs in international development and economic policy, geospatial intelligence, national security affairs, and cybersecurity policy.

The Department Head oversees the department management and budget, curriculum, staffing, University engagement, and long-run planning for an interdisciplinary department of 29 full-time residence faculty members. The Department Head also participates in the management of the Bush School's newly established teaching site in Washington D.C., in conjunction with the Bush School Dean and the Washington D.C. site Executive Director.

The Bush School of Government and Public Service is a full member of the Association of Professional Schools of International Affairs (APSIA). Programs in the department develop principled leaders providing students with the tools and knowledge they need to perform public service effectively and ethically. The master's programs and related certificate offerings seek to provide students with a superior professional education for careers in international affairs within government, international organizations, or non-governmental organizations.

University of Illinois, Chicago

Rank: Dean of Urban Planning and Public Affairs

The University of Illinois Chicago (UIC) invites applications and nominations for the position of Dean of the College of Urban Planning and Public Affairs (CUPPA). The university seeks an experienced, committed, and visionary leader. The newly appointed Dean will help realize CUPPA’s mission building on its highly-regarded, cutting-edge research and scholarship, academic programs, public policy development, and community partnerships. The Dean reports to the Provost and Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs, is the Executive Officer for the College, and is a member of the University Deans Council.

CUPPA, as an essential unit of a multifaceted urban public university, wrestles with society’s most pressing questions and challenges, while striving to prepare the next generation of administrators, leaders, policy makers, and researchers. Propelled by its diverse and interdisciplinary faculty and researchers, who are national and international leaders in their fields, CUPPA has an enduring commitment to promoting just, resilient, and livable communities. The college is in a period of expansion, with a continuously growing portfolio of external funding, and an increasing scope of its academic programs, having recently added graduate degrees in city design, civic analytics, and public policy to its top ranked programs in public administration and urban policy to its top ranked programs in public administration and urban... planning, CUPPA’s two undergraduate and seven graduate programs are housed in two departments, and enroll more than 350 graduate and 150 undergraduate students every year. The eight research centers and two academic departments in the college are an important part of UIC’s commitment to producing engaged research that benefits Chicago and other urban communities. The College attracts passionate students seeking to create a more just, sustainable and livable society, and prepares them for a range of leadership roles in government, the private sector, philanthropy, advocacy, and community organizations.

UIC is Chicago’s only public Carnegie RU/VH research institution. UIC is nationally and internationally recognized for multidisciplinary academic programs as well as its engagement with civic, corporate, and community partners worldwide. Located near downtown Chicago and within a few miles of the city’s vibrant African American, Asian, Eastern European, Middle-eastern and Latinx communities, UIC is one of the most diverse universities in the nation and has been designated a Minority Serving Institution, an Hispanic Serving Institution, and an Asian American and Native American Pacific Islander Serving Institution. With a mission to provide “Access to Excellence” for those who would not otherwise, UIC has grown to be the largest university in Chicago, enjoys the strongest enrollment growth in Illinois with a student body of 33,518 and almost 3,000 faculty, and is in the top 5% of the most racially and ethnically diverse universities in the United States. Its commitment to mission is further reflected in articulation agreements with the Chicago City Colleges. UIC is also the recent recipient of a $40 million donation from philanthropist and novelist MacKenzie Scott, which will be used to create a Student Success Fund, reinforcing UIC’s aim to support student experience and success, the university’s top strategic priority.

Successful candidates for this position must have an outstanding record of scholarly and educational achievement; a history of successful leadership experience sufficient to demonstrate ability to manage a multidisciplinary college comprised of academic and research units; an unimpeachable commitment to the college’s mission including a demonstrated commitment to access, equity, and diversity; a record of advancing teaching excellence, research, and faculty governance; promoting dynamic community engagement and engaged research; and building external partnerships with a wide range of stakeholder groups including the civic and professional community, the business sector, elected officials, and nonprofit organizations and institutions. The new Dean will collaborate with the 15 other UIC colleges to build internal bridges, as well as, develop external relationships that increase the financial support of the college and its visibility outside of the university. Finally, the new Dean will recognize and support the individual identities of each unit, while articulating and implementing a shared public vision for the future of the College of Urban Planning and Public Affairs. Candidates must be eligible for a tenured position at the rank of full professor.

For fullest consideration, please complete an electronic application, including a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, and the names and contact information for a minimum of three references by Monday, September 27th, addressed to the search committee chair, Dr. Rebecca Rugg, Dean and Professor, College of Architecture, Design and the Arts.

Please direct nominations and questions or concerns regarding the search and/or application process to the search coordinator, Faizan Abid, fabid2@uic.edu. Confidentiality will be observed in the academic search process.

The University of Illinois Chicago is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer, dedicated to the goal of building a culturally diverse and pluralistic faculty and staff committed to teaching and working in a multicultural environment. We are committed to equal employment opportunity regardless of race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, sexual orientation, gender identity, Veteran or disability status.

U.S. Naval War College
Rank: Provost

The U.S. Naval War College invites applications and nominations of qualified candidates for the position of Provost to commence the appointment no later than 1 August 2022.

The Institutional Setting: The College is first and foremost a federally-funded graduate level Professional Military Education and research institution serving the U.S. Navy, the Department of Defense, and the Nation. Since its founding in 1884 by Rear Admiral Stephen B. Luce, the Naval War College has been “...a place of original research on all questions relating to war and to statesmanship connected with war, or the prevention of war.” Annually the College conducts six resident professional military education programs to over 500 students. The student body consists of members of all the military services, civilians from governmental agencies, and officers from many partner nations. The College is accredited by the New England Commission of Higher Education to award a Master of Arts Degree in National Security & Strategic Studies or Defense & Strategic Studies, and by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to award Joint Professional Military Education (JPME) Phase I and Phase II credit. The College of Distance Education conducts seven nonresident programs currently reaching 350,000 students, providing JPME I, Introductory, Basic, and Primary PME to sailors stationed around the globe. The College’s Center for Naval Warfare Studies (CNWS) serves as the research arm of the College, providing maritime-focused war gaming and strategic research with the goal of assisting the Navy’s leadership in defining the future Navy. Since 1956 the College has maintained a vigorous international program through the Naval Command and Naval Staff Colleges. With over 55 countries represented each year, a majority of our international graduates go on to achieve the rank of admiral or general in their Service and many become chiefs of their Navy. The College of Maritime Operational Warfare (CMOW) provides intermediate- and senior-level leadership development and combat readiness programs. Its curriculum centers on the ever-evolving ethical, operational, and tactical challenges facing today’s
The Position: The Provost serves as the Chief Operating Officer of the College, and, except for those tasks that must be executed by an active duty officer as a matter of law and/or policy, assumes the responsibilities of the President in their absence. Key responsibilities include:

- Exercising effective oversight and coordination of the accomplishment of the College’s functions of professional military education; research, analysis, and gaming; leadership; maritime operational level education, international programs; and mission support.
- Providing effective oversight of the development, deployment and maintenance of the College's Strategic Planning Framework to accomplish its mission, functions, and tasks. This shall include but is not limited to the College's Missions, Functions, and Tasks Statement, the College’s Strategic Plan, its Physical Resource Strategy, its Technology Investment Strategy, its Financial Resources Strategy, the College’s Human Resources Strategy, and the College’s Strategic Communication Plan.
- Serving as Dean of Faculty and principal advisor to the President on matters pertaining to the recruiting, development, evaluation, promotion, and discipline of civilian faculty members.
- Overseeing business operations, financial management, internal controls, development of a human capital strategy that embodies the Department of the Navy’s vision for workforce development and talent management and exceeds DoD EEO and Diversity and Inclusion standards. Coordinating the preparation of the College’s annual budget and the College’s participation in the Navy’s Planning, Programming, Budgeting, and Execution process.
- As the Senior Civilian at the College, the Provost serves as the approving authority for all civilian personnel actions, which includes, but is not limited to, new hires, renewals, promotions, reassignments, details, classification of positions, pay matters, suspensions, reductions in grade, adjudicating administrative grievances, and EEO resolution.
- The following positions report to the Provost: all Deans, Associate Provost, Deputy to the Provost, and Library Director.

Required Qualifications and Competencies: The College seeks candidates who are successful, proven leaders in the academic world. Candidates must be qualified to hold the appointment of Professor at the College. Graduate degree required; an earned terminal degree (e.g., Ph.D., Ed.D.) is desired, but candidates with comparable executive-level experience successfully leading large organizations will be considered. The ideal candidate will have a strong background in teaching, experience with academic institutions, the ability to lead and manage a diverse group of faculty and staff, financial and managerial competence, and an understanding of the unique niche the College occupies for the Navy and the Department of Defense. The ideal candidate will enable a collaborative executive leadership team that supports a vibrant and diverse community in their pursuit of excellence in education, research, and outreach. Candidates must be U.S. citizens and capable of obtaining a Department of Defense Top Secret/Sensitive Compartmented Information (SCI) security clearance. The selected candidate will be subject to a pre-employment drug screening test and to random drug testing thereafter.

Appointment and Compensation: This appointment is governed by provisions of 10 USC § 8748 as delegated by the Secretary of the Navy, and the regulations that apply to “Excepted Service” appointments under Schedule A. For the successful candidate, the initial term of appointment is expected to be four years in length with provisions for renewal dependent on level of performance. The entire term of the Provost cannot exceed eight years. Salary is competitive and accompanied by a generous federal benefit package that includes health insurance and retirement saving plans, paid vacation, paid sick leave, and other benefits. Salary is commensurate with experience and credentials in accordance with the Department of the Navy Faculty Schedule. Expected start date is no later than the 1 August 2022 at the College’s campus in Newport, RI.

Address applications to: The application should include a cover letter, current curriculum vitae, and the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of three professional references. Candidates desiring to apply for this important position should send their application package by email to: nwc-21-10@usnwc.edu and must reference VA#NWC-21-10. Applications will be accepted until 11:59 pm (EST) 29 November 2021.

NOTICE OF VETERANS PREFERENCE: There is no formal rating system for applying veterans’ preference to the excepted service; however, the Department of Defense considers veterans’ preference eligibility a positive factor for hiring. Applicants eligible for veterans’ preference must include that information in their cover letter or resume and attach supporting documentation (e.g., DD Form 214, Certificate of Release or Discharge from Active Duty) to their submissions. Although the point-preference system is not used, applicants eligible to claim 10-Point preference must submit a Standard Form (SF) 15, Application for 10-Point Veteran Preference, and supporting documents required for specific type of preference claimed. (SF 15, which lists the types of 10-Point Preference and the required supporting documents, is available from the Office of Personnel Management Website at www.opm.gov.)

Within the Department of Defense (DoD), the appointment of retired military members within 180 days immediately following retirement dated to a civilian position is subject to the provisions of 5 United States Code 3326.

The Naval War College is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

AMERICAN GOVERNMENT AND POLITICS

Georgia State University
Rank: Lecturer

The Department of Political Science at Georgia State University invites applications for a full-time Lecturer position in Public Law to begin Fall 2022. Lecturers at GSU are full-time faculty who are eligible for promotion to Senior Lecturer after five years and Principal Senior Lecturer after ten.

Lecturers at GSU have both teaching and service requirements and are full members of the department’s intellectual community and leadership team. In addition to helping the university achieve excellence in undergraduate teaching and serving on MA thesis committees, Lecturers meet a broad array of vital service needs, such as coordinating our core courses, directing undergraduate programs, leading study abroad trips, coaching academic teams, and developing innovative experiential learning courses. GSU is an institutional member of the National Center for Faculty Development & Diversity, and the College of Arts & Sciences supports professional success for all faculty through mentoring programs and representation of faculty from all ranks (including Lecturers) in college-level program development.

Designated as a minority-serving institution, GSU has one of the most diverse study bodies in the country and is nationally recognized for its record in student success regardless of race, ethnicity, and income level. The Department is committed to serving this student body and advancing innovative teaching and research by building a diverse faculty. Among the core values of the department are diversity, equity and inclusion. We invite people of all backgrounds and identities, including, but not limited to races, ages, ethnicities, nationalities, religious beliefs, genders, sexual orientations, and abilities, to apply for this position. (The department’s full vision, mission and values statement is here: https://bit.ly/3DZ6Y0n).

Required Qualifications:
• Ability to teach courses related to public law such as: Judicial Politics and Process, Civil Rights and Civil Liberties, Constitutional Law,
Introduction to American Law and/or other courses of particular interest to the candidate, both online and in-person.
- Ability to deliver effective online instruction and a commitment to excellence in teaching undergraduates.
- Interest in teaching and mentoring students of diverse backgrounds to promote excellence in undergraduate learning.
- A Ph.D. in hand or evidence that a PhD will be awarded by Summer 2022.

Preferred Qualifications
- Ability to teach more specialized courses in Public Law and Judicial Politics
- Academic interest in pursuing the scholarship of teaching and learning.

Applicants should send a letter of application that details how the essential and preferred qualifications are met, a curriculum vitae, a statement of teaching philosophy, sample syllabi, and any additional evidence of teaching effectiveness. Applicants should also submit a separate detailed statement addressing how they will facilitate a diverse and inclusive learning environment both in and outside of the classroom. Finally, applicants should provide a list of at least three professional references (name, title, email address, and telephone number) who are willing to provide letters of reference in the future. Please submit all materials electronically to polssearch@gsu.edu, indicating NTT Public Law Position in the subject line. Review of applications will begin on November 1, 2021, and will continue until the position is filled. Application materials submitted by this date will be given full consideration.

GSU is a highly diverse urban research university located in downtown Atlanta. Further information about the department can be found at politicalscience.gsu.edu. Georgia State University is an equal opportunity employer. It continues to be the policy of the University to implement affirmative action and equal opportunity for all employees, students, contractors, consultants and applicants for employment or admission without regard to race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, age, gender, transgender status, pregnancy, sexual orientation, genetic information, protected veteran status, or disability. An offer of employment will be conditional on background verification.

San Diego State University
Rank: American Politics

The Political Science Department at San Diego State University invites applications for a tenure-track position in American Politics at the rank of Assistant Professor, to begin Fall 2022. Applicants should demonstrate a well-developed research agenda, a promise of sustained scholarship and a record of effective teaching.

The department seeks a scholar who does research on contemporary approaches to American politics and political institutions. Areas of particular interest are the presidency, Congress, campaigns and elections, public opinion, political communication, interest groups, inequality, women in politics, political protest, and political parties. The successful candidate should demonstrate a capacity to engage underlying normative issues and debates as well as teach a range of courses in American politics. The department is open to a diversity of theoretical and methodological approaches.

The Political Science Department at San Diego State is dedicated to the ideal of the engaged teacher-scholar. It has over five hundred undergraduate majors and provides course offerings for students with a wide variety of backgrounds and interests. At the graduate level, the department maintains an M.A. program of high quality. The members of the faculty share a strong commitment to collegiality, active participation in the governing of the department, innovative scholarship, methodological pluralism, rigorous teaching, and robust intellectual and normative engagement. Candidates are encouraged to consult the department website: http://politicalscience.sdsu.edu/

San Diego State University is a highly diverse campus community with a student population of over 34,000 and approximately 2,000 faculty members. SDSU is included in the Carnegie Foundation’s Doctoral Universities: High Research Activity category. Established in 1897, SDSU offers bachelor degrees in 97 areas, masters in 84 and doctorates in 21. See http://www.sdsu.edu for more information. SDSU is a large, diverse, urban university and Hispanic-Serving Institution with a commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusive excellence. Our campus community is diverse in many ways, including race, religion, color, sex, age, disability, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, national origin, pregnancy, medical condition, and covered veteran status. We strive to build and sustain a welcoming environment for all.

Consistent with SDSU’s mission, we seek applicants with demonstrated experience in and/or commitment to teaching and working effectively with individuals from diverse backgrounds and members of underrepresented groups. Candidates must satisfy two or more of the eight Building on Inclusive Excellence (BIE) criteria: (a) committed to engaging in service with underrepresented populations within the discipline, (b) demonstrated knowledge of barriers for underrepresented students and faculty within the discipline, (c) experience or have demonstrated commitment to teaching and mentoring underrepresented students, (d) experience or have demonstrated commitment to integrating understanding of underrepresented populations and communities into research, (e) experience in or have demonstrated commitment to extending knowledge of opportunities and challenges in achieving artistic/scholarly success to members of an underrepresented group, (f) experience in or have demonstrated commitment to research that engages underrepresented communities, (g) expertise or demonstrated commitment to developing expertise in cross-cultural communication and collaboration, and/or (h) have research interests that contribute to diversity and equal opportunity in higher education. Please include a diversity statement that explains how you meet at least two of these criteria.

Applicants must apply via Interfolio at https://apply.interfolio.com/95786. A completed file includes a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, complete teaching evaluations (quantitative evaluations and complete sets of qualitative evaluations of recent courses), sample syllabi, academic writing samples, diversity statement, and three letters of recommendation. To ensure full consideration, submit all materials by November 2nd, 2021. Screening of applications will begin then. Applicants who will have completed the Ph.D. by the start of the term of appointment will be given priority. Those without a Ph.D. in-hand should include in their letter of interest a statement of progress on the dissertation and reasons to expect completion in a timely fashion.

The person holding this position is considered a “mandated reporter” under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment. A background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed before any candidate can be offered a position with the CSU. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect the application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position. SDSU is a Title IX, equal opportunity employer and does not discriminate against persons on the basis of race, religion, national origin, sexual orientation, gender, gender identity and expression, marital status, age, disability, pregnancy, medical condition, or covered veteran status.

George Mason University
Rank: Assistant Professor, Environmental Policy & Politics (Tenure-Track)
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Public Administration
Apply for this position at https://jobs.gmu.edu/postings/51696

George Mason University’s Department of Environmental Science and Policy (ESP) in the College of Science is seeking an enthusiastic and energetic individual for a full-time, 9-month, tenure-track position as Assistant Professor of Environmental Policy & Politics beginning in August 2022.

George Mason University, a Carnegie Research I institution, is the largest, most diverse, and innovative public university in Virginia with more than 38,000 students from all 50 states and over 135 countries. Located in Fairfax, Virginia, Mason is part of the Washington, D.C., metropolitan area, offering easy access to the scientific and political resources of the nation’s capital. Mason has a strong institutional commitment to the achievement of excellence and diversity among its faculty and staff, and it strongly encourages candidates to apply who will enrich Mason’s academic and culturally inclusive environment.

Responsibilities:

This position will strengthen departmental expertise on domestic U.S. environmental policy and politics in relationship to one or more of the following focal areas: water and watersheds, planetary health, conservation, climate change and energy, and environmental justice. Candidates with strong research and teaching capacity in quantitative methodologies, such as data analytics, agent-based modeling, and social network analysis, are especially encouraged to apply. The successful candidate will be expected to establish a strong extramurally funded research program and provide mentorship to students in the department’s undergraduate, master’s, and doctoral programs. This position aligns with ESP’s focus on boundary-spanning and co-production of knowledge across science, policy, and society. As such, the candidate is expected to contribute to George Mason University’s commitment to transdisciplinary research. We especially encourage submissions from researchers who have experience engaging local, state, or federal policy systems to support and bring about changes that improve environmental or sustainability outcomes. The expected teaching responsibility for this position is two courses per semester. Service activities within ESP and the College of Science are expected.

Preference will be given to candidates who express an interest in expanding collaborative efforts such as the growing partnership between ESP and the Smithsonian-Mason School of Conservation, partnering with the Institute for a Sustainable Earth (ISE), furthering the department’s own initiatives in conservation and sustainability, and building new partnerships to develop transdisciplinary projects.

Required Qualifications:

+ Successful completion of a Ph.D. in political science, public policy, public administration, or a related field prior to the first day of the appointment;
+ Demonstrated expertise in quantitative social science methods;
+ The ability to share the department’s commitment to transdisciplinary education and research;
+ An established record of scholarly activity demonstrated by publication record in peer-reviewed journals;
+ Demonstrated potential to establish an independent extramurally funded research program;
+ Commitment and interest in teaching lecture courses at undergraduate and graduate levels;
+ Strong commitment to mentoring and supervising undergraduate and graduate students;
+ Effective interpersonal communication skills;
+ The ability to collaborate with other natural scientists and social scientists in research, teaching and outreach.

Preferred Qualifications:

+ Demonstrated experience in developing successful externally-funded research collaborations;
+ A record of seeking and securing extramural research support evidenced by proposal submission and/or recipient of funding awards;
+ Demonstrated successful teamwork in a collaborative environment.

About us:

ESP is well known for its truly transdisciplinary faculty focused on environmental natural and social sciences. ESP also includes additional graduate program faculty from across the university and numerous affiliated environmental professionals. The following degrees are awarded: B.S. in Environmental Science, B.A. in Environmental and Sustainability Studies, M.S. in Environmental Science and Policy, and a Ph.D. in Environmental Science and Public Policy. The Department also partners with the Smithsonian-Mason School of Conservation in Front Royal, VA, to offer graduate-level courses in biodiversity and conservation. Mason’s Institute for a Sustainable Earth (ISE) provides a unique opportunity for the selected candidate to work in a collaborative manner across disciplines at Mason and with external partners nationally and internationally.

Special Instructions to Applicants

For full consideration, applicants must apply at https://jobs.gmu.edu/postings/51696; complete and submit the online application, and include:

1. Cover letter
2. CV
3. Research statement – please address diversity, equity, and inclusion in your statement
4. Teaching philosophy – please address diversity, equity, and inclusion in your statement, and
5. Names and email addresses of professional references (minimum 3, from academic institutions)

Georgetown University

Rank: Provost’s Distinguished Fellow and Assistant Professor
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Government at Georgetown University invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position in Race, Ethnicity and Identity Politics. This search is open to all four fields in the Government Department (American Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations and Political Theory) and all subfields within political science. Importantly, we seek applicants whose... research expands the boundaries of political science and also those whose research invigorates existing and enduring questions in political science with scholarly insights and perspectives drawn from the politics of race, ethnicity and identity.

Successful candidates will contribute to an intellectual and academic agenda at Georgetown that seeks to establish the University as a premier center for research and teaching in race, ethnicity and identity politics. The successful candidate will have an opportunity to work with multiple units across the University which study race, ethnicity, and the politics of identity, including, among others, the newly established Racial Justice Institute, the African American Studies Department, the McCourt School of Public Policy, and the Georgetown Law Center.

For the first year of this position, the successful candidate will also hold the title of Provost’s Distinguished Faculty Fellow, and will have no teaching and service responsibilities to allow a focus on research while receiving mentorship and support from two senior faculty members. More on the Distinguished Faculty Fellow Program can be found at https://blog.provost.georgetown.edu/increasing-georgetowns-effectiveness-in-recruiting-faculty/).

Candidates should submit a cover letter, cv, three letters of reference, an academic writing sample, and a statement on diversity, equity and inclusion. In this DEI statement, applicants are asked to address any DEI activities they have been involved with (including research, teaching, community service, volunteer work, or presentations), and to highlight how aspects of their own identity (including, among others, ethnic, sociocultural, racial, religious, gender, and sexual identity) have shaped their experiences and world view, including any experiences of discrimination or barriers to advancement. Additionally, candidates are asked to address how diversity, equity and inclusion can advance the academic enterprise, to offer ideas on how to promote equity and inclusion in higher education and in the discipline of political science, more generally. We seek candidates who demonstrate a commitment to academic excellence and diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) through experience teaching and research on matters related to DEI or through service that has fostered DEI in a university community. Please submit these materials to http://apply.interfolio.com/95204 by October 15, 2021 to ensure full consideration, but review of applications will be on-going. The position remains open until filled. Please direct any questions regarding the search to Prof. Douglas S. Reed at reedd@georgetown.edu. Administrative questions regarding search logistics may be directed to Ileana Aguilar at ima2@georgetown.edu.

About Georgetown University and the Government Department

The Government Department at Georgetown is a leading department of Political Science. We are an open, dynamic, and publicly engaged community of scholars, students, and professional staff. We believe in the ideal of scholarship for its own sake but are also deeply committed to the role of cutting-edge research in informing politics and public life. We see our setting in Washington, DC as a rich opportunity for the study of politics, particularly within the field of race, ethnicity and identity politics and we particularly welcome applications from scholars whose research strives to connect the local and particular with broader forces and constructs within political life.

Georgetown University is one of the world’s leading academic and research institutions, offering a unique educational experience that prepares the next generation of global citizens to lead and make a difference in the world. We are a vibrant community of exceptional students, faculty, alumni and professionals dedicated to real-world applications of our research, scholarship, faith and service.

Established in 1789, Georgetown is the nation’s oldest Catholic and Jesuit university. Drawing upon the 450-year-old legacy of Jesuit education, we provide students with a world-class learning experience focused on educating the whole person through exposure to different faiths, cultures and beliefs.

Georgetown University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer fully dedicated to achieving a diverse faculty and staff. All qualified applicants are encouraged to apply and will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, age, sex (including pregnancy, gender identity and expression, and sexual orientation), disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

If you are a qualified individual with a disability and need a reasonable accommodation for any part of the application and hiring process, please click here for more information, or contact the Office of Institutional Diversity, Equity & Affirmative Action (IDEEA) at (202) 687-4798. We encourage applications from individuals who will contribute to diversity in higher education and who show the potential to advance the department’s goal of a more diverse, equitable, and inclusive scholarly environment.

Harvard University
Rank: PEPG Postdoctoral Fellowship
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Public Policy
2022-23 PEPG Postdoctoral Fellowship

Established in 1996, under the direction of Paul E. Peterson (Henry Lee Shattuck Professor of Government), the Program on Education Policy and Governance has rapidly distinguished itself as a significant player within the educational reform movement.

PEPG’s fellowship program was initiated to attract top postdoctoral researchers to quantitative-based investigations of issues in education reform at Harvard. The program has been a resounding success since its inception in 2002. These fellows have collaborated on some of PEPG’s most important research papers and in organizing program conferences. Past fellows currently hold tenure and tenure-track positions at major colleges, universities and research centers in the United States and abroad.

The deadline to apply for the 2022-23 PEPG Postdoctoral Fellowship is December 17, 2021.

PEPG is offering a one-year resident research fellowship at the postdoctoral level starting in the summer of 2022. The fellow will work at Harvard University and engage in independent projects that are related to the program’s focus. Additionally, s/he will be expected to collaborate with PEPG’s ongoing research and programs. This may include conference planning and administration, as well as working on PEPG publications. Applicants who have not yet received their Doctoral degree may apply. However, they must receive it by September 1, 2022, in order to participate. Fellows must begin their residency no later than the week of August 29, 2022.

Candidates must have received PhD (or equivalent degree) within five years of the applied-for academic year.

The stipend for the postdoctoral fellowship is $75,000. It provides modest health insurance coverage but no housing. However, assistance in obtaining affordable housing will be provided.

Applicants should submit the following materials:
• Letter of intent with current contact information including email address.
• Current curriculum vitae (please include any past awards, scholarships and publications).
• A 2,000-word proposal describing one or more research projects that will be conducted and completed while at PEPG. The proposal should include relevant background information, discrete objectives, importance and feasibility, as well as the methodology that will be used.
• Two samples of writing, if not published, then of publishable quality. These should be pertinent to the proposed research.
• The names of and letters of recommendation from three or four people qualified and willing to evaluate the applicant’s project and scholarly qualifications. Recommenders should mail their letters directly to PEPG, or they can be emailed to the address below.

Applicants should email their materials to pepg_administrator@hks.harvard.edu (in PDF format). Incomplete applications may not be reviewed/considered.

All materials should be addressed to:

Students also have the opportunity to receive a minor in political science and global studies. Several of these programs are fully online or on campus. The department has recently undergone a rigorous and exciting academic reorganization into a School of Politics and International Affairs, whose administrative structure will finalize in 2022.

One of the largest departments in the College of Public Affairs and Administration, the UIS Department of Political Science offers an opportunity for our students to live politics in the classroom, on the campus and in the community. Engaged political science makes the connections between the classroom and the world explicit as we challenge our students to both grasp the course material and explore how it has an impact outside of the classroom. The UIS Department of Political Science bridges the worlds of the &quot;academic&quot; and &quot;practical&quot; by providing concrete opportunities for the practice of theory and the theory of practice. Our school champions a culture of inclusion and diversity; we encourage applications from women and members of historically underrepresented groups.

Application deadline: October 29, 2021

More About UIS & Our Springfield Community:

The University of Illinois Springfield (UIS) is a premier public university that provides students with a high-quality liberal arts education, exceptional public affairs opportunities, and outstanding professional preparation programs. UIS is one of three universities of the world-class University of Illinois system and has been ranked by US News & World Report as one of the top 10 regional public universities in the Midwest. UIS celebrates its diversity with a campus comprised of students and faculty of various ages, backgrounds, and ethnicities. Faculty members are accomplished teacher-scholars, and UIS has a national reputation for innovation in teaching and excellence in online education. Located in the state capital, UIS has established a reputation for Leadership lived, based upon four core strengths: the educational richness of its teaching-focused academic experience; the abundant opportunities it provides for students to collaborate with faculty and gain practical experience through institutional partners; the right-sized supportive community it offers; and its tradition of educating public servants and leaders in private and public sectors. UIS is a community-engaged campus whose students contribute over 66,000 hours of community service each year.

The surrounding Springfield community offers a wonderful quality of life. A lively entertainment scene includes jazz, blues, community theatre, municipal opera, comedy, and live music, including downtown music festivals. Additional cultural and sporting attractions are conveniently located a few hours away in St. Louis, Chicago, and Indianapolis. With a population of about 117,000, Springfield offers great restaurants, shopping, and other city amenities while retaining the friendliness and affordability of small-town living (and without the heavy traffic). The area also has a wide variety of recreational opportunities, including biking and hiking trails, ice rinks, sports complexes, and several first-class golf courses. Lake Springfield offers fishing, boating, and other recreational water activities. Springfield is also home to a wildlife sanctuary, zoo, lakeside memorial gardens, botanical gardens, and one of the world’s largest carillons.

Springfield was home to Abraham Lincoln, our nation’s sixteenth president and one of its most famous political figures. A historical downtown area features the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library & Museum, the Old State Capitol, the Lincoln historical district, historic reenactments and events, the Illinois State Museum, and a variety of specialty shops and restaurants which make Springfield the most prominent tourist destination in central Illinois.

Springfield is also home to the second Illinois Medical District (the first being in Chicago) and includes two major medical centers, Memorial Health Systems and HSHS St. John’s Health Systems, as well as the Southern Illinois University School of Medicine. The medical community and state government are the two largest employers in Springfield.

Springfield offers daily Amtrak service to St. Louis and Chicago as well as to points beyond. A regional airport offers daily service to major hubs in Chicago and Dallas. City bus service is provided from the UIS campus to various locations around the city.

DEPARTMENT OF POLITICAL SCIENCE AND LAW

The College of Humanities and Social Sciences & Department of Political Science and Law.

Assistant Professor of Political Science (US Public Policy/Race and Ethnic Politics)
University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa

Rank: Assistant Professor - American Politics

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Political Communication, Political Parties & Organizations

The Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor level in American politics beginning August 16, 2022. The successful candidate should have a strong research agenda which will lead to a body of high-quality peer-reviewed published work. The position is open to applicants in all areas of American politics, behavior and/or institutions, but we especially welcome candidates whose research and teaching interests lie in one or more of the following substantive areas: race/identity and politics, political communication, media and politics, political parties and interest groups, the presidency, and Congress.

The successful candidate will teach courses in our B.A. and M.A. Ph.D. programs. In addition to their specific substantive concerns, we are particularly interested in candidates who are prepared to teach graduate courses in quantitative research methods. A completed Ph.D. in political science is required for appointment at the level of Assistant Professor. The University of Alabama, located in Tuscaloosa, is a Carnegie-classified R1 Doctoral University and the flagship campus of the University of Alabama system. UA has approximately 38,000 students and is a leader among public universities nationwide for enrollment of National Merit Scholars. The Department of Political Science offers the B.A., M.A., M.P.A, and Ph.D. degrees. The Department also administers the International Studies major, the Economics major in Arts & Sciences, and the Public Policy minor.

To apply, go to https://facultyjobs.ua.edu/postings/49325 and complete the online application. Include a cover letter that details research and teaching interests, curriculum vitae, one writing sample, and sample syllabi of an introductory American Politics course and a course in political science. Applicants should be qualified to help oversee research that utilizes quantitative methods appropriate for modeling and analyzing election results. Candidates should hold a PhD, or be nearly finished, in Political Science or a related discipline.

Please submit a letter of application that includes (1) proposed research plan for the fellowship, (2) a statement about progress toward completion of the dissertation, (3) curriculum vitae, (4) writing sample, and (4) three letters of recommendation by December 1, 2021. https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/19756https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/19756

Visiting Research Scholar/Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP)

Princeton University’s Center for the Study of Democratic Politics (CSDP) seeks visiting scholars for the 2022-2023 academic year. The Center supports empirical research on democratic political processes and institutions. Applications are welcome from political scientists and scholars in related social science disciplines. CSDP visiting scholar positions are restricted to employed scholars on leave who are expected to return to their position.

Each scholar will pursue research and contribute to the intellectual life of the Center, the Princeton School of Public and International Affairs, and the Department of Politics. CSDP scholars are expected to participate in the weekly CSDP seminars and related weekly research seminars in the Department of Politics, as well as occasional lectures, conferences, and other events. Visiting scholars from academic institutions often receive up to one-half their academic-year salaries from their home institutions for the appointment period. The amount that Princeton contributes to the scholar’s salary is based on the financial support provided by their home institution. Selected candidates will be asked to indicate, or provide written authorization for Princeton to confirm, what percentage of financial support their home institution and other sources are likely to provide during their visit, if any, and to submit a confidential statement indicating salary for the current academic year (September 2022 - July 1, 2023) or provide written authorization for Princeton to confirm their salary. Successful candidates will also receive applicable benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a research allowance.

Selected candidates will be required to be in residence in Princeton or the local vicinity, or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus on a daily basis and on short notice in order to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2022 - July 1, 2023).

Verification of employment will be requested prior to approval by the Dean of the Faculty. PhD or equivalent doctoral degree required. Applicants must apply online and submit a CV, a 3-5 page (doublespaced) statement of research interest/research proposal, a writing sample, a brief statement of anticipated (estimated) salary support from the home institution for the 2021-2022 academic year, and statement of the home institution's leave policy. A cover letter is optional. Applicants for this Visiting Research Scholar position for 2022-2023 should apply to https://www.princeton.edu/acadpositions/position/22461. Arizona State University
Rank: Assistant/Associate in Race, Ethnicity and Politics
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, International Relations

The School of Politics and Global Studies at Arizona State University (Tempe) invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track position as an Assistant Professor or Associate Professor whose research and teaching focus is on Black/African American politics, race/ethnicity and U.S. politics, broadly defined. Though we are primarily interested in someone who studies Black/African American politics within the United States, we also invite applications from scholars who examine these issues from a comparative and/or transnational perspective that also encompass a focus on the U.S.

The position is open regarding the particular substantive dimensions and theoretical perspectives emphasized, as well as methodological approach(es). Along with the emphasis on Black/African American politics, and possible cross-national research, additional consideration will be given to candidates whose scholarship incorporates analysis of related factors (such as class and/or gender), and across various realms of politics (such as institutions, political behavior, and combinations thereof).

The successful candidate will contribute to curriculum development; teach at the undergraduate, master’s and doctoral levels as appropriate; supervise honors, masters and doctoral students; conduct research publishable in top-tier academic journals and/or top university presses in the discipline; participate in professional and university service; and develop grant proposals for external funding as PI or co-PI.

Minimum Qualifications:
Candidates must hold a Ph.D. in Political Science or related discipline by the time of appointment; demonstrated excellence in research commensurate with appointment at the level of assistant professor or associate professor level; demonstrated potential to establish a strong, externally-funded research program; and evidence of promise in and commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching.

Desired Qualifications:
Demonstrated potential to meet the needs of diverse student populations and/or reach out to diverse communities; a research focus with the potential to advance the mission of the School of Politics and Global Studies, especially in the areas of Black/African American politics and race/ethnicity and U.S. politics; a clear record of, or clear potential for, publishing in top journals and/or top university presses.

This is an in-person, academic year, benefits-eligible appointment. The anticipated start date is August 8, 2022.

The application deadline is November 6, 2021; only applications that are complete by the deadline will be given full consideration. Applications will continue to be accepted and reviewed every two weeks thereafter until the position is closed.

Applicants should submit electronically (in MS Word or PDF Format) a cover letter (which states qualifications, experience, research plans, and teaching interests); a curriculum vitae; a writing sample; contact information (email and phone) for three references; a brief statement of 1-2 pages addressing how your past and/or potential contributions to diversity and inclusion will advance ASU’s commitment to inclusive excellence. Applications must be submitted via Interfolio here: http://apply.interfolio.com/94481

Oakland University
Rank: Associate Professor of Political Science - Public Administration and MPA Director

Subfield(s): Public Administration, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

The Department of Political Science at Oakland University invites applications for an Associate Professor of Political Science - Public Administration, to begin August 15, 2022. The successful candidate will also be appointed to an initial 3-year term as MPA Director. This position is eligible for renewal during the 3rd year of each 3-year appointment.

We seek a scholar in public and/or nonprofit administration, able to teach broadly across the discipline at the graduate and undergraduate levels. Human Resource Management and Program Evaluation are immediate instructional needs in our NASPAA-accredited program.

The MPA Director supervises a full-time program coordinator and two graduate assistants, and responsibilities include overseeing curriculum development, student recruitment, and managing part-time faculty in the MPA program. The MPA Director position carries with it a two-course administrative release and stipend each regular academic year (and thus an annual teaching load of three courses in a normal academic year). Candidates must demonstrate experience with or a commitment to diversity and inclusion.

Minimum Qualifications:

A PhD with a specialization in Public Administration or related field, with the ability to teach at least two MPA core courses. A record of scholarly achievement commensurate with rank of appointment according to department and Oakland University standards.

School/College/Dept Summary:

Our MPA (established 1979) is the second-oldest NASPAA-accredited program in Michigan, with concentrations in Health Care, Local Government, Criminal Justice, Nonprofit Management, and Court Administration. The MPA program has recently launched a nonprofit management certificate program and strives to be a metropolitan, community-engaged hub for public service education & training.

Oakland University is a nationally recognized doctoral university of high research activity located on 1,443 acres of scenic land in the cities of Rochester Hills and Auburn Hills in Oakland County, Michigan. The University has 142 bachelor's degree programs and 138 graduate degree and certificate programs. Academics include programs in the College of Arts and Sciences, School of Business Administration, School of Education and Human Services, School of Engineering and Computer Science, School of Health Sciences, School of Medicine and School of Nursing. As an anchor institution in southeastern Michigan, Oakland University is committed to building ongoing and collaborative relationships with the surrounding communities. Community and civic engagement enhances the lives of our students and has a positive impact on our broader community.

Special Instructions:

Applicants should submit a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, a writing sample, unofficial transcripts, and contact information for at least three references to https://jobs.oakland.edu/posting/22506.

Candidates will also provide a Diversity Statement that describes their interest or efforts in furthering diversity and inclusion, consistent with the MPA program Diversity Philosophy: “The OU MPA Program is committed to creating a welcoming environment for all students, faculty, and staff. We will work to inculcate an awareness of the value of diversity and to impart the ability to interact respectfully and productively with all stakeholders in a variety of organizational settings, regardless of race, ethnicity, sex, class, nationality, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, disability, age, and/

Oberlin College
Rank: Visiting Assistant Professor of Politics
Specializations: Congress, Presidency, Race & Ethnic Politics

The Politics Department at Oberlin College invites applications for a full-time non-continuing faculty position in American politics with specialization in American political institutions. This is a non-continuing position for three semesters beginning spring semester of 2022, and will carry the rank of Visiting Assistant Professor or Visiting Instructor depending on the qualifications of the candidate. Advanced Ph.D. candidates with teaching experience as well as individuals with Ph.D. in hand are encouraged to apply. The incumbent will teach courses in American politics, including courses in American political institutions. We are open with regard to methods and approach, but are particularly interested in candidates who can address the relationship between American political institutions and aspects of social justice and inequality. The teaching expectation is five courses per year; normally one at the introductory level, three at the intermediate level, and one senior seminar.

Among the qualifications required for appointment is the Ph.D. degree (in hand or in progress (ABD). Candidates must demonstrate interest and potential excellence in undergraduate teaching. Successful teaching experience at the college level is desirable. Oberlin College is committed to student and faculty diversity, equity and inclusion. The incumbent will bring understanding of or experience working with underrepresented and diverse academic populations. Oberlin is especially interested in candidates who can contribute to the excellence and diversity of the academic community through their research, teaching, and service. Oberlin recruits, employs, trains, compensates, and promotes regardless of race, religion, color, national origin, gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, disability, age, veteran’s status, and/or other protected status as required by applicable law.

All application materials must be submitted electronically through Oberlin College and Conservatory’s online application process at: https://jobs.oberlin.edu/postings/10896. A complete application will be comprised of: 1) a cover letter describing your teaching, scholarship, mentorship, and service, highlighting any connections to supporting an inclusive learning environment; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) an unofficial graduate transcript; 4) a statement of teaching philosophy detailing your commitment to and expertise in diversity and equity in teaching; 5) letters of reference from three recommenders.*

*By providing three letters of reference, you agree that we may contact your letter writers. Review of applications will begin on November 15, 2021, and will continue until the position is filled. Complete applications received by the November 15 deadline will be guaranteed full consideration. Questions about the position can be addressed to Kristina Mani, Professor and Chair of the Politics Department, kmani@oberlin.edu.

University of Pennsylvania
Rank: Post-Doc Fellowship
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, International Relations, Comparative Politics

INSTITUTE FOR THE STUDY OF CITIZENS AND POLITICS POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP
The Institute for the Study of Citizens and Politics at the University of Pennsylvania (http://iscap.upenn.edu/) invites applications to fill a postdoctoral fellowship position for the 2022-2023 academic year. Applications are welcomed from scholars in any social science field who have received their Ph.D. in the last two years, or who expect to complete their degree by June 30, 2022. The term of appointment is July 1, 2022-June 30, 2023, with the possibility of renewal.

The Institute for the Study of Citizens and Politics (ISCAP) is a non-partisan research institute jointly supported by the University of Pennsylvania’s School of Arts and Sciences and the Annenberg School for Communication. The ISCAP postdoctoral fellow will work within and help manage a research group led by Professor Diana Mutz, Director of ISCAP. The postdoctoral fellow is expected to pursue his or her own research agenda while also actively working on team projects. The fellow will also coordinate effort among team members, including Ph.D. students and undergraduate research assistants.

Founded in 2003, ISCAP promotes research on public opinion, political psychology, and political communication. Its purpose is to enable research on the many ways in which citizens interact with the political world, broadly construed. The current research emphases at ISCAP include studies of public opinion, political psychology, elections and voting behavior, attitudes toward globalization, and the impact of media. Scholars with interests in these areas are particularly encouraged to apply. In addition to interest in these topics, any previous methodological training or experience designing experiments and/or analyzing panel data are especially valued.

Qualifications, Requirements, and Application Information
Postdoctoral fellow positions pay a stipend of $60,000 plus relevant fees and health insurance. The position also comes with $7,000 in funds for research support and professional travel. The ISCAP Postdoctoral Fellow will pursue their own research and also participate in the activities of the Center. Because the fellow is expected to be fully integrated with the intellectual life of the University, they must plan to physically reside in the vicinity of the University of Pennsylvania. To apply, please send a C.V., a research statement, a writing sample, and three letters of recommendation to iscap.upenn@gmail.com.
The University of Pennsylvania is an EO/AA employer and we welcome applications from women and minorities. We will accept applications beginning immediately, and may conduct virtual interviews. Applicants will be notified of the outcome just as soon as a decision is made.

Job Summary

Purdue University’s Department of Political Science is seeking a scholar of American Political Institutions for appointment at the rank of assistant professor.

Principal Duties: The person holding this position is expected to develop and maintain a research record of excellence in American political institutions that connects, in some way, to broader college themes of “Data, Decision-Science, and Social Organization,” or “Technology, Communication, and Cooperation.” In addition, the person holding this position will create and disseminate relevant knowledge through student instruction, will teach undergraduate and graduate courses related to their areas of interest, and teach some courses each year in the College of Liberal Arts’ award-winning Cornerstone Program. A high level of commitment to PhD student mentoring and a culture of diversity and inclusion is expected.

Qualifications: The candidate must have a completed all requirements for the Ph.D. in political science, public policy, or related field by the date of employment, and have expertise in American political institutions. This position requires strong communication skills and the ability to publish high-quality peer-reviewed research. Preference will be given to candidates who can contribute expertise to the Advanced Methods at Purdue program through research that utilizes cutting-edge social science research methods.

The College and University: This position one of seven hires this year in the Department of Political Science. The College of Liberal Arts at Purdue University is embarking upon 40 faculty searches for positions to begin in Fall 2022. These positions will advance research within and across disciplines, and intersect with technology, data science, and engineering in relevant and important ways. These positions include teaching in our innovative, nationally-recognized Cornerstone Integrated Liberal Arts Program that educates students across the university.

Purdue University, the College of Liberal Arts and the Department of Political Science are committed to free and open inquiry in all matters. Candidates are encouraged to address in their cover letter how they are prepared to contribute to a climate that values free inquiry.

Purdue is a research-intensive, PhD-granting institution and a public land-grant university. Candidates may be interested in several interdisciplinary programs and centers on campus, including Advanced Methods at Purdue (AMAP) cluster, Integrated Data Science Initiative, the Center for Research on Diversity and Inclusion, and the many interdisciplinary centers at Discovery Park and in the college. Additional collaboration opportunities are available to candidates who have research interests that utilize the C-SPAN Archives or have an interest in affiliation with the C-SPAN Center for Scholarship and Engagement. In addition to the major and PhD, the Department is home to graduate and undergraduate certificates and minors in environmental politics and policy, public policy, and human rights.

Application Procedures
To apply, please visit careers.purdue.edu. Applications must be submitted online and include: 1) Curriculum Vitae, 2) Recent research paper or other writing sample, 3) Cover letter of interest that includes a statement describing how the applicant’s research and teaching fit the principal duties of the position, 4) Research and teaching statements, 5) A Diversity and Inclusion statement described below, and 6) confidential letters of recommendation from three academic references must be sent to PoliticalScienceAmerican@purdue.edu.

Purdue University’s Department of Political Science is committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort, including scholarship, instruction, and engagement. Candidates should address at least one of these areas in a separate Diversity and Inclusion Statement, indicating their past experiences, current interests or activities, and/or future goals to promote a climate that values diversity and inclusion.

Screening of applicants will begin October 7 and continue until the position is filled. A background check is required for employment in this position. For additional information, contact search committee chair Robert X. Browning at rxb@purdue.edu or PoliticalScienceAmerican@purdue.edu

Purdue University is an EOE/AA employer. All individuals, including minorities, women, individuals with disabilities, and veterans are encouraged to apply.

Assistant Professor – Public Administration and/or American Politics
Deadline: October 15th, 2021

The Political Science Department in the College of Letters, Arts, and Social Sciences at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona (Cal Poly Pomona) invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor for appointment beginning in the 2022-2023 academic year specializing in Public Administration and/or American Politics.

The Position:
The faculty member will be part of a collegial Political Science Department that grants a B.A. degree, and that also has a Master’s in Public Administration (MPA). The position requires excellence in teaching and advising, professional and scholarly achievements, and a commitment to service to the university. Applicants whose work demonstrates a commitment to inclusive excellence and diversity in higher education are particularly encouraged to apply. Cal Poly Pomona is a Hispanic-serving institution and the faculty member will be an advisor to many under-represented minorities and first-generation college students.

The faculty member will teach in both the Bachelor’s in Political Science program as well as the Masters in Public Administration program. While the faculty member need not have a Ph.D. in Public Administration, they must contribute towards the MPA program. A faculty member specializing in Public Administration, Public Policy, and/or American Politics will have the ability to teach two courses in the MPA program (one elective or core class and quantitative methods), and courses in American politics/quantitative methods (race and ethnicity is a plus) annually. In the MPA program they will be expected to teach new or existing core and elective courses within their area of specialization—topics may include but are not limited to theories of public administration, state and local government, or a substantive public policy issue (economic policy, immigration, environmental justice, social welfare, and/or education).
Minimum Qualifications
- Ph.D. in Political Science, Public Administration, or a related field from an accredited university at the time of appointment
- University teaching experience as instructor of record and/or teaching assistant
- Evidence of scholarly potential (conference presentations, publications, grant development, etc.)
- Evidence of demonstrated ability to contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community through research, teaching, and/or service and work
- Experience fostering an inclusive environment
- A Student Success Statement that demonstrates your commitment and record of contributions through applicant’s teaching, scholarship, and/or service, by addressing at least two of the inclusive excellence criteria listed in the full job ad (see the link under “Application Procedure”).

Preferred/Desired Qualifications
Research interests related to social or racial justice, gender inequities, and/or inequality would be a plus. Additionally, preference will be given to candidates who can demonstrate the ability to mentor and advise under-served populations including, but not limited to, African-American, Latinx, and Native American students.

Application Procedure
The position is open until filled. First consideration will be given to completed applications submitted by October 15th, 2021. Early submission is encouraged. Electronic submissions of all application materials must be submitted online via Interfolio at http://apply.interfolio.com/94496.

A completed application will consist of:
- A cover letter that describes the candidate’s teaching performance, research experience and interests, and that addresses the duties and qualifications articulated in the position description;
- A curriculum vitae comprising at least those elements specified on the application form and including the names, titles, addresses, email addresses, and telephone numbers of at least five individuals who can speak to the candidate’s potential for succession this position;
- A ‘Student Success Statement’ about your teaching, or other experiences, successes, and challenges working with a diverse student population addressing at least two of the inclusive excellence criteria listed in the full job ad (see the link under “Application Procedure”) (approximately one page, single-spaced);
- Three recent letters of recommendation (on letterhead, signed and dated within the past two years), uploaded by recommenders through Interfolio;
- A completed application form available on the application website?
- An unofficial transcript showing the highest degree earned from an accredited education institution. Finalists will be required to submit an official transcript; and
- Recent teaching evaluation summaries and sample syllabi (Optional, if available).
- Please submit all electronic documents in PDF format.
- For further information or clarification, please contact:

Harvard University
Rank: Fellow-in-Residence
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Public Policy

The Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics at Harvard University invites applications from abroad range of researchers and practitioners who will work over the course of the year on pressing issues in ethics.
Faculty in arts and sciences and professional schools, postdoctoral scholars, practitioners, and researchers from industry, government, and NGOs are eligible to apply.

For the 2022-23 academic year, the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics will continue its focus on the theme of “A New Social Compact?” Variations in national responses to the pandemic; disparate experiments with technology, economic, and health policies; and conflicts over foundational political institutions have thrown into stark relief different conceptions of the social compact (a phrase we use loosely to refer to shared understandings of what members of societies believe they owe to each other) around the world. Myriad challenges - including challenges relating to education, climate and the natural environment, migration, new technologies, public health, elections, racial justice, and economic well-being - call us to revisit and evaluate existing conceptions of the social compact at both national and global levels. We ask, is it time for a new social compact?

We invite applications connected to any dimension of this broad field of inquiry. We see the nature of the questions raised and the challenges to be addressed as so multifaceted as to make this theme not very restrictive; however, in our usual fashion, we will also consider applications that fall outside the parameters of this thematic description. All eligible applicants are encouraged to apply. Priority will be given to early career scholars and practitioners.

Fellows-in-Residence will be expected to devote the majority of their time to their individual projects and to participate in regular work-in-progress seminars. In addition, Fellows are strongly encouraged to participate in the Center’s programming, which includes public lectures, themed seminars and reading groups, conferences, workshops, and lunch discussions.

This Fellowship is intended to be residential. With the exception of travel to conferences and meetings, Fellows are expected to be in residence in the Boston area at least four working days per week during the term. The coronavirus pandemic resulted in a waiver of this requirement for the 2020-21 academic year. 2021-22 will be a transitional year, and our hope is to resume in-person, fully residential programming for the 2022-23 academic year.

In addition, the Center offers the possibility of joint fellowship opportunities with the following centers; potential affiliations are arranged on a case-by-case basis:

- Berkman Klein Center for Internet and Society at Harvard University
- Carr Center for Human Rights at the Harvard Kennedy School
- Center for Bioethics at the Harvard Medical School
- Center for Research on Computation and Society at the Harvard
- John A. Paulson School of Engineering and Applied Sciences
- Hutchins Center for African & African American Research at Harvard University
- Petrie-Flom Center for Health Law Policy, Biotechnology and Bioethics at the Harvard Law School

Applicants will be invited to indicate on the application form whether they wish to be considered for a joint fellowship position with one of these Centers. If selected, the joint fellowship will offer access to development opportunities and programming at the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics and the partnering center.

ELIGIBILITY

Applicants must have a PhD, professional degree, or a minimum of 5 years of equivalent professional experience. Applicants from any discipline or professional field will be considered. Those who have previously held a yearlong residential Fellowship at the Center are not eligible; this limitation does not apply to former Undergraduate Fellows or former Graduate Fellows. The Fellows-in-Residence Program runs the course of the academic year, typically from the beginning of September through the end of May, and is open to all applicants who meet the above criteria, regardless of citizenship.

STIPEND

Faculty:
We offer a stipend of one-half of your base academic year salary, up to $75,000, and a research allowance of up to $3,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.

Post-Doc:
The stipend for post-doctoral fellows will be $60,000 for 2022-23. We also provide a research allowance of up to $3,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.

Practitioner:
Practitioner stipends are determined on a case-by-case basis, commensurate with experience, up to a maximum of $75,000, and a research allowance of up to $3,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.

APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS

To apply, complete an online application form which includes submission of the following in .pdf, .doc, or .docx form:

- Cover letter stating your background and interest in the Fellows-in-Residence Program at the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics
- CV
- Research proposal
- Recent writing sample

Please note: Name and contact information for three professional references will be requested, but no letters will be accepted at this stage.

The deadline to submit an application is November 15, 2021, with decisions likely in February 2022. Please note that the application form will be saved automatically while in progress, but no edits or alterations will be allowed once you have submitted the application. Please direct questions regarding this application process to ESafraFellowships@fas.harvard.edu.

Pepperdine University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science
Specializations: American Politics, Civil Rights & Liberties, Race & Ethnic Politics

The Social Science Division of the Seaver College of Letters, Arts, and Sciences at Pepperdine University invites applications for a tenure-track faculty position in Political Science to begin Fall 2022. We are open to various areas of expertise within the field of U.S. politics, but prefer candidates who are able to teach an introductory course and other classes in U.S. politics that include the politics of racialized minorities, broadly construed. We are open to a wide range of methodologies, including historical, ethnographic, interpretive, and quantitative approaches. Qualifications include a Ph.D. in Political Science or a related field, an active scholarly agenda, and a commitment to excellent teaching in a Christian liberal arts environment.

Applicants must have an active commitment to the Christian values of the University and the mission of Seaver College and provide a thoughtful reflection on their willingness to support the mission in their application materials. We encourage applications from candidates who will enrich the diversity of our faculty and who are committed to supporting an inclusive educational environment.

Applicants should apply by clicking on https://apply.interfolio.com/94571. Review of applications will begin November 1, 2021, and will continue until the position is filled. A background check will be required as a condition of employment.

Applications should include the documents listed below:

--A cover letter.
--A curriculum vitae, indicating educational record, employment record, achievements, awards, publications, and other relevant information. Please also describe any civic, religious, or charitable interests and activities, and list all current organizational memberships.
--Three confidential letters of reference (an email address for each referral will be requested in the application).
--Official transcripts of all graduate work (unofficial copies are acceptable for the application; however, official transcripts will be required for selected applicants).
--Teaching philosophy statement, which may focus on your motivation to teach at the university level and your thoughts about what constitutes effective pedagogy.
--A statement detailing the candidate’s scholarly agenda, which may focus on your current area of emphasis and plans for professional development.
--A thoughtful reflection on the University’s Christian mission. The University mission states that Pepperdine University is a Christian university committed to the highest standards of academic excellence and Christian values, where students are strengthened for lives of purpose, service, and leadership. In your statement, please comment on your willingness to support the mission of Seaver College and Christian values of the University including your involvement in a local community of faith and how your faith relates to your teaching, professional, and/or intellectual life.
--Evidence of Teaching Effectiveness (if available). Candidates selected for interviews will be asked to supply evidence of teaching effectiveness (such as student evaluations of teaching) where possible.

This institution is using Interfolio’s Faculty Search to conduct this search. Applicants to this position receive a free Dossier account and can send all application materials, including confidential letters of recommendation, free of charge.

St. Lawrence University

Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Policy

Subfield(s): Public Policy, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

Specializations: Health Care, Education Policy, Immigration Policy

The Government Department at St. Lawrence University invites applications for a tenure-track position in American and comparative public policy. The successful candidate will be prepared teach foundational courses in public policy/policy analysis from a comparative perspective, other upper-level courses in their areas of expertise (such as advanced policy courses, parties and elections, state and local politics, Congress, etc), as well as the introductory course in American politics and, on occasion, the introductory course in comparative politics. Candidates who specialize in health or education policy are particularly invited to apply, though all policy areas will be considered. The position begins August 2022 and the teaching load is three courses per semester. The successful candidate will join a department of 11 full-time faculty members who are passionate about supporting our liberal arts curriculum through diverse and inclusive pedagogies and scholarly agendas. Our supportive department colleagues regularly provide feedback and mentoring to new faculty to foster pedagogical and professional development. We encourage applications from candidates who identify with groups that are historically underrepresented in the academy.

U.S. Army War College

Rank: Professor of Security Studies

United States Army War College
Professor of Security Studies
Salary range: $80,153 – $143,943

Objective:
The United States Army War College seeks to fill the position of Assistant/Associate/Full Professor of Security Studies in the Department of National Security and Strategy in the School of Strategic Landpower. Preference is for scholars with a substantive focus on new domains, history of technology and war, or other non-traditional security issues, though all applications will be considered.

Context:
This is a fulltime, long-term, civilian faculty position at the United States Army's most senior institution for professional military education. Initial appointment may be for up to 4 years; the first two years are probationary; the academic rank of initial appointment will be commensurate with the applicant’s level of experience. Appointments may be renewed. The Army War College educates the top echelon of US military officers of all services, US government civilians, and military officers from scores of foreign countries. It develops strategic leaders by providing a rigorous curriculum of theoretical and professional subjects, leading to a Master’s of Strategic Studies accredited by the Middle States Commission on Higher Education.

Expectations:
The person selected for this position will have a leading role in planning, administering, and teaching the core course, “War, Policy, and National Security,” as well as other core and elective courses of the resident education program and associated programs. They will serve as a faculty instructor for one seminar, advise students and serve as project advisor for student research projects. They will also engage in cutting-edge scholarship that advances knowledge in fields relevant to the curriculum; engage in service in support of USAWC missions. Other duties may include teaching regional studies courses and/or supporting the development and execution of the National Security Policy Program. The position comes with a generous compensation package as well as with the many benefits of working at an innovative, vibrant, and collegial military educational institution.

Finally, the applicant must be able to obtain and maintain a security clearance from the US government.

Rewards and Compensation:
The person selected would find employment at the Army War College enjoyable, satisfying, and rewarding. They would have the benefit of working at an institution dedicated to his or her scholarly focus. Additionally, the person selected would sense the urgency of the mission, collegiality of the faculty, security of the military environment, quality and diversity of the student body, and climate of cooperation and teamwork. These defining features have long appealed to civilian faculty members who have worked at the Army War College for any length of time.

Compensation is dependent on the applicant’s qualifications and professional experience. We are prepared to offer a salary-and-benefits package designed to attract highly talented applicants.

Qualifications:
In order to qualify, you must meet the education and/or experience requirements described below. Your curriculum vitae or résumé must clearly describe your relevant experience. Applicants will be rated based on the placement factors and Knowledge, Skills, and Abilities (KSAs) listed below by a search committee appointed for the purpose of identifying the best-qualified candidates.

1. Must have master’s degree (required) in national security studies, international relations, government, political science, history, regional studies, or related field. A PhD or equivalent evidence of extensive original scholarly research and writing is strongly preferred. Doctoral students within six months of completing the degree are eligible to apply.

2. Must have an established record of superlative teaching at the undergraduate, graduate, or Senior Service College level. Experience at the graduate level is preferred.

3. Ability to prepare, teach, and lecture on subjects related to national security policy and strategy formulation, theories of war and strategy, and other subjects to include political economy, diplomacy, or regional studies.

4. Record of scholarly research and publication—or evidence of great potential for such research and publication—in areas relevant to the curriculum, to include national security policy and strategy, international relations, political science, history, political economy, regional studies, and the strategic use of military force (assurance, deterrence, coercion, and compellence).

5. A record of successful service to the profession including membership in and service to professional (regional, historical, political) scholarly societies, public history initiatives, or military and defense organization. A record of successful non-governmental work of a similar nature and scope, such as with a think tank, development organization, media organization, or international organization may also be considered service.

Application:
To apply for this position, you must provide a complete application package which includes the items listed below. Applications must be postmarked or e-dated by the closing date of this job announcement. Please include the job announcement number on the application.

1. Letter of application addressing the required Knowledge, Skills and Abilities, as listed in the Qualifications section above.
2. Résumé or curriculum vitae.
3. Proof of U.S. citizenship (i.e., birth certificate, passport)
4. One sample of written scholarship not to exceed 50 pages (Electronic format is preferred, as hard copies will not be returned without a self-addressed and metered envelope.)
5. Academic transcripts (undergraduate and graduate level). Unofficial transcripts are permissible for initial submission of the application, but you must provide official college transcripts upon request.
6. List of four disinterested professional references (i.e., persons who can affirm the candidate’s qualifications but have no stake in the outcome of the selection)
7. Documentation supporting any request for Veteran’s Preference (such as a DD Form 214 or VA statement of disability)
8. A short narrative of one page or less that describes how you would contribute to an atmosphere of diversity at the U.S. Army War College through teaching, scholarship, and/or service.

Both paper and electronic submissions are acceptable, but the latter is strongly encouraged. The preferred method of submission is by e-mail with .pdf attachments. Please note that documents submitted...
as part of the application may be shared beyond the Human Resources Office. For additional information, visit the USAJobs website https://www.usajobs.gov/GetJob/ViewDetails/614295500

Subfield(s): Open, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics

Assistant Professor – Structural Racism, Oppression, and Black Political Experiences

The Department of Political Science at the University of Pittsburgh invites applications for an assistant professor (pending budgetary approval) in any subfield of political science or related discipline whose work addresses structural racism, oppression, or Black political experiences, conceived domestically, comparatively, or globally. We encourage applications from scholars working on problems of racial oppression and racialized inequalities and hierarchies — in race and ethnic politics, in political behavior, in political economy, in international and transnational politics, in global or domestic institutions (of the US or other countries), as well as any other topic related to our theme (including inequalities in cities, health, education, and technology).

The Department intends to make three hires in the coming years (pending budgetary approval), in coordination with a cluster in Race, Representation, and Anti-Black and Systemic Racism within the Kenneth P. Dietrich School of Arts and Sciences. The related University Race and Social Determinants of Equity and Well-being Cluster Hire and Retention Initiative is also aimed at creating and sustaining a cohort of scholars whose research, service, and community engagement are aimed at strengthening knowledge and addressing racial disparities in the social determinants of equity and wellbeing. We thus welcome applicants whose interests complement current and new cluster faculty pertaining to race and inequality and their impact on Black communities in the United States; desirable research and teaching interests include, but are not limited to: race and ethnic politics, identity, democratic behavior, activism and collective action, representation, urban or local governance, health and healthcare policy, technology policy or algorithmic bias, environmental justice, ethnic or international conflict, migration, post-colonialism/post-imperialism; scholars whose interests include Africa or the African Diaspora are also encouraged to apply.

The starting date for the position is September 1, 2022. Successful candidates are expected to engage in research, teaching, and service that contributes to the department’s mission. Required qualifications: applicants have or expect to have a Ph.D. in hand before the appointment begins, research interests related to structural racism, oppression, or Black political experiences, and demonstrated ability or potential to deliver high-quality instruction, to publish high-quality scholarship, and to contribute to an inclusive climate and attract and retain a diverse student body.

Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of research and teaching interests, two or three writing samples, teaching evaluations (if available), a diversity statement (brief description of how your research, teaching or service demonstrates a commitment to diversity and inclusion), and a minimum of three letters of reference; references should send their letters directly to psjobs@pitt.edu. Please apply online at: https://cfo.pitt.taleo.net/careersection/pitt_faculty_ external/jobdetail.ftl?job=21006250&tz=GMT-04%3A00&tzname=America%2FNew_York. In order to ensure full consideration, applications must be received by October 8, 2021, and the review of applications will continue until the position is filled. The Political Science Department telephone number is (412) 648-7290; the contact e-mail address is wynn2@pitt.edu.

The University of Pittsburgh is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer and values equality of opportunity, human dignity and diversity. EOE, including disability/vets.

Rochester Institute of Technology
Rank: Assistant Professor (TT)

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Other

Specializations: American Politics, Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Theory

Detailed Job Description

The Department of Political Science at Rochester Institute of Technology invites candidates to apply for a tenure track Assistant Professor position in Political Science for the 2022-2023 academic year, starting August 2022. We seek an energetic and enthusiastic colleague who will serve as an instructor, researcher, and mentor for our undergraduate majors and minors. The ideal candidate will have a background in American politics or political theory and will also be interested in questions of innovative governance. In particular, the department is interested in applicants with a background in public choice, PPE (politics, philosophy, and economics), common pool resource governance, or other innovative approaches to analyzing and approaching traditional questions in political science and policy. Candidates who can contribute pre-law courses or politics of science courses to the curriculum, including philosophy and politics of law or courses on politics and biomedicine, are strongly encouraged to apply.

The successful candidate will: (a) have teaching experience or will demonstrate the potential for quality teaching at the college/university level; (b) demonstrate potential to conduct independent research and to attract external funding; and (c) demonstrate interest in mentoring undergraduate students. The hire will be expected to teach a minimum of five undergraduate-level Political Science courses per year. Specific teaching assignments will be based on candidate qualifications and program needs, but are likely to include innovative approaches to state and local and American politics, and upper-level classes in areas relating to political economy, law, and governance. The position also requires academic advisement and ongoing mentoring of undergraduate students, participation in program assessment and evaluation activities, and service to the Department, College, and Institute.

Department/College Description

The Department of Political Science offers a B.S. degree in political science and is part of the pre-law minor. The program in Political Science at RIT offers coursework and programs that are unique and innovative, integrating traditional fields of American government, legal studies, and international relations with explorations of the interactions between politics and governance on the one hand and innovation, science, and technology on the other. The department teaches not only the mechanics and strategies of the political process, but also examines limitations on government authority and responsibilities of citizens.

The College of Liberal Arts is one of nine colleges within Rochester Institute of Technology. The College has over 150 faculty in 13 departments in the arts, humanities and social sciences. The College currently offers fourteen undergraduate degree programs and five Master degrees, serving over 800 students.

Required Minimum Qualifications

Doctoral degree (PhD.) in political science or related field, expected by July 1, 2022;
Expertise in American politics or political theory;
Demonstrated interest in public choice, PPE, common pool resource governance, or other related fields;
Demonstrated potential to teach at the college/university level;
Demonstrated potential for conducting independent research;
Demonstrated potential to attract external funding;
Demonstrated interest in mentoring undergraduate students;
Ability to contribute in meaningful ways to the college’s continuing commitment to cultural diversity, pluralism, and individual differences.

University of Central Florida

Rank: Assistant Professor, Cyber Security and Privacy

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

Specializations: Intelligence, International Security, Regulatory Policy

The University of Central Florida (UCF) has established nine interdisciplinary clusters to strengthen its academic offerings and research mission. In support of this effort, we are recruiting faculty in the broad area of cyber security and privacy, from a policy or social science perspective, and plan to hire one tenure-earning assistant professor for this cluster. This position has an anticipated start date of August 8, 2022.

The Cybersecurity and Privacy Cluster is an interdisciplinary initiative, bringing together researchers from across the campus and working on addressing the pressing questions of our national security from engineering, science, and social perspectives. The cluster currently has eight members, collectively advising more than 35 doctoral students, and embracing a strong culture of collaboration and teamwork. The cluster runs various well-funded programs, has developed and implemented a new interdisciplinary M.S. in Cybersecurity and Privacy, and was recently selected by the National Science Foundation to be a host institution for the prestigious Scholarship for Service Program.

This is an interdisciplinary position that will be expected to strengthen both the cluster and a chosen tenure home department and may include a combination of joint appointments. A strong advantage of this position is the ability of the candidate to choose a combination of units from the cluster for their appointment. See http://www.ucf.edu/faculty/cluster/cyber-security-and-privacy/ for a complete list of all the units involved. Both individual and interdisciplinary infrastructure and startup support will be provided with this new position.

The ideal candidate will have a strong background in cyber security and privacy and be on an upward leadership trajectory in these areas. They will have research impact as reflected in high-quality publications and the ability to build a well-funded research program. In particular, we are looking for a team player who can help bring together current campus efforts in cyber security or privacy, and someone who will work at the intersection of several areas, addressing the policy, regulatory or social science aspects with a focus on one or more of the following topics: a) privacy laws and regulation; b) social media; c) cybercrimes; d) cyberwarfare; e) cyber security and intelligence. With this in mind, we anticipate the selected candidate will be tenure-earning in one of, but not limited to, the following units: Criminal Justice; Legal Studies; Modeling, Simulation, and Training; Politics, Security, and International Affairs; or Sociology.

UCF is one of the nation’s largest universities with a diverse student body of more than 70,000 students and has grown substantially in size, quality, diversity, and reputation in its first 50 years. Today, the university offers more than 200 degree programs. UCF is an economic engine, attracting and supporting industries vital to the region’s future while providing students with real-world experiences that help them succeed after graduation.

UCF’s Orlando main campus location also puts it at the center of the Florida High Tech Corridor. The corridor has an excellent industrial base that includes software, defense, space, simulation and training, and world-renowned entertainment industry. Adjacent to the UCF main campus is a thriving research park that conducts over $2

University of Virginia
Rank: Tenure-Track, Assistant Professor, Democracy, Race and U.S. politics, Department of Politics

Tenure-Track, Assistant Professor, Democracy, Race and U.S. politics, Department of Politics

In the fall of 2020, with the generous support of the John L. Nau Foundation and the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, the University of Virginia’s Democracy Initiative and College of Arts & Sciences launched a multiyear faculty hiring project. Over four years, we will hire a dozen or more new faculty members at all ranks in the departments of Classics, History, and Philosophy, Politics, and elsewhere. Across all the searches, the Departments seek to appoint scholars whose primary research is focused on the study of the principles of democracy, democratic accountability and representation, either to advance the work of the core lab on the history and principles of democracy or to contribute to one of the Initiative’s other projects.

This year, with the support of the Mellon Foundation, the Department of Politics at the University of Virginia invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position for a scholar who studies democracy, race, and U.S. politics. Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in political science by the time of the appointment. Candidates should have an active research agenda that engages with normative and/or practical questions pertaining to race and democracy in the United States, a strong interest in teaching at both the graduate and undergraduate levels, and a willingness to contribute to the scholarly life of the Department of Politics and the Democracy Initiative.

The mission of the Democracy Initiative is to promote excellence in research, teaching, and public engagement on democracy at a global scale —bringing together a diverse range of scholars, government leaders, and practitioners to study and advance the prospects of democracy around the world. The Democracy Initiative is interdisciplinary and supports and advances the work of faculty, as well as graduate and undergraduate students, in the humanities, the arts, and the social sciences. To that end, the Initiative supports a variety of labs built on models of collaborative work. The Democracy Labs consist of a series of three-year, rotating labs on various topics, connected by the work of the John Nau III History and Principles of Democracy Lab (the Nau Core Lab), an interdisciplinary hub of research, teaching, and outreach. Current labs are focused on corruption and the rule of law, democracy and new media, democratic statecraft, the links between environmental and racial inequality, and race, religion, and democracy. The Democracy Initiative also supports two projects focused on community engagement and research, the Memory Project and The Equity Center. In addition to holding appointments in their home departments, each new faculty member hired under this initiative will also be a member either of the Nau Core lab or one of the Initiative’s other research labs or projects.

Application review will begin October 1, 2021 and the position will remain open until filled. The appointment begins with the fall semester of 2022. Applicants must have received their PhD by time of appointment.
Department of Government and Legal Studies seeks applicants for a full-time tenure-track position in Race, Ethnicity, and Politics, pending final approval. The position would begin July 1, 2022. We expect to hire at the rank of assistant professor but will consider applications from candidates at all levels. A PhD in political science or a related field is required by the start of this appointment. Research and teaching on U.S. politics is preferred, but a focus on other areas of the Americas will be considered. Teaching load is two courses per semester, across all levels of the curriculum.

University of Denver

Rank: Tenure-track assistant professor of American politics
Specializations: Political Psychology, Public Opinion, Race & Ethnic Politics

The Department of Political Science at the University of Denver invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professorship to start in Fall 2022 in the field of American politics. We seek applications from scholars of American politics whose research specialization is political psychology and/or public opinion. We will give priority to applicants whose research and teaching in political psychology and/or public opinion has a substantive focus on race and ethnic politics in the US.

The University of Denver embraces a teacher-scholar model where faculty balance their commitment to rigorous scholarship with undergraduate education. The Department of Political Science consists of eleven tenure-line faculty supporting the Bachelors of arts degree in political science within the College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences at the University of Denver. Our faculty are dedicated to the robust pursuit of research, publication, and public engagement. We also value inclusive excellence: a commitment by all constituents to create an academic experience that embraces and engages diverse perspectives and communities within an atmosphere of mutual respect.

Our undergraduate program of study serves approximately 200 majors and students across campus in the common curriculum. The position requires teaching the equivalent of two courses per quarter (three quarters per year) in the Political Science department, covering a range of upper division courses in American politics, Introduction to American politics, and common curriculum requirements.

Required Qualifications
- ABD or Ph.D. in Political Science or related field or interdisciplinary program (e.g. Psychology or American studies). A candidate hired at the ABD level would hold the title of Instructor until completion of Ph.D.
- Evidence of a promising scholarly agenda in political psychology and/or public opinion focusing on the US context that is likely to result in peer-reviewed publications.
- Experience serving as a graduate teaching assistant in undergraduate courses in political (or related social) science.
- Evidence of a commitment to incorporate inclusive teaching methods and/or pedagogies to engage students from a wide range of backgrounds effectively.

Preferred Qualifications
- Ph.D. in Political Science.
- Successful publication of peer-reviewed scholarship in political psychology and/or public opinion on the US case and evidence of future promise as a scholar.
- Experience as an instructor teaching Introduction to American politics and upper-division undergraduate courses in political psychology and/or public opinion.
- Scholarly expertise to develop upper-division undergraduate courses in race and ethnic politics in the US context.
- Experience interacting with diverse communities in an inclusive approach to engage students from a wide range of backgrounds effectively.
- Experience using course management software (such as Canvas or similar).

Application Deadline
For best consideration, please submit your application materials by 4:00 p.m. (MST) on September 20, 2021.

Special Instructions
Candidates must apply online through jobs.du.edu to be considered. Only applications submitted online will be accepted.

The Political Science Department at the University of St. Thomas invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor to begin September 1, 2022. We are seeking a political scientist with specializations in American Political Institutions (Executive Politics and/or Legislative Politics) and Quantitative Methods.

The successful candidate will be expected to teach undergraduate courses such as Congress and the Presidency, Seminar in American Politics, Research Methods, Citizen Participation and Public Policy, and our introductory course, Government and Politics. This position allows for development of upper-level quantitative courses that would support both the political science major and the American Politics domain within the Data Analytics program.

The University of St. Thomas is a dynamic, urban university with 10,000 students and 450 full-time faculty. Located in a residential neighborhood with easy access to both of the Twin Cities, we are a liberal arts institution that values excellence in teaching and research and actively promotes diversity, equity, and inclusion as an expression of our mission. The department of political science actively works to attract, retain, and develop faculty from all backgrounds to enhance the diversity of the learning community and to offer our students richly varied perspectives.

The University of St. Thomas embraces diversity, inclusion, and equal opportunity for all. Our convictions of dignity, diversity, and personal attention call us to embody and champion a diverse, equitable, and inclusive environment. We welcome applicants of diverse races, ethnicities, geographic origins, gender identities, ages, socioeconomic backgrounds, sexual orientations, religions, work experience, physical and intellectual abilities, and financial means. We are committed to building a team that represents a variety of backgrounds, perspectives, and skills. This commitment is consistent with our mission: Inspired by Catholic intellectual tradition, the University of St. Thomas educates students to be morally responsible leaders who think critically, act wisely, and work skillfully to advance the common good.

Qualifications: A PhD in political science (U.S. or Foreign Equivalent), or alternatively ABD will also be considered. ABD candidates will be eligible for an initial rank of instructor. All applicants must have demonstrable skills necessary for excellence in teaching.

All application materials must be submitted online at http://www.stthomas.edu/jobs/. In addition to creating an applicant profile, please upload the following materials as additional documents:

1) Curriculum vitae
2) Copy of academic transcript
3) Statement of teaching philosophy and experience, including evidence of teaching effectiveness
4) Description of research agenda
5) Two letters of recommendation (emailed to Professor Angela High-Pippert: ahighpippe@stthomas.edu)

To ensure full consideration, all application materials must be received by Friday, October 15, 2021. The position will remain open until filled. Questions about the position should be directed to the department chair (Angela High-Pippert (ahighpippe@stthomas.edu)). If you encounter issues with the application process, please email Human Resources (employment@stthomas.edu).

Bentley University

Rank: Assistant Professor

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

The Global Studies Department at Bentley University invites applications for a tenure-track position in comparative race and ethnicity. We seek applications from scholar-teachers who focus on race and ethnicity in comparative, transnational or global perspective, with at least one area of specialization in the United States.

Our department is multidisciplinary, built around a core of faculty from cultural studies, geography, and political science. We welcome candidates from any discipline, including but not limited to anthropology, geography, and political science, to complement and deepen existing strengths. While the position is open with respect to further thematic specializations, we are particularly interested in candidates whose work contributes to understanding the intersectionality of race and ethnicity with sustainability, health, development, immigration/migration, or public policy, preferably through comparativist lenses.

As guided by our Academic Affairs Diversity, Equity, & Inclusion Strategic Plan, Bentley University seeks to enhance our faculty capacity in the scholarship, pedagogy, and engagement related to diversity, equity, inclusion, and justice. To achieve that, we are hiring a cohort of new faculty in multiple academic departments and disciplines with expertise in DEI. This position is intended to be part of our DEI faculty cohort, which will enrich our DEI expertise across Business and the Liberal Arts & Sciences. Learn more about Bentley University’s DEI strategic plan here: https://issuu.com/bentleyuniversity/docs/de_i_strategic_plan_presentation_1_.pptx

We seek a candidate whose teaching and scholarship will contribute to one or both of our undergraduate departmental majors in international affairs and public policy, and someone who can amplify our department’s commitment to anti-racism. Black, indigenous, and Latinx faculty, as well as faculty from other underrepresented groups, are strongly encouraged to apply.

Candidates must demonstrate evidence of a continuing research agenda focused on publication and a strong dedication to excellence in teaching, with preference for candidates with classroom teaching experience. We especially welcome candidates who bring diverse perspectives and experiences to the classroom. Incoming tenure-track faculty typically have a 2-2 teaching load.

The position will be filled at the Assistant Professor rank for a Fall 2022 start.

Minimum Qualifications:

PhD required. Requirements for the doctoral degree must be completed prior to the start of the Fall 2022 semester.
Instructions to Applicants:
Applicants submit all materials through Bentley’s on-line employment site at: https://bentley.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/faculty/job/Bentley-Campus/Tenure-Track-Assistant-Professor--Global-Studies_R0002083.

Applicants should submit the following materials:
1. A cover letter that summarizes overall strengths, including the nature of the candidate’s commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion.
3. A teaching statement of no more than two pages.
4. A research statement of no more than two pages detailing the candidate’s research strengths and plans for future research directions.
5. The names and contact information for three professional references. Bentley will contact these confidential references for those candidates moving forward in the process.

Questions about the position can be directed to the Search Committee Chair, Professor Joni Seager at jseager@bentley.edu

Position will remain open until filled. However, priority consideration will be given to applications received by September 27, 2021.

University of Chicago
Rank: Provost’s Postdoctoral Fellowship in Latinx Politics / Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at the University of Chicago invites applications for a Provost’s Postdoctoral Fellowship in Latinx politics. While we are primarily interested in someone who studies Latinx politics within the United States, we welcome applications from scholars who also investigate these issues from a comparative or transnational perspective that includes a focus on the U.S. This fellowship provides up to two years of funding for junior scholars whose accomplishments make them exceptionally competitive for faculty positions and whose background or membership in historically underrepresented groups would contribute to the diversity of our faculty. Fellows will teach one course per year. At the end of the fellowship period and following an academic review, the Fellow may be directly promoted to a tenure-track assistant professorship.

Qualifications
Candidates must have completed all requirements for the PhD degree prior to the start of the appointment.

Application Instructions
Applicants must apply at the University of Chicago’s Interfolio website at http://apply.interfolio.com/92395. Applications must include: 1) a cover letter that, among other things, describes the applicant’s prior and potential contributions to diversity in the context of academic research, teaching, and service; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a research statement addressing current research and future plans for research; 4) a teaching statement addressing teaching experience and philosophy; 5) two samples of scholarly writing, and 6) three letters of reference.

To be considered, those interested must apply through The University of Chicago’s Academic Recruitment job board, which uses Interfolio to accept applications.

Consideration of applications will begin on September 16, 2021. Only short-listed candidates will be contacted.

Syracuse University
Rank: African American Studies Department Chair
Subfield(s): Open, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics
Specializations: African American Politics, Africa, Race & Ethnic Politics

The Department of African American Studies (https://thecollege.syr.edu/african-american-studies/) in Syracuse University’s College of Arts & Sciences seeks a dynamic scholar to serve as Department Chair beginning Fall 2022. The successful candidate will possess a strong record of scholarship; teaching excellence; experience overseeing departmental administrative procedures and governance; demonstrated skill in collaborating with faculty on curricula and programming for undergraduate majors and minors and graduate students; and a commitment to community engagement.

Since gaining department status in 1979, African American Studies at SU has offered multi-disciplinary approaches to global studies of people of African descent. Unique departmental resources, such as the Martin Luther King, Jr. Library (https://thecollege.syr.edu/diversity-and-inclusion/mlk-library/) and the Community Folk Art Center (https://communityfolkartcenter.org/), have been integral to academic initiatives. Recent and pending faculty retirements have led to a critical juncture. The new chair will thus play a pivotal role in leading the department as it formulates strategic plans to engage changing social, political, cultural, technological, and pedagogical landscapes.

The position requires a Ph.D. with a principal research and teaching focus on aspects of Black life in the Americas, the Caribbean, Africa, or Europe. Scholars in any field of the humanities or social sciences are welcome to apply. Candidates who have met the standards for the rank of professor with tenure are preferred. However, full consideration will also be given to applications from advanced tenured associate professors. The teaching requirement during the three-year term as Department Chair will be one course per semester. At the end of the chair term, two courses per semester will be required.

Applications must include a current curriculum vitae; letter of interest; sample publication; diversity, equity, and inclusion statement; and three confidential recommendation letters. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. The salary will be commensurate with qualifications.

Loyola Marymount University
Rank: Assistant Professor - Political Science and International Relations
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science and International Relations at Loyola Marymount University invites applications for an Assistant Professor (tenure-track) whose work addresses structural racism or Black politics. Sub-field specialization is open and we welcome applications from candidates whose research and teaching addresses the Black political experience, racial oppression, discrimination, and violence from domestic (US or other countries), international, transnational, diasporic, post-colonial, normative, historical, or critical perspectives. We expect candidates to ground their work—theoretical and/or empirical—in an intersectional understanding of how interlocking or overlapping systems of oppression, domination, inequality, or hierarchies, shape the political world.

LMU has a 2-2/2-3 teaching load, meaning that faculty teach two undergraduate courses per semester, with one 3 course load semester every other year. We would expect the successful candidate to teach courses both within our existing curriculum, but also to support and develop courses that speak directly to the Black political experience, broadly understood. We are seeking to hire a dedicated teacher and emerging scholar who will embrace the department’s mission of helping undergraduate students become informed, analytically reflective, methodologically rigorous, and engaged global citizens. Successful candidates must demonstrate a commitment to working with diverse student and community populations.

Loyola Marymount University, a Carnegie classified R2 institution in the mainstream of American Catholic higher education, seeks outstanding applicants who value its mission and share its commitment to inclusive excellence, the education of the whole person, and the building of a just society. LMU is an equal opportunity employer committed to providing an environment free from discrimination and harassment as defined by federal, state and local law. We invite all persons in the full diversity of their being, life experiences, and beliefs to apply. Please read more about our commitments and our efforts here.

Candidates should submit application materials via the LMU Human Resources online application portal (https://pa843.peopleadmin.com/postings/47472). Applicants must include: 1) a cover letter (outlining area of expertise, teaching and research interests, and resonance with LMU’s mission); 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a writing sample; and 4) a statement of teaching philosophy that demonstrates your approach to teaching in the liberal arts tradition, and 5) if available, teaching evaluations and/or sample syllabi. Three confidential letters of recommendation should be submitted directly to POLSjobs@lmu.edu. Only online applications will be accepted. Please direct questions to Marc Cooper at POLSjobs@lmu.edu. We will begin our review of applications on September 10, 2021 but will consider applications beyond this date until we conclude our search. A PhD in Political Science, International Relations, Public Policy, or related field is required; ABD applications who anticipate completion of the doctorate by Fall 2022 will be considered.

Dartmouth College
Rank: Tenure-Track or Tenured Faculty appointment at any rank in American Politics or Political Theory

The Department of Government at Dartmouth College invites applications for a tenure-track or tenured faculty appointment at any rank. We seek qualified candidates whose research examines African American political thought, the political experiences of African Americans, and/or issues of race and racial injustice related to African Americans. The position includes the option of an affiliation with the Program in African and African American Studies (AAAS).

Applicants should have a strong commitment to teaching, scholarly work, engaging undergraduate students in research, and building a diverse and inclusive educational environment. We are especially interested in applicants who are able to work effectively with students, faculty, and staff from all backgrounds, including racial and ethnic minorities, women, individuals who identify with LGBTQ+ communities, individuals with disabilities, individuals from lower-income backgrounds, and/or first generation college graduates. Applicants should discuss in their cover letter how their teaching, research, service, and/or life experiences prepare them to advance Dartmouth’s commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Qualifications:
Applicants should have a Ph.D. in Political Science, Philosophy, or a related discipline, or have the Ph.D. conferred before the start date of their appointment.

Application Instructions:
1) Cover letter, including overview of research areas and teaching interests. Applicants should also state in their cover letter, or in a separate statement, how their teaching, research, service, and/or life experiences prepare them to advance Dartmouth’s commitments to diversity, equity, and inclusion.
2) C.V.
3) Dissertation abstract or research statement (maximum two pages single-spaced)
4) Three confidential letters of recommendation, one of which should be from the dissertation advisor (for ABD applicants)
5) Writing sample of 20-40 pages

Applications must be submitted electronically at: https://apply.interfolio.com/92314. Review of applications will begin September 15, 2021 and continue until the position is filled. Questions may be sent to Michelle.T.Clarke@dartmouth.edu or Jennifer.L.Jerit@dartmouth.edu.

Syracuse University

Rank: Politics of Inequality

Syracuse University
Politics of Inequality

The Department of Political Science at Syracuse University’s Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs seeks to hire a tenure-track Assistant or tenured Associate Professor whose scholarship focuses on the intersection of inequality and politics. We seek a candidate with expertise in the connection between social or economic inequality and political outcomes, defined broadly. This position starts in Fall 2022 and is part of a broader Syracuse University Cluster Hires Initiative.

The Citizenship and Democratic Institutions (CDI) Cluster draws together a diverse group of scholars who address critical issues related to the contested meanings of citizenship, civic engagement, public management, and the impacts of democratic institutions on social and economic well-being. The successful candidate will help shape future, multi-disciplinary hiring in the CDI Cluster, and lead and contribute to externally funded projects and interdisciplinary research initiatives within the Maxwell School and across the University.

We welcome applicants who study inequality across different domains – economic, social, health, gender, race, and/or ethnicity. We also are open to multiple methods, and issues in domestic, international, and comparative contexts. This position is open with respect to subfield and geographic focus, but we are especially interested in candidates who focus on American politics and comparative politics.

The political science department is housed within the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs, which is committed to citizenship education at the undergraduate level and to graduate education in public affairs and the social sciences. We seek candidates who complement the broader Maxwell mission and have interdisciplinary interests. Successful candidates may be invited to affiliate with the Campbell Institute or one of Maxwell’s other interdisciplinary centers (http://www.maxwell.syr.edu/centers/). The successful candidate will teach at both the undergraduate and graduate level. The typical course load is 2 classes a semester.

Applicants should have a Ph.D. in political science or a related field or a credible expectation of completing all requirements for the Ph.D. by August 2022. The Maxwell School is interested in candidates who can contribute to the inclusiveness and diversity of the academic community through their research, teaching, and/or service.

APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS:
For consideration, candidates must complete an online faculty application (available at https://www.sujobopps.com/postings/87786/) and attach online the following: a letter of interest and a CV, a research statement, a sample of professional writing, a statement of teaching philosophy, a statement about diversity, equity and inclusion, and evidence of quality teaching. Files may be no larger than 5MB, but you may submit an external link to a larger file if needed.

In addition, applicants will be required to provide the full email addresses of three references.

Applications will be reviewed as they arrive with full consideration given to those received by October 4, 2021. However, the department will continue to consider applications until this position is filled.

University of Chicago
Rank: Assistant Professor in Latinx Politics

The Department of Political Science at the University of Chicago invites applications for an Assistant Professor in Latinx politics. While we are primarily interested in someone who studies Latinx politics within the United States, we welcome applications from scholars who also investigate these issues from a comparative or transnational perspective that includes a focus on the U.S. Among the goals of this search is increasing the diversity of the faculty in the Department of Political Science, and we, therefore, welcome applicants from groups that are historically underrepresented in the academy.

Qualifications
Candidates must have completed all requirements for the PhD degree prior to the start of the appointment.

Application Instructions
Applicants must apply at the University of Chicago’s Interfolio website at http://apply.interfolio.com/92390. Applications must include: 1) a cover letter that, among other things, describes the applicant’s prior and potential contributions to diversity in the context of academic research, teaching, and service; 2) a curriculum vita; 3) a research statement addressing current research and future plans for research; 4) a teaching statement addressing teaching experience and philosophy; 5) two samples of scholarly writing, and 6) three letters of reference.

To be considered, those interested must apply through The University of Chicago’s Academic Recruitment job board, which uses Interfolio to accept applications.

Review of applications will begin on September 16, 2021. Only shortlisted candidates will be contacted.

Denison University

Rank: Assistant or Associate Professor

The Department of Politics and Public Affairs at Denison University invites applications for a tenure-track vacancy in the institutions of American government, beginning Fall 2022. We welcome applications for a tenure-track position at the Assistant or Associate Professor level.

We seek applicants whose research and teaching emphasizes the study of US national institutions, with a preference for a focus on the judiciary or public law. The successful candidate must have the demonstrated ability to teach an introductory course in political theory.

Our newly inaugurated program offers our students an integrated view of the discipline that emphasizes linkages between theory and practice; our major is structured as a learning community, where undergraduates pursue a track of interest along the lines of the traditional subfields and have multiple opportunities to share their knowledge with peers. We require our majors to complement their classroom experiences with an off-campus learning component. We are enthusiastic about our new approach to teaching about politics and public affairs, and we seek a new colleague who shares our excitement.

Preference will be given to applicants who provide evidence of teaching effectiveness from college-level courses independently taught and who show promise of a strong record of publication. We seek to hire a new colleague with broad training in political science. The successful candidate is expected to have significant interest in and demonstrated ability to be effective at undergraduate teaching in a liberal arts setting, and in contributing to the integration of the theoretical with experiential elements of our new major. The prospective teacher-scholar also will support the University’s commitment to liberal arts education, be an active participant in departmental and university governance, and develop a program of research leading to peer-reviewed publication.

Denison offers a 3-2 teaching load. After a successful Third Year Review, a one-semester junior leave is available in the fourth year.
Candidates with a Ph.D. in Political Science or similar field by start date is required (ABD will be considered as Instructor until Ph.D. is attained). Independent teaching experience (beyond TA) strongly preferred. Our college is committed to attracting and supporting an academically and culturally diverse faculty; preference will be given to candidates who demonstrate a commitment to foster a classroom and research environment that engages students from diverse backgrounds.

Denison offers extensive support for faculty, including professional-development funding, opportunities for student-faculty research collaboration, and a range of workshops and other professional development opportunities to cultivate our strengths as teacher-scholars.

Applications must be submitted online at: https://employment.denison.edu and should include: letter of application; curriculum vitae; contact information for three letters of reference; statement addressing the candidate’s teaching interests and scholarly agenda (including estimated time frame of completion of the dissertation if applicable); transcript (official or unofficial); teaching evaluations or other evidence of demonstrated or potential excellence in undergraduate instruction; at least two sample syllabi (including a lower division introductory course in political theory and an upper division course in the institutions of American government) that reflect the kinds of courses the candidate would teach.

To ensure full consideration, completed applications must be received by October 11, 2021.

Denison University is an increasingly diverse, highly selective, residential liberal arts college enrolling approximately 2300 students from across the nation and around the world. Our college is committed to attracting and supporting an academically and culturally diverse faculty. Granville is located just 30 minutes from the Columbus metropolitan area, the state capital.

University of Washington

Rank: Assistant Professor: Law, Societies & Justice
Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Other

Position Description
The Department of Law, Societies & Justice (LSJ) at the University of Washington in Seattle invites applications for a full-time, tenure track Assistant Professor who specializes in the social scientific study of race/ethnicity as it relates to law, rights, and justice. This position holds a 9-month service term and is expected to start in September 2022. LSJ offers undergraduate students a dynamic and engaged interdisciplinary liberal arts education focused on law, rights, and justice. LSJ also offers a graduate certificate in socio-legal studies for PhD students from a variety of disciplines. The successful candidate will teach a large introductory course that focuses on law, rights, and justice as well as other courses that reflect their areas of expertise. University of Washington faculty engage in teaching, research and service.

Qualifications
LSJ seeks to hire a scholar whose research and teaching focus on race, ethnicity, law, and rights, and whose scholarship includes topics not currently covered by the department such as environmental justice or health. Other considerations will include: evidence of research excellence and productivity; evidence in, and passion for, undergraduate teaching; interdisciplinarity and fit with the LSJ mission; service, leadership and collegiality; and clear evidence of a commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion. A PhD or foreign equivalent in a social science field is required by the start of the appointment.

Instructions
Applications should include a current CV, a cover letter describing research and teaching interests and fit with LSJ, up to two samples of publications or other scholarly work, a teaching statement and evidence of teaching effectiveness, a diversity, equity and inclusion statement, and three letters of recommendation. Candidate materials should be electronically submitted via Interfolio here: https://apply.interfolio.com/90932. Review of applications will begin on September 30, 2021. Occidental College

Rank: Assistant Professor in American Politics

Assistant Professor in American Politics (Tenure-Track)

Politics Department

The Politics Department at Occidental College invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor in American Politics to begin in August 2022. Scholars may approach the study of American Politics with a specialization in political institutions or political behavior. For political institutions, we seek a scholar whose focus includes the legislative branch, the presidency, political parties, and/or the media. For political behavior, we seek a scholar whose primary interests lie in elections and voting or public opinion. The new hire will teach five courses per year (with a reduced four-course load in the first year), will have an active research agenda, and will contribute to departmental and College service.

Strong candidates will design and teach a wide variety of courses attractive to undergraduate students. Preference will be given to applicants willing to teach Introduction to American Politics and Public Policy and qualitative or quantitative methods. Preference will also be given to applicants whose Politics courses could be cross-listed with other departments on campus (e.g., Media Arts and Culture Department, Diplomacy and World Affairs Department, Latino/a and Latin American Studies Program, or the Department of Black Studies) and who can contribute to the College’s first-year writing program. Strong candidates will be thoughtful in their pedagogical approaches, will seek continually to improve their teaching, and will possess a record of or potential for teaching excellence. Strong candidates will also possess a record of or potential for strong scholarship in the discipline of political science.

Applicants should submit the following materials—as separate files—to polssearch@oxy.edu by September 10, 2021. (1) a cover letter detailing your interest in teaching in a diverse liberal arts environment, a brief discussion of your pedagogical approach and teaching experience and interests in American politics, and current scholarship in American politics; (2) a current CV; (3) a teaching packet with two components: (i) a teaching philosophy that includes a demonstrated commitment to, past evidence of, and future plans for creating equitable opportunities for learning and mentoring especially for underrepresented students and (ii) evidence of teaching effectiveness, such as syllabi, peer evaluations, and student evaluations; (4) a research statement; and (5) one writing sample, which may be a job market paper or peer-reviewed journal article. Candidates should arrange for submission of three confidential letters of recommendation to polssearch@oxy.edu also by September 10, 2021. At least one of which should address evidence of or potential for teaching. Inquiries about the position may be directed to Jennifer M. Piscopo, Chair of the Politics Department, at piscopo@oxy.edu.

Salary is commensurate with experience and qualifications. Summer research grants, moving expenses, start-up funds, and a reduced teaching load may be available. A comprehensive benefits package is available that includes: excellent health, dental, life, and retirement benefits; tuition benefits for the employee, spouse, domestic partner, and dependents; additional extras including use of gym facilities and the College Library. For a detailed description of benefits, please visit https://www.oxy.edu/offices-services/human-resources/benefits-information.

We will consider for employment all qualified applicants, including those with criminal histories, in a manner consistent with the requirements of applicable state and local laws, including the City of Los Angeles’ Fair Chance Initiative for Hiring Ordinance.

Occidental College is committed to working with and providing reasonable accommodations to applicants with qualifying disabilities. If you need a reasonable accommodation because of a disability for any part of the application or employment process, please contact Human Resources (hr@oxy.edu).

University of Portland
Rank: Assistant Professor American (U.S.) Politics (Tenure Track)
Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Political Development, Political Economy

The Department of Political Science and Global Affairs (POL) at the University of Portland invites candidates in the field of American (US) Politics to apply for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position with a start date of August 2022. The successful candidate must have a Ph.D. in hand by the start date, and will have expertise in American Political Development and Political Institutions or equivalent. A commitment to undergraduate teaching is essential, ideally supported by past evidence of effective teaching. The typical teaching load is 3-3, with a single course release in the first year.

In addition to teaching sections of our introductory core course, Introduction to US Politics, the successful candidate will also offer upper-division undergraduate courses on American political institutions and other courses within the candidate’s academic specialty. Candidates that have expertise in Race and Politics, Public Policy, or Political Economy are of particular interest to our department. Demonstration of scholarship and a scholarly agenda are also expected and should be included in the cover letter. This position is part of a cluster hire and the successful candidate may also have the opportunity to be involved with the emerging ethnic studies program.

The College of Arts and Science (CAS) is committed to diversifying our curriculum and our faculty. The successful candidate will have demonstrated knowledge, skills, and/or lived experience, in diversity, equity, and inclusion work within or transferable to higher education. Examples of such commitment include, but are not limited to, a record of working with underrepresented and underserved populations, life experience that reflects the growing diversity of UP students, and/or experience, education, and training that can empower and support historically marginalized community members. Commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion should be described in the teaching statement. Information about the University of Portland’s DEI mission can be found here.

Founded in 1901, the University of Portland is a private, comprehensive, Catholic university with a mission of teaching and learning, faith and formation, service and leadership. In the POL department, we see our work developing the whole person and preparing people who respond to the needs of the world and its human family as aligning with the University’s mission. Candidates will articulate their understanding of the university mission in their cover letter and highlight how it is compatible with their approach to teaching, scholarship, and service.

A complete application will include a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, a teaching statement, and a list of three references (references will only be contacted for the finalists).

A background investigation is required before final hiring procedures can be completed for all faculty and staff positions. All supporting materials should be submitted through this HireTouchLink (https://up.hiretoucgh.com/job-details?jobid=70388) by our priority deadline of October 8, 2021, though applications arriving later will also be considered.

This position is designed for instructors who prioritize good pedagogy and student mentoring. The normal teaching load is 3-3 and includes a mix of smaller and larger classes. The primary, though not exclusive, teaching responsibility is Introduction to American Politics. Candidates with previous experience teaching Introduction to American Government as instructor of record and experience teaching a mix of online and face-to-face courses are especially welcome. In addition to teaching, the position entails service responsibilities that could include social media and outreach, and participating on various departmental committees.

To be considered, candidates must have received a PhD or be nearing completion of their doctoral training (ABD) from an accredited degree program in political science or closely related degree program. Preference, however, will be given to candidates who have received their doctoral degree by the start of appointment. Initial appointment is for three years (which includes a probationary period) but can be renewed for additional terms.

Applications completed and received by Oct. 15, 2021 will be given preference. Applicants are asked to have the following submitted through Interfolio https://apply.interfolio.com/90122. A letter of application outlining your interest in this position, teaching interests/experience, vitae, graduate transcripts, three letters of recommendation, evidence of successful teaching, and a short teaching statement.

The department is committed to creating an inclusive space for our students, faculty, and staff and to teaching and mentoring our undergraduate and graduate scholars from various backgrounds. The department encourages applications from women and underrepresented racial/ethnic groups. Among our tenure-track faculty, 9 percent are from underrepresented racial/ethnic groups and 55 percent are female. OSU is an AA/EEO/E-Verify Employer. Connecticut College
Rank: Assistant Professor of Government and International Relations

Constitutional Law and Public Policy
The Department of Government and International Relations at Connecticut College invites applicants for a tenure-track position as an Assistant Professor in the U.S. politics subfield, whose focus is on constitutional law and public policy, and who can teach a range of courses in both fields. In addition to an introductory U.S. politics course, the successful candidate must be able to teach a two-course sequence in constitutional law, including both an institutions course (e.g. separation of powers, check and balances) and a course on civil rights and civil liberties. The successful candidate’s research and teaching focus will also include public-policy making. The new hire should be able to teach an introductory public policy course, along with upper-division courses in the particular policy area in which the candidate specializes. These policy courses could, for example, focus on health, immigration, anti-poverty initiatives, education, or criminal-justice reform.

Required: ABD in Political Science. Candidates must have the Ph.D. in hand at the time of appointment to be hired as an Assistant Professor; a candidate may be hired as an Instructor if the candidate does not have a Ph.D. in hand at the time of appointment, but is required to complete the Ph.D. within one year of hire.

Salary is competitive. In addition to providing ongoing support for teaching and research, the College offers the following resources for pre-tenured faculty: a 2-2 teaching load in the first year, a research fund in the first two years, and a semester’s sabbatical (at full salary) after a successful third-year review.

The College’s Board of Trustees, President, administration, faculty and staff share a commitment to diversity. To this end, the College, located in New London, CT is continuing what has been a very successful initiative to diversify its faculty, staff, and student body. We encourage applications from candidates who share this understanding and will contribute to the diversity of our college community, including members of historically underrepresented groups. The College is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. Please visit our website, http://www.conncoll.edu http://www.conncoll.edu /&amp;&gt;, for more information about the College and our faculty searches.

Offering two popular majors (a government major and an interdisciplinary international relations major), Government and International Relations is a collegial department with 11 full-time faculty members.
There are also opportunities for collaboration with interdisciplinary programs on campus. Moreover, the College’s general education program, Connections, provides ample opportunity for collaborative and interdisciplinary teaching. For an overview of this innovative curriculum, please visit http://www.conncoll.edu/connections/ &lt;/a&gt;

Applicants should upload a letter of application, a C.V., teaching evaluations, a writing sample, graduate transcripts, and at least three letters of recommendation to http://apply.interfolio.com/89957 http://apply.interfolio.com/89957&lts;/a&gt;. Email inquiries should be sent to Tristan Anne Borer, Chair of the Department of Government and International Relations, at tabor@conncoll.edu. Applications received by October 8th will receive full consideration.

University of Missouri-Kansas City

Rank: Assistant Teaching Professor

The Department of Political Science at the University of Missouri-Kansas City invites applications for a full-time, non-tenure track Assistant Teaching Professor position in American politics effective Fall 2022, renewable annually. This position is responsible for teaching four courses per semester including teaching multiple sections of Introduction to American Government or another course in our general education curriculum. The successful candidate will also participate in service activities such as advising, curriculum development, online course development, student recruiting, and student retention.

We are particularly interested in a commitment to excellence in college teaching and engagement with underrepresented and historically marginalized students and colleagues. We are open to subfield specialization, but we especially welcome applicants that can offer a course in racial and ethnic politics.

The University of Missouri-Kansas City is a public research institution, situated at the heart of a thriving and diverse urban area, with a strong economy, an enriching culture and arts scene, excellent schools, numerous recreational amenities, and affordable cost of living. We especially encourage applications from candidates who will contribute, through their teaching and service, to the diversity and excellence of UMKC and the broader civic community.

Minimum Qualifications

A Ph.D. in political science or a closely related field and successful teaching experience at the college level. ABD will also be considered.

Commitment to Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion

Diversity, equity, and inclusion are central to UMKC’s mission as an urban-serving institution. Kansas City is a particularly diverse city, including African, African American, Asian, Latino, Italian, Irish, German, Native American, Slavic, Mediterranean and Middle Eastern communities. Such ethnic diversity, in addition to our thriving neighborhoods of the Westside, Northeast Kansas City, and the Eastside, fosters creativity, connection, and innovation, which is showcased across the region. Major attractions such as the Annual Ethnic Enrichment Festival, the Negro Leagues Baseball Museum, the Filipino Cultural Center, the American Jazz Museum, Guadalupe Centers and Mattie Rhodes and Kansas City Irish Fest are a small sample of the many ways our diverse city enriches us.

For the reasons enumerated above, UMKC’s strategic plan prioritizes our commitment to multiculturalism, globalization, diversity and inclusion. The university’s values call upon its faculty, staff, students, and community to position themselves as global citizens who seek out, embrace, and celebrate the many benefits of diversity. Such commitment is demonstrated across teaching, service and research. We welcome applicants to share in our commitment to these core values and know that you will quickly understand the beauty of calling Kansas City your home.

Boston University
Rank: Maxwell Professor in United States Citizenship
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Political Theory

The Department of Political Science at Boston University seeks to appoint the Maxwell Professor in United States Citizenship at the rank of advanced Associate or full Professor, with tenure, to begin in Fall 2022. Applicants in Political Science, from the subfields of American Politics, Comparative Politics, Political Economy, Public Policy, Political Theory, are encouraged to apply. We wish to recruit an intellectual leader with a distinguished record of scholarship who brings a critical lens on the development and meaning of citizenship.

When George B. Maxwell established this Professorship in September 1918 the First World War was not yet concluded and citizenship was — in both de jure and de facto senses — narrowly defined. Indian Reservations were being consolidated, the Espionage and Sedition Acts of WWI limited free speech, Jim Crow was in force, the 19th Amendment to the US Constitution granting women the right to vote had not been passed, and the purpose and limits of immigration were contested. The Maxwell Professorship supports scholars engaged in fostering an “intelligent understanding and appreciation of the rights, duties, inheritances and possibilities of our citizenship.” A Maxwell Chair holder could understand citizenship broadly; for example, in the context of American political development, the tensions between communitarianism and cosmopolitanism, political theories of citizenship, or in comparative perspective. In keeping with George Maxwell’s vision, we seek a scholar who is engaged in both public education and academic discourse.

Boston University offers a rich and vibrant academic community for interdisciplinary research on citizenship; the Maxwell Professorship offers the opportunity to develop connections across disciplines, programs and centers. The candidate will teach both undergraduate and graduate courses. We seek candidates who prioritize inclusive practices in their scholarship, pedagogy, and campus engagement.

Please submit a letter of interest to https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/18615. The application must also include: a curriculum vitae, research and teaching statements, a list of references and a statement about your record of inclusion. Completed applications are due on 4 October 2021.

We are an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. We are a VEVRAA Federal Contractor.

About Georgetown University and the Government Department

The Government Department at Georgetown is a leading department of Political Science. We are an open, dynamic, and publicly engaged community of scholars, students, and professional staff. We believe in the ideal of scholarship for its own sake but are also deeply committed to the role of cutting-edge research in informing politics and public life. We see our setting in Washington, DC as a rich opportunity for the study of politics, particularly within the field of race, ethnicity and identity politics and we particularly welcome applications from scholars whose research strives to connect the local and particular with broader forces and constructs within political life.

Georgetown University is one of the world’s leading academic and research institutions, offering a unique educational experience that prepares the next generation of global citizens to lead and make a difference in the world. We are a vibrant community of exceptional students, faculty, alumni and professionals dedicated to real-world applications of our research, scholarship, faith and service.

Established in 1789, Georgetown is the nation’s oldest Catholic and Jesuit university. Drawing upon the 450-year-old legacy of Jesuit education, we provide students with a world-class learning experience focused on educating the whole person through exposure to different faiths, cultures and beliefs.

Georgetown University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer fully dedicated to achieving a diverse faculty and staff. All qualified applicants are encouraged to apply and will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, age, sex (including pregnancy, gender identity and expression, and sexual orientation), disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

If you are a qualified individual with a disability and need a reasonable accommodation for any part of the application and hiring process, please click here for more information, or contact the Office of Institutional Diversity, Equity & Affirmative Action (IDEAA) at (202) 687-4798. We encourage applications from individuals who will contribute to diversity in higher education and who show the potential to advance the department’s goal of a more diverse, equitable, and inclusive scholarly environment.

Baldwin-Wallace University

Rank: Assistant Professor, Political Science
Specializations: East Asia, International Security, Middle East

Rank: Assistant Professor-Political Science
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Politics and Global Citizenship at Baldwin Wallace (BW) University invites applications for a tenure-track appointment in Political Science effective August 2022. Applicants must be committed to undergraduate education and demonstrate the potential for excellence in all facets of a faculty appointment, especially teaching.

The Department welcomes applications from candidates who will build on existing programs and areas of strength in the Department and help us continue supporting interdisciplinary programs on regional studies at BW. The position is intended to meet and expand curricular needs within the Department; to broaden the Department’s experiential learning opportunities; and to contribute to initiatives in the College of Arts and Sciences and to Baldwin Wallace University’s mission of assisting students in their preparation to become contributing, compassionate citizens of an increasingly global society and encourages their pursuit of personal and professional excellence.

Broadly trained specialists with expertise in comparative politics or related fields are encouraged to apply. Candidates should demonstrate experience and expertise in teaching, advising, and a willingness to contribute to the Department’s experiential learning opportunities we offer to our student body. The successful hire will assist in the curricular development of the Department’s growing undergraduate programs in International Studies, Legal Studies, National Security, and Political Science.

A Ph.D. in Political Science or a related area by the time of appointment, interdisciplinary expertise, teaching experience in related areas, and willingness to mentor undergraduate students are required. Relevant teaching and/or professional experience in non-traditional security areas (e.g., disruptive technologies, resource scarcity, climate change, infectious diseases, human security, etc.) and regional expertise, preferably in East Asia or the Middle East, would be desirable. The successful candidate will be expected to teach the introductory courses in American Government and Comparative Politics, and the entry-level course on research design and political methodology. Other courses to teach would relate to the new hire’s specialization areas.

Baldwin Wallace University is a selective liberal arts university on the outskirts of Cleveland, Ohio. Its Political Science, International Studies, National Security, and Legal Studies programs currently serve approximately one-hundred majors and minors while playing an active role in campus internationalization. BW emphasizes teaching, advising, and service and also encourages and supports scholarship.

Interested candidates should submit a letter summarizing their interest and qualifications, curriculum vitae, teaching evaluations, other evidence of effective teaching, and three letters of reference in one (1)
SUNY, Cortland

Rank: Assistant Professor

Specializations: Central Asia, East Asia, Latin American

The SUNY Cortland Political Science department is seeking a tenure-track faculty member at the rank of Assistant Professor with a focus on comparative politics and a regional specialization in Asia or Latin America. We have particular interest in scholars who specialize in terrorism, revolutions, international politics, international economic relations or international conflict. Expertise in international relations also highly desirable.

The successful candidate will teach introductory and upper division courses in the undergraduate curriculum (e.g., Introduction to World Politics, American Foreign Policy, Comparative Politics Asia Comparative Politics Latin America). They may also teach a basic methods course. The typical load is three classes per semester.

SUNY Cortland has a strong commitment to the affirmation of diversity and offers courses addressing inclusion studies and global diversity, as well as interdisciplinary programs in Africana Studies, Latinx and Latin American Studies, Women’s Gender and Sexuality Studies and Native American Studies.

The Political Science department is a mid-size, undergraduate-teaching department in the school of Arts and Sciences, and is one of the most active and visible in the University. The department has about 100 majors, and is composed of eight full-time faculty, and several adjuncts. Key departmental programs include the Political Science major, Adolescence Education with a concentration in Political Science, a concentration in Law and Justice, and a B.S. degree in Public Administration and Policy.

Candidates for this position should demonstrate: a strong commitment to teaching and research, with a willingness to collaborate with other colleagues on campus in a variety of experiential activities (e.g., Model UN, Study Abroad); engagement in service to the department, school, university, local community and profession; a commitment to diversity, equity and inclusion and social justice and support for an equitable and diverse scholarly environment.

Required qualifications: PhD in Political Science by appointment date or ABD with a scheduled completion date; Teaching and research focus on Comparative Politics or International Relations and higher education teaching experience.

Interested candidates should electronically submit 1) a letter of application summarizing qualifications and research interests, 2) a curriculum vita, 3) the names and contact information for at least three references, 4) a statement of teaching philosophy to include evidence of teaching effectiveness, including sample syllabi, if available, 5) a copy of transcript for their highest or most recent degree and 6) a published work or writing sample. https://jobs.cortland.edu/postings/5108

Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Immigration Policy, Social Welfare

The Department of Political Science at the University of Illinois Springfield (UIS) seeks applicants for a tenure-track faculty position at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning August 2022. The department seeks candidates with expertise in the politics of race, ethnicity, identity and/or inequality (broadly construed) as well as teaching interests in research methods. We seek applicants whose teaching and research focus on the politics of race, ethnicity, identity and/or inequality in the context of American Politics, Comparative Politics, or International Relations. The successful candidate is expected to teach undergraduate and graduate courses both online and on-ground in their area of specialization as well as in their broader subfields, contribute to the department’s research methods curriculum, and chair MA theses and comprehensive exams. The candidate is also expected to pursue an active research agenda and engage in service activities.

Candidates must hold a Ph.D. in Political Science by August 16, 2022. Candidates must demonstrate potential for excellence in teaching, scholarship, and service. Prior teaching experience at the college or university level is required. The regular teaching load for tenure-track appointments is 3-3. The successful candidate will have opportunities to receive course relief for curriculum development or scholarship.

This is a full-time on-campus position tenure-track academic appointment. UIS tenure-system faculty are expected to be available and engaged in the campus community, with assigned professional responsibilities for teaching, scholarship, and service.

The UIS Department of Political Science offers excellent academic preparation and opportunities to become engaged in real world politics for both undergraduate and graduate students. We offer undergraduate and graduate degrees in political science, and majors in public policy and global studies. Students also have the opportunity to receive a minor in political science and global studies. Several of these programs are fully online or on campus. The department has recently undergone a rigorous and exciting academic reorganization into a School of Politics and International Affairs, whose administrative structure will finalize in 2022.

One of the largest departments in the College of Public Affairs and Administration, the UIS Department of Political Science offers an opportunity for our students to live politics in the classroom, on the

More About UIS & Our Springfield Community:

The University of Illinois Springfield (UIS) is a premier public university that provides students with a high-quality liberal arts education, exceptional public affairs opportunities, and outstanding professional preparation programs. UIS is one of three universities of the world-class University of Illinois system and has been ranked by US News & World Report as one of the top 10 regional public universities in the Midwest.

UIS celebrates its diversity with a campus comprised of students and faculty of various ages, backgrounds, and ethnicities. Faculty members are accomplished teacher-scholars, and UIS has a national reputation for innovation in teaching and excellence in online education. Located in the state capital, UIS has established a reputation for Leadership lived, based upon four core strengths: the educational richness of its teaching-focused academic experience; the abundant opportunities it provides for students to collaborate with faculty and gain practical experience through institutional partners; the right-sized supportive community it offers; and its tradition of educating public servants and leaders in private and public sectors. UIS is a community-engaged campus whose students contribute over 66,000 hours of community service each year.

The surrounding Springfield community offers a wonderful quality of life. A lively entertainment scene includes jazz, blues, community theatre, municipal opera, comedy, and live music, including downtown music festivals. Additional cultural and sporting attractions are conveniently located a few hours away in St. Louis, Chicago, and Indianapolis. With a population of about 117,000, Springfield offers great restaurants, shopping, and other city amenities while retaining the friendliness and affordability of small-town living (and without the heavy traffic). The area also has a wide variety of recreational opportunities, including biking and hiking trails, ice rinks, sports complexes, and several first-class golf courses. Lake Springfield offers fishing, boating, and other recreational water activities. Springfield is also home to a wildlife sanctuary, zoo, lakeside memorial gardens, botanical gardens, and one of the world’s largest carillons.

Springfield was home to Abraham Lincoln, our nation’s sixteenth president and one of its most famous political figures. A historical downtown area features the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library & Museum, the Old State Capitol, the Lincoln historical district, historic reenactments and events, the Illinois State Museum, and a variety of specialty shops and restaurants which make Springfield the most prominent tourist destination in central Illinois.

Augustana University

Rank: Nef Family Chair of Political Economy

Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

Specializations: International Political Economy, Political Economy, Economic Policy

The Nef Family Chair of Political Economy

Augustana University

Augustana University (Sioux Falls, SD) invites applications for an endowed chair in political economy. The Rudy & Marilyn Nef Family

Chair of Political Economy will advance the study of market economies and representative democracies, both within the campus community and in the region. This tenure-track faculty position will be housed in the Government and International Affairs Department, but will draw on a breadth of research and extensive teaching experience to provide recognized scholarship and enthusiastic, effective instruction to the University’s offerings in economics, political science, public policy, and business. The Nef Family Chair will also provide collaborative and creative leadership in partnership with the Center for Interdisciplinary Studies.

We seek an outstanding teacher/scholar who reflects the foundational relevance of economic analysis in the design and administration of public policies, and who speaks authoritatively to the positive role of free markets, localized decision making and competition in a free society. The unique nature of this endowed chair position grants wide latitude to the instructor in terms of the courses offered, save a required course on capitalistic economic systems. Candidates capable of teaching upper-level Comparative Politics, Comparative/International Political Economy, Policy Analysis or Microeconomics are strongly couraged to apply.

Additional responsibilities will include student advising, student research mentorship, and planning and facilitating public symposia relevant to the scholar’s teaching and research. Interacting with students, faculty and leadership with different backgrounds and points of view and a deep appreciation of and respect for academic values and culture must be a top value of the candidate. A doctorate is required. Compensation, rank and length of tenure track will be commensurate with experience. The starting date for this 12-month appointment is August, 2022. Screening will begin November 7th and continue until the position is filled. Finalists will be expected to present an engaging topic as part of the interview process.

POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP

The Institute for the Study of Citizens and Politics at the University of Pennsylvania (http://iscap.upenn.edu/) invites applications to fill a postdoctoral fellowship position for the 2022-2023 academic year. Applications are welcomed from scholars in any social science field who have received their Ph.D. in the last two years, or who expect to complete their degree by June 30, 2022. The term of appointment is July 1, 2022-June 30, 2023, with the possibility of renewal.

The Institute for the Study of Citizens and Politics (ISCAP) is a non-partisan research institute jointly supported by the University of Pennsylvania’s School of Arts and Sciences and the Annenberg School for Communication. The ISCAP postdoctoral fellow will work within and help manage a research group led by Professor Diana Mutz, Director of ISCAP. The postdoctoral fellow is expected to pursue his or her own research agenda while also actively working on team projects. The fellow will also coordinate effort among team members, including Ph.D. students and undergraduate research assistants.

Founded in 2003, ISCAP promotes research on public opinion, political psychology, and political communication. Its purpose is to enable research in the many ways in which citizens interact with the political world, broadly construed. The current research emphases at ISCAP include studies of public opinion, political psychology, elections and voting behavior, attitudes toward globalization, and the impact of media. Scholars with interests in these areas are particularly encouraged to apply. In addition to interest in these topics, any previous methodological training or experience designing experiments and/or analyzing panel data are especially valued.

Qualifications, Requirements, and Application Information

Postdoctoral fellow positions pay a stipend of $60,000 plus relevant fees and health insurance. The position also comes with $7,000 in funds for research support and professional travel.

The ISCAP Postdoctoral Fellow will pursue their own research and also participate in the activities of the Center. Because the fellow is expected to be fully integrated with the intellectual life of the University, they must plan to physically reside in the vicinity of the University of Pennsylvania. To apply, please send a C.V., a research statement, a writing sample, and three letters of recommendation to iscap.upenn@gmail.com.

The University of Pennsylvania is an EO/AA employer and we welcome applications from women and minorities. We will accept applications beginning immediately, and may conduct virtual interviews. Applicants will be notified of the outcome just as soon as a decision is made.

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Comparative Politics

The Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs at Brown University aspires to promote a just and peaceful world through research, teaching, and public engagement. Central to this mission is the Watson Postdoctoral Fellows Program, an effort to galvanize the careers of young social scientists conducting research related to the Institute’s three core thematic areas: development, governance, and security. Participants in this program will join an interdisciplinary community of scholars engaged in theoretically and substantively important research addressing the most pressing global issues of our time. Fellows receive two years of support, to be taken within a three-year period, with the expectation that they will pursue research and participate fully in the intellectual life of the Institute. Fellows will also teach one course per year in the Institute or in an affiliated Brown University social science department.

Founded in 1764, Brown is a leading research university distinct for its student-centered learning and deep sense of purpose. Brown University students, faculty, and staff are driven by the idea that their work will have an impact on the world. Brown is a place where rigorous scholarship, complex problem-solving, and service to the public good are defined by collaboration, intellectual discovery, and working in ways that transcend traditional disciplinary boundaries.

To receive full consideration, the following materials should be submitted by October 12, 2021 to the application portal:

- A cover letter stating the applicant’s academic field, status of their dissertation, and proposed research to be conducted during their fellowship period. The cover letter should not exceed 2,000 words and should make clear where in the Institute’s core areas of security, development, or governance the proposed research best fits. Please also include a statement about teaching in a diverse and inclusive classroom.
- An up-to-date curriculum vitae.
- A copy of each graduate transcript.
- A writing sample.
- Three letters of recommendation from scholars familiar with the applicant’s research.
- Review of applications will begin on October 12; to receive full consideration applications should be received by that date. Awards will be announced in January 2022.

Fairfield University

Rank: Assistant Professor, Comparative Politics

The Politics Department at Fairfield University invites applications for an assistant professor position in Comparative Politics – with a teaching and research focus on Asia. We are particularly interested in individuals whose teaching and research interests involve China or India. The instructor will offer an introductory course in comparative politics, courses in Asian politics, and courses in their areas of specialization. An interest in teaching International Political Economy and/or the ability to teach an introductory course in another subfield would be an asset. The normal teaching load is three undergraduate courses each semester. The salary and benefits for this position are highly competitive.

Applicants are expected to have completed a Ph.D. by September 2022. Applicants must have a strong commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching. Teaching experience is preferred.

Fairfield University is a comprehensive, co-educational, Jesuit university with a 200-acre campus located in the scenic shoreline community of Fairfield, CT, one hour from New York City. Consistently ranked as a top comprehensive university in New England, Fairfield enrolls approximately 4,500 undergraduate and 1,200 graduate students pursuing degrees within the College of Arts and Sciences and four schools: The Charles F. Dolan School of Business, The Marion Peckham Egan School of Nursing and Health Studies, The School of Engineering, and The School of Education and Human Development. As an expression of our Jesuit identity, Fairfield embraces a liberal humanistic approach to education, encouraging critical thinking, cultivating free and open inquiry, and fostering ethical values.

The Politics department consists of nine faculty members representing a range of specialties in Political Science and related programs at Fairfield University that reflect the rich diversity of our academic community, including International Studies, Environmental Studies, Humanitarian Action, Asian Studies, American Studies, Black Studies, Latin American and Caribbean Studies, Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies, Islamic World Studies, and the graduate program in Public Administration (MPA). The Department has a vibrant culture of undergraduate student-faculty research collaboration, annual events, guest lectures, and student participation in area and interdisciplinary studies. Fairfield University, through Global Fairfield, the Center for Social Impact, and Campus Ministry, offers many opportunities for community engagement and immersive learning experiences locally, nationally, and internationally. The Dolan School of Business offers an MBA program for professionals in Shanghai, China.

Fairfield University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer, committed to excellence through diversity, and, in this spirit, particularly welcomes applications from persons of color, women, veterans, and members of historically underrepresented groups. The University will provide reasonable accommodations to all qualified individuals with disabilities.

Loyola University, Chicago
Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor, Comparative Politics

2021-22 Search in the College of Arts and Sciences
Department of Political Science
Tenure-Track Assistant Professor, Comparative Politics

Job Title: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor of Political Science (Comparative Politics)

Background: The Department of Political Science in the College of Arts and Sciences at Loyola University Chicago (LUC) invites applications for a full-time tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor, for academic year 2022-23.

As part of a University-wide, multiyear hiring initiative designed to diversify the faculty, the department seeks applicants with expertise in Comparative Politics. We seek a Comparativist who specializes in politics in Latin America. As an urban-based Department of Political Science dedicated to mentoring a diverse student body, many of whom come from under-represented and under-served populations, we especially encourage applications from candidates from under-represented groups. We also encourage applications from scholars committed to interdisciplinarity (i.e., working with colleagues across different subfields and disciplines) and the successful pursuit of external grants. If a candidate were to have additional expertise in Latinx politics and could teach a course in that area, we would take that into consideration. The successful candidate will be joining a department with more than 20 full-time faculty members, over 650 majors and 100 minors, and five graduate programs (BA/MA, MA/JD, MA, and PhD in Political Science and MA in International Affairs). For more information about the department, please visit its website at http://www.luc.edu/politicalscience/index.shtml

Duties and Responsibilities: Successful candidates will be expected to teach an introductory course in Comparative Politics, and, according to their expertise, upper division undergraduate and graduate comparative politics courses, as well as one of the department’s regional politics courses. They may also develop special topics courses in conversation with the Department Chair and according to departmental needs. Additionally, they will be expected to support the department’s student-related programming and academic advising according to the practices of the department and to serve on departmental and university committees as designated by the Department Chair. The successful candidate is expected to pursue a strong research program, including the pursuit of external grants.

Minimum Qualifications: The candidate will have a Ph.D. in Political Science at the time of appointment. Candidates for the position must clearly demonstrate the potential for excellence in research and teaching and have a record of (or clear potential for) distinguished scholarship, grant-funded research, and student mentorship. Experience working or conducting research in the specialty area of Comparative Politics is desirable. The candidate should be willing to support the mission of LUC and the goals of a Jesuit Catholic Education.

Special Instructions to Applicants: Candidates should submit to www.careers.luc.edu (1) a brief letter of interest; (2) a current Curriculum Vitae; (3) a statement outlining the applicant’s research agenda; (4) a statement on teaching experience; (5) a statement addressing past and/or potential contributions to mentoring a diverse student body through research, teaching and other channels and engaging a diverse community through scholarship and service; and (6) additional relevant materials, including teaching assessments where available and representative writing samples. Applicants should also arrange for three recommendations from individuals prepared to speak to their professional qualifications for this position, especially in terms of scholarship, teaching and mentorship, to be submitted electronically to the above website (letter writers will receive an electronic prompt from LUC). Candidates may address additional questions about the search in correspondence with:

Patrick Boyle, Ph.D., Search Committee Chair
Department of Political Science
Loyola University Chicago
1032 W. Sheridan Road
Chicago, Illinois 60660
pboyle@luc.edu

Review of applications will begin on October 18, 2021 and continue until the position is filled.

LUC is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer with a strong commitment to hiring for our mission and diversifying our faculty. The University seeks to increase the diversity of its professoriate, workforce and undergraduate and graduate student populations because broad diversity – including a wide range of individuals who contribute to a robust academic environment – is critical to achieving the University’s mission of excellence in education, research, educational access and services in an increasingly diverse society. Therefore, in holistically accessing the many qualifications of each applicant, we would factor favorably an individual’s record of conduct that includes experience with an array of diverse perspectives, as well as a wide variety of different educational, research or other work activities. Among other qualifications, we would also factor favorably experience...
The language of instruction at McGill is English, but proficiency in another language is desirable. Candidates are expected to have experience in teaching at the graduate level and in providing academic supervision. Candidates should have a demonstrated record of high-quality research and publication, with a focus on issues of public impact and policy-relevant analysis. In addition, candidates should have experience in working with policy-oriented organizations and advising policymakers. Demonstrated expertise in enhancing the public impact of policy-related research is an important asset. The Chairholder will be expected to contribute to and play an active role in teaching, research, and public engagement activities.
Berkeley invites applications for a pool of qualified temporary lecturers to teach courses as needed in the areas of (but not limited to) American Politics, California Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations, Methodology & Formal Theory, Political Theory & Philosophy, Models & Politics, Political Behavior, Public Law & Jurisprudence, and Public Policy & Organization.

To apply for this position, candidates are required to submit their application via Nanyang Technological University’s online career portal (https://ntu.wd3.myworkdayjobs.com/Careers/job/NTU-Main-Campus-Singapore/Assistant-or-Associate-Professor--International-Political-Economy--Tenure-Track-TenuredRSIS-_R00007562).

All applicants should submit the following:
• A cover letter specifying how your qualifications match the job description;
• A detailed curriculum vitae (including records of competitive grants, fellowships, and graduate supervision, if applicable);
• Statements of research and teaching interests and teaching evaluation;
• Three (3) published articles or writing samples;
• Google Scholar citation report if available;
• Applicants applying for the Assistant Professor position, please include the name and details of THREE referees of the rank of Associate Professor/Professor; and applicants applying for the Associate Professor position, please include the name and details of FOUR referees of the rank of Professor.

Please visit our home page (Department of Political Science https://politics.utoronto.ca) to learn more about us.

The successful candidate will be expected to pursue innovative and independent research at the highest international level and to establish an outstanding, competitive, and externally funded research program. Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence which can be demonstrated by the submitted research statement, a record of publications in top-ranked and field relevant journals or forthcoming publications meeting high international standards, presentations at significant conferences, and awards and accolades.

Evidence of excellence in teaching will be provided through teaching accomplishments, the teaching dossier (with required materials outlined below) submitted as part of the application, as well as strong letters of reference.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment demonstrated through the application materials.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter; a current curriculum vitae; a research statement outlining current and future research interests; a recent writing sample of no more than 30 pages; and a teaching dossier to include a teaching statement, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations. Equity and diversity are essential to academic excellence. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of their contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover (but need not be limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

Applicants must provide the name and contact information of three references. The University of Toronto’s recruiting tool will automatically solicit and collect letters of reference from each after an application is submitted (this happens overnight). Applicants remain responsible for ensuring that references submit letters (on letterhead, dated and signed) by the closing date.

Submission guidelines can be found at http://uoft.me/how-to-apply. Your CV and cover letter should be uploaded into the dedicated fields. Please combine additional application materials into one or two files in PDF/MS Word format. If you have any questions about this position, please contact Sari Sherman at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by October 25, 2021.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

APSA expression of interest
Tenure Track Assistant Professor Position at the Department of International Economics, Government and Business (EGB) at Copenhagen Business School (CBS)

You should hold, or be close to completing, a PhD. You should be able to demonstrate a strong research potential in the areas of Business and Government and/or International Business. In addition, you should have excellent methodological skills. Participation in teaching and an interest in developing research-based teaching courses is expected of a tenure track assistant professor at CBS.

EGB is a multidisciplinary department, which conducts high-quality research in the fields of political science and international business with direct relevance to business, policymakers, and the public. The department has two principal focus areas of research: ‘Business and Government’ and ‘International Business’. EGB conducts research within these principal focus areas and their interfaces and is uniquely positioned to generate research in the intersection of these two focus areas. Business and Government is rooted in the disciplines political science, political economy, and government. International Business includes both the disciplines of international economics and international management.

EGB conducts research in business and governance in the context of contemporary societal challenges. Much of EGB’s research takes into account the political and socio-economic conditions of specific geographical regions or countries, the stages of firms’ internationalization processes, and other factors shaping the actions of policy makers, market actors, and other stakeholders. To learn more about the research and education profile of the department, please visit the departmental homepage.

These are non-exhaustive examples of research and teaching areas that the assistant professor may cover:

- Business and government, money in politics
- Political economy
- Regulation of social and economic transformations
- Foreign Direct Investment, trade, taxation

Candidates who are available for an informal interview during the 2021 APSA meeting, September 29 – October 3, should send an expression of interest, following the guidelines, see: expression of interest form.

University of Gothenburg
Rank: Associate Senior Lecturer (Assistant Professor, tenure track) in Political Science

Varieties of Democracy (V-Dem) is a large-scale, international data collection and research-program. The V-Dem Institute, Directed by Professor Staffan I. Lindberg, has received several large-scale grants from among others the European Commission, several ministries of foreign affairs, the World Bank, European Research Council, Riksbankens Jubileumsfond, the Swedish Research Council, and Knut and Alice Wallenberg Foundation.

For more information: https://v-dem.net

Job assignments:

The term for this position in Swedish is “biträdande lektor”. The university’s official translation (in British English) is Associate Senior Lecture, which is the equivalent to Assistant Professor on tenure-track.

The Assistant Professor/Associate Senior Lecturer (tenure-track, 4 years) is primarily expected to conduct research in collaboration with research leader and other scholars in, and with a focus on the main research programs of the V-Dem Institute: Endangered Democracies: Sequences of Autocratization (EDSA); Failing and Successful Sequences of Democratization (FASDEM); Varieties of Autocratization (V-Aut); and/or the methodological developments related to these programs. Applicants can read about these projects and download various documentation from https://v-dem.net under “Our Work/Research Projects”.

In extension of this, the successful candidate is expected to be active in grants writing to support these and related initiatives. The successful candidate will also join the leadership of the V-Dem Institute and is expected to support the Director with taking on responsibilities with regards to one or more issues such as the long-term strategic planning, financial viability, data collection and curation, outreach, international collaborations (non-/academic), the annual Democracy Report.

In addition, the successful applicant is expected to teach and be an active member of the Department of Political Science, and to contribute to the daily activities of the V-Dem Institute as needed. Research is, however, guaranteed at a minimum of 50 percent of full time employment (FTE).

Eligibility (Minimum Requirements):

Eligibility for this position is stated in Chapter 4, subsec. 12 a, and 12 b of the Higher Education Ordinance and in the University of Gothenburg’s Appointments Procedure for Teachers. Applicants with a doctorate in a subject area relevant to the position, or with equivalent competence, not older than five years at the conclusion of the application period, will be given primary consideration. Applicants who have obtained a doctorate earlier may also be considered if there are special reasons. Special reasons include leave of absence due to illness, service in the armed forces or other part of the national defense organization, commissions of trust within professional, union and student organizations, parental leave or other similar circumstances.

Assessment (Desired Qualifications):

Applications will be evaluated primarily on research excellence in comparative politics with a particular view towards areas and approaches of relevance to the research programs at the institute as well as competencies that will contribute to addressing the research questions of those programs, and secondary on merits with regard to teaching.

Advanced comparative and quantitative research at high international level relevant for the study of democratic backsliding/autocratization or resilience, authoritarian regimes, democratization, political development and/or methodological developments related to research done at the institute such as sequencing and episodes analysis, is prioritized in the evaluation of applications.

Scientific skills as expressed in a well-developed proposal of high scientific quality, for a research project that falls within and preferably further develops on one of the existing research programs at the institute, is also highly meritorious.

One or more of the following skills are also meritorious:

- Leadership/working in a larger research and/or data team;
- Documented in-depth understanding of the V-Dem data and its curation, and;
- Outreach and policy advise based on research to non-academic organization.

Documented experience with teaching at under-/graduate level, including lectures, seminars, and advising on papers, is required. Candidates may be requested to demonstrate their teaching abilities.

The applicant should demonstrate resourcefulness, flexibility, and very good ability to work together in different configurations. Excellence in English (orally and written) is a requirement. We will make an overall assessment of the applicants’ qualifications and potential with regards to the varying tasks, and select one judged to complement the rest of the team in the best way possible. Personal qualities relevant for the position are of great importance.

Additional Information (Requirements for Tenure and Promotion):

An Assistant Professor/Associate Senior Lecturer is entitled to apply for promotion to Associate Professor/Senior Lecturer with tenure (in Swedish: “universitetslektor”), before the end of the fixed-term four-year employment. For promotion after the four years on tenure-track, the requirements for promotion in the subject area and the criteria of University of Gothenburg must be fulfilled. For this position, the following are additional requirements for promotion and tenure after the first four years:

- Significant advancement of high-quality research equivalent to at least another doctorate as published research findings addressing questions of the one of more of the research programs at the institute, in some combination of articles in leading international peer review journals, a book and/or a number of book chapters published by leading international press’.
- University teacher’s training (15 points worth in the Swedish system) or otherwise acquired equivalents including a demonstrated continuous development in teaching abilities, is a requirement for promotion.
- Service to the wider society is expected to be directed towards democracy-promoting actors in particular.
- Finally, the candidate must be able to demonstrate ability to teach political science courses in the Swedish language (as evidenced by actual teaching, or by Swedish advanced course certificate). For information, the university provides courses in Swedish and the department normally offers additional support for the acquisition of language.

The application for tenure and promotion must be submitted six months before the end of the employment time (i.e. latest 3.5 years after starting the position).

Marymount’s Politics program, located on Marymount University’s main campus in Arlington, Virginia, invites applications for a tenure-track position in Comparative Politics, broadly defined, at the Assistant Professor level. We will begin reviewing applications on November 12 for a job beginning in August 2022.

Faculty are expected to teach high-quality student-centric undergraduate courses in face-to-face settings. The politics program is part of the social sciences in Marymount’s Liberal Arts Core curriculum, and serves a large number of politics majors drawn by Marymount’s commitment to inquiry-based learning, its commitment to a low faculty-student ratio, and its location in the Washington DC area.

Applicants must have a Ph.D. in Politics or assurance they will complete the degree by August 15, 2022. The successful candidate will teach core and elective courses in political science, and contribute to a growing specialty program in International Relations. The hiring committee is looking for candidates with demonstrated teaching experience and research interests in comparative politics, broadly defined. Preference will be given to candidates with an ability to teach courses on a variety of topics, and for candidates with respect for the Catholic intellectual tradition and an interest in inquiry-based teaching. Faculty are expected to produce high-quality peer-reviewed scholarship that is broadly disseminated and that engages with their discipline, which may include peer-reviewed journal articles, books at academic presses, and externally-funded research grants.

The teaching load is 3-3. (Three courses per semester, fall and spring.) Applications should include a cover letter, c.v., evidence of excellence in teaching and research, a statement on diversity, and at least three letters of recommendation. The committee will begin reviewing applications on November 12, and accept applications until the position is filled.

All application materials should be uploaded to Marymount’s HR job application site - https://marymount.wd5.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/Careers/job/Main-Campus/Assistant-Professor--Politics--Tenure-Track--R887 except for confidential letters of recommendation, which should be sent to: poljob@marymount.edu

Princeton University, School of Public & International Affairs
Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate in Regional Political Economy
Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy
Specializations: Middle East, Africa, Latin American

The Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance (NCGG) at Princeton University’s School of Public and International Affairs invite applications for a postdoctoral or more senior research associate position from individuals with a Ph.D. degree or expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2022 for the Postdoctoral Fellowship Program in regional political economy for the 2022-2023 academic year. This fellows’ program is targeted at developing a generation of scholars able to analyze and make policy recommendations about the regional politicaleconomy in the Middle East, East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America. The Center invites candidates with a background in economics, political science, contemporary history, sociology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of markets, politics, and economic development, focusing on the regions of the Middle East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America to apply. Scholarly work should explore the ways in which the politics within and between a set of countries intersect with natural resource endowments, market conditions, technological and physical infrastructure, and cultural biases to explain existing patterns of economic development and to promote higher levels of development more effectively. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence in Princeton or the local vicinity, or demonstrate to the program’s satisfaction the ability to be on campus on a daily basis and on short notice in order to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2022 - July 1, 2023).

Application Deadline – Applicants should apply by Monday, December 6, 2021 (11:59pm EST), for full consideration, however; posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process – All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: https://www.princeton.edu/acadpositions/position/21442

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2022 in one of the above-mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining the candidate’s scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;
- Current curriculum vitae including publications;
- 2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample (limit of 100 pages);
- Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant’s qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day (5 p.m. EST) on Thursday, December 9, 2021. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Salary – Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund.

Stanford King Center on Global Development

Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

The Stanford University King Center on Global Development’s Postdoctoral Fellows Program offers fellowships to outstanding new PhDs who have a demonstrated ability to generate high-quality, policy-relevant research on critical issues related to global development. We invite applications for multidisciplinary postdoctoral fellowships to start summer/fall 2022 for a one- or two-year appointment. The King Center’s Postdoctoral Fellows Program is intended for promising new PhD recipients—coming from fields such as computer science, earth systems science, economics, engineering, health policy, political science, and sociology—to pursue policy-relevant research on topics related to international development and poverty alleviation. The King Center’s postdoctoral fellows should expect to be active members of the community of development researchers at Stanford University.

The King Center’s Postdoctoral Fellows Program particularly encourages applications from women and minority PhD recipients, and from scholars from low- and middle-income countries, as well as from others whose backgrounds and experience would contribute to the diversity (broadly defined) of the program.

The King Center provides a competitive fellowship stipend, plus support for travel and research expenses.

Wake Forest University
Rank: ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF POLITICS AND INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS (TENURE TRACK POSITION IN SOUTHEAST ASIAN POLITICS)

WAKE FOREST UNIVERSITY’s Department of Politics and International Affairs is seeking applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in the field of Southeast Asian politics to start July 1, 2022. As a department, we believe that a diverse community in which varied perspectives and identities are represented and included is a community that supports excellent teaching and scholarship. We therefore seek candidates whose areas of specialty will complement those already represented among Asian politics scholars in the department. More information about the department is available at http://politics.wfu.edu/

We invite applications from Southeast Asian politics scholars with expertise in any of the following, listed in no particular order: political economy, party and regime studies, electoral analysis, social movements, ethnonationalism, populism, conflict studies, migration, and public policy. The region of Southeast Asia refers primarily to those existing member states of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) and its prospective members. Candidates should have an earned Ph.D. degree or advanced ABD status in Political Science and a record of study and scholarship related to the region. Demonstrated experience of field research in the region is also highly desirable.

Faculty in the Politics and International Affairs Department engage formally and informally with interdisciplinary academic programs, including Middle East and South Asia Studies; East Asian Studies; African Studies; Latin American and Latino Studies; Women’s, Gender, and Sexuality Studies; American Ethnic Studies; International Studies; and Environmental and Sustainability Studies.

We seek candidates pursuing an active research agenda and committed to excellence in teaching who are prepared to teach introductory courses in comparative politics and upper level comparative politics courses that connect with their research agendas. Compelling applicants will demonstrate a commitment to excellence in teaching, mentoring, and advising undergraduate students from diverse backgrounds, including international students, first generation students, and those who identify as members of historically marginalized communities.

Wake Forest University is a private, coeducational institution dedicated to academic excellence in liberal arts, graduate, and professional education. Founded in 1834, the University is ranked in the top 30 among national universities. With 5,200 undergraduates and 3,200 graduate and professional students, the student-faculty ratio is 11:1. Wake Forest is a collegiate university offering a vibrant intellectual community with a rich cultural life, an impressive array of facilities and an active athletics community.

The University has a deep institutional commitment to public service and engagement with the world, encapsulated in its motto “pro-Humanitate.” The Office of Civic and Community Engagement works to realize that ideal by serving as a hub for connecting students, staff, and faculty with community partners to create meaningful social change. To learn more about the University, please visit https://about.wfu.edu/

Interested applicants should apply via the University’s career website at: https://hr.wfu.edu/careers/. The application should be submitted as ONE PDF file, which includes all of the following:

- Cover letter addressing the motivation to join our teacher-scholar community;
- Curriculum vitae including contact information for three professional references;
- Research statement describing candidate’s current research and future trajectory;
- Scholarly writing sample (e.g. journal article, dissertation chapter, or draft);
- Teaching statement including plan to establish an inclusive learning environment;
- Sample undergraduate course syllabi;
- Teaching evaluations or other evidence of effective student engagement;
- Copy of graduate transcript(s) (official copies only required upon employment).

In addition to the above, we ask that candidates have three letters of recommendation emailed directly to wfupol@wfu.edu. Review of applications will begin on October 4, 2021. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled, but to guarantee full consideration they should be received by the end of the business day on October 1, 2021.

Inquiries about the application process and document submission may be addressed to AskHR@wfu.edu. Inquiries about the faculty position or department should be directed to Michaelle Browers, Chair and Professor, Politics and International Affairs, browerm@wfu.edu.

In order to provide a safe and productive learning and living community, Wake Forest University conducts background investigations for final candidates upon their acceptance of an offer of employment.

University of Central Florida
Rank: Assistant Professor, Cyber Security and Privacy
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations
Specializations: Intelligence, International Security, Regulatory Policy

The University of Central Florida (UCF) has established nine interdisciplinary clusters to strengthen its academic offerings and research mission. In support of this effort, we are recruiting faculty in the broad area of cyber security and privacy, from a policy or social science perspective, and plan to hire one tenure-earning assistant professor for this cluster. This position has an anticipated start date of August 8, 2022.

The Cybersecurity and Privacy Cluster is an interdisciplinary initiative, bringing together researchers from across the campus and working on addressing the pressing questions of our national security from engineering, science, and social perspectives. The cluster currently has eight members, collectively advising more than 35 doctoral students, and embracing a strong culture of collaboration and teamwork. The cluster runs various well-funded programs, has developed and implemented a new interdisciplinary M.S. in Cybersecurity and Privacy, and was recently selected by the National Science Foundation to be a host institution for the prestigious Scholarship for Service Program.

This is an interdisciplinary position that will be expected to strengthen both the cluster and a chosen tenure home department and may include a combination of joint appointments. A strong advantage of this position is the ability of the candidate to choose a combination of units from the cluster for their appointment. See http://www.ucf.edu/faculty/cluster/cyber-security-and-privacy/ for a complete list of all the units involved. Both individual and interdisciplinary infrastructure and startup support will be provided with this new position.

The ideal candidate will have a strong background in cyber security and privacy and be on an upward leadership trajectory in these areas. They will have research impact as reflected in high-quality publications.
and the ability to build a well-funded research program. In particular, we are looking for a team player who can help bring together current campus efforts in cyber security or privacy, and someone who will work at the intersection of several areas, addressing the policy, regulatory or social science aspects with a focus on one or more of the following topics: a) privacy laws and regulation; b) social media; c) cybercrimes; d) cyberwarfare; e) cyber security and intelligence. With this in mind, we anticipate the selected candidate will be tenure-earning in one of, but not limited to, the following units: Criminal Justice; Legal Studies; Modeling, Simulation, and Training; Politics, Security, and International Affairs; or Sociology.

UCF is one of the nation’s largest universities with a diverse student body of more than 70,000 students and has grown substantially in size, quality, diversity, and reputation in its first 50 years. Today, the university offers more than 200 degree programs. UCF is an economic engine, attracting and supporting industries vital to the region’s future while providing students with real-world experiences that help them succeed after graduation.

UCF’s Orlando main campus location also puts it at the center of the Florida High Tech Corridor. The corridor has an excellent industrial base that includes software, defense, space, simulation and training, and world-renowned entertainment industry. Adjacent to the UCF main campus is a thriving research park that conducts over $2 billion in funded research, hosting more than 100 high-technology companies, UCF’s Institute for Simulation and Training and UCF’s new School of Modeling, Simulation and Training. The Central Florida area is designated by the state of Florida as the Center of Excellence in Modeling and Simulation. UCF also has an accredited medical school which was established in 2006 and is a neighbor to large corporations such as Disney, Harris Corporation, Lockheed Martin, Siemens, and many others, all of which have a strong interest in cyber security and privacy. Great weather, easy access to the seaside, one of the largest convention centers in the nation, and one of the world’s best airports are just a few features that make Orlando an ideal location. We encourage you to learn more about one of UCF’s newest endeavors, the exciting Faculty Cluster Initiative, at https://www.ucf.edu/faculty/faculty-research-clusters.

Additional Application Materials Required:

UCF requires all applications and supporting documents to be submitted electronically through the Human Resources website, www.ucf.edu/jobs/. No paper or emailed applications or materials will be considered.

In addition to the online application, interested candidates must attach the following materials to their application:

1) A Diversity Statement:
UCF has a diverse student body and community, and we are committed to meeting the needs of this community. Please tell us about your contributions to diversity, equity, and inclusion, in the context of a faculty-student setting and as a colleague, as well as future plans to advance these contributions. Such indicators of commitments to diversity, equity, and inclusion may be demonstrated through scholarship, teaching, mentoring, service and engagement.

2) A Cover Letter:
In the cover letter candidates must address their background in research and scholarship in the area in cyber security and privacy as related to policy and regulatory aspects and identify the department or departments for their potential tenure home, as well as any joint appointments they would desire.

3) Curriculum Vitae,
4) Teaching Statement,
5) Research Statement, and
6) Contact information for three professional references (include email address and telephone number).

NOTE: Please have all application documents ready when applying so they can be attached at that time. Once the online submission process is finalized, the system does not allow applicants to submit additional documents at a later date.

Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. To ensure consideration before the position is closed, the application should be submitted promptly.

Questions regarding this search can be directed to the cluster lead and search committee chair, Dr. David Mohaisen, at mohaisen@ucf.edu.

Bowdoin College

Rank: Tenure-Track Position in Race, Ethnicity, and Politics
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Public Policy
Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, African American Politics, Latino Politics

As part of a larger multi-year cohort initiative, the Bowdoin College Department of Government and Legal Studies seeks applicants for a full-time tenure-track position in Race, Ethnicity, and Politics, pending final approval. The position would begin July 1, 2022. We expect to hire at the rank of assistant professor but will consider applications from candidates at all levels. A PhD in political science or a related field is required by the start of this appointment. Research and teaching on U.S. politics is preferred, but a focus on other areas of the Americas will be considered. Teaching load is two courses per semester, across all levels of the curriculum.

Bowdoin requires its faculty to have a promise of long-term successful scholarly or artistic engagement and a strong commitment to inclusive excellence in their teaching. (For a description of inclusive excellence, please consult the following resource https://www.aacu.org/making-excellence-inclusive.) Bowdoin College offers opportunities for professional development, a fully-funded, year-long junior sabbatical leave (after three years of teaching and successful reappointment), and regular, generously funded, post-tenure sabbaticals.

Bowdoin is a community that warmly welcomes people of all backgrounds. We encourage applications from candidates committed to the support of an inclusive campus community and those who will enrich and contribute to the College’s multifaceted diversity. We especially encourage people from historically excluded groups to apply. We recognize that recruiting and retaining faculty may involve considerations of spouses and domestic partners. To that end, where possible, the College will attempt to accommodate and respond creatively to the needs of partners and spouses of members of the faculty.

Bowdoin College accepts only electronic submissions. Please visit https://careers.bowdoin.edu to submit: 1) a cover letter; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a description of your research plans; 4) a statement that describes your teaching philosophy and how your teaching, scholarship, and mentorship supports our commitment to equity and inclusion (https://www.aacu.org/making-excellence-inclusive); and 5) the names and contact information for three references who have agreed to provide letters of recommendation.

Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2021 and continue until the search is concluded.

Founded in 1794 on the Maine coast, Bowdoin is one of the oldest and most selective coeducational, residential liberal arts colleges in the country. Located in Brunswick, a 30-minute drive north of Portland and 2+ hours north of Boston -- connected to Boston and beyond by public transportation -- the College is in an area rich with natural beauty and year-round outdoor activities. Bowdoin's reputation rests on the excellence of its faculty and students, intimate size, strong sense of community, and commitment to diversity (35% students of color, 7% international students and approximately 15% first generation college students). Bowdoin College complies with applicable provisions of federal and state laws that prohibit unlawful discrimination in employment, admission, or access to its educational or extracurricular programs, activities, or facilities based on race, color, ethnicity, ancestry and national origin, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity and/or expression, age, marital status, place of birth, genetic predisposition, veteran status, or against qualified individuals with physical or mental disabilities on the basis of disability, or any other legally protected statuses. For further information about the College and our department, please visit our website: http://www.bowdoin.edu. For additional information about the Department of Government and Legal Studies, see https://www.bowdoin.edu/government/ or contact department chair Andrew Rudalevige (arudalev@bowdoin.edu).

Middle Georgia State University
Rank: Assistant Professor, American/comparative politics or public policy
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

JOB SUMMARY: The Department of Political Science at Middle Georgia State University (https://www.mga.edu/political-science) invites applications for a tenure-track appointment in political science, with a specialization in American politics, comparative politics, or public policy, at the rank of assistant professor, to be primarily based on the Cochran campus. This is a 10-month position with a teaching load of 12 credit hours per semester (4-4) of undergraduate courses in political science, typically including multiple sections of the introductory American Government course, as well as more advanced undergraduate courses in political science in the candidate’s area of specialization.

MAJOR DUTIES: Teaching responsibilities may include day and/or evening courses, partially and fully online courses, and courses taught via video conferencing; faculty are also expected to travel to teach and attend meetings at other campus locations when needed. Tenure-track faculty are expected to have an active scholarly agenda, including publication in peer-reviewed outlets; student advising and service to the department, school, university, and community are also expected for promotion and tenure. Summer teaching opportunities may also be available, contingent on student demand.

QUALIFICATIONS: Candidates should have earned a doctorate in political science, or a doctorate in related field including at least 18 semester hours of graduate coursework in political science, from a regionally-accredited institution; ABD candidates will only be considered if they will earn their doctorate by January 1, 2022. Bentley University
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

The Global Studies Department at Bentley University invites applications for a tenure-track position in comparative race and ethnicity. We seek applications from scholar-teachers who focus on race and ethnicity in comparative, transnational or global perspective, with at least one area of specialization in the United States.

Our department is multidisciplinary, built around a core of faculty from cultural studies, geography, and political science. We welcome candidates from any discipline, including but not limited to anthropology, geography, and political science, to complement and deepen existing strengths. While the position is open with respect to further thematic specializations, we are particularly interested in candidates whose work contributes to understanding the intersectionality of race and ethnicity with sustainability, health, development, immigration/migration, or public policy, preferably through comparativist lenses.

As guided by our Academic Affairs Diversity, Equity, & Inclusion Strategic Plan, Bentley University seeks to enhance our faculty capacity in the scholarship, pedagogy, and engagement related to diversity, equity, inclusion, and justice. To achieve that, we are hiring a cohort of new faculty in multiple academic departments and disciplines with expertise in DEI. This position is intended to be part of our DEI faculty cohort, which will enrich our DEI expertise across Business and the Liberal Arts & Sciences. Learn more about Bentley University’s DEI strategic plan here: https://issuu.com/bentleyuniversity/docs/dei_strategic_plan_presentation_1_.ppx

We seek a candidate whose teaching and scholarship will contribute to one or both of our undergraduate departmental majors in international affairs and public policy, and someone who can amplify our department’s commitment to anti-racism. Black, indigenous, and Latinx faculty, as well as faculty from other underrepresented groups, are strongly encouraged to apply.

Candidates must demonstrate evidence of a continuing research agenda focused on publication and a strong dedication to excellence in teaching, with preference for candidates with classroom teaching experience. We especially welcome candidates who bring diverse perspectives and experiences to the classroom. Incoming tenure-track faculty typically have a 2-2 teaching load.

The position will be filled at the Assistant Professor rank for a Fall 2022 start.

Minimum Qualifications:
PhD required. Requirements for the doctoral degree must be completed prior to the start of the Fall 2022 semester.

Instructions to Applicants:
Applicants submit all materials through Bentley’s on-line employment site at: https://bentley.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/faculty/job/Bentley-Campus/Tenure-Track-Assistant-Professor--Global-Studies_R0002083.

Applicants should submit the following materials:
1. A cover letter that summarizes overall strengths, including the nature of the candidate’s commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion.
3. A teaching statement of no more than two pages.
4. A research statement of no more than two pages detailing the candidate’s research strengths and plans for future research directions.
5. The names and contact information for three professional references. Bentley will contact these confidential references for those candidates moving forward in the process.

Questions about the position can be directed to the Search Committee Chair, Professor Joni Seager at jsseager@bentley.edu

Position will remain open until filled. However, priority consideration will be given to applications received by September 27, 2021.

Lake Forest College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Politics and International Relations
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Methodology

The Lake Forest College Department of Politics and International Relations invites applications for a tenure-track, assistant professor in comparative politics or international relations with a specialization in Latin America to begin August 2022. Lake Forest College has a rich, interdisciplinary program in Latin American and Latinx Studies to which the successful candidate is expected to contribute significantly. We are seeking someone to teach Introduction to Comparative Politics and Introduction to Global Politics; a research methods survey course, required for Politics and International Relations majors, that includes qualitative and/or quantitative methods; and a broad range of other courses in comparative politics or international relations, with a focus on Spanish-speaking countries in Latin America. And while we encourage candidates of all substantive interests to apply, those whose work focuses on issues of human rights, social movements, migration, indigenous communities, or populism are most welcome. Additionally, candidates with corollary research and/or teaching interests in the Latinx experience within the domestic United States are particularly encouraged to apply.

Applicants should be aware of the many interdisciplinary programs Lake Forest College has to offer including African American Studies, American Studies, Urban Studies, and Social Justice. We also offer an “In the Loop” semester-long residential program in Chicago, as well as many courses emphasizing Chicago history, politics, and its diverse cultures. Lake Forest College’s proximity to Chicago provides an opportunity to use the city as a “laboratory” for student work and research. We are especially interested in candidates who can contribute to any of these programs and can incorporate students into their research programs.

Candidates will be expected to have a record of demonstrated teaching excellence and the promise of scholarly productivity. Ph.D. in political science, or a related field, must be completed by the time of appointment. Our teaching load is 3/3, with small classes (typically 15-25 students). We support faculty research through provision of student research assistants and summer research funds; successful passage of the third-year review earns a half-year sabbatical at full pay, in the fourth or fifth year of service. Tenure review takes place at the start of the sixth year. Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, unofficial graduate transcript, a teaching statement that addresses diversity in a liberal arts setting, sample syllabi, a sample of scholarly writing, three confidential letters of recommendation, and student evaluations of teaching to James J. Marquardt, Ph.D., Associate Professor of Politics and International Relations at latinamericasearch@lakeforest.edu

A highly selective liberal arts college located on Chicago’s North Shore, Lake Forest College enrolls approximately 1,600 students from more than 40 states and from more than 70 countries. Lake Forest is one of the most diverse small colleges in the Midwest with nearly 40% of our student body comprised of domestic minority and international students. At Lake Forest College, the quality of a faculty member’s teaching is the most important criterion for evaluation. Lake Forest College embraces diversity and encourages applications from women, members of historically underrepresented groups, veterans,

College of Idaho
Rank: Assistant Professor of International Political Economy
Specializations: Africa, Latin American, Middle East

The College of Idaho’s dynamic Department of Political Economy invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position that will commence in Fall 2022.

The Department approaches political economy in a broad theoretical manner that embraces the widest study of the social world both classic and contemporary. We emphasize the intricate relationships between politics and economics while embracing cross-disciplinary research and dialogue. We encourage approaches including area studies, historical institutionalism, heterodox economics, feminist political theory, transnational analysis, institutional economics, and public policy analysis, and we value research methods that emphasize the analysis of real-world data over formal modeling.

This position supports the College’s innovative PEAK Curriculum and two related majors offered by the Department: Political Economy and International Political Economy. The successful candidate will teach International Politics, Political Economy of Development, International Political Economy, and related courses. The teaching load is 3-3 with an additional short January-term topics course based on the candidate’s expertise. We grant significant autonomy to faculty members to design their own courses that support the department’s political economy approach and liberal arts vision. Ability to offer upper level area studies or regional survey courses on Africa, Europe, Latin America, or the Middle East is desired. Interest in providing short-term study away courses is also desirable as department faculty regularly offer such courses to Asia, Europe, and Africa as part of IPE programming.

Successful candidates will have an active research agenda while demonstrating a passion for teaching in the liberal arts tradition. They will join a student-centered department where teaching and mentoring are valued as the highest priority. Such mentorship has recently led students in the department to Marshall, Truman, and Rhodes scholarships as well as national recognition of departmental faculty for teaching excellence. Professional development support for research, conference travel, and sabbatical leave is available.

A Ph.D. is required in International Relations, International Political Economy, Political Science, Economics, Sociology, or other related fields in international studies. Advanced ABD applicants will be considered.

Applications must include letter of interest, CV, statement demonstrating a passion for teaching in the liberal arts tradition, sample syllabi, recent course evaluations, at least three letters of recommendation, and demonstrated commitment to representation, inclusion, and equity. Candidates must be authorized to work in the United States as of the expected hire date and throughout the date of the contract without sponsorship from The College of Idaho. Application review will begin September 30, 2021 and continue until the position has been filled. Please submit application materials via email to hr@collegeofidaho.edu with subject 'Political Economy Search.'

With over 130 years of history, The College of Idaho is a regional and national leader in higher education. The College of Idaho is an inclusive community of exceptional learning that challenges the ambitious and forges pathways to success and purpose. To learn more about The College of Idaho, please visit www.collegeofidaho.edu.

The College of Idaho is proud to be an equal opportunity employer. We are committed to attracting, retaining, and maximizing the performance of a diverse and inclusive workforce.

Georgetown University
Rank: Tenure-Line Assistant Professor in Comparative Public Policy, Comparative Political Economy, or Comparative Public Management
Subfield(s): Public Policy, Comparative Politics, Public Administration

The McCourt School of Public Policy at Georgetown University invites applications for a tenure-line assistant professor in the field of comparative public policy, comparative political economy, and/or comparative public management.

The geographic focus of the position is open, but the School has a particular interest in applicants whose research and teaching expertise focus on developing and transitional economies. We are open to applicants whose work focuses on any substantive policy sector, but environmental policy, urban policy, race, gender and ethnic politics, and social and economic inequality are areas of special concentration for the school. Successful candidates will teach core courses in the Comparative track of our core ‘Politics of Policymaking’ and ‘Management and Implementation’ sequence and/or political economy, as well as elective courses in their own areas of research interest. We are open to applications from candidates within different research traditions; candidates who have worked with multiple research methodologies are especially encouraged to apply.

We expect the applicant to have a Ph.D. by the time they start; the Ph.D. could be in political science, public administration, policy, sociology, economics or related fields.

Syracuse University
Rank: African American Studies Department Chair
Subfield(s): Open, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics
Specializations: African American Politics, Africa, Race & Ethnic Politics

The Department of African American Studies (https://thecollege.syr.edu/african-american-studies/) in Syracuse University’s College of
Since gaining department status in 1979, African American Studies at SU has offered multi-disciplinary approaches to global studies of people of African descent. Unique departmental resources, such as the Martin Luther King, Jr. Library (https://thecollege.syr.edu/diversity-and-inclusion/mlk-library/) and the Community Folk Art Center (https://communityfolkartcenter.org/), have been integral to academic initiatives. Recent and pending faculty retirements have led to a critical juncture. The new chair will thus play a pivotal role in leading the department as it formulates strategic plans to engage changing social, political, cultural, technological, and pedagogical landscapes.

The position requires a Ph.D. with a principal research and teaching focus on aspects of Black life in the Americas, the Caribbean, Africa, or Europe. Scholars in any field of the humanities or social sciences are welcome to apply. Candidates who have met the standards for the rank of professor with tenure are preferred. However, full consideration will also be given to applications from advanced tenured associate professors. The teaching requirement during the three-year term as Department Chair will be one course per semester. At the end of the chair term, two courses per semester will be required.

Applications must include a current curriculum vitae; letter of interest; sample publication; diversity, equity, and inclusion statement; and three confidential recommendation letters. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. The salary will be commensurate with qualifications.

Loyola Marymount University

Rank: Assistant Professor - Political Science and International Relations
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science and International Relations at Loyola Marymount University invites applications for an Assistant Professor (tenure-track) whose work addresses structural racism or Black politics. Sub-field specialization is open and we welcome applications from candidates whose research and teaching addresses the Black political experience, racial oppression, discrimination, and violence from domestic (US or other countries), international, transnational, diasporic, post-colonial, normative, historical, or critical perspectives. We expect candidates to ground their work—theoretical and/or empirical—in an intersectional understanding of how interlocking or overlapping systems of oppression, domination, inequality, or hierarchies, shape the political world.

LMU has a 2-2/2-3 teaching load, meaning that faculty teach two undergraduate courses per semester, with one course load semester every other year. We would expect the successful candidate to teach courses both within our existing curriculum, but also to support and develop courses that speak directly to the Black political experience, broadly understood. We are seeking to hire a dedicated teacher and emerging scholar who will embrace the department’s mission of helping undergraduate students become informed, analytically reflective, methodologically rigorous, and engaged global citizens. Successful candidates must demonstrate a commitment to working with diverse student and community populations.

Loyola Marymount University, a Carnegie classified R2 institution in the mainstream of American Catholic higher education, seeks outstanding applicants who value its mission and share its commitment to inclusive excellence, the education of the whole person, and the building of a just society. LMU is an equal opportunity employer committed to providing an environment free from discrimination and harassment as defined by federal, state and local law. We invite all persons in the full diversity of their being, life experiences, and beliefs to apply. Please read more about our commitments and our efforts at (https://resources.lmu.edu/offic eofinterculturalaffairs/).

Candidates should submit application materials via the LMU Human Resources online application portal (https://pa843.peopleadmin.com/postings/47472). Applicants must include: 1) a cover letter (outlining area of expertise, teaching and research interests, and resonance with LMU’s mission); 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a writing sample; and 4) a statement of teaching philosophy that demonstrates your approach to teaching in the liberal arts tradition, and 5) if available, teaching evaluations and/or sample syllabi. Three confidential letters of recommendation should be submitted directly to POLSjobs@lmu.edu. Only online applications will be accepted. Please direct questions to Marc Cooper at POLSjobs@lmu.edu. We will begin our review of applications on September 10, 2021 but will consider applications beyond this date until we conclude our search. A PhD in Political Science, International Relations, Public Policy, or related field is required; ABD applications who anticipate completion of the doctorate by Fall 2022 will be considered.

Syracuse University
Rank: Politics of Inequality

Syracuse University Politics of Inequality

The Department of Political Science at Syracuse University’s Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs seeks to hire a tenure-track Assistant or tenured Associate Professor whose scholarship focuses on the intersection of inequality and politics. We seek a candidate with expertise in the connection between social or economic inequality and political outcomes, defined broadly. This position starts in Fall 2022 and is part of a broader Syracuse University Cluster Hires Initiative.

The Citizenship and Democratic Institutions (CDI) Cluster draws together a diverse group of scholars who address critical issues related to the contested meanings of citizenship, civic engagement, public management, and the impacts of democratic institutions on social and economic well-being. The successful candidate will help shape future, multi-disciplinary hiring in the CDI Cluster, and lead and contribute to externally funded projects and interdisciplinary research initiatives within the Maxwell School and across the University.

We welcome applicants who study inequality across different domains – economic, social, health, gender, race, and/or ethnicity. We also are open to multiple methods, and issues in domestic, international, and comparative contexts. This position is open with respect to subfield and geographic focus, but we are especially interested in candidates who focus on American politics and comparative politics.

The political science department is housed within the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs, which is committed to citizenship education at the undergraduate level and to graduate education in public affairs and the social sciences. We seek candidates who complement the broader Maxwell mission and have interdisciplinary interests. Successful candidates may be invited to affiliate with the Campbell Institute or one of Maxwell’s other interdisciplinary centers (http://www.maxwell.syr.edu/centers/). The successful candidate will teach at both the undergraduate and graduate level. The typical course load is 2 classes a semester.

Applicants should have a Ph.D. in political science or a related field or a credible expectation of completing all requirements for the Ph.D. by August 2022. The Maxwell School is interested in candidates who can contribute to the inclusiveness and diversity of the academic community through their research, teaching, and/or service.

APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS:

For consideration, candidates must complete an online faculty application (available at https://www.sujobopps.com/postings/87786) and attach online the following: a letter of interest and a CV, a research statement, a sample of professional writing, a statement of teaching philosophy, a statement about diversity, equity and inclusion, and evidence of quality teaching. Files may be no larger than 5MB, but you may submit an external link to a larger file if needed.
In addition, applicants will be required to provide the full email addresses of three references.

Applications will be reviewed as they arrive with full consideration given to those received by October 4, 2021. However, the department will continue to consider applications until this position is filled.

The Department of Political Science and the Bieler School of Environment invite applications for a joint tenure-track position in Environmental Politics and Governance. Appointment is expected to be at the rank of Assistant Professor, but appointment at a higher rank may be possible under exceptional circumstances. Candidates should have already completed their PhD or be very near completion.

The position start date is August 1, 2022.

The Department and School welcome applications from qualified candidates working within any subfield with a specialization in Environmental Politics. The search is open in terms of methodological specialization, although candidates are expected to be able to demonstrate expertise in either quantitative or qualitative methods, or both. While all applications will be given full consideration, we are particularly interested in scholars whose work incorporates some of the following elements: transnational in scope or has the potential to move in this direction; addresses the consequences of environmental change for public policy at various institutional levels; examines the relationships between environmental change and other phenomena such as international migration or conflict. The Bieler School of Environment is highly interdisciplinary; the successful candidate will have demonstrated an excellent capacity to work in an interdisciplinary context and to develop interdisciplinary collaborations.

For more information about the Department, School, and University, please visit our websites at: https://www.mcgill.ca/politicalscience/https://www.mcgill.ca/politicalscience/&lt;/a&gt; and https://www.mcgill.ca/environment/https://www.mcgill.ca/environment/&lt;/a&gt;.

Inquiries about this position may be sent to Professor Jacob Levy, mailto:jacob.levy@mcgill.ca.&lt;/a&gt; Chair of the Department of Political Science, or to Professor Frédéric Fabry, mailto:frederic.fabry@mcgill.ca.&lt;/a&gt; Director, Bieler School of the Environment. The Department and School maintain close relationships with other units at McGill with interests in the environment such as the Max Bell School of Public Policy https://www.mcgill.ca/maxbellschool/https://www.mcgill.ca/maxbellschool/&lt;/a&gt; and the McGill Institute for the Study of International Development https://www.mcgill.ca/isid/https://www.mcgill.ca/isid/.

Job Duties:

Teaching, research, and service within the Department of Political Science and Bieler School of Environment. The successful candidate will be expected to contribute to teaching in political science broadly in one or more subfields, particularly at the graduate level. The candidate will be required to teach courses for the Bieler School of Environment on both the McGill Downtown Campus and Macdonald Campus.

Qualifications and Education Requirements:

Candidates should have completed their PhD or be near completion. An applicant’s record of performance must provide evidence of outstanding research potential and the ability/potential to teach effectively at the undergraduate and graduate level, as well as to provide supervision for graduate students. The language of instruction at McGill is English, but a working knowledge of French is an asset.

Bryn Mawr College

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of Political Science at Bryn Mawr College invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor position to begin August 1, 2022 in Comparative Politics. The successful candidate will contribute to the development and teaching of a diverse and inclusive undergraduate curriculum, including interdisciplinary programs and college-wide initiatives such as the 360 Program and the Emily Balch Seminars. We are interested in candidates with a primary regional expertise in the Middle East/North Africa, but we will consider applicants whose work additionally links to other areas of the Global South. We are open to any substantive focus except military security and counter-terrorism. The successful applicant will demonstrate the potential to excel in both research and undergraduate teaching. Candidates must have completed all Ph.D. requirements by the start date.

To apply for this position, candidates must submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching philosophy, research statement, and statement of demonstrated commitment to diversity and inclusion to the Political Science Search Committee via Interfolio at: https://apply.interfolio.com/90035. In addition, arrange for three letters of recommendation to be submitted via Interfolio to the Political Science Search Committee. Applications received by October 8, 2021 will receive full consideration.

Recognizing health and safety concerns during this time, the College will be as flexible as possible in determining the nature of any interviews or meetings (virtual/remote and/or in-person interaction) that are conducted for this search.

Bryn Mawr College is a distinguished liberal arts college for women with a vibrant faculty of scholar-teachers, a talented staff, and intellectually curious students eager to make a difference in the world. The College is committed to increasing the diversity of its students, faculty, staff, and curricular offerings with a particular focus on enhancing ethnic and racial diversity and advancing social justice and inclusion. We believe diversity strengthens our community and enriches the education of our students. We have a student body of 1,300 undergraduates (32 percent are U.S. students of color and 19 percent are international students). There are 340 graduate students in coeducational graduate programs in social work, humanities, and science. Bryn Mawr College is located in metropolitan Philadelphia and enjoys strong consortial relationships with Haverford College, Swarthmore College, and the University of Pennsylvania. Bryn Mawr College is an equal-opportunity employer; candidates from underrepresented groups and women are especially encouraged to apply.

Boston University
Rank: Maxwell Professor in United States Citizenship
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Political Theory

The Department of Political Science at Boston University seeks to appoint the Maxwell Professor in United States Citizenship at the rank of advanced Associate or full Professor, with tenure, to begin in Fall 2022. Applicants in Political Science, from the subfields of American Politics, Comparative Politics, Political Economy, Public Policy, Political Theory, are encouraged to apply. We wish to recruit an intellectual leader with a distinguished record of scholarship who brings a critical lens on the development and meaning of citizenship.

When George B. Maxwell established this Professorship in September 1918 the First World War was not yet concluded and citizenship was — in both de jure and de facto senses — narrowly defined. Indian Reservations were being consolidated, the Espionage and Sedition Acts of WWI limited free speech, Jim Crow was in force, the 19th Amendment to the US Constitution granting women the right to vote had not been passed, and the purpose and limits of immigration were contested. The Maxwell Professorship supports scholars engaged in fostering an “intelligent understanding and appreciation of the rights, duties, inheritances and possibilities of our citizenship.” A Maxwell Chair holder could understand citizenship broadly; for example, in the context of American political development, the tensions between communitarianism and cosmopolitanism, political theories of citizenship, or in comparative perspective. In keeping with George Maxwell’s vision, we seek a scholar who is engaged in both public education and academic discourse.

Boston University offers a rich and vibrant academic community for interdisciplinary research on citizenship; the Maxwell Professorship offers the opportunity to develop connections across disciplines, programs and centers. The candidate will teach both undergraduate and graduate courses. We seek candidates who prioritize inclusive practices in their scholarship, pedagogy, and campus engagement.

Please submit a letter of interest to https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/18615. The application must also include: a curriculum vitae, research and teaching statements, a list of references and a statement about your record of inclusion. Completed applications are due on 4 October 2021.

We are an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. We are a VEVRAA Federal Contractor.

Core Faculty Position in International Relations - Assistant Professor

of Associate Professor may be considered). Applications from candidates able to teach U.S. foreign policy are especially encouraged; other fields of interest are environmental politics, energy politics, the politics of sport, and international law. The successful candidate will be able to teach the required undergraduate introductory course in International Relations as well as upper-level electives at the advanced undergraduate and graduate levels. Ability to contribute to the courses on Scope & Methods in Political Science and/or Quantitative Methods for International Politics will be an advantage.

The successful applicant will join a top-ranking research institution and a team of internationally-recognized scholars. GU-Q was established in 2005 alongside eight other elite international universities in Education City in partnership with Qatar Foundation. GU-Q is an integral part of Georgetown University, delivering the renowned School of Foreign Service’s Bachelor in Foreign Service: a liberal arts program offering majors in International Politics, International History, Culture and Politics, and International Economics. Several MA programs are in development. Degrees are issued by Georgetown University. GU-Q is a research-focused and student-oriented institution with a globally competitive research and publications record; it houses its own Center for International and Regional Studies (CIRS). We value interdisciplinarity. Faculty and students also benefit from the opportunities offered by the wider academic eco-system of Education City.

Core faculty positions are full-time positions designed to replicate the institutional commitment to academic freedom and professional opportunities associated with tenure-track and tenured appointments, in conformity/compliance with Georgetown University’s academic governance guidelines.

The teaching load for core faculty is 2-2. Assistant Professors are eligible for a one-semester fully-paid Junior Faculty Research Fellowship, typically taken in the third or fourth year of service at GU-Q. GU-Q provides generous research support and support for conference travel. Faculty at Georgetown University in Qatar are eligible to apply for Qatar National Priorities Research Program grants from the Qatar National Research Fund. QNRF also offers competitive research grants for early-career scholars. GU-Q boasts best-in-class teaching facilities including a Global Classroom for classes joining students in Washington, D.C. and Doha.

Qatar offers a diverse, safe and family-friendly environment. Ranked the safest country in the world in 2020, it is connected by direct flights to over 160 destinations in 90 countries. The iconic new National Library, adjacent to GU-Q in Education City and designed by Rem Koolhaas, provides free membership to all faculty and students. Public parks, beaches, sports facilities, museums, cafes and restaurants abound, and a state-of-the-art metro system connects all parts of Doha and nearby locations (see https://www.visitqatar.qa/en/home). Education City has its own extensive sports facilities, also hosting one of the World Cup 2022 stadiums and a world-class golf course.

Compensation is very competitive in relation to the US academic market and even more so to that of the UK and Europe. It includes an annual summer research stipend for active scholars, amounting to an additional 2/9 of the base salary. The expatriate benefits package includes: fully-furnished high-quality housing, transportation allowance, annual family home leave allowance, health insurance (worldwide coverage), generous private school tuition support for accompanying children, etc. Qatar does not levy personal income tax (although US citizens remain subject to US taxes).

For more information on GU-Q, see https://www.qatar.georgetown.edu. For a glimpse of what it is like to teach and live in Qatar, see: https://youtu.be/HNoERrWln4k.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and the names of three scholarly references via Interfolio. Faxed or emailed applications will not be accepted.

Applications should be submitted by 29 October 2021 to ensure full consideration. Interviews will be conducted virtually. Queries about the position should be directed to mailto:gu-q-ir@georgetown.edu.

College of Charleston

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science (Comparative and International Politics)

The Department of Political Science at the College of Charleston invites applications from candidates working in the subfields of comparative politics or international relations for a tenure-track appointment as Assistant Professor, beginning August 2022. The Department is particularly interested in applicants with a thematically oriented research agenda focusing on one or more of the following: Race, ethnicity, & politics, migration & citizenship, or democracy & autocracy. The Department will consider candidates that take critical approaches to international politics, engaging with questions surrounding power relationships, structural inequities, racial, ethnic and caste divisions, and colonial legacies. We are seeking candidates with a primary regional expertise in Latin America or the Middle East & North Africa. In addition to upper-level classes that align with the person’s research interests, teaching requirements include some combination of Introduction to World Politics, International Relations Theory, and Introduction to Comparative Politics. An interest in teaching the department’s undergraduate research methods course (approach can be quantitative, qualitative, or mixed methods) is a plus. The Department is also interested in candidates who have experience in mentoring and advising students from diverse backgrounds and a demonstrated commitment to improving access to higher education for students who represent historically oppressed and marginalized identities. A PhD in Political Science, Geography, or a related discipline is required.

The Political Science Department has 20 full-time faculty, over 360 undergraduate majors (http://polisci.cofc.edu/), and a Geography Minor (http://geography-minor.cofc.edu/). The department also supports a NASPAA Accredited Master of Public Administration (http://puba.cofc.edu/) and Master of Science in Environmental and Sustainability Studies (http://mes.cofc.edu/) program. The Department of Political Science is committed to the rigorous study of politics, power, and place, expanding opportunities for learning and service, career preparation and civic participation locally and globally.

The College of Charleston is located in historic downtown Charleston in a coastal metropolitan area of 800,000. The College is a public, liberal arts and sciences institution with a student body of approximately 10,000 undergraduate students and 900 graduate students, 20% of whom identify as minority, and 140 international students from 34 different countries. Additional information about the institution, the student body, and the surrounding area is available at https://www.cofc.edu/.

Applicants should apply online at https://jobs.cofc.edu/ and submit a cover letter, a curriculum vita, graduate transcripts, sample publication/example of scholarly research, a teaching portfolio (with a teaching philosophy and evidence of teaching effectiveness including, but not limited to course syllabi and course evaluations) and contact information for three references.

Questions about the search can be directed to the chair of the political science department Dr. Hollis France franceh@cofc.edu. Review of applications will begin November 15th, 2021 and continue until the position is filled. The College seeks to create a work environment and organizational culture that reflects the society and community in which it is located, and a climate for the success of every employee and student by appreciating the uniqueness that each one brings to the learning environment. To that end, we actively encourage applications from all groups underrepresented in higher education.

Georgetown University

Rank: Provost’s Distinguished Fellow and Assistant Professor
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Government at Georgetown University invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position in Race, Ethnicity and Identity Politics. This search is open to all four fields in the Government Department (American Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations and Political Theory) and all subfields within political science. Importantly, we seek applicants whose research expands the boundaries of political science and also those whose research invigorates existing and enduring questions in political science with scholarly insights and perspectives drawn from the politics of race, ethnicity and identity.

Successful candidates will contribute to an intellectual and academic agenda at Georgetown that seeks to establish the University as a premier center for research and teaching in race, ethnicity and identity politics. The successful candidate will have an opportunity to work with multiple units across the University which study race, ethnicity, and the politics of identity, including, among others, the newly established Racial Justice Institute, the African American Studies Department, the McCourt School of Public Policy, and the Georgetown Law Center.

For the first year of this position, the successful candidate will also hold the title of Provost’s Distinguished Faculty Fellow, and will have no teaching and service responsibilities to allow a focus on research while receiving mentorship and support from two senior faculty members. More on the Distinguished Faculty Fellow Program can be found at https://blog.provost.georgetown.edu/increasing-georgtowns-effectiveness-in-recruiting-faculty/).

Candidates should submit a cover letter, cv, three letters of reference, an academic writing sample, and a statement on diversity, equity and inclusion. In this DEI statement, applicants are asked to address any DEI activities they have been involved with (including research, teaching, community service, volunteer work, or presentations), and to highlight how aspects of their own identity (including, among others, ethnic, sociocultural, racial, religious, gender, and sexual identity) have shaped their experiences and world view, including any experiences of discrimination or barriers to advancement. Additionally, candidates are asked to address how diversity, equity and inclusion can advance the academic enterprise, to offer ideas on how to promote equity and inclusion in higher education and in the discipline of political science, more generally. We seek candidates who demonstrate a commitment to academic excellence and diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) through experience teaching and research on matters related to DEI or through service that has fostered DEI in a university community. Please submit these materials to http://apply.interfolio.com/95204 by October 15, 2021 to ensure full consideration, but review of applications will be on-going. The position remains open until filled. Please direct any questions regarding the search to Prof. Douglas S. Reed at reedd@georgetown.edu. Administrative questions regarding search logistics may be directed to Ileana Aguilar at ima2@georgetown.edu.

About Georgetown University and the Government Department

The Government Department at Georgetown is a leading department of Political Science. We are an open, dynamic, and publicly engaged community of scholars, students, and professional staff. We believe in the ideal of scholarship for its own sake but are also deeply committed to the role of cutting-edge research in informing politics and public life. We see our setting in Washington, DC as a rich opportunity for the study of politics, particularly within the field of race, ethnicity and identity politics and we particularly welcome applications from scholars whose research strives to connect the local and particular with broader forces and constructs within political life.

Georgetown University is one of the world’s leading academic and research institutions, offering a unique educational experience that prepares the next generation of global citizens to lead and make a

University of Illinois, Springfield
Rank: Assistant Professor
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations
Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, Immigration Policy, Social Welfare

The Department of Political Science at the University of Illinois Springfield (UIS) seeks applicants for a tenure-track faculty position at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning August 2022. The department seeks candidates with expertise in the politics of race, ethnicity, identity and/or inequality (broadly construed) as well as teaching interests in research methods. We seek applicants whose teaching and research focus on the politics of race, ethnicity, identity and/or inequality in the context of American Politics, Comparative Politics, or International Relations. The successful candidate is expected to teach undergraduate and graduate courses both online and on-ground in their area of specialization as well as in their broader subfields, contribute to the department’s research methods curriculum, and chair MA theses and comprehensive exams. The candidate is also expected to pursue an active research agenda and engage in service activities.

Candidates must hold a Ph.D. in Political Science by August 16, 2022. Candidates must demonstrate potential for excellence in teaching, scholarship, and service. Prior teaching experience at the college or university level is required. The regular teaching load for tenure-track appointments is 3-3. The successful candidate will have opportunities to receive course relief for curriculum development or scholarship.

This is a full-time on-campus position tenure-track academic appointment. UIS tenure-system faculty are expected to be available and engaged in the campus community, with assigned professional responsibilities for teaching, scholarship, and service.

The UIS Department of Political Science offers excellent academic preparation and opportunities to become engaged in real world politics for both undergraduate and graduate students. We offer undergraduate and graduate degrees in political science, and majors in public policy and global studies. Students also have the opportunity to receive a minor in political science and global studies. Several of these programs are fully online or on campus. The department has recently undergone a rigorous and exciting academic reorganization into a School of Politics and International Affairs, whose administrative structure will finalize in 2022.

One of the largest departments in the College of Public Affairs and Administration, the UIS Department of Political Science offers an opportunity for our students to live politics in the classroom, on the campus and in the community. Engaged political science makes the connections between the classroom and the world explicit as we challenge our students to both grasp the course material and explore how it has an impact outside of the classroom. The UIS Department of Political Science bridges the worlds of the “academic” and “practical” by providing concrete opportunities for the practice of theory and the theory of practice. Our school champions a culture of inclusion and diversity; we encourage applications from women and members of historically underrepresented groups.

Application deadline: October 29, 2021

The Nef Family Chair of Political Economy
Augustana University

Augustana University (Sioux Falls, SD) invites applications for an endowed chair in political economy. The Rudy & Marilyn Nef Family Chair of Political Economy will advance the study of market economies and representative democracies, both within the campus community and in the region. This tenure-track faculty position will be housed in the Government and International Affairs Department, but will draw on a breadth of research and extensive teaching experience to provide recognized scholarship and enthusiastic, effective instruction to the University’s offerings in economics, political science, public policy, and business. The Nef Family Chair will also provide collaborative and creative leadership in partnership with the Center for Interdisciplinary Studies.

We seek an outstanding teacher/scholar who reflects the foundational relevance of economic analysis in the design and administration of public policies, and who speaks authoritatively to the positive role of free markets, localized decision making and competition in a free society. The unique nature of this endowed chair position grants wide latitude to the instructor in terms of the courses offered, save a required course on capitalistic economic systems. Candidates capable of teaching upper-level Comparative Politics, Comparative/International Political Economy, Policy Analysis or Microeconomics are strongly encouraged to apply.

Additional responsibilities will include student advising, student research mentorship, and planning and facilitating public symposia relevant to the scholar’s teaching and research. Interacting with students, faculty and leadership with different backgrounds and points of view and a deep appreciation of and respect for academic values and culture must be a top value of the candidate. A doctorate is required. Compensation, rank and length of tenure track will be commensurate with experience. The starting date for this 12-month appointment is August, 2022. Screening will begin November 7th and continue until the position is filled. Finalists will be expected to present an engaging topic as part of the interview process.

Located in the growing and vibrant city of Sioux Falls, South Dakota, Augustana University has, for more than 160 years, provided a strong student-centric education based on its five core values: Christian faith, liberal arts, excellence, community, and service. The institution continues to expand its pre-professional and graduate offerings, while remaining true to its liberal arts tradition. Guided by the Viking Bold: Journey to 2030 strategic plan, Augustana seeks to grow its enrollment from just over 1,900 students to more than 3,000 undergraduate and graduate students.

Application Procedure:
Please send a letter of interest; curriculum vitae; Augustana University employment application; statement of commitment to diversity; statement of teaching philosophy; addresses, phone numbers and email addresses of three current references; and unofficial transcripts electronically to Human Resources at humanresources@augie.edu. Official website: www.augie.edu.

Arizona State University
Rank: Assistant/Associate in Race, Ethnicity and Politics
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, International Relations

The School of Politics and Global Studies at Arizona State University (Tempe) invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track position as an Assistant Professor or Associate Professor whose research and teaching focus is on Black/African American politics, race/ethnicity and U.S. politics, broadly defined. Though we are primarily interested in someone who studies Black/African American politics within the United States, we also invite applications from scholars who examine these issues from a comparative and/or transnational perspective that also encompass a focus on the U.S.

The position is open regarding the particular substantive dimensions and theoretical perspectives emphasized, as well as methodological approach(es). Along with the emphasis on Black/African American politics, and possible cross-national research, additional consideration will be given to candidates whose scholarship incorporates analysis of related factors (such as class and/or gender), and across various realms of politics (such as institutions, political behavior, and combinations thereof).

The successful candidate will contribute to curriculum development; teach at the undergraduate, master’s and doctoral levels as appropriate; supervise honors, masters and doctoral students; conduct research publishable in top-tier academic journals and/or top university presses in the discipline; participate in professional and university service; and develop grant proposals for external funding as PI or co-PI.

Minimum Qualifications:
Candidates must hold a Ph.D. in Political Science or related discipline by the time of appointment; demonstrated excellence in research commensurate with appointment at the level of assistant professor or associate professor level; demonstrated potential to establish a strong, externally-funded research program; and evidence of promise in and commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching.

Desired Qualifications:
Demonstrated potential to meet the needs of diverse student populations and/or reach out to diverse communities; a research focus with the potential to advance the mission of the School of Politics and Global Studies, especially in the areas of Black/African American politics and race/ethnicity and U.S. politics; a clear record of, or clear potential for, publishing in top journals and/or top university presses.
This is an in-person, academic year, benefits-eligible appointment. The anticipated start date is August 8 2022.

The application deadline is November 6, 2021; only applications that are complete by the deadline will be given full consideration. Applications will continue to be accepted and reviewed every two weeks thereafter until the position is closed.

Applicants should submit electronically (in MS Word or PDF Format) a cover letter (which states qualifications, experience, research plans, and teaching interests); a curriculum vitae; a writing sample; contact information (email and phone) for three references; a brief statement of 1-2 pages addressing how your past and/or potential contributions to diversity and inclusion will advance ASU’s commitment to inclusive excellence. Brown University

Rank: Watson Institute Postdoctoral Fellows Program 2022-2024

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Comparative Politics

The Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs at Brown University aspires to promote a just and peaceful world through research, teaching, and public engagement. Central to this mission is the Watson Postdoctoral Fellows Program, an effort to galvanize the careers of young social scientists conducting research related to the Institute’s three core thematic areas: development, governance, and security. Participants in this program will join an interdisciplinary community of scholars engaged in theoretically and substantively important research addressing the most pressing global issues of our time. Fellows receive two years of support, to be taken within a three-year period, with the expectation that they will pursue research and participate fully in the intellectual life of the Institute. Fellows will also teach one course per year in the Institute or in an affiliated Brown University social science department.

Founded in 1764, Brown is a leading research university distinct for its student-centered learning and deep sense of purpose. Brown University students, faculty, and staff are driven by the idea that their work will have an impact on the world. Brown is a place where rigorous scholarship, complex problem-solving, and service to the public good are defined by collaboration, intellectual discovery, and working in ways that transcend traditional disciplinary boundaries.

Job Summary
The Department of Political Science at Purdue is searching for two assistant professor positions in International Relations.

Principal Duties
The person holding this position is expected to develop and maintain a research record of excellence in international relations with a focus on security, cooperation, global governance, or foreign policy, broadly defined, and that connects, in some way, to one or both of the following broad college themes: Science, Technology, and Policy Analysis, and/or Technology, Communication, and Cooperation. In addition, the person holding this position will create and disseminate relevant knowledge through student instruction, and to others internal and external to the university. Strong commitment to PhD student mentoring and to maintaining a culture of diversity and inclusion is expected.

Qualifications
The candidate must have a Ph.D. in political science, public policy, or related field with expertise in international relations. This position... requires strong communication skills and the ability to publish high-quality peer-reviewed research. Preference will be given to candidates who can contribute expertise to the Advanced Methods at Purdue program through research that utilizes cutting-edge social science research methods.

The College and University

These positions are two of seven hires this year in the Department of Political Science. The College of Liberal Arts at Purdue University is embarking upon 40 faculty searches for positions to begin in Fall 2022. These positions will advance research within and across disciplines, and intersect with technology, data science, and engineering in relevant and important ways. These positions include teaching in our innovative, nationally-recognized Cornerstone Integrated Liberal Arts Program that educates students across the university.

Purdue University is a research-intensive, PhD-granting institution and a public land-grant university. Political Science faculty members are actively involved with many interdisciplinary programs and centers on campus such as the Nuclear Security Education program, Ecological Sciences and Engineering program, the Center for Research on Diversity and Inclusion, and the Human Rights Program and many interdisciplinary centers at Purdue’s Discovery Park and the new Center for Tech Diplomacy. In addition to the major and the PhD, the Department is home to graduate and undergraduate certificates and minors in environmental politics and policy, public policy, and human rights.

Purdue University, the College of Liberal Arts and the Department of Political Science are committed to free and open inquiry in all matters. Candidates are encouraged to address in their cover letter how they are prepared to contribute to a climate that values free inquiry.

Application Procedures

To apply, please visit https://career8.successfactors.com/sfcareer/jobreqcareer?jobId=16082&company=purdueuniv

Applications must be submitted online and include: 1) Curriculum Vitae, 2) Recent research paper or other writing sample, 3) Cover letter of interest that includes a statement describing how the applicant’s research and teaching fit the principal duties of the position, 4) A Diversity and Inclusion statement described below and 5) Three confidential references of letter of recommendation separately to the following email address PoliticalScienceIR@purdue.edu.

Purdue University’s Department of Political Science is committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort, including scholarship, instruction, and engagement. Candidates should address at least one of these areas in a separate Diversity and Inclusion Statement, indicating their past experiences, current interests or activities, and/or future goals to promote a climate that values diversity and inclusion.

Screening of applicants will begin November 1 and continue until the position is filled. A background check is required for employment in this position. For additional information, contact search committee chair Keith Shimko at kshimko@purdue.edu.

Purdue University is an EOE/AA employer. All individuals, including minorities, women, individuals with disabilities, and veterans are encouraged to apply.

University of Florida

Rank: Assistant Professor in Feminist International Relations

The Department of Political Science at the University of Florida, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, invites applications for a full-time, nine-month, and tenure-track Assistant Professor in Feminist International Relations to begin August 16, 2022. The Department hopes to hire faculty broadly engaged in research that is field-bridging, adding to our Department’s tradition of intellectual diversity and pluralism, as well as to better reflect the interests of our diverse undergraduate and graduate students. We seek a junior scholar of exceptional promise whose work focuses on Feminist International Relations (IR) broadly defined. Scholars conducting research on non-Western IR and/or the Global South as well as on the intersectional aspects of identities and their role in international politics, and whose research promotes and emphasizes epistemological and methodological pluralism are particularly encouraged to apply. Candidates should be able to offer courses in IR theory at the graduate and undergraduate levels.

Successful applicants are expected to teach two courses per fall and two courses per spring semester, with a mix of introductory and advanced undergraduate courses and graduate seminars. The ability to develop experiential learning opportunities for undergraduates and excel in mentoring undergraduate research in the Department’s Honors and Junior Fellows programs is a plus. Salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience, and includes a full benefits package. More information about the Department of Political Science can be found at: http://www.polisci.ufl.edu.

For full consideration, applications must be submitted online at http://explorec.is.ufl.edu/cw/en-us/listing/ and must include:

a) Cover letter
b) Curriculum vitae
c) Statement of research interests/plans
d) Statement of teaching interests/philosophy
e) Statement on a commitment to diversity in research, teaching, and mentoring
f) A writing sample (a dissertation chapter or one article reprint or pre-print)
g) Three confidential letters of recommendation.

Review of applications will begin October 15, 2021, and continue until the position is filled. All candidates for employment are subject to a pre-employment screening which includes a review of criminal records, reference checks, and verification of education.

The selected candidate will be required to provide an official transcript to the hiring department upon hire. A transcript will not be considered “official” if a designation of “Issued to Student” is visible. Degrees earned from an educational institution outside of the United States require evaluation by a professional credentialing service provider approved by the National Association of Credential Evaluation Services (NACES), which can be found at http://www.naces.org/

As articulated in the goals of the university, the college values faculty who embrace diversity and inclusion in research, teaching, and service. The University of Florida is an Equal Opportunity Institution dedicated to building a broadly diverse and inclusive faculty and staff.
Minorities, women, and individuals from other under-represented groups are strongly encouraged to apply. The selection process will be conducted in accordance with the provisions of Florida’s Government in the Sunshine and Public Records Laws. If an accommodation due to disability is needed to apply for this position, please call (352) 392-2477 or the Florida Relay System at (800) 955-8771 (TDD).

Georgetown University

Rank: Korea Foundation-Song Family Assistant Professorship in Korean Business and Economics

The Walsh School of Foreign Service seeks qualified applicants for a tenure-line assistant professor in Korean business, economics, and politics, supported by the Korea Foundation-Song Family endowment. For candidates at the advanced assistant professor level who have a demonstrated record of distinguished research and teaching, accelerated tenure clocks or appointments at the associate professor level may be considered. The successful candidate will be appointed within the Asian Studies Program (ASP) of the School of Foreign Service (SFS).

Candidates who draw from multiple disciplinary and methodological approaches, including political science, economics, business, history, anthropology, and sociology are encouraged to apply. The position will support and strengthen the interdisciplinary research agenda and curriculum of the SFS Asian Studies Program. Ideal candidates will have an active research agenda on Korean political economy and/or business and the ability to conduct primary research in the Korean language. Ideally, they would teach courses on topics such as the political economy of East Asia, Korean economic development, and other courses on Asia. Candidates must have completed their PhDs by the time of appointment for the fall 2022 semester.

To apply, please submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a writing sample, three reference letters, and if possible, evidence of teaching (syllabi, course evaluations, etc.). The SFS is strongly committed to fostering a climate that encourages diversity, equity and inclusion. Applicants should also submit a brief statement that discusses how they would contribute to inclusiveness in the areas of research, teaching, and service in the SFS and reflects on their teaching and mentorship of students from diverse backgrounds.

The candidate would teach four courses a year, some required by the program and others reflecting the candidate’s specialization. The courses would be chosen by the SSP director and associate director in consultation with the candidate.

As director of external education and outreach, he or she would supervise development and implementation of co-curricular education, liaise with educational institutions to include semester exchange program development and implementation (e.g., King’s College, Swedish Defense University, etc.), oversee development and implementation of several annual conferences, and develop external education opportunities. The successful candidate would work with SSP faculty and staff to manage part of the SSP curriculum depending on their area of expertise. In addition, he or she would mentor students, identify, manage, and mentor adjunct professors, and otherwise assist SSP leadership with the running of the program. He or she would report to the SSP director and associate director.

A Ph.D. with a specialization in a security-related area is preferred. The ideal candidate would also have a passion for educating future professionals; research on important security issues; significant experience teaching in a practical, student-centered program; and connections to colleagues in the Washington area to bring their expertise to Georgetown. Faculty rank will be determined by qualifications.

The start date for this three-year position is January 1, 2022, though flexibility on start date is possible. This position is renewable depending on performance and need. Reappointment will be determined in accordance with the Framework for Full Time Non-Tenure Line Instructional Faculty.

Applications for this position must be made via Georgetown’s online application management system at https://apply.interfolio.com/94510. Faxed, mailed or emailed applications will not be accepted. Review of applications will begin on October 22, 2021 and continue until the position is filled.

Questions about the online application should be directed to Sarah Krauss, Director of Faculty Affairs, at srk50@georgetown.edu. Questions about the position should be directed to Dr. Daniel Byman, professor in the Security Studies Program, and Daniel.byman@georgetown.edu.

SFS is committed to student and faculty diversity, equity, and inclusion. Applicants should submit a one-page diversity statement that discusses how they would contribute to inclusive excellence in the areas of research, teaching, and service in the SFS and reflects on their teaching and mentorship of students from diverse backgrounds.

In addition to the diversity statement, applicants should provide a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and recent teaching evaluations (if available) and the names and contact information of three people who can provide letters of reference upon request (letters do not need to be submitted with the initial application).

McGill University
Rank: Full-time tenure position at the rank of Associate Professor or Professor
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

Tenure-Track Faculty Position
Full or Associate Professor, Diamond-Brown Chair in Democratic Studies
Max Bell School of Public Policy and Department of Political Science
McGill University

The Max Bell School of Public Policy and the Department of Political Science at McGill University invite applications for the newly created Diamond-Brown Chair in Democratic Studies. The Chairholder will be jointly appointed, teaching in both units and strengthening the ties between them.

We seek an internationally renowned scholar who conducts leading-edge empirical research on contemporary democratic governance and politics. The search is open with respect to regional specialization and methodology. We invite applications from scholars of political behaviour and/or political institutions, from scholars of ongoing politics in consolidated democracies, and from scholars of democratization or democratic fragility in different regions of the world.

This position will provide a highly visible forum for a scholar studying recent worldwide challenges to democratic institutions and movements, and allow the Chairholder to enhance the policy orientation of fundamental research and to improve the public’s engagement with these issues. The Chairholder should have considerable experience participating in policy processes broadly understood, through a combination of public service, work with policy-oriented organizations, and advising policymakers. Demonstrated expertise in enhancing the public impact of policy-related research is an important asset. The Chairholder will be encouraged to build connections with McGill’s various research centres which focus on democracy, including (but not limited to) the Centre for the Study of Democratic Citizenship.

An applicant’s record must provide evidence of outstanding research, active engagement in the policy process, and success in teaching and graduate-student supervision. Appointment is expected to be at the rank of Full or Associate Professor with tenure. Candidates should have completed a PhD in political science or a closely-related discipline. The language of instruction at McGill is English, but proficiency in spoken and written French is an advantage.

Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a sample of written work, material pertinent to teaching skills, and the names and contact information of three referees. The position start date is August 1, 2022.

Review of applications will begin on December 15, 2021, and continue until the position is filled. Subfield(s): Open, Political Theory, International Relations
Specializations: Economic Policy, Ethnic & Feminist Theory, Germany

Faculty Fellow
The Center for European and Mediterranean Studies
Faculty of Arts and Science
New York University

The Center for European and Mediterranean Studies at New York University invites applicants for a Faculty Fellow position in the field of European Studies. The initial appointment will be for one year beginning September 1, 2022, renewable annually for a maximum of three years, pending administrative and budgetary approval.

CEMS/NYU seeks a scholar experienced in advising student research and specializing in one or more of the following fields: comparative European politics, anthropology, sociology, or contemporary European history. We are particularly interested in candidates whose research and teaching focuses on the European Union; on political, economic and social developments in contemporary Europe; and/or on identity and minorities in Europe.

Responsibilities include teaching three courses per year, with a focus on undergraduate and graduate seminars. Student advising is a key component of this position, as the faculty fellow will have a significant role in directing theses for both MA students and undergraduate honors students. Service to the program will also involve representing the Center at university occasions and committee meetings. Candidates should demonstrate a commitment to interdisciplinary scholarship and excellence in teaching.

Qualifications: Candidates should have completed their Ph.D. no earlier than 2017 and no later than August 1, 2022.

To apply, please submit a cover letter, CV, three letters of recommendation, a statement of research and interests, and a statement of diversity and inclusion. As diversity is an important part of the NYU mission, for the latter statement we ask you to provide a brief paragraph telling us how diversity figures into your past and present teaching, research, community engagement, and/or life experience, as well as how you would bring issues of diversity to bear on the teaching and programming of NYU CEMS. University of Toronto
Rank: Assistant Professor - International Relations

Assistant Professor - International Relations
Date Posted: 09/15/2021
Closing Date: 10/21/2021

Description:

The Department of Political Science in the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a full-time tenure stream position in the area of International Relations. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor, with an expected start date of July 1, 2022, or shortly thereafter.

Applicants must have earned a PhD degree in Political Science, International Relations, or a related area by the time of the appointment, or shortly thereafter, with a demonstrated record of excellence in research and teaching. The area of specialization within International Relations is open; theoretical and methodological approaches are also open.

We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and strengthen our existing departmental strengths. The successful candidate will undertake undergraduate and graduate teaching responsibilities on the University of Toronto’s downtown (St. George) campus. Applicants are encouraged to review the research and teaching profiles of current faculty members. Please visit our home page (Department of Political Science https://politics.utoronto.ca) to learn more about us.

The successful candidate will be expected to pursue innovative and independent research at the highest international level and to establish an outstanding, competitive, and externally funded research program. Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence which can be demonstrated by the submitted research statement, a record of publications in top-ranked and field relevant journals or forthcoming publications meeting high international standards, presentations at significant conferences, awards and accolades, and strong endorsements from referees of high standing.

Evidence of excellence in teaching will be provided through teaching accomplishments, the teaching dossier (with required materials outlined below) submitted as part of the application, as well as strong letters of reference.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment demonstrated through the application materials.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter; a current curriculum vitae; a research statement outlining current and future research interests; a recent writing sample of no more than 30 pages; and a teaching dossier to include a teaching statement, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations. Equity and diversity are essential to academic excellence. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of their contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover (but need not be limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

Applications must provide the name and contact information of three references. The University of Toronto’s recruiting tool will automatically solicit and collect letters of reference from each after an application is submitted (this happens overnight). Applicants remain responsible for ensuring that references submit letters (on letterhead, dated and signed) by the closing date.

Submission guidelines can be found at http://uoft.me/how-to-apply. Your CV and cover letter should be uploaded into the dedicated fields. Please combine additional application materials into one or two files in PDF/MS Word format. If you have any questions about this position, please contact Sari Sherman at chair.polisci@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by October 21, 2021.
All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Diversity Statement
The University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from racialized persons / persons of colour, women, Indigenous / Aboriginal People of North America, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ2S+ persons, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committee or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see http://uoft.me/UP.

Accessibility Statement
The University strives to be an equitable and inclusive community, and proactively seeks to increase diversity among its community members. Our values regarding equity and diversity are linked with our unwavering commitment to excellence in the pursuit of our academic mission.

The University is committed to the principles of the Accessibility for Ontarians with Disabilities Act (AODA). As such, we strive to make our recruitment, assessment and selection processes as accessible as possible and provide accommodations as required for applicants with disabilities.

If you require any accommodations at any point during the application and hiring process, please contact uoft.careers@utoronto.ca.

Tufts University
Rank: Lee E. Dirks Chair in Diplomatic History

Description
The Fletcher School, established in 1933 as the first exclusively graduate school of international affairs in the United States, seeks to hire a full-time tenured faculty position in diplomatic history or the history of international relations to begin in September 2022. Applications are encouraged from historians as well as political scientists who study diplomatic history. Preference will be given to applicants at the rank of Associate or Full Professor.

The Fletcher School’s faculty is multi-disciplinary with a focus on preparing tomorrow’s leaders with a global perspective. The School undertakes research and prepares masters and doctoral students to use the latest political, business, economic, and legal thinking, among others, to generate pragmatic policies or make executive decisions that will successfully shape global events. Tufts University is a world-renowned research university dedicated to the creation and application of knowledge.

Qualifications
Candidates must possess a doctoral degree in a relevant field (e.g. diplomatic history, political science) and demonstrate outstanding scholarship in diplomacy or diplomatic history. Teaching experience at the graduate level is especially valued. The successful candidate will be a leading scholar in the field. The candidate will be responsible for teaching, research, and supervising graduate student research, and will serve on a small number of committees at The Fletcher School or Tufts University. Importantly, the candidate will contribute to the intellectual community at Fletcher, serving as the anchor on diplomacy at the school. The holder of the Lee Dirks Chair in Diplomatic History will also contribute to the Edward R. Murrow Center for Public Diplomacy at Fletcher. In addition to an exceptional scholarly record, the ideal candidate will have policy experience as well.

Application Instructions
Candidates should submit a cover letter, a statement of research and teaching interests including concrete descriptions of current and future plans for research as well as their particular interest in the position at The Fletcher School, curriculum vitae, list of at least three references, and previous teaching evaluations. The search committee will begin reviewing applications on October 1, 2021 and will continue reviewing until the position is filled. Applications can be submitted via Interfolio. U.S. Army War College
Rank: Professor of Security Studies

United States Army War College
Professor of Security Studies
Salary range: $80,153 – $143,943

Objective:
The United States Army War College seeks to fill the position of Assistant/Associate/Full Professor of Security Studies in the Department of National Security and Strategy in the School of Strategic Landpower. Preference is for scholars with a substantive focus on new domains, history of technology and war, or other non-traditional security issues, though all applications will be considered.

Context:

This is a fulltime, long-term, civilian faculty position at the United States Army’s most senior institution for professional military education. Initial appointment may be for up to 4 years; the first two years are probationary; the academic rank of initial appointment will be commensurate with the applicant’s level of experience. Appointments may be renewed. The Army War College educates the top echelon of US military officers of all services, US government civilians, and military officers from scores of foreign countries. It develops strategic leaders by providing a rigorous curriculum of theoretical and professional subjects, leading to a Master’s of Strategic Studies accredited by the Middle States Commission on Higher Education.

Expectations:

The person selected for this position will have a leading role in planning, administering, and teaching the core course, “War, Policy, and National Security,” as well as other core and elective courses of the resident education program and associated programs. They will serve as a faculty instructor for one seminar, advise students and serve as project advisor for student research projects. They will also engage in cutting-edge scholarship that advances knowledge in fields relevant to the curriculum; engage in service in support of USAWC missions. Other duties may include teaching regional studies courses and/or supporting the development and execution of the National Security Policy Program. The position comes with a generous compensation package as well as with the many benefits of working at an innovative, vibrant, and collegial military educational institution.

Finally, the applicant must be able to obtain and maintain a security clearance from the US government.

Rewards and Compensation:

The person selected would find employment at the Army War College enjoyable, satisfying, and rewarding. They would have the benefit of working at an institution dedicated to his or her scholarly focus. Additionally, the person selected would sense the urgency of the mission, collegiality of the faculty, security of the military environment, quality and diversity of the student body, and climate of cooperation and teamwork. These defining features have long appealed to civilian faculty members who have worked at the Army War College for any length of time.

Compensation is dependent on the applicant’s qualifications and professional experience. We are prepared to offer a salary-and-benefits package designed to attract highly talented applicants.

Qualifications:

In order to qualify, you must meet the education and/or experience requirements described below. Your curriculum vitae or résumé must clearly describe your relevant experience. Applicants will be rated based on the placement factors and Knowledge, Skills, and Abilities (KSAs) listed below by a search committee appointed for the purpose of identifying the best-qualified candidates.

1. Must have master’s degree (required) in national security studies, international relations, government, political science, history, regional studies, or related field. A PhD or equivalent evidence of extensive original scholarly research and writing is strongly preferred. Doctoral students within six months of completing the degree are eligible to apply.

2. Must have an established record of superlative teaching at the undergraduate, graduate, or Senior Service College level. Experience at the graduate level is preferred.

3. Ability to prepare, teach, and lecture on subjects related to national security policy and strategy formulation, theories of war and strategy, and other subjects to include political economy, diplomacy, or regional studies.

4. Record of scholarly research and publication—or evidence of great potential for such research and publication—in areas relevant to the curriculum, to include national security policy and strategy, international relations, political science, history, political economy, regional studies, and the strategic use of military force (assurance, deterrence, coercion, and compellence).

5. A record of successful service to the profession including membership in and service to professional (regional, historical, political) scholarly societies, public history initiatives, or military and defense organization. A record of successful non-governmental work of a similar nature and scope, such as with a think tank, development organization, media organization, or international organization may also be considered.

Application:

To apply for this position, you must provide a complete application package which includes the items listed below. Applications must be postmarked or e-dated by the closing date of this job announcement. Please include the job announcement number on the application.

1. Letter of application addressing the required Knowledge, Skills and Abilities, as listed in the Qualifications section above.
2. Résumé or curriculum vitae.
3. Proof of U.S. citizenship (i.e., birth certificate, passport)
4. One sample of written scholarship not to exceed 50 pages (Electronic format is preferred, as hard copies will not be returned without a self-addressed and metered envelope.)
5. Academic transcripts (undergraduate and graduate level). Unofficial transcripts are permissible for initial submission of the application, but you must provide official college transcripts upon request.
6. List of four disinterested professional references (i.e., persons who can affirm the candidate’s qualifications but have no stake in the outcome of the selection)
7. Documentation supporting any request for Veteran’s Preference (such as a DD Form 214 or VA statement of disability)
8. A short narrative of one page or less that describes how you would contribute to an atmosphere of diversity at the U.S. Army War College through teaching, scholarship, and/or service.

Both paper and electronic submissions are acceptable, but the latter is strongly encouraged. The preferred method of submission is by e-mail with .pdf attachments. Please note that documents submitted as part of the application may be shared beyond the Human Resources Office. For additional information, visit the USAJobs website https://www.usajobs.gov/GetJob/ViewDetails/614295500

University of California, Berkeley
Rank: Assistant, Associate, Full Professor - International Development Policy - Goldman School of Public Policy

Assistant, Associate, Full Professor - International Development Policy - Goldman School of Public Policy

The University of California, Berkeley faculty and academic leadership have identified the Goldman School of Public Policy (GSPP) as a priority for growth and prominence. We invite applications for an open-rank position in international development policy. The Goldman School holds the #1 US News and World Report ranking in policy analysis, and we are committed to expanding our scholarly reach in the stated area of interest.

We seek a scholar with exemplary methodological and quantitative analytic skills, a strong record of success with sponsored research and external funding, and who desires a substantive leadership role within our Masters of Development Practice (MDP) program, along with other GSPP degree programs or centers. The GSPP faculty are highly interdisciplinary and take pride in having a diversity of perspectives that help to understand and solve public problems. We seek candidates with a variety of specializations, including but not limited to: development and resource economics; growth models, including those taking into account innovation, human capital, and social capital; linkages between investments in human resources, civil society, economic growth, and democratic stability and evaluating investments in these areas; the impact of international trade, globalization, and international development agencies on development; and policies to account for cross-border challenges, including health crises and natural disasters.

The ideal candidate will be in their mid-career stage, likely at the advanced Assistant or Associate Professor level, and thus expected to have a distinguished scholarly record sufficient to be awarded tenure at UC Berkeley, at the time of hire or shortly thereafter, along with a demonstrated strong commitment to teaching. GSPP has a diverse faculty that is committed to all forms of diversity, and we encourage candidates from all backgrounds to apply.

Candidates must hold a Ph.D. at the time of appointment in economics, planning, political science, public policy, sociology, or another discipline relevant to international policy.

Scholars should have a demonstrated record of consequential research and a clear interest in teaching in, and advancing further, the School’s MDP and Masters in Public Policy (MPP) professional programs, including through pursuit of international partnerships. We encourage applications from individuals with an understanding of, and commitment to, the public university mission, as well as a familiarity with schools of public policy. Prior policy-related work experience is desirable. The Goldman School is particularly interested in candidates who will contribute to diversity, inclusive perspectives, collegial respect, and support for underserved student populations through their intellectual voice and actions in research, teaching, and service. This commitment to advancing equity and inclusion is essential for GSPP, as our excellence can only be fully realized if our entire community shares in the commitment to these values.

The Goldman School of Public Policy is committed to addressing the family needs of faculty, including dual career couples and single parents. We are also interested in candidates who have had non-traditional career paths or who have taken time off for family reasons, or who have achieved excellence in careers outside academia.

University of Georgia

Rank: Assistant Professor

The Department of International Affairs (DIA) at the University of Georgia invites applications for a tenure track position in ethnicity, race, and migration at the rank of Assistant Professor to begin in the fall of 2022. While we seek a scholar who is trained in the concepts, methods, and approaches used in the study of comparative politics and/or international relations, we are particularly interested in candidates who couple a specialty in ethnicity, race, and migration with teaching and research interests in political violence, underrepresented regions, international law, international and regional organizations, institutions, refugees, or development. Candidates are expected to have a demonstrated ability to produce high quality research, show promise of attracting external funding and teaching effectiveness, and be well trained in research methods, including qualitative and/or quantitative methods.

Prospective candidates must apply for the position through the UGA Faculty Job site at: https://www.ugajobsearch.com/postings/215509. To complete the application, candidates will need to submit a cover letter indicating interest and qualifications, a current curriculum vita, teaching evaluations demonstrating excellence in instruction, original transcripts, and three letters of recommendation. Questions or hard copies of letters of recommendation can be sent to Bill Zachmann, Department of International Affairs, University of Georgia, Candle Hall 219, Athens, GA 30602 (zachmann@uga.edu). Applicants should have an earned Ph.D. degree in political science or a related discipline by August 2022. Applications received by October 15, 2021 will be assured full consideration.

Georgia is well known for its quality of life, outdoor and cultural amenities, and affordability (https://www.exploregeorgia.org and https://www.georgia.org/competitive-advantages/life-georgia). UGA (www.uga.edu) is a land/sea grant institution located 75 miles northeast of Atlanta.

The Department of International Affairs is committed to enhancing the diversity of the department and the curriculum. Candidates who can contribute to these goals are encouraged to apply and to identify their strengths and experiences in this area in their cover letter. The University of Georgia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, disability, gender identity, sexual orientation or protected veteran status.

APSA expression of interest

Tenure Track Assistant Professor Position at the Department of International Economics, Government and Business (EGB) at Copenhagen Business School (CBS)

You should hold, or be close to completing, a PhD. You should be able to demonstrate a strong research potential in the areas of Business and Government and/or International Business. In addition, you should have excellent methodological skills. Participation in teaching and an interest in developing research-based teaching courses is expected of a tenure track assistant professor at CBS.

EGB is a multidisciplinary department, which conducts high-quality research in the fields of political science and international business with direct relevance to business, policymakers, and the public. The department has two principal focus areas of research: 'Business and Government' and 'International Business'; EGB conducts research within these principal focus areas and their interfaces and is uniquely positioned to generate research in the intersection of these two focus areas. Business and Government is rooted in the disciplines political science, political economy, and government. International Business includes both the disciplines of international economics and international management.

EGB conducts research in business and governance in the context of contemporary societal challenges. Much of EGB’s research takes into account the political and socio-economic conditions of specific geographical regions or countries, the stages of firms’ internationalization processes, and other factors shaping the actions of policy makers, market actors, and other stakeholders. To learn more about the research and education profile of the department, please visit the departmental homepage. https://www.cbs.dk/en/research/departments-and-centres/department-of-international-economics-government-and-business

These are non-exhaustive examples of research and teaching areas that the assistant professor may cover:

- Business and government, money in politics
- Political economy
- Regulation of social and economic transformations
- Foreign Direct Investment, trade, taxation

Candidates who are available for an informal interview during the 2021 APSA meeting, September 29 – October 3, should send an expression of interest, following the guidelines, see: expression of interest form. https://candidate.hr-manager.net/ApplicationForm/SinglePageApplicationForm.aspx?cid=1309&departmentId=19022&ProjectId=146178

You should provide a CV, cover letter, and a writing sample. There is no requirement for reference letters. The deadline for submitting an expression of interest is September 23 (23:59, Central European Time).

For further information regarding the department, please visit the EGB website or contact Head of Department Jens Gammelgaard (jg.egb@cbs.dk). Informal job talks will be carried out online by Jens Gammelgaard and relevant colleague(s).

University of Notre Dame

Rank: Director of the Kellogg Institute for International Studies

The University of Notre Dame’s Kellogg School of Global Affairs seeks a full professor to be the Director of the Kellogg Institute for International Studies (https://kellogg.nd.edu). The Kellogg Institute promotes rigorous interdisciplinary, policy- and practice-relevant research on critical global challenges, with a particular focus on democracy and human development in Latin America and Africa.

The Kellogg Institute includes more than 120 Notre Dame faculty fellows from 21 disciplines and has welcomed over 400 visiting scholars from more than 40 nations and 200 institutions since 1983. It is the home to numerous interdisciplinary research initiatives, including policy and practice labs, research clusters, working groups, and the Ford Program for Human Development Studies and Solidarity. The Institute invests over $200,000 annually in doctoral fellowships, grants, and professionalization. It also includes a vibrant, competitive undergraduate program that supports international research experiences for undergraduate students, which has enabled more than 40 of its students to win NSF, Rhodes, Gilman, Truman, Fulbright and other national awards and fellowships. The Director’s position offers an opportunity for a scholar who will thrive in this unique interdisciplinary and collaborative atmosphere.

As director of a research institute at the core of the Keough School (http://keough.nd.edu), the successful candidate will be a key member of the School’s executive leadership team and play a creative leadership and program-building role within the Keough School. The Keough School promotes interdisciplinary research on critical issues in global affairs, offers a master’s degree, and sponsors undergraduate and doctoral programs as well as a policy studies program. In keeping with Notre Dame’s mission as a leading Catholic research university committed to engaging questions of value, ethics and faith in a pluralistic global context, the Keough School seeks to advance integral human development (https://keough.nd.edu/one-concept-two-imperatives), a holistic and inclusive vision of human flourishing.

From its founding the Kellogg Institute has been led by distinguished scholars who have maintained their influential research and publica- tion projects while leading the talented administrative team overseeing the Institute’s many vital research, visiting fellow, and curricular programs. That tradition will continue with the new director, who will have the opportunity and support to develop these programs further while taking the Kellogg Institute to its next level of growth and influence.

Specifically, we seek a dynamic intellectual leader and scholar who specializes in one or more of the subjects relevant to the academic mission of the Institute and the School. These include the historical, political, economic, social and cultural dimensions of democracy and/ or development in Latin America and/or Africa.

Notwithstanding its signature strength in the social sciences, the Kellogg Institute welcomes applications from scholars from any appropriate discipline, who have the intellectual breadth to foster excellence in a truly interdisciplinary and international institute. The successful candidate will also have an outstanding publication, grant writing, and teaching record, an established international reputation, experience as an administrator and experience in engaging policy or practice communities.

Notre Dame is committed to enhancing the racial, gender and international diversity of the University community; the new Kellogg Director will be expected to prioritize the goal of diversifying further the profile of the Institute’s faculty, staff and students. Women and candidates from underrepresented populations are particularly encouraged to apply.

The successful candidate, who will serve a five-year term as Director of the Kellogg Institute, will be periodically reviewed, with the possibility of renewal for a second term. The successful candidate will be a tenured faculty member of the Keough School; a joint or concurrent appointment in the appropriate disciplinary department is possible.

The University of Notre Dame supports the needs of dual career couples and has a Dual Career Assistance Program in place to assist relocating spouses and significant others with their job search. The University is also a member of the Greater Chicago Midwest Higher Education Recruitment Consortium.

University of Central Florida
Rank: Assistant Professor, Cyber Security and Privacy
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations
Specializations: Intelligence, International Security, Regulatory Policy

The University of Central Florida (UCF) has established nine interdisciplinary clusters to strengthen its academic offerings and research mission. In support of this effort, we are recruiting faculty in the broad area of cyber security and privacy, from a policy or social science perspective, and plan to hire one tenure-earning assistant professor for this cluster. This position has an anticipated start date of August 8, 2022.

The Cybersecurity and Privacy Cluster is an interdisciplinary initiative, bringing together researchers from across the campus and working on addressing the pressing questions of our national security from engineering, science, and social perspectives. The cluster currently has eight members, collectively advising more than 35 doctoral students, and embracing a strong culture of collaboration and teamwork. The cluster runs various well-funded programs, has developed and implemented a new interdisciplinary M.S. in Cybersecurity and Privacy, and was recently selected by the National Science Foundation to be a host institution for the prestigious Scholarship for Service Program.

This is an interdisciplinary position that will be expected to strengthen both the cluster and a chosen tenure home department and may include a combination of joint appointments. A strong advantage of this position is the ability of the candidate to choose a combination of units from the cluster for their appointment. See http://www.ucf.edu/faculty/cluster/cyber-security-and-privacy/ for a complete list of all the units involved. Both individual and interdisciplinary infrastructure and startup support will be provided with this new position.

The ideal candidate will have a strong background in cyber security and privacy and be on an upward leadership trajectory in these areas. They will have research impact as reflected in high-quality publications and the ability to build a well-funded research program. In particular, we are looking for a team player who can help bring together current campus efforts in cyber security or privacy, and someone who will work at the intersection of several areas, addressing the policy, regulatory or social science aspects with a focus on one or more of the following topics: a) privacy laws and regulation; b) social media; c) cybercrimes; d) cyberwarfare; e) cyber security and intelligence. With this in mind, we anticipate the selected candidate will be tenure-earning in one of, but not limited to, the following units: Criminal Justice; Legal Studies; Modeling, Simulation, and Training; Politics, Security, and International Affairs; or Sociology.

UCF is one of the nation’s largest universities with a diverse student body of more than 70,000 students and has grown substantially in size, quality, diversity, and reputation in its first 50 years. Today, the university offers more than 200 degree programs. UCF is an economic engine, attracting and supporting industries vital to the region’s future while providing students with real-world experiences that help them succeed after graduation.

UCF’s Orlando main campus location also puts it at the center of the Florida High Tech Corridor. The corridor has an excellent industrial base that includes software, defense, space, simulation and training, and world-renowned entertainment industry. Adjacent to the UCF main campus is a thriving research park that conducts over $2 billion in funded research, hosting more than 100 high-technology companies, UCF’s Institute for Simulation and Training and UCF’s new School of Modeling, Simulation and Training. The Central Florida area is designated by the state of Florida as the Center of Excellence in Modeling and Simulation. UCF also has an accredited medical school which was established in 2006 and is a neighbor to large corporations such as Disney, Harris Corporation, Lockheed Martin, Siemens, and many others, all of which have a strong interest in cyber security and privacy. Great weather, easy access to the seashore, one of the largest convention centers in the nation, and one of the world’s best airports are just a few features that make Orlando an ideal location. We encourage you to learn more about one of UCF’s newest endeavors, the exciting Faculty Cluster Initiative, at https://www.ucf.edu/faculty/faculty-research-clusters.

Additional Application Materials Required:

UCF requires all applications and supporting documents to be submitted electronically through the Human Resources website, www.ucf.edu/jobs/. No paper or emailed applications or materials will be considered.

In addition to the online application, interested candidates must attach the following materials to their application:

1) A Diversity Statement:

UCF has a diverse student body and community, and we are committed to meeting the needs of this community. Please tell us about your contributions to diversity, equity, and inclusion, in the context of a faculty-student setting and as a colleague, as well as future plans to advance these contributions. Such indicators of commitments to diversity, equity, and inclusion may be demonstrated through scholarship, teaching, mentoring, service and engagement.

2) A Cover Letter:

In the cover letter candidates must address their background in research and scholarship in the area in cyber security and privacy as related to policy and regulatory aspects and identify the department or departments for their potential tenure home, as well as any joint appointments they would desire.

3) Curriculum Vitae,

4) Teaching Statement,

5) Research Statement, and

6) Contact information for three professional references (include email address and telephone number).

NOTE: Please have all application documents ready when applying so they can be attached at that time. Once the online submission process is finalized, the system does not allow applicants to submit additional documents at a later date.

Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. To ensure consideration before the position is closed, the application should be submitted promptly.

Questions regarding this search can be directed to the cluster lead and search committee chair, Dr. David Mohaisen, at mohaisen@ucf.edu.

University of Washington, Tacoma

Rank: Assistant Professor of International Law and Human Rights

The University of Washington Tacoma (UWT) invites applications for an Assistant Professor of International Law and Human Rights in the Division of Politics, Philosophy, and Public Affairs (PPPA) within the School of Interdisciplinary Arts & Sciences (SIAS). This is a full-time tenure track position with a 9-month service period to begin September 16, 2022. Tenure track faculty teach six classes per year, combining lower-level introductory courses with upper-level courses in international law, comparative law, law and society, and human rights. Successful candidates will have the opportunity to develop curriculum in their area of expertise.

This position is expected to engage in interdisciplinary research and teaching in PPPA Division’s two majors (Law & Policy and Politics Philosophy & Economics) and the Tri-campus Minor in Human Rights. The successful candidate will join a faculty with a shared interest in human rights and social justice, and strong connections with the Center for Human Rights of the University of Washington. Our division values scholarly and research excellence at the intersection of human rights, international law, and activism, as well as teaching in critical, equity-oriented approaches. You can learn more about the Division, the two majors and six minors we host, and the faculty from our website (https://www.tacoma.uw.edu/politics-philosophy-public-affairs/pppa-home/). This position is contingent on funding.

The Tacoma campus of the University of Washington was established in 1990 with an interdisciplinary approach at its foundation. It has evolved into a thriving downtown campus that serves students of a wide variety of ages and backgrounds. Faculty have access to the resources of the University of Washington, including an extensive library system, but work and teach within a small campus setting. Our campus provides a unique environment for the development of creative teaching, research, and community collaborations. UW Tacoma’s commitment to diversity and equity is central to maintaining an atmosphere wherein students, staff, faculty, and community members find abundant opportunities for intellectual, personal, and professional growth. For more information about UW Tacoma, visit https://www.tacoma.uw.edu/.

The minimum qualification for this position is a PhD (or foreign equivalent advanced degree) in Political Science, International Studies, Global Studies, Sociology, History, Law and Society or related fields by August 2022. The successful candidate will be a scholar with the promise of research and teaching excellence, specializing in the study of human rights, international law, and/or international organizations. Areas of scholarship of an ideal candidate may include international or comparative courts and judicial systems, global markets and human rights, global migrations, international law and ethics, technology and human rights, international social movements, legal pluralism, or race, ethnicity, indigeneity, gender, sexuality, and human rights and international law. All regional specialties beyond the US are welcome.

To apply, please submit the following via Interfolio:

- A letter of interest detailing how your teaching, scholarship, and professional service fits with this position.
- A curriculum vitae
A current essay or chapter
A statement of research interests (maximum one page)
A diversity, equity, and inclusion statement that explains how your teaching, research, and service or activism support social justice and the success of students from underrepresented racial, ethnic, and gender backgrounds. If you have not yet had the opportunity for such experience, please note how your work in international law and human rights would further UW Tacoma’s commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion (maximum one page)
Evidence of teaching effectiveness
Contact information for three references able to provide letters of recommendation.
Questions should be directed to the search chair, Prof. Michael Forman (forman@uw.edu). Compensation is competitive with that of comparable positions and includes UW’s excellent health insurance and retirement benefits.

Screening of applications will begin on October 14, 2021, and will continue until the position is filled.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement
University of Washington is an affirmative action and equal opportunity employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, creed, religion, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, marital status, pregnancy, genetic information, gender identity or expression, age, disability, or protected veteran status.

Commitment to Diversity
The University of Washington is committed to building diversity among its faculty, librarian, staff, and student communities, and articulates that commitment in the UW Diversity Blueprint (http://www.washington.edu/diversity/diversity-blueprint/). Additionally, the University’s Faculty Code recognizes faculty efforts in research, teaching and/or service that address diversity and equal opportunity as important contributions to a faculty member’s academic profile and responsibilities (https://www.washington.edu/admin/rules/policies/FCG/FCCH24.html#2432).

Lake Forest College
Rank: Assistant Professor of Politics and International Relations
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Methodology
The Lake Forest College Department of Politics and International Relations invites applications for a tenure-track, assistant professor in comparative politics or international relations with a specialization in Latin America to begin August 2022. Lake Forest College has a rich, interdisciplinary program in Latin American and Latinx Studies to which the successful candidate is expected to contribute significantly. We are seeking someone to teach Introduction to Comparative Politics and Introduction to Global Politics; a research methods survey course, required for Politics and International Relations majors, that includes qualitative and/or quantitative methods; and a broad range of other courses in comparative politics or international relations, with a focus on Spanish-speaking countries in Latin America. And while we encourage candidates of all substantive interests to apply, those whose work focuses on issues of human rights, social movements, migration, indigenous communities, or populism are most welcome. Additionally, candidates with corollary research and/or teaching interests in the Latinx experience within the domestic United States are particularly encouraged to apply.

Applicants should be aware of the many interdisciplinary programs Lake Forest College has to offer including African American Studies, American Studies, Urban Studies, and Social Justice. We also offer an “In the Loop” semester-long residential program in Chicago, as well as many courses emphasizing Chicago history, politics, and its diverse cultures. Lake Forest College’s proximity to Chicago provides an opportunity to use the city as a “laboratory” for student work and research. We are especially interested in candidates who can contribute to any of these programs and can incorporate students into their research programs.

Candidates will be expected to have a record of demonstrated teaching excellence and the promise of scholarly productivity. Ph.D. in political science, or a related field, must be completed by the time of appointment. Our teaching load is 3/3, with small classes (typically 15-25 students). We support faculty research through provision of student research assistants and summer research funds; successful passage of the third-year review earns a half-year sabbatical at full pay, in the fourth or fifth year of service. Tenure review takes place at the start of the sixth year. Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, unofficial graduate transcript, a teaching statement that addresses diversity in a liberal arts setting, sample syllabi, a sample of scholarly writing, three confidential letters of recommendation, and student evaluations of teaching to James J. Marquardt, Ph.D., Associate Professor of Politics and International Relations at latinamericasearch@lakeforest.edu

A highly selective liberal arts college located on Chicago’s North Shore, Lake Forest College enrolls approximately 1,600 students from more than 40 states and from more than 70 countries. Lake Forest College has to offer including African American Studies, American Studies, Urban Studies, and Social Justice. We also offer an “In the Loop” semester-long residential program in Chicago, as well as many courses emphasizing Chicago history, politics, and its diverse cultures. politics and economics while embracing cross-disciplinary research and dialogue. We encourage approaches including area studies, historical institutionalism, heterodox economics, feminist political theory, transnational analysis, institutional economics, and public policy analysis, and we value research methods that emphasize the analysis of real-world data over formal modeling.

This position supports the College’s innovative PEAK Curriculum and two related majors offered by the Department: Political Economy and International Political Economy. The successful candidate will teach International Politics, Political Economy of Development, International Political Economy, and related courses. The teaching load is 3-3 with an additional short January-term topics course based on the candidate’s expertise. We grant significant autonomy to faculty members to design their own courses that support the department’s political economy approach and liberal arts vision. Ability to offer upper level area studies or regional survey courses on Africa, Europe, Latin America, or the Middle East is desired. Interest in providing short-term study away courses is also desirable as department faculty regularly offer such courses to Asia, Europe, and Africa as part of IPE programming.

Successful candidates will have an active research agenda while demonstrating a passion for teaching in the liberal arts tradition. They will join a student-centered department where teaching and mentoring are valued as the highest priority. Such mentorship has recently led students in the department to Marshall, Truman, and Rhodes scholarships as well as to national recognition of departmental faculty for teaching excellence. Professional development support for research, conference travel, and sabbatical leave is available.

A Ph.D. is required in International Relations, International Political Economy, Political Science, Economics, Sociology, or other related fields in international studies. Advanced ABD applicants will be considered.

Applications must include letter of interest, CV, statement demonstrating a passion for teaching in the liberal arts tradition, sample syllabi, recent course evaluations, at least three letters of recommendation, and demonstrated commitment to representation, inclusion, and equity. Candidates must be authorized to work in the United States as of the expected hire date and throughout the date of the contract without sponsorship from The College of Idaho. Application review will begin September 30, 2021 and continue until the position has been filled. Please submit application materials via email to hr@collegeofidaho.edu with subject ‘Political Economy Search.’

With over 130 years of history, The College of Idaho is a regional and national leader in higher education. The College of Idaho is an inclusive community of exceptional learning that challenges the ambitious and forges pathways to success and purpose. Loyola Marymount University
Rank: Assistant Professor - Political Science and International Relations
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations

The Department of Political Science and International Relations at Loyola Marymount University invites applications for an Assistant Professor (tenure-track) whose work addresses structural racism or Black politics. Sub-field specialization is open and we welcome applications from candidates whose research and teaching addresses the Black political experience, racial oppression, discrimination, and violence from domestic (US or other countries), international, transnational, diasporic, post-colonial, normative, historical, or critical perspectives. We expect candidates to ground their work—theoretical and/or empirical—in an intersectional understanding of how interlocking or overlapping systems of oppression, domination, inequality, or hierarchies, shape the political world.

LMU has a 2-2/2-3 teaching load, meaning that faculty teach two undergraduate courses per semester, with one 3 course load semester every other year. We would expect the successful candidate to teach courses both within our existing curriculum, but also to support and develop courses that speak directly to the Black political experience, broadly understood. We are seeking to hire a dedicated teacher and emerging scholar who will embrace the department’s mission of helping undergraduate students become informed, analytically reflective, methodologically rigorous, and engaged global citizens. Successful candidates must demonstrate a commitment to working with diverse student and community populations.

Loyola Marymount University, a Carnegie classified R2 institution in the mainstream of American Catholic higher education, seeks outstanding applicants who value its mission and share its commitment to inclusive excellence, the education of the whole person, and the building of a just society. LMU is an equal opportunity employer committed to providing an environment free from discrimination and harassment as defined by federal, state and local law. We invite all persons in the full diversity of their being, life experiences, and beliefs to apply. Please read more about our commitments and our efforts at https://resources.lmu.edu/offic eofintculturalaffairs/.

Candidates should submit application materials via the LMU Human Resources online application portal (https://pa843.peopleadmin.com/postings/47472). Applicants must include: 1) a cover letter (outlining area of expertise, teaching and research interests, and resonance with LMU’s mission); 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a writing sample; and 4) a statement of teaching philosophy that demonstrates your approach to teaching in the liberal arts tradition, and 5) if available, teaching evaluations and/or sample syllabi. Three confidential letters of recommendation should be submitted directly to POLSjobs@lmu.edu. Only online applications will be accepted. Please direct questions to Marc Cooper at POLSjobs@lmu.edu. We will begin our review of applications on September 10, 2021 but will consider applications beyond this date until we conclude our search. A PhD in Political Science, International Relations, Public Policy, or related field is required; ABD applications who anticipate completion of the doctorate by Fall 2022 will be considered.

McGill University
Rank: Assistant Professor, Environmental Politics and Governance
Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

Assistant Professor, Environmental Politics and Governance
Joint position in the Department of Political Science and Bieler School of Environment

Position Description:

The Department of Political Science and the Bieler School of Environment invite applications for a joint tenure-track position in Environmental Politics and Governance. Appointment is expected to be at the rank of Assistant Professor, but appointment at a higher rank may be possible under exceptional circumstances. Candidates should have already completed their PhD or be very near completion.

The position start date is August 1, 2022.

The Department and School welcome applications from qualified candidates working within any subfield with a specialization in Environmental Politics. The search is open in terms of methodological specialization, although candidates are expected to be able to demonstrate expertise in either quantitative or qualitative methods, or both. While all applications will be given full consideration, we are particularly interested in scholars whose work incorporates some of the following elements: is transnational in scope or has the potential to move in this direction; addresses the consequences of environmental change for public policy at various institutional levels; examines the relationships between environmental change and other phenomena such as international migration or conflict. The Bieler School of Environment is highly interdisciplinary; the successful candidate will have demonstrated an excellent capacity to work in an interdisciplinary context and to develop interdisciplinary collaborations.

For more information about the Department, School, and University, please visit our websites at: https://www.mcgill.ca/politicalscience/
Inquiries about this position may be sent to Professor Jacob Levy, mailto:jacob.levy@mcgill.ca; Chair of the Department of Political Science, or to Professor Frédéric Fabry, mailto:frederic.fabry@mcgill.ca; Director, Bieler School of the Environment. The Department and School maintain close relationships with other units at McGill with interests in the environment such as the Max Bell School of Public Policy https://www.mcgill.ca/maxbellschool; the McGill Institute for the Study of International Development https://www.mcgill.ca/isid; and the McGill Institute for the Study of International Development https://www.mcgill.ca/isid.

Job Duties:
Teaching, research, and service within the Department of Political Science and Bieler School of Environment. The successful candidate will be expected to contribute to teaching in political science broadly in one or more subfields, particularly at the graduate level. The candidate will be required to teach courses for the Bieler School of Environment on both the McGill Downtown Campus and Macdonald Campus.

Qualifications and Education Requirements:
Candidates should have completed their PhD or be near completion. An applicant’s record of performance must provide evidence of outstanding research potential and the ability/potential to teach effectively at the undergraduate and graduate level, as well as to provide supervision for graduate students. The language of instruction at McGill is English, but a working knowledge of French is an asset.

Job Details:
Job Classification: Tenure-track
Rank: Assistant Professor
Job Status: Full-time
Salary: Commensurate with qualifications and experience

Application Deadline: October 25, 2021, for full consideration, although applications will continue to be reviewed until the position is filled.

Application Process:
Applications must be submitted online to https://mcgill wd3.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/McGill_Careers/job/Leacock-Building/Assistant-Professor_JR0000014760Workday (McGill’s employment portal). The following supporting documents are required:

- A cover letter and curriculum vitae;
- Include the names of at least three referees in your curriculum vitae;
- A statement of research;
- A writing sample (article or chapter length);
- A teaching statement, as well as course evaluations and syllabi if available.

Start Date: Summer 2022
Application Deadline: Open until Filled

Morehouse College

Duke University - Sanford School of Public Policy
Rank: Adjunct Professor of the Practice of National Security Policy
Specializations: United States, Defense, Leadership Studies

The Sanford School of Public Policy at Duke University invites seasoned national security policy professionals to apply for several teaching positions in an exciting new hybrid Executive Masters of National Security Policy for mid-career students seeking to advance in their leadership roles in the national security policy realm in the public and private sectors. Selected candidates will work with existing Duke faculty to build an ambitious new program and stand up the new degree curriculum. They also will have the opportunity to participate in the American Grand Strategy and Counterterrorism and Public Policy Fellows Programs, and collaborate with the Sanford School’s national security faculty on related policy and research projects and proposals.

Applicants may apply to teach one or more classes and may retain professional engagement elsewhere while teaching in the program. The full course list is here; courses of particular need are National Security Leadership, National Security Ethics, National Security Budgeting, National Security Institutions. As a hybrid program responsibilities include teaching synchronously online, building asynchronous online content, and occasional on-campus immersion sessions. Some classes will start in the summer of 2022, and some in the subsequent semesters of the academic year 2022/2023. The positions will allow for some preparation time in advance of class launches.

Applicants should have a Master’s degree or higher and substantial professional experience in such areas of national security policy and policymaking as defense, diplomacy, development, leadership, ethics, cyber, technology, terrorism, biological threats, and/or global environment. Experience creating and executing applied learning experiences such as simulations, war games, table-top exercises, and leading client-based research programs is a plus, as is online teaching experience. Policy research and writing are of interest, but not required.

Applicants may reside in NC or in any of the partner states with which Duke has employment agreements (California, Florida, Georgia, Maryland, New York, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, and Washington DC).

The Sanford School includes a full-time faculty of almost 70 and offers an undergraduate major, three other Masters programs, and a Ph.D. program. Current faculty members have degrees in a variety of disciplines including demography, economics, history, law, medicine, philosophy, political science, psychology/social psychology, public policy, public health/health policy, and sociology. The Sanford School houses several interdisciplinary research centers, and offers degree-related programs and opportunities in Washington, China, Scotland, India, London and Geneva. More information on the Sanford School can be found at www.sanford.duke.edu.

Candidates should submit a letter of application that traces their professional experience and makes it clear why they would be interested in joining the Sanford School of Public Policy and how their expertise would meet the needs of the curriculum. The letter, along with a CV and the names and contact information of three references (no letters at this stage), should be submitted at https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/19142. Applications submitted by October 31, 2021, will be guaranteed consideration. For further information contact Professor Bruce Jentleson, Search Committee Chair, bwj7@duke.edu.

Colorado State University
Rank: Assistant Professor of International Relations

The Department of Political Science at Colorado State University invites applications for an entry-level tenure-track Assistant Professor position in International Relations with a specialization in international environmental politics. We are open with respect to theoretical orientation and methodological approaches. This is a full-time, tenure-track, nine-month appointment, beginning August 16, 2022.

The Department defines international environmental politics broadly to include scholarship on natural resources, forms of collective action, and all interactions between humans and the natural world. This definition could include scholars whose work fits into any subfield of International Relations.

The Department values both strong teaching and research. Successful candidates will be expected to offer courses in International Relations at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, including an upper-division undergraduate course in Global Environmental Politics and a graduate-level course in International Environmental Politics. Additional teaching assignments will depend on the candidate’s interests and expertise as well as departmental needs. The normal teaching load is 2-2.

Faculty members are also expected to advise and mentor graduate and undergraduate students; demonstrate an active research agenda; and provide service to the department, college, university, and community. Approximately one-third of undergraduate political science majors at CSU are first-generation college students. The Department offers programs of study leading to the B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees. The doctoral degree emphasizes the study of environmental politics and policy.

Required Job Qualifications:
* Primary teaching and scholarly emphasis in International Relations
* Evidence of an active research agenda focused on an aspect of International Environmental Politics, together with plans to sustain a research agenda focused on International Environmental Politics
* Demonstrated ability to teach political science graduate-level and upper-division courses in International Environmental Politics
* PhD in Political Science or related field by August 16, 2022
* Evidence of teaching effectiveness

Preferred Job Qualifications:
* Ability to enhance the Department’s commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion;
* Scholarly interest in the politics of gender;
* Demonstrated ability to contribute to one or more of the Department’s new MA specializations (Environmental Politics; Power, Justice, and Democracy; and Political Analysis)
* Ability to contribute to methods training (qualitative, quantitative, or research design).

Interested applicants must submit a cover letter which addresses how professional experiences align with identified required and preferred qualifications of the position, a current CV, and three letters of reference.

Please note, your referees will be emailed a request for a letter of reference immediately upon submission of your application. As such, applicants should allow sufficient time for their letters to be submitted by September 8, 2021 to ensure full consideration. Application materials of semi-finalist candidates, including letters of reference, will be made available for review by the entire faculty in the Department of Political Science.

If you have questions, please contact Kate Stevens at Kate.Stevens@colostate.edu

Colorado State University strives to provide a safe study, work, and living environment for its faculty, staff, volunteers and students. To support this environment and comply with applicable laws and regulations, CSU conducts background checks. The type of background check conducted varies by position and can include, but is not limited to, criminal history, sex offender registry, motor vehicle history, financial history, and/or education verification. Background checks will also be conducted when required by law or contract and when, in the discretion of the University, it is reasonable and prudent to do so.

Colorado State University is committed to providing an environment that is free from discrimination and harassment based on race, age, creed, color, religion, national origin or ancestry, sex, gender, disability, veteran status, genetic information, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, or pregnancy and will not discharge or in any other manner discriminate against employees or applicants because they have inquired about, discussed, or disclosed their own pay or the pay of another employee or applicant. University of Rhode Island
Rank: Assistant Professor in Middle Eastern Politics

The Department of Political Science at the University of Rhode Island anticipates an opening for a faculty position in Comparative Politics or International Relations with a specialization in Middle Eastern politics. This is a tenure-track, academic year appointment at the rank of assistant professor to commence in the Fall of 2022.

We are seeking to attract a diverse pool of job applicants for this position. A key pillar of URI’s mission is to “inspire an enlightened community that is characterized by vibrant cultural diversity; that embraces difference; that is built upon a learning environment that fosters respect, understanding, and social justice; and that rejects prejudice and intolerance.” Our department seeks candidates whose principles align with that mission.

DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES
Applicants will be expected to teach undergraduate political science courses in the areas of comparative and international politics that serve as requirements for both the Political Science and the International Studies & Diplomacy undergraduate programs as well as teach courses in the International Relations Masters program.

Expected to publish original research in their respective field of study and advise undergraduate and graduate students.

Provide service to the department, the university and the profession.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS
1) Ph.D., or expectation of completion of degree requirements by appointment date of September 1, 2022, in Political Science, International Relations, or related field.
2) Primary or secondary specialization in Middle Eastern politics.
3) Evidence of college level teaching commensurate with level of academic experience
4) Demonstrated ability to excel in teaching broad-based introductory political science courses in the area of comparative politics and/or international relations, upper division and graduate courses on Middle Eastern politics.
5) Evidence of research in the field of comparative politics and/or international relations with scholarly work commensurate with level of academic experience.
6) Demonstrated experience working with diverse populations or in diverse environments.

All requirements are subject to possible modification to reasonably accommodate individuals with disabilities.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS
1) Research expertise in at least one of the following or related areas: international development, foreign policy, diplomacy, conflict, governance, ethnic or religious politics, or security studies.
2) Ability to teach undergraduate research methods
3) Ability to teach large introductory-level classes
4) Ability to teach from a cultural or regional studies perspective
5) Familiarity with experiential and applied learning strategies

The application deadline is September 15, 2021.

Bucknell University
Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science (IR/Comparative)

Bucknell University’s Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in international and comparative politics beginning in the fall semester of 2022. We seek a scholar whose research and teaching centers on the Middle East/North Africa region and the politics of the Islamic world. The successful candidate will be prepared to teach a core course in international politics, courses on politics in the Middle East/North Africa, a course in quantitative or qualitative research methods, and other courses in the candidate’s areas of specialization. We expect to hire at the Assistant Professor level but are open to considering outstanding candidates at other ranks.

We are especially interested in candidates whose teaching and research will contribute to the department’s commitment to both diversity and academic excellence. We welcome candidates who demonstrate excellence in reflective multicultural and inclusive teaching practices and who display a strong commitment to collaboration and interdisciplinary. Evidence of teaching experience and excellence as well as the promise of being a productive scholar are critically important. The teaching load is five courses over two semesters. By the start date of the position, candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. in political science with a sub-field specialization in international and/or comparative politics.

For additional information and to apply, please go to careers.bucknell.edu. The application should include a cover letter, CV, statement of teaching philosophy, statement of commitment to diversity, three letters of recommendation, graduate transcripts, sample publications or papers, course evaluations if available, and sample syllabi relevant to this position. Questions about the position should be addressed by email to Professor Doug Hecock at rdh013@bucknell.edu. Applications received by September 27, 2021 will receive full consideration.

About Bucknell

Bucknell University is a private, highly ranked, primarily undergraduate, national liberal arts institution that also offers strong professional programs in engineering, management, education, and music.

Bucknell University is an Equal Opportunity Employer. The university believes that students learn best in a diverse, inclusive community and is therefore committed to academic excellence through diversity in its faculty, staff, and students. Applications from members of groups that have been historically underrepresented in higher education are encouraged.

Bucknell is committed to creating a climate that fosters inclusion, growth, and development for a diverse student body, and seeks candidates who are also committed to these goals.

Bucknell is committed to supporting the teacher-scholar model of faculty development. With a student-faculty ratio of about 9:1, small class sizes are a hallmark of the Bucknell educational experience. The university sponsors a range of activities to support the development of its faculty, including a Teaching-Learning Center and generous research support and leave policies.

Bucknell is located in Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, on the banks of the Susquehanna River. The Lewisburg area offers a combination of outdoor recreation opportunities and small-town amenities. In addition to the cultural and athletic events offered at the University and in town, the region offers strong schools and medical facilities, and an affordable cost of living. Bucknell is about three hours from Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore, and Washington, D.C.

Lake Forest College
Rank: Assistant Professor of Politics and International Relations
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Methodology

The Lake Forest College Department of Politics and International Relations invites applications for a tenure-track, assistant professor in comparative politics or international relations with a specialization in Latin America to begin August 2022. Lake Forest College has a rich, interdisciplinary program in Latin American and Latinx Studies to which the successful candidate is expected to contribute significantly. We are seeking someone to teach Introduction to Comparative Politics and Introduction to Global Politics; a research methods survey course, required for Politics and International Relations majors, that includes... qualitative and/or quantitative methods; and a broad range of other courses in comparative politics or international relations, with a focus on Spanish-speaking countries in Latin America. And while we encourage candidates of all substantive interests to apply, those whose work focuses on issues of human rights, social movements, migration, indigenous communities, or populism are most welcome. Additionally, candidates with corollary research and/or teaching interests in the Latinx experience within the domestic United States are particularly encouraged to apply.

Applicants should be aware of the many interdisciplinary programs Lake Forest College has to offer including African American Studies, American Studies, Urban Studies, and Social Justice. We also offer an “In the Loop” semester-long residential program in Chicago, as well as many courses emphasizing Chicago history, politics, and its diverse cultures. Lake Forest College’s proximity to Chicago provides an opportunity to use the city as a “laboratory” for student work and research. We are especially interested in candidates who can contribute to any of these programs and can incorporate students into their research programs.

Candidates will be expected to have a record of demonstrated teaching excellence and the promise of scholarly productivity. Ph.D. in political science, or a related field, must be completed by the time of appointment. Our teaching load is 3/3, with small classes (typically 15-25 students). We support faculty research through provision of student research assistants and summer research funds; successful passage of the third-year review earns a half-year sabbatical at full pay, in the fourth or fifth year of service. Tenure review takes place at the start of the sixth year. Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, unofficial graduate transcript, a teaching statement that addresses diversity in a liberal arts setting, sample syllabi, a sample of scholarly writing, three confidential letters of recommendation, and student evaluations of teaching to James J. Marquardt, Ph.D., Associate Professor of Politics and International Relations atlatinamericansearch@lakeforest.edu

A highly selective liberal arts college located on Chicago’s North Shore, Lake Forest College enrolls approximately 1,600 students from more than 40 states and from more than 70 countries. Lake Forest is one of the most diverse small colleges in the Midwest with nearly 40% of our student body comprised of domestic minority and international students. At Lake Forest College, the quality of a faculty member’s teaching is the most important criterion for evaluation. Lake Forest College embraces diversity and encourages applications from women, members of historically underrepresented groups, veterans, and individuals with disabilities. Applications will be reviewed as they are submitted. The application deadline is October 8, 2021.

Loyola Marymount University
Rank: Assistant Professor - Political Science and International Relations
Subfield(s): Methodology, Public Policy, Open

The Department of Political Science and International Relations at Loyola Marymount University invites applications for an assistant professor position beginning in Fall 2022. We seek a candidate who is passionate about teaching undergraduate methods. The department is especially interested in candidates with expertise in global or domestic public policy issues, such as education, health and healthcare, urbanization, or the environment and climate change. Our preferred candidate’s research will engage with substantive policy issues with a focus on social and group differences broadly defined (such as race, class, inequality, ethnicity, nationalism and national identities, sexuality, gender, disability, religion, North-South relations, etc.).

The regular teaching load for this position includes two sections of our introductory methods class and periodically a seminar in advanced methods. LMU has a 2-2/2-3 teaching load, meaning that faculty teach two undergraduate courses per semester, with one 3 course load semester every other year. We are seeking to hire a dedicated teacher and emerging scholar who will embrace the department’s mission of helping students become informed, analytically reflective, and engaged global citizens. Successful candidates must demonstrate a commitment to working with diverse student and community populations.

Loyola Marymount University, a Carnegie classified R2 institution in the mainstream of American Catholic higher education, seeks outstanding applicants who value its mission and share its commitment to inclusive excellence, the education of the whole person, and the building of a just society. LMU has an equal opportunity employer committed to providing an environment free from discrimination and harassment as defined by federal, state and local law. We invite all persons in the full diversity of their being, life experience, and beliefs to apply. Please read more about our commitments and our efforts at https://resources.lmu.edu/offic eof interculturalaffairs/.

Candidates should submit application materials via the LMU Human Resources online application portal (https://pa843.peopleadmin.com/postings/47474). Applicants must include: 1) a cover letter (outlining area of expertise, teaching and research interests, and resonance with LMU’s mission); 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a writing sample; 4) a statement of teaching philosophy that demonstrates your approach to teaching in the liberal arts tradition, and 5) if available, teaching evaluations and/or sample syllabi. A minimum of three confidential letters of recommendation should be submitted directly to POLSjobs@lmu.edu. Only online applications will be accepted. Please direct questions to Marc Cooper at POLSjobs@lmu.edu. We will begin our review of applications on September 10, 2021 but will consider applications beyond this date until we conclude our search. A PhD in Political Science, International Relations, Public Policy, or related field is required; ABD applications who anticipate completion of the doctorate by Fall 2022 will be considered.

Krea University

Rank: Policy Engagement Manager

Specializations: Economic Policy, India, Political Economy

Who We Are:
Inclusion Economics India Centre at Krea University (formerly EPoD India at IFMR) works in close collaboration with Inclusion Economics Yale, based at Yale University’s Economic Growth Center and MacMillan Center. Drawing upon economics, political science, and related fields, we conduct cutting-edge research to understand how policy can promote inclusive, accountable economics and societies. Our core research focuses on gender as it relates to labor economics and broader economic empowerment; political economy and governance; and environmental economics. We also aim to build a culture of evidence and increase data literacy in the public sector, strengthening leaders’ ability to identify and implement evidence-informed policies. Throughout the research life cycle, we engage closely with policy counterparts to ensure we address questions of immediate relevance, and we regularly communicate data-driven insights with policy counterparts and the general public.

The Role:
The Policy Engagement Manager will help manage Inclusion Economics India Centre’s (i.e. India’s) government relations, stakeholder relationships, and capacity building and communications activities across research portfolios. The position is also responsible to support strategic internal and external communication activities, in particular events and outputs to communicate effectively about i.e. India’s work and impact. S/he will play an active role in trainings and external-facing events with policy stakeholders, content development for policy engagement events (workshops, policy dialogues, trainings), and developing and contributing to policy-research collaborations to build organizational and institutional capacities to use evidence. The selected candidate will work closely on communication and strategic policy engagement with staff at Inclusion Economics Yale and with teams working on affiliated research at the Governance Lab in Nepal.

Responsibilities:
• Develop and foster strategic relationships with external stakeholders, including policymakers of all levels of the government, donors, and other mission-aligned individuals and institutions.
• Proactively and independently work closely with researchers and leadership to identify, lead, and implement a targeted and integrated program of engagement and communications along with staff at Inclusion Economics Yale.
• Develop strong relations with government officials, help conceptualize new research projects that align with our portfolios, as well as identify opportunities for replicating and scaling-up of projects.
• Work with government officials to encourage and enhance the use of rigorous evidence-based policymaking in their departments, and institutionalize practices to make such policy-engagements effective.
• Represent our research and policy engagements in a variety of written and in-person forums to engage effectively in the research-to-policy space and communicate effectively about our work to external stakeholders. Written communications may include policy briefs, published articles and blogs, and reports.
• Oversee and implement all aspects pertaining to administration of external-facing policy engagements ranging from policy dialogues and conferences to workshops and trainings. This oversight includes coordinating with collaborating institutions, developing and effectively delivering content, and ensuring all administration and logistics are executed effectively.
• Draft research-policy memos, presentations, op-eds, and background notes for high-level partner meetings, and oversee immediate follow-up on such meetings, including related to basic content and data-related requests.
• Develop and implement systems to effectively organize, monitor, and systematize policy engagement efforts and auxiliary support structures.
• Build capability and capacity in the research management team for effective partnership management, deeper understanding of the policy environment, and inform and support fundraising initiatives in the organization.
• Other activities to support our strategy in India and South Asia, as requested.

Basic Qualifications:
• Master’s degree in a relevant field such as economics, public policy/administration, and/or political science
• Strong understanding of research design, basic econometrics, and evaluation methodologies, as well as public policy-oriented topics and policy and implementation in South Asia – India in particular
• At least 5 years of experience in a position that includes significant external network development and stakeholder engagement
• Excellent oral and written communication skills in English and strong public speaking skills
• Demonstrated ability to communicate research findings to a non-technical audience
• Willingness to visit research project sites and engage in research content and methodology
• Ability to think creatively, innovate, strategize, set priorities, manage a workplan, and evaluate progress with minimal supervision
• Experience working across multiple projects and managing multiple internal and external relationships
• Experience managing stakeholder and policy programs, including convening policy forums, communications outputs, and thought leadership activities
• Proven track record of carrying out high-quality research, policy, and/or advocacy work

Preferred Qualifications:
• Working knowledge of Hindi
• 7 years or more of relevant experience, including at least three years of working closely with researchers and government officials in India
• Extensive experience in developing strategic engagement and communications programs, including building networks and collaborations to maximize impact on policy/reform
• Expertise in one or more of i.e. India’s core research areas
• A PhD in economics, public policy or political science is desirable, but not required

This position will be based in New Delhi, India, with frequent travel throughout the country when Covid-19 restrictions are lifted.

How to Apply:
If you are interested in this position, please fill out our Screening Questionnaire (https://forms.gle/XbBeNgprSoRxHpxN7); you will be asked to upload a single PDF containing your CV, cover letter,
The newly created Center for the Study of Race, Ethnicity, and Social Justice is an innovative home for interdisciplinary teaching, research, and programming on race, ethnicity, and social justice at Stonehill. Offering the Hayden Lecture Series, co-curricular events, and undergraduate research opportunities that bridge academic experiences and student life, it will also house a new major and minor. The Director will be joining a vibrant group of current faculty affiliated with the Center and will have the opportunity to partner with relevant entities on campus, including the Associate Provost for Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion, the Office of Intercultural Affairs, and the Faculty of Color Association. The Center’s work will be further supported by a cluster hire of at least three tenure-track faculty members who will become affiliates of the Center.

Applicants should include a cover letter that addresses their qualifications to lead the Center, provides examples of initiatives they would propose as director, and describes how they would contribute to Stonehill’s culture of diversity and inclusion; a curriculum vitae; a one-page philosophy of undergraduate teaching and mentoring; and the names and contact information for three academic references.

The Department of Political Science at ITAM in Mexico City and Innovations for Poverty Action (IPA Mexico) invite applications for a residential fellowship (pre- or post-doctoral) for one academic year, beginning either in January or August 2022. Fellows should specialize in the study of the political economy of development.

Eligible candidates must be pursuing a PhD in political science or a related discipline, and conducting research on political economy of development topics with a focus on Mexico or Latin America. Preferred topics include security, order and violence, police reform, and institution building. Pre-doctoral fellows must have begun to write up their dissertation prior to the start of the fellowship. Post-doctoral fellows must have received their PhD prior to the start of the fellowship. Candidates with a strong quantitative background are especially encouraged to apply. Opportunities to collaborate in existing projects include the analysis of large, novel administrative data sets and ongoing experimental interventions.

All fellows will be expected to: (1) be in residence in Mexico City at ITAM for the duration of the fellowship, where they will be provided with office space and access to university resources; (2) work closely with faculty at ITAM’s Department of Political Science and IPA Mexico to develop new and existing projects—including an ongoing project on police reform—and pursue international funding opportunities; and (3) participate in relevant workshops and seminars at ITAM, as well as activities with the IPA office. In addition, post-doctoral fellows will be expected to (4) advance their own research; and (5) teach a three-session workshop on a method or topic of their specialty.

Monthly stipends are MXN$35,000 (about US$1,750) for a pre-doctoral fellow and MXN$40,000 (about US$2,000) for a post-doctoral fellow (the corresponding dollar amounts may vary slightly depending on the exchange rate). Fellows will additionally receive the standard benefits package offered by ITAM, including health insurance.

All applicants should submit a one-page letter of interest, curriculum vitae, and writing sample (article-length). All applicants should also arrange for two letters of recommendation to be submitted directly by the recommenders to Marta Cebollada, Academic Coordinator of the Department of Political Science, martac.cebollada@itam.mx. All application materials are due by November 30, 2021.

The University of Illinois at Chicago invites applications for the position of tenure track Assistant Professor in political science, open subfield, beginning in the 2022-2023 academic year, subject to budgetary approval. The department, located in a vibrant US metropolis, has strengths in urban politics, political institutions, and political behavior, and promotes cutting-edge research that engages urban, regional, national, and global communities, and the linkages among them. We view urban politics from an exceptionally broad perspective, emphasizing the connections between urban politics and different subfields of political science. The department has a variety of teaching needs, including but not limited to international law, human rights, political economy, and comparative politics, especially from the perspective of the global south and/or historically marginalized groups. The successful candidate will complement and augment the current faculty's substantive expertise.

Assistant professors are expected to teach two (2) courses per semester at the undergraduate and/or graduate level, as assigned by the department head. They are also expected to maintain a consistent record of high-quality academic research and publication, provide service to the department and the profession, and contribute to the intellectual life of the department.

Candidates should have a PhD in Political Science or a related discipline in hand (or be very near completion), and provide evidence of the ability to maintain a research agenda and a commitment to excellence in teaching.

To apply, complete an on-line application at https://jobs.uic.edu/jobboard, including the names and email addresses for three or more references, and upload full curriculum vitae, two writing samples totaling no more than 100 pages, and a cover letter that (1) highlights the candidate’s commitment to diversity, and (2) explains how the candidate’s research and teaching qualifications complement and augment the hiring department’s faculty expertise.

Questions about the position can be directed to Prof. Petia Kostadinova, at pkostad@uic.edu, the chair of the search committee. The Search Committee will begin reviewing applications on November 8, 2021. For fullest consideration, applications should be completed by that date.

UIC is a Carnegie Doctoral/Research I institution (Highest Research Activity), located in the heart of the City of Chicago and one of the nation’s largest metropolitan areas. It is a comprehensive public university with a diverse student body of more than 30,000 undergraduate, graduate, and professional students. UIC is federally recognized by the US Department of Education as a Minority Serving Institution (MSI) through its status as a Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI) and an Asian American and Native American Pacific Islander Serving Institution (AANAPISI).

The University of Illinois at Chicago is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer, dedicated to the goal of building a culturally diverse and pluralistic faculty and staff committed to teaching and working in a multicultural environment. We are committed to equal employment opportunity regardless of race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, sexual orientation, gender identity, Veteran or disability status.

The University of Illinois may conduct background checks on all job candidates upon acceptance of a contingent offer. Background checks will be performed in compliance with the Fair Credit Reporting Act. The University of Illinois System requires candidates selected for hire to disclose any documented finding of sexual misconduct or sexual harassment and to authorize inquiries to current and former employers regarding findings of sexual misconduct or sexual harassment. Social media has transformed politics around the world and the way we receive and engage with information. NYU’s Center for Social Media and Politics (CSMaP) hosts a global community of scholars to study the impact of this transformation. Our rigorous, policy-relevant research harnesses social media data to study politics in new ways and explores how social media affects public opinion and political behavior. Through innovative research, teaching, and outreach, CSMaP aims to advance scientific knowledge and inform public policy and discourse in the digital age.

We are looking for a Research Operations Director (Researcher) to help direct the Center’s research portfolio, which currently includes 50+ projects across diverse substantive and methodological areas. This position is responsible for working with our research community of faculty, postdocs, engineers, students, and staff to manage the center’s research operations. You will balance strategic insight with operational execution; you will not only identify and strategize new research processes and systems, but will also support each research project towards completion.

Responsibilities will include project planning and coordination for complex research; research implementation (e.g., fielding surveys, developing research plans, and scoping and executing social media data purchases); managing and recommending research priorities for the leadership team; ensuring cross-center communication; overseeing on- and off-boarding; and supporting a positive and inclusive culture. You will also be responsible for directly overseeing a team of two research coordinators — a full-time project manager and part-time project associate — with possible team growth in the coming year(s).

Michigan State University

Rank: Research Associate

The College of Social Science (CSS) seeks Research Associates that will participate in a CSS Dean’s Research Associate Development Institute, with the goal of possibly transitioning into tenure-system positions at Michigan State University. Michigan State University actively promotes a dynamic research and learning environment in which qualified individuals of differing perspectives and cultural backgrounds pursue academic goals with mutual respect and shared inquiry.

Program Description
The College of Social Science (SSC) Dean’s Research Associate Program at Michigan State University was established in 2018, as a major College initiative aimed at promoting an inclusive scholarly environment in which outstanding scholars in the social sciences support the advancement of diversity, equity, and inclusion in the academy. The Dean’s Research Associates will have a minimal teaching load, will be mentored and supported, and will participate in a SSC Dean’s Research Associate Development Institute, with the goal of possibly transitioning them into tenure-system positions at Michigan State University.

Appointments
Appointments will be made to applicants who show promise for tenure-track positions at Michigan State University’s College of Social Science in accordance with MSU academic hiring process. Each appointment is for a minimum of 9 months, renewable for an additional year, contingent upon a demonstration of meeting the performance expectation in research and teaching, with an emphasis on demonstrated research productivity. The selected candidate will receive a salary that is comparable to that of a starting Assistant Professor in the Research Associate’s discipline, plus benefits, and a budget for research and travel. Transitioning into a tenure-track faculty position at Michigan State University will require a series of structured, merit-based evaluations, which will include substantial peer input. MSU’s academic hiring process will be followed in appointing the candidates that advance into the tenure-track.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement
All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, citizenship, disability or protected veteran status.

Required Degree
Doctorate

Minimum Requirements
Applicants who will have a Ph.D. in hand from an accredited university by September 2022, and no earlier than May 2019, with degrees and research interests in areas covered by the College’s Departments and Schools.

Required Application Materials
To apply, submit application materials online through careers.msu.edu and electronically attach the following:

1. a 3 page statement addressing how your research, teaching, and service, contribute to diversity, equity, and inclusion
2. a curriculum vitae
3. an academic research paper
4. a 3 page research proposal outlining research interests and plans for the fellowship year(s)
5. a ½ page statement describing your teaching philosophy, and the course(s) you could teach during the fellowship period
6. (6) three letters of reference which should address your potential for employment as a faculty member at MSU.

Together-we-will Statement
The university is requiring all MSU students, faculty and staff to be vaccinated against COVID-19 with limited exceptions. Learn more at: https://msu.edu/together-we-will/

Special Instructions
Review of applications will start on 10/15/2021, and will continue until positions are filled. Questions concerning the search may be addressed to Nwando Achebe, Associate Dean for Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion and Faculty Excellence Advocate, College of Social Science (achebe@msu.edu).

Political Science candidate inquiries can contact the following faculty by field:
American: Professor Eric Gonzalez Juenke (juenke@msu.edu)
Theory: Professor Dustin Sebell (sebell@msu.edu)
All others: Professor Corwin Smidt (smidt@msu.edu)

Michigan State University has been advancing the common good with uncommon will for more than 160 years. One of the top research institutions in the world, MSU is committed to helping students achieve career success. With more than 160,000 students, 12 academic colleges, 180,000 living alumni, and a $5 billion annual research budget, MSU’s impact is enormous. Our century-long history of diversity includes serving the nation’s most vulnerable, including students from families earning $30,000 or less and Native American students.

Faculty Fellow
The Center for European and Mediterranean Studies
Faculty of Arts and Science
New York University

The Center for European and Mediterranean Studies in Arts and Science at New York University invites applicants for a Faculty Fellow position in the field of European Studies. The initial appointment will be for one year beginning September 1, 2022, renewable annually for a maximum of three years, pending administrative and budgetary approval.

CEMS/NYU seeks a scholar experienced in advising student research and specializing in one or more of the following fields: comparative European politics, anthropology, sociology, or contemporary European history. We are particularly interested in candidates whose research and teaching focuses on the European Union; on political, economic and social developments in contemporary Europe; and/or on identity and minorities in Europe.

Responsibilities include teaching three courses per year, with a focus on undergraduate and graduate seminars. Student advising is a key component of this position, as the faculty fellow will have a significant role in directing theses for both MA students and undergraduate honors students. Service to the program will also involve representing the Center at university occasions and committee meetings. Candidates should demonstrate a commitment to interdisciplinary scholarship and excellence in teaching.

Qualifications: Candidates should have completed their Ph.D. no earlier than 2017 and no later than August 1, 2022.

To apply, please submit a cover letter, CV, three letters of recommendation, a statement of research and interests, and a statement of diversity and inclusion. As diversity is an important part of the NYU mission, for the latter statement we ask you to provide a brief paragraph telling us how diversity figures into your past and present teaching, research, community engagement, and/or life experience, as well as how you would bring issues of diversity to bear on the teaching and programming of NYU CEMS. Information about diversity statements may be found at http://as.nyu.edu/departments/facultydiversity/recruitment/diversity-statements.html.

Illinois Institute of Technology

Rank: Senior Lecturer

Position Opening - Senior Lecturer - Department of Social Sciences, Illinois Institute of Technology, Chicago:
Title: Senior Lecturer – Department of Social Sciences, Illinois Institute of Technology, Chicago

Introduction: Founded in 1890, Illinois Institute of Technology was born different. It was built on the promise set forth in minister Frank Wakely Gunsaulus’ “Million Dollar Sermon” to provide access to higher education for students from all different backgrounds and to make a difference in the world through technology-oriented education. This guiding mission and purpose—where students, including those underrepresented in technology, could prepare for meaningful roles in a changing industrial society and achieve professional and economic advancement—remains just as relevant today. Thus, diversity and inclusion are part of the day-to-day experience at Illinois Institute of Technology and the centerpiece of its culture. Because of this, Illinois Institute of Technology is home to a diverse and global student population, and is committed to providing opportunities to enhance the diversity of its faculty and staff. To this end, Illinois Institute of Technology strongly encourages applicants from all backgrounds to apply for this position, especially those underrepresented in the field, including, but not limited to, African Americans, Latinx, Indigenous peoples and others.

Position Description: The Illinois Institute of Technology seeks an individual for a full-time, 9-month position as a Senior Lecturer in the Department of Social Sciences (https://www.iit.edu/social-sciences). Appointment periods are 3-5 years and renewable. The preferred start date is January 3, 2022.

We seek candidates to teach a broad range of social science courses and to potentially develop inter/crossdisciplinary programs with the engineering and science departments. The successful applicant is expected to be a dynamic and engaging lecturer and demonstrate potential for overall excellence in teaching.

Candidates are expected to demonstrate best teaching practices. Lecturers in the department teach three courses per semester in the fall and spring terms, become members of some service committees, mentor and advise undergraduates and help with recruitment activities. Opportunities for summer teaching employment and potential administrative duties may also be available for well qualified candidates. Annual salary is negotiable and dependent upon the candidate’s previous experience and qualifications.

Qualifications

A Ph.D. or foreign equivalent in political science, sociology, geography, public policy, applied economics, urban planning or a closely related field

Previous teaching experience is desirable but not required

Instructions

Please submit the following application materials by mail to: Prof. Jeff Terry, Interim Department Chair, Illinois Institute of Technology, 3101 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, IL 60616 or by email to terryj@iit.edu and provide names/contact information for three references who will be prepared to submit letters of recommendation upon request. The application should include:

Cover letter addressing the candidate’s qualifications
Curriculum vitae
Statement of teaching philosophy and interests including any available evidence of teaching excellence. If applicable, please include any experience in teaching, mentoring or engaging in research with a diverse population of students.

Review of applications will begin upon receipt and the position will remain open until filled. Complete applications received by October 1, 2021 will receive priority consideration. If you have a question about the details of this search or position, please contact the Interim Chair, Prof. Jeff Terry at terryj@iit.edu.

The Illinois Institute of Technology is an EEO/AA/Title VI/Title IX/Section 504/ADA/ADEA employer; we are committed to enhancing equity, inclusion and diversity within our community. Illinois Tech seeks applications from all individuals regardless of race, color, sex, marital status, religion, creed, national origin, disability, age, military or veteran status, sexual orientation, and/or gender identity and expression. All qualified applicants will receive equal consideration.

History of Consciousness: Advanced Assistant - Associate Professor (Initial Review 11/01/21)

Position overview
Position title: Advanced Assistant (tenure-track)/Associate Professor (tenured)
Salary range: Commensurate with qualifications and experience; academic year (nine-month basis)

Anticipated start: July 1, 2022, with the academic year beginning in September 2022.

Application Window
Open date: August 24th, 2021
Next review date: Monday, Nov 1, 2021 at 11:59pm (Pacific Time)
Apply by this date to ensure full consideration by the committee.

Final date: Thursday, Jun 30, 2022 at 11:59pm (Pacific Time)
Applications will continue to be accepted until this date, but those received after the review date will only be considered if the position has not yet been filled.

Position Description
The History of Consciousness Department at the University of California, Santa Cruz (UCSC) invites applications for two positions (Assistant Professor to Associate Professor) in History of Consciousness. Applicants at the Assistant Professor level should be at the advanced level, with at least three years of teaching experience.

In its more than fifty-year history, the History of Consciousness Department has been home to pathbreaking, field-changing, cross-disciplinary research and teaching. The department is hereby announcing two new positions for transdisciplinary scholars in global theory, broadly defined, who can help shape the department into the future. Current areas of interest include but are not limited to Science and Technology Studies (STS), indigeneity, decoloniality, Black studies, anthropocene studies, digital studies/new media, affect studies, Latin American critical theory, and we welcome applicants from emergent areas of knowledge not listed here. We seek scholars with experience in at least two areas, whose work stretches beyond those areas to produce something new. The successful candidate should be making original theoretical contributions beyond their fields of expertise. In particular, these contributions should address the social, political, and cultural implications of their analyses. The hires should be able to engage a broad range of projects represented by the History of Consciousness Department and the interdisciplinary Humanities more generally, to advise PhD students with a wide range of projects, and to participate in a small and innovative undergraduate program. While open to scholars with firm disciplinary training in fields such as intellectual history, comparative literature, philosophy, political theory, religion, anthropology, and visual studies, the successful candidates will demonstrate interdisciplinary reach in methodological approach and reading practice.
Political Science Jobs

We are especially interested in candidates who can contribute to the diversity and excellence of our academic community through their research, teaching, and service. We welcome candidates who understand the barriers facing women and minorities who are underrepresented in higher education careers (as evidenced by life experiences and educational background), and who have experience in equity and diversity with respect to teaching, mentoring, research, life experiences, or service towards building an equitable and diverse scholarly environment.

The chosen candidate will be expected to sign a statement representing that they are not the subject of any ongoing investigation or disciplinary proceeding at their current academic institution or place of employment, nor have they in the past ten years been formally disciplined at any academic institution/place of employment. In the event the candidate cannot make this representation, they will be expected to disclose in writing to the hiring Dean the circumstances surrounding any formal discipline that they have received, as well as any current or ongoing investigation or disciplinary process of which they are the subject. (Note that discipline includes a negotiated settlement agreement to resolve a matter related to substantiated misconduct.)

The Department of Political Science at the University of Pittsburgh invites applications from nationally prominent scholars to fill the Mellon Endowed Chair in Political Science, with the appointment to begin in the 2022-2023 academic year, pending budgetary approval. In filling this chair, the Department seeks candidates with extraordinary credentials in research, teaching, and mentorship.

We welcome candidates from any subfield and are particularly interested in scholars whose expertise contributes to or complements one or more of the following cross-cutting themes: 1) Global and Transnational Challenges, 2) Groups and Identities, 3) Democracy and Development, 4) Representation and Accountability, and/or whose leadership will shape an emerging initiative in Structural Racism, Oppression, and Black Political Experiences (see our ad for an assistant professor). In addition, we welcome candidates who can build on Pittsburgh’s interdisciplinary strengths in studying cities, public health, education, and technology.

The Political Science Department at the University of Pittsburgh has faculty members with vibrant and varied research agendas. It has long fostered collegiality and a culture of collaboration among faculty and graduate students. The Department benefits from numerous synergies with other units on campus, including the University Center for International Studies, a world renowned, multidisciplinary institute housing centers for area studies and for topical specializations in international studies, and the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs, a public administration and public policy school emphasizing international relations and political development. The City of Pittsburgh frequently tops “most livable city” rankings thanks to its numerous social and cultural offerings and low cost of living.

Minimum qualifications: applicants must have a PhD, at least 6 years of experience, significant record of publications, and demonstrated ability to deliver high-quality instruction, to contribute to an inclusive climate, and to attract and retain a diverse study body.

The committee will begin looking at applications November 15, 2021 but will continue to accept materials until the position is filled. Candidates should send a letter of interest, a CV, and 3 names of people that can provide references when needed; cover letters should include a discussion how the candidate’s research, teaching or service demonstrates a commitment to diversity and inclusion. Please apply online at:

Loyola Marymount University

Rank: Assistant Professor - Political Science and International Relations
Subfield(s): Methodology, Public Policy, Open

The Department of Political Science and International Relations at Loyola Marymount University invites applications for an assistant professor position beginning in Fall 2022. We seek a candidate who is passionate about teaching undergraduate methods. The department is especially interested in candidates with expertise in global or domestic public policy issues, such as education, health and healthcare, urbanization, or the environment and climate change. Our preferred candidate’s research will engage with substantive policy issues with a focus on social and group differences broadly defined (such as race, class, inequality, ethnicity, nationalism and national identities, sexuality, gender, disability, religion, North-South relations, etc.).

The regular teaching load for this position includes two sections of our introductory methods class and periodically a seminar in advanced methods. LMU has a 2-2/1-3 teaching load, meaning that faculty teach two undergraduate courses per semester, with one 3 course load per semester every other year. We are seeking to hire a dedicated teacher and emerging scholar who will embrace the department’s mission of helping students become informed, analytically reflective, and engaged global citizens. Successful candidates must demonstrate a commitment to working with diverse student and community populations.

Loyola Marymount University, a Carnegie classified R2 institution in the mainstream of American Catholic higher education, seeks outstanding applicants who value its mission and share its commitment to inclusive excellence, the education of the whole person, and the building of a just society.? LMU is an equal opportunity employer committed to providing an environment free from discrimination and harassment as defined by federal, state and local law. We invite all persons in the full diversity of their being, life experience, and beliefs to apply. Please read more about our commitments and our efforts at (https://resources.lmu.edu/officeofinterculturalaffairs/).

Candidates should submit application materials via the LMU Human Resources online application portal (https://pa843.peopleadmin.com/postings/47474). Applicants must include: 1) a cover letter (outlining area of expertise, teaching and research interests, and resonance with LMU’s mission); 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a writing sample; 4) a statement of teaching philosophy that demonstrates your approach to teaching in the liberal arts tradition, and 5) if available, teaching evaluations and/or sample syllabi. A minimum of three confidential letters of recommendation should be submitted directly to POLSjobs@lmu.edu. Online applications will be accepted. Please direct questions to Marc Cooper at POLSjobs@lmu.edu. We will begin our review of applications on September 10, 2021 but will consider applications beyond this date until we conclude our search. A PhD in Political Science, International Relations, Public Policy, or related field is required; ABD applications who anticipate completion of the doctorate by Fall 2022 will be considered.

Syracuse University

Rank: African American Studies Department Chair
Subfield(s): Open, American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics
Specializations: African American Politics, Africa, Race & Ethnic Politics

The Department of African American Studies (https://thecollege.syr.edu/african-american-studies/) in Syracuse University’s College of Arts & Sciences seeks a dynamic scholar to serve as Department Chair beginning Fall 2022. The successful candidate will possess a strong record of scholarship; teaching excellence; experience overseeing departmental administrative procedures and governance; demonstrated skill in collaborating with faculty on curricula and programming for undergraduate majors and minors and graduate students; and a commitment to community engagement.

Since gaining department status in 1979, African American Studies at SU has offered multi-disciplinary approaches to global studies of people of African descent. Unique departmental resources, such as the Martin Luther King, Jr. Library (https://thecollege.syr.edu/diversity-and-inclusion/mlk-library/) and the Community Folk Art Center (https://communityfolkartcenter.org/), have been integral to academic initiatives. Recent and pending faculty retirements have led to a critical juncture. The new chair will thus play a pivotal role in leading the department as it formulates strategic plans to engage changing social, political, cultural, technological, and pedagogical landscapes.

The position requires a Ph.D. with a principal research and teaching focus on aspects of Black life in the Americas, the Caribbean, Africa, or Europe. Scholars in any field of the humanities or social sciences are welcome to apply. Candidates who have met the standards for the rank of professor with tenure are preferred. However, full consideration will also be given to applications from advanced tenured associate professors. The teaching requirement during the three-year term as Department Chair will be one course per semester. At the end of the chair term, two courses per semester will be required.

Applications must include a current curriculum vitae; letter of interest; sample publication; diversity, equity, and inclusion statement; and three confidential recommendation letters. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. The salary will be commensurate with qualifications.

University of Tennessee, Knoxville
Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science–Public Policy/Public Administration
Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Open

Public Policy/Administration
The Department of Political Science at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville invites applications for a tenure track assistant professor position in Public Policy/Public Administration. Applicants from any area of the Public Policy/Public Administration fields are welcome, but we are especially interested in candidates with research and teaching interests in public budgeting and finance, public service ethics, nonprofit and public management, and/or organizational theory. We are particularly interested in applicants who also have backgrounds in public policy and address substantively important questions related to inequality. We welcome all candidates doing excellent work in these areas, regardless of methodological specialty or approach (including but not limited to those using rigorous analytical approaches including the tools of computational social science and “big data” in their research).

The successful candidate must have strong research skills and a theoretically oriented research agenda that will lead to publication in peer-reviewed outlets (journals and/or books). The Knoxville campus of the University of Tennessee is seeking candidates who have the ability to contribute in meaningful ways to the diversity and intercultural goals of the University.

The University of Tennessee, Knoxville, is the state’s flagship research institution, a campus of choice for outstanding undergraduates, and a premier graduate institution. As a land-grant university, it is committed to excellence in learning, scholarship, and engagement with society. More information about the Department is available at: polisci.utk.edu. Faculty within the department are also associated with a variety of interdisciplinary programs and working groups across the university, including but not limited to the Critical Race Collective; the Global Studies program; the Intersectionality Community of Scholars; and the Women, Gender, and Sexuality program.

All the requirements for a Ph.D. in political science, public policy, or related field must be finished at the time of appointment. Applicants should send a cover letter explaining their research and teaching experience, a current CV, graduate transcripts, a sample of scholarly writing, statements of research, teaching, service, and diversity if not included in the cover letter, and teaching evaluations (if available). Please submit application material in digital format via Interfolio (apply.interfolio.com/92424). All applicants should request letters from three references to be sent via Interfolio. Review of applications begins October 5, 2021, and will continue until the position is filled. For questions or inquiries, contact Professor Michael Jones at mjone239@utk.edu.

All qualified applicants will receive equal consideration for employment and admission without regard to race, color, national origin, religion, sex, pregnancy, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity, age, physical or mental disability, genetic information, veteran status, and parental status, or any other characteristic protected by federal or state law. In accordance with the requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, the University of Tennessee affirmatively states that it does not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, or disability in its education programs and activities, and this policy extends to employment by the university. Inquiries and charges of violation of Title VI (race, color, and national origin), Title IX (sex), Section 504 (disability), the ADA (disability), the Age Discrimination in Employment Act (age), sexual orientation, or veteran status should be directed to the Office of Equity and Diversity, 1840 Melrose Avenue, Knoxville, TN 37996-3560, telephone 865-974-2498. Core courses in the Humanities typically deal with fundamental issues and texts in history, philosophy, and literature. Currently, the Core is organized into eight year-long sequences: Readings in World Literature; Human Being and Citizen; Greece and Rome: Texts, Traditions, Transformations; Philosophical Perspectives on the Humanities; Media Aesthetics; Reading Cultures; Poetry and the Human; and Language and the Human. For a description of these sequences see: https://societyoffellows.uchicago.edu/page/humanities-course-descriptions

Core courses in the Social Sciences explore, on the basis of significant works, the fundamental concepts and the different modes of inquiry that have defined the social sciences in the modern period. Currently, Collegiate Assistant Professors teach in five of the year-long sequences into which the Core is organized: Self, Culture and Society; Classics of Social and Political Thought; Power, Identity, and Resistance; Global Society; and Social Science Inquiry. For a description of these sequences see: https://societyoffellows.uchicago.edu/page/social-sciences-course-descriptions

Some Collegiate Assistant Professors also teach in the History of European Civilization Core sequence as well as the Introductions to the Civilizations of East Asian Core sequences. These courses are taught on the basis of intensive readings of significant primary source documents. For descriptions of the History of European Civilization and the Civilizations of East Asia sequences see: https://collegecatalog.uchicago.edu/thecollege/civilizationstudies/

The positions are open to scholars in all disciplines and areas of specialization who will have completed all requirements for their Ph.D. degree no later than August 31, 2022. Candidates must demonstrate excellence in teaching as well as in their original scholarship.

In most years, Collegiate Assistant Professors teach two courses (usually of identical preparation) for each of three quarters. In the third year of residence, each Collegiate Assistant Professor has the opportunity to design an independent course and each is eligible for one quarter of research sabbatical. The position comes with a minimum annual salary for 2022-23 of $72,307.80, carries full benefits, and an annual professional development fund of $5,000. The effective date for these teaching appointments is September 1, 2022.

To apply for these positions, please see our web site at https://fellows.uchicago.edu. The web site will be available to accept applications beginning August 26, 2021.
A competitive salary commensurate with experience and excellent benefits will be offered.

This position is subject to the University’s background check policy.

Stanford University
Rank: IDEAL Provostial Fellows for Studies in Race and Ethnicity

Stanford University, in conjunction with its IDEAL initiative, is pleased to announce that it is seeking to appoint four to five early career fellows engaged in the study of race and ethnicity. The purpose of this program is to support the work of early-career researchers, who will lead the next generation of scholarship in race and ethnicity and whose work will point the way forward for reshaping race relations in America. Fellowships may be in any of the seven schools in the University (Business, Earth, Energy & Environmental Sciences, Education, Engineering, Humanities & Sciences, Law, Medicine). Selection criteria includes the originality and quality of the research, as well as demonstrated potential for intellectual achievement. The term of these fellowships is three years, with a start date of September 1, 2022.

To be eligible for an early career fellowship, a candidate must have received their terminal degree no earlier than September 1, 2019. Scholars interested in any field of study are accepted. Early career fellows should have received their terminal degree (PhD, JD, MFA, EdD, DSW, etc.) prior to the start of the fellowship.

Applicants for early career fellowships should submit their applications at https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/18892. Applications should be submitted electronically and include a cover letter (detailing the candidate’s interest in the position), curriculum vitae, a statement of research interests, a statement of teaching interests, samples of written work, and three letters of recommendation (provide contact information for each and a system generated request will be delivered to each referee). In these materials, please include how your interests would be advanced by a fellowship, needs for laboratory access or special equipment, etc.

The deadline for receiving applications for early career fellowships is October 1, 2021. No application will be accepted after the deadline. Applications will not be accepted by email.

Stanford is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. Stanford welcomes applications from all who would bring additional dimensions to the University’s research, teaching, and clinical missions. Consistent with its obligations under the law, the University will provide reasonable accommodation to any employee with a disability who requires accommodation to perform the essential functions of his or her job.

Princeton University
Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate, Fung Global Fellows Program

Princeton University is pleased to announce the call for applications to the Fung Global Fellows Program at the Princeton Institute for International and Regional Studies (PIIRS). The program will select postdoctoral scholars from around the world to be in residence at Princeton for an academic year and to engage in research and discussion around a common theme. (Note if the Covid-19 pandemic prevents a residency at Princeton, Fellows will remain in their home country and participate in the program remotely.) The number of candidates hired will depend on the qualifications of the overall applicant pools. The postdoctoral appointment will be for one academic year for scholars who have received a Ph.D. at an institution outside the United States and, who at the time of application, do not have a tenure-track faculty appointment. The candidates must also demonstrate outstanding scholarly achievement and have exhibited unusual intellectual promise.

During the academic year 2022-23, the Fung Global Fellows Program theme will be "Sustainable Futures." The Fung Global Fellows Program welcomes applicants from all disciplinary and interdisciplinary fields - humanities, social science, natural science, engineering, technology, law, architecture - to examine varied notions and workable practices of sustainability. For more information about the theme of study, please see this link: http://piirs.princeton.edu/funggfp/about/annual-research-topics.

Applicants must apply online at: https://www.princeton.edu/academic-positions/position/21301. Applications are due by November 15, 2021 (11:59 p.m. EST).

To be eligible, post-doctoral applicants must have completed all Ph.D. requirements before 9/1/2022 but cannot have more than two years of postdoctoral experience prior to the start of the appointment, 9/1/2022. If a candidate has turned in a final draft of their dissertation but not yet completed their Ph.D. before the start date, they may be temporarily appointed as a Senior Research Assistant with 10% reduction in salary. Upon providing verification of their Ph.D. degree, they would be promoted in rank and salary. The postdoctoral selection will be made based on the strength of the candidates’ proposed research projects, the relationship of their projects to the program theme, the candidates’ scholarly records and their ability to contribute to the intellectual life of the program. For more information on eligibility requirements and the Fung Global Fellows Program see http://piirs.princeton.edu/funggfp/about/annual-research-topics.

Applications will not be accepted by email.

James Madison University

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor Black Politics

The Political Science Department at James Madison University is seeking a tenure-track faculty member specializing in Black Politics at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning August 2022. A doctoral degree in political science or other relevant field is required by the starting date for appointment as Assistant Professor; ABD candidates are encouraged to apply. We welcome applications from scholars of any subfield of political science or related discipline whose work addresses any substantive area of Black Politics within or outside the United States. We are open to a range of theoretical and methodological approaches. The successful applicant will teach courses on Black Politics and other courses reflective of their expertise and departmental teaching needs. We encourage applications from candidates who can offer classes that might cross-list with JMU’s existing programs in African, African American, and Diaspora Studies (AAAD), Latin American, Latinx, and Caribbean Studies (LAXC), and Women’s, Gender, and Sexuality Studies (WGSS).

The department seeks candidates with strong research and teaching skills and a commitment to an inclusive classroom and work environment. Scholars from historically excluded groups are especially encouraged to apply. This position builds on a successful Arts and Letters seven-faculty cohort hire in AY 20-21 that focused on racial and social justice, and an ongoing five-faculty cohort hire for Latinx studies. These hirings align with JMU’s commitment to an anti-racist and anti-discrimination agenda throughout Academic Affairs.

The successful applicant will teach courses on Black Politics and other courses reflective of their expertise and departmental teaching needs.

U.S. Naval War College
Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor, War Gaming Department

U.S. Naval War College seeks Assistant/Associate Professor, War Gaming Department, Center for Naval Warfare Studies.

The Naval War College is a Professional Military Education (PME) institution serving the nation, the Department of Defense, and the U.S. Navy. U.S. and selected international graduates earn Master of Arts degrees in National Security & Strategic Studies or Defense & Strategic Studies accredited by the New England Commission of Higher Education. The College educates and develops future leaders through the development of strategic perspective, critical thinking, and cultural awareness, as well as enhancing the capability to advise senior leaders and policy makers. The College also helps to define the future Navy and its roles and missions; supports combat readiness; strengthens global maritime partnerships; and promotes ethics and leadership throughout the force. We are actively seeking candidates with diverse academic, demographic, and professional backgrounds. More information on the college can be found at www.usnwc.edu.

War Gaming Department, War Gaming Department (WGD) conducts research, analysis and gaming to support the requirements of the Secretary of the Navy (SECNAV), the Chief of Naval Operations (CNO), the combatant commanders, the Navy component commanders, the Navy numbered fleet commanders, other Navy and Marine Corps commanders, the U.S. intelligence community and other departments and agencies of the U.S. Government. The desired effect is a program of focused, forward-thinking, timely and relevant research, analysis and gaming that anticipates future operational and strategic challenges; develops and assesses strategic and operational concepts to address those challenges; and assesses the risk associated with these concepts. Additionally, WGD provides support to the Naval War College mission to educate and develop leaders. The desired effect is to create leaders who are operationally and strategically minded critical-thinkers and who are proficient in joint and interagency matters; and skilled naval and joint warfighters who are prepared to meet the operational and strategic level-of-war challenges.

Responsibilities. The responsibilities of WGD faculty include, but are not limited to:
• Develop research, analysis, and gaming to assess challenges with respect to the Navy and the Nation;
• Conduct focused research, analysis, and gaming to help define future Navy challenges within the maritime domain at the operational level-of-war and to support development of concepts of operations and innovation in the employment of operational and functional capabilities;
• Assist in the development of the Nation’s security, defense and national military strategies and the Navy’s future maritime strategy;
• Provide warfare innovation, analysis and decision support capabilities to support senior Navy leadership and other national security decision-makers on a wide range of operational and strategic challenges.

Qualifications. Qualified candidates must have a Ph.D. in a field relevant to strategic research and experience in assessing and evaluating strategic, operational, and tactical warfare concepts. Candidates expecting to complete their Ph.D. prior to 1 July 2022 will be considered. Experience analyzing issues of armed conflict and the use of military force is required. Experience designing and executing analytical projects, integrating multiple research efforts, and communicating that work to a broad audience is highly preferred. Experience on research teams or war gaming experience is highly preferred. Other desired attributes include:
• Knowledge of naval and joint warfare in all phases of operations from peace time to high-end combat;
• Knowledge of U.S. and/or foreign naval and joint technical capabilities and concepts of operations;
• Experience evaluating functional capabilities such as fires, intelligence, logistics, command-and-control, movement, maneuver, and protection;
• Experience with military analysis and planning; decision analysis; leading teams in planning and executing analytic events; operations analysis and research; data science and analysis; and war gaming.

Candidates must be U.S. citizens capable of obtaining a Department of Defense security clearance at the TOP SECRET/SCI level. The selected candidate will be subject to a pre-employment drug screening test and random drug testing thereafter. Any current or prior military service should be described including assignments, positions held, highest rank attained, and dates of service.

Salary Considerations. Salary is competitive and is accompanied by a generous Federal Civil Service package that includes health insurance, pension and retirement saving plans (with employer matching contributions), paid vacation and sick leave, and other benefits. Rank and salary are commensurate with experience and credentials in accordance with Department of the Navy Faculty Pay Schedule. This is a tenure track position.

Application Process. Applicants must reference VA#NWC-21-14 and submit their application package to: NWC-21-14@usnwc.edu. The application package must include: (1) cover letter; (2) curriculum vitae or resume; and (3) names and contact information for three references. Applications will be accepted through 11:59 pm (EST) November 30, 2021.

Questions about this position should be directed via email to CAPT Meg Schultz, USN, Deputy Chair, War Gaming Department, at margaret.schultz@usnwc.edu.
NOTICE OF VETERANS PREFERENCE: There is no formal rating system for applying veterans’ preference to the excepted service; however, the Department of Defense considers veterans’ preference eligibility a positive factor for hiring. Applicants eligible for veterans’ preference must include that information in their cover letter or resume and attach supporting documentation (e.g., DD Form 214, “Certificate of Release or Discharge from Active Duty”) to their submissions. Although the point-preference system is not used, applicants eligible to claim 10-Point preference must submit a Standard Form (SF) 15, “Application for 10-Point Veteran Preference,” and supporting documents required for specific type of preference claimed. (SF 15, which lists the types of 10-Point Preference, is available from the Office of Personnel Management Website at www.opm.gov.)

Within the Department of Defense (DoD), the appointment of retired military members within 180 days immediately following retirement dated to a civilian position is subject to the provisions of 5 United States Code 3326.

The Naval War College is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

(Providence College)

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science and Women’s and Gender Studies
Subfield(s): Political Theory, Other, Public Law

Providence College in Providence, RI invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track position—a joint appointment in Political Science and Women’s & Gender Studies—at the assistant professor level. Candidates must possess a Ph.D. in Political Science and/or Women’s and Gender Studies, embody an intersectional approach to teaching and research, and provide evidence of teaching excellence and scholarly promise. The ideal candidate will teach and have research interests that embody the intersectional lens of race, class, and gender.

Annual teaching responsibilities include some combination of the following: teaching one or more of the WGS core courses (introductory and capstone courses), as well as cross-listed courses in feminist political theory, gender, and politics, and an additional course in gender in law, public policy, or political participation in the United States. The ability to teach qualitative, quantitative, and/or feminist research methods is advantageous. The course load at Providence College is three courses per semester.

Candidates should demonstrate a commitment to engaged learning and address how they will contribute to building a community that is attentive to gender, race, and class diversity among our students. As the student body at Providence College grows increasingly diverse, we have a strong preference for candidates who demonstrate a deep commitment to and proven ability in supporting the success of students from historically marginalized economic, racial, ethnic, social, and cultural groups.

Applicants should apply online at the College’s career site, which can be found at: https://careers.providence.edu/ and submit a cover letter, curriculum vita, teaching statement/philosophy and evidence of teaching effectiveness, graduate transcript, and three letters of recommendation. For additional information, please contact: Dr. Abigail Brooks (abrook1@providence.edu) or Dr. Joe Cammarano (jpcammarano@providence.edu). In order to receive full consideration, applicants must submit their materials by October 31, 2021.

Simon Fraser University
Rank: Dr. A.H. Somjee and Dr. Geeta Somjee Professorship in Indian Political Development
Specializations: India, Political Development, Political Economy

The Department of Political Science at Simon Fraser University (SFU) invites applications for the inaugural holder of the Dr. A.H. Somjee and Dr. Geeta Somjee Professorship in Indian Political Development (Somjee Professorship). The successful candidate will be appointed as a continuing faculty member at the rank of Associate Professor, commencing on or after 1 January 2022, in the Department of Political Science, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences. Only those eligible to be appointed to the rank of Associate Professor will be considered. Appointment with tenure is possible. Appointment to the Somjee Professorship will be for an initial five-year term, renewable. The successful candidate will have launched a promising career with a strong track record of research publications on development in India. The candidate is expected to have experience conducting field research in India, collaborating on research grants, and mentoring graduate students.

The Department will consider all specializations within the field of Indian development, broadly construed, including rural development. More than half of India’s population lives in rural areas. Understanding these areas remains a significant challenge that is key to deepening democracy in India. Groups delineated by socio-economic status, caste, religion, gender, language and culture, as well as urban-rural divides, remain central to the study of India’s democratic pluralism.

The expectation is that the holder of the Somjee Professorship will train graduate students to conduct field work in India as well as help to support and enable research cooperation arrangements with universities and NGOs in India and across the world. As a continuing faculty member in the Department of Political Science, the holder of the Somjee professorship is expected to make teaching contributions to the graduate and undergraduate programs, contribute to the Department’s supportive and collegial working environment, and to make substantive contributions through service to the Department, the Faculty, the University, and/or the broader community.

Special Requirements: All faculty and staff (including contract workers) who are employed or engaged by Haverford College, must be fully vaccinated against COVID-19, and provide proof of vaccination, unless an exemption from this policy has been granted as an accommodation or otherwise.

Texas A&M University
Rank: Professor of the Practice - Homeland Security

The Department of Public Service and Administration in the Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University invites applications and nominations for a 9-month, full time position, Academic Professional Track (Non-Tenured) Professor of the Practice position in the area of National Defense and Homeland Security. We seek candidates whose demonstrated leadership and career achievements in the fields of Homeland Security, Emergency Management and/or National Defense equip them to inspire and mentor graduate students who seek similar careers. In addition to credentials as a practitioner the successful candidate will have the professional contacts and knowledge of policy, law, and/or administration required to provide programmatic leadership for our tracks and concentrations in National Defense and Homeland Security.

The position is at the Texas A&M University main campus in College Station, Texas. The Department of Public Service and Administration is one of two departments in the Bush School of Government and Public Service. Additional information about the Bush School and department is available at http://bush.tamu.edu/psaa.

The Fletcher School, established in 1933 as the first exclusively graduate school of international affairs in the United States, seeks to hire a tenure-track Assistant Professor of International Negotiation and Conflict Resolution, beginning in September 2022. The ideal candidate will have prior research, teaching, and practical experience and should have a strong research agenda. Interest in and prior experience with engaging policymakers about the candidate’s area of expertise is highly desirable.

The Fletcher School’s faculty is multi-disciplinary with a focus on preparing tomorrow’s leaders with a global perspective. The School undertakes research and prepares masters and doctoral students to use the latest political, business, economic, and legal thinking, among others, to generate pragmatic policies or make executive decisions that will successfully shape global events. Tufts University is a world-renowned research university dedicated to the creation and application of knowledge.

The successful candidate will take an active role in further developing the International Negotiation and Conflict Resolution field, a flagship field of study at The Fletcher School. In a world rife with political violence, this field of study seeks to understand what creates the conflicts that lead to such violence, what dynamics create escalation, and what approaches are available to de-escalate the violence and manage, resolve, or transform the underlying conflicts in just and sustainable ways. This can include the actions of governments, non-governmental organizations, and private sector actors and encompasses negotiated processes, mediation, peacebuilding, and other processes that seek justice and reconciliation.

QUALIFICATIONS

We seek a candidate with strong potential for international recognition and leadership in the fields of international negotiations and/or conflict resolution, at the Assistant Professor level. The candidate should have a demonstrable record of excellence in scholarly research and ideally some experience teaching at the graduate level.

Candidates must possess a doctoral degree in a relevant field (e.g. conflict studies, conflict resolution, public policy, political science, international relations, social psychology, peace studies or a related field) and demonstrate outstanding scholarship in addressing international conflict in terms of analysis, resolution and policy recommendations. Fletcher particularly seeks candidates with expertise in research and teaching in topics related to international conflict such as theories of conflict analysis and resolution, international negotiation and/or mediation, processes of escalation and cooperation, culture and conflict, protracted social conflict, or conflict and development. Teaching experience in negotiation and/or mediation is especially valued.

Candidates should submit a cover letter (including a personal statement outlining their qualifications and their particular interest in the position), curriculum vitae, list of at least three references, and previous teaching evaluations if available. The search committee will begin reviewing applications on October 30, 2021 and will continue accepting applications until November 30. Applications can be submitted via Interfolio at https://apply.interfolio.com/93762. Inquiries about the position should be addressed to search committee chair Professor Steven Block (steven.block@tufts.edu).

University of Pittsburgh Graduate School of Public and International Affairs
Rank: Assistant Professor - Race and Social Justic

The Graduate School of Public and International Affairs at the University of Pittsburgh invites applications for a tenure-stream faculty position at the assistant professor level in the area of race and social justice in public policy. The position will begin in August 2022. We advance this hiring opportunity cognizant that policy, structures, and institutions are appropriately implicated in contributing to racial disparities and also acknowledging that anti-racist and social justice-focused policy tools, processes, and analytical approaches are also central to addressing them. We seek a new colleague to work with us in generating new knowledge, disseminating new approaches, collaborating with new partners outside of academia, and advocating for change. GSPIA advances this hiring opportunity as part of a broader multi-year University of Pittsburgh Race and Social Determinants Cluster Hire Initiative, which seeks to hire at least 50 new faculty over the next four years.

We are eager to engage with candidates whose research addresses any topical area aligned with race and social justice in public policy. Examples include, but are not limited to, policing and criminal justice, education, food security, housing, health, and environmental justice. We are open as well to scale of research, including population, community, institutional, and regional (domestic, international). We invite candidates using intersectional and engaged approaches to research, teaching, and/or service, along with those whose work is explicitly framed within the social determinants of equity and well-being. Qualified applicants include those who currently hold or will hold a PhD at the time of appointment, including but not limited to those with degrees in public affairs, public policy, urban and regional planning, international affairs, political science, economics, sociology, and anthropology. As a new member of the GSPIA faculty community, the faculty member will have the opportunity to contribute to curricula in any of our degree programs: Master of International Development, Master of Public Administration, Master of Public and International Affairs, Master of Public Policy and Management, and PhD in Public and International Affairs. The faculty member will also have opportunities to align with key concentration areas including shaping the recently created social policy major, as well as public and nonprofit management, human security, policy research and analysis, urban affairs and planning, and more.

Interested candidates are encouraged to contact Search Committee Chair, Professor Daniel Jones (daniel.jones@pitt.edu), and/or Dean Carissa Slotterback (clostterback@pitt.edu) to discuss the position.

The Graduate School of Public and International Affairs is a dynamic, multi-disciplinary professional school, focused on training future practitioners for careers in the public, private, and nonprofit sectors in the areas of public policy, international development, intelligence and security, nonprofit management, urban planning, energy and environmental policy and more. GSPIA is ranked in the top 15% among schools of public affairs. GSPIA is home to a number of research centers that serve as points of outreach and intersection for faculty within our school, at Pitt, and externally. GSPIA faculty are connected broadly with colleagues and schools at the University of Pittsburgh, including via the University Center for Social and Urban Research, PittCyber, University Center for International Studies, and more. GSPIA’s Washington DC Center offers scholarly and engagement opportunities for students, faculty, and alumni.

GSPIA’s students, staff, and faculty are committed to making significant contributions to society through public service. We are committed to helping realize the vision of a more equitable and inclusive society. We embrace the diversity of experience of all members of our community, including those arising from differences of race, gender and gender identity, ethnicity, abilities/disabilities, age, religion, sexual orientation, political beliefs, socioeconomic status, geographic region, migrant/immigrant/refugee status, and veteran status. Our goal is a diverse, cosmopolitan community of faculty, staff, students, and alumni. The search committee is especially interested in candidates who, through their research, teaching, and/or service,

Naval War College
Rank: ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF STRATEGY AND POLICY

Join us and teach strategy to the next generation of military and national security professionals. The Strategy and Policy Department at the Naval War College, Newport, RI, invites applications for a tenure-track, assistant professor faculty appointment beginning in July 2022.

U.S. Naval War College. The Naval War College is a Professional Military Education (PME) institution serving the nation, the Department of Defense, and the U.S. Navy. U.S. and selected international graduates earn Master of Arts degrees in National Security & Strategic Studies or Defense & Strategic Studies accredited by the New England Commission of Higher Education. The College educates and develops future leaders through the development of strategic perspective, critical thinking, and cultural awareness, as well as enhancing the capability to advise senior leaders and policy makers. The College also helps to define the future Navy and its roles and missions; supports combat readiness; strengthens global maritime partnerships; and promotes ethics and leadership throughout the force. We are actively seeking candidates with diverse academic, demographic, and professional backgrounds. More information on the college can be found at www.usnwc.edu.

Strategy and Policy. Long recognized for its innovative curriculum and widespread influence on the study of strategy, the Strategy and Policy Department offers a challenging interdisciplinary education on strategy for students from all military services, government agencies, and officers from over 100 countries. The Department has a multidisciplinary faculty that works as a team to present an exciting course that synthesizes strategic theory, historical case studies, and their application to pressing policy and strategy problems. The strategy courses use strategic theory, the history of war (on land and at sea), and an examination of current-day conflicts to develop critical analytical skills for understanding the interrelationship of policy aims, strategy, and military operations. The interdisciplinary nature of the strategy courses requires that faculty members develop a breadth of knowledge well beyond their primary area of specialization. You can learn more about the S&P Department at our webpage: https://usnwc.edu/Faculty-and-Departments/Academic-Departments/Strategy-and-Policy-Department.

Responsibilities. Specific responsibilities include teaching graduate-level courses on strategy, collaborating in development of the common core curriculum, carrying out research and publication, engaging in College service, and the option of developing and teaching elective courses in areas of expertise. Teaching is primarily seminar-format with some lectures. The trimester system allows substantial time for research and professional development. The appointment is tenure-track.

Qualifications. Candidates must have a Ph.D. in hand at time of starting employment. Since the Strategy and Policy is an interdisciplinary department focused on the teaching of strategy, we seek candidates from a variety of disciplines related to:
• Political science: international relations, security studies, strategic studies, comparative politics, or related sub-fields.
• History: military, diplomatic, economic, international, naval, or related sub-fields.
• Political economy.
• Public policy.
• American Foreign Policy.
• Regional studies.
Competitive candidates should have a promising scholarly agenda, teaching experience, and a desire to teach military and security professionals.

Candidates must be U.S. citizens capable of obtaining a Department of Defense security clearance at the SECRET level.

Salary Considerations. Rank and salary commensurate in accordance with the Department of the Navy Faculty Schedule for assistant professor. This compensation package is accompanied by a generous federal employee benefits package that includes health insurance with employer contribution, retirement savings plan, paid vacation and sick leave, and other benefits.

Application Process. Applicants must reference VA#NWC-21-13 and must submit their application package to: nwc-21-13@usnwc.edu. The application package must include a (1) letter of interest, (2) curriculum vitae, (3) a writing sample, and (4) three letters of reference (letters of reference can be included in the application package or may be sent separately to nwc-21-13@usnwc.edu). Applications will be accepted until 11:59 pm (EDT), 5 November 2021.

Please direct any questions about this position or the institution to the Department Chair, Kevin McCranie at kevin.mccranie@usnwc.edu.

NOTICE OF VETERANS PREFERENCE: There is no formal rating system for applying veteran’s preference to the excepted service; however, the Department of Defense considers veterans preference eligibility a positive factor for hiring. Applicants eligible for veterans preference must include that information in their cover letter or resume and attach supporting documentation (e.g., DD Form 214, “Certificate of Release or Discharge from Active Duty”) to their submissions. Although the point-preference system is not used, applicants eligible to claim 10-Point preference must submit a Standard

Introduction
The Department is a top-ranked European Political Science department, which offers a vibrant, collegial and pluralist academic working environment for ambitious scholars. The pluralism of Political Science in Copenhagen is evidenced in the various epistemological and methodological approaches as well as subfields adopted by faculty, as well as in a wide range of core subjects in the MSc programme.

The Department consists of some 65 faculty, in which one fourth are internationals, as well as some 25 PhD students are organized in various initiatives (e.g. continuing and professional education) within the Department and welcomes annually approximately 200 exchange and guest students from abroad. For more on the Department, please consult our webpage: http://politicalscience.ku.dk/about/.

The Department has some 2,100 students across its study programmes and welcomes annually approximately 200 exchange and guest students from abroad. See more on the Department’s study programmes here: https://politicalscience.ku.dk/education/.

The Department is located on an attractive and historic campus in central Copenhagen – a city continuously voted as one of the most liveable European capitals. Located in a capital the Department has a strong tradition for engagement in policy development and impact, and in national and international public debates.

The successful candidate should represent the multifaceted and diverse field of Political Theory. Moreover, we are interested in candidates who feel at home in a pluralistic research environment that uses insights from the history of political thought and contemporary political theory to confront pressing societal and political challenges, such as ‘democracy in crisis’ as well as climate change, leading to distrust and disillusion, crisis of legitimacy and representation, political polarization and citizen activism, and so on.

Research and teaching in the Department are methodologically and theoretically diverse. Our ideal candidate combines qualifications to teach both the introduction to the history of political thought at the BA-level and in our Specialization in Political Theory at the MA level, which focuses on contemporary political theory as well as advising bachelor projects and master thesis. We look for a candidate, who is able and willing to engage in intellectual exchanges across various theories and topics within the discipline. Furthermore, the successful candidate is expected to teach and supervise within the Department’s educational programmes (see below) within Political Theory or related fields, and to take active part in the Political Theory Research Group.

Duties and Responsibilities
Duties and responsibilities of the post include contributing to the scholarship and intellectual life of the University by conducting world-class research and teaching. A full professor also has administrative responsibilities and is expected to develop the field in synergy with other fields, develop and lead external research grant applications, as well as exercise academic leadership.

General duties attached to the position as Full Professor are:

- Outstanding research within the area of Political Theory in one of more of the areas described above.
- High Quality teaching, supervision and examination of undergraduate, graduate and PhD students.
- Administrative tasks related to the position of Full Professor.
- Knowledge exchange with broader society (societal impact).
- Research and teaching management.
- Active contribution to the social and intellectual life of the Department.
- Project acquisition of external funding.

Your Competencies and Opportunities
In order to be assessed qualified for a professor position at the University of Copenhagen, the candidate must meet the University’s criteria of academic merit.

We expect candidates to present a clear, well-developed and viable strategy for future outstanding research that will result in further world-leading publications, external research funding as well as a commitment to innovate teaching. In addition, we expect candidates at Full Professor level to engage in inter-faculty cooperation and initiatives (e.g. continuing and professional education) within the Faculty of Social Sciences and beyond.

Applicants for a Full Professorship must be able to document a very high degree of original scholarly production at international level and have a highly recognised international reputation.

To qualify as Full Professor at the University of Copenhagen, candidates must meet the academic criteria for professor appointments. The assessment is based on the candidate’s fulfilment of these criteria guided by the specific requirements stated in the job advertisement and the material submitted by the applicant.

The assessment committee will give a written overall assessment, covering the six main criteria areas. The criteria will be viewed as a framework for an overall assessment of whether the candidate is qualified for the position in relation to the job advertisement rather than as absolute criteria, which the applicant must meet in each case.

Research
Professors are internationally recognised researchers in their fields of expertise. Their research is influential and contributes to the development of their own subject area as well as more broadly.
• An excellent research profile with leading international expertise in the subject area
• An articulated vision and strategy for their subject area, also covering ties to adjacent areas
• Significant influence on the subject area via many peer-reviewed publications across recognised journals and/or books or anthologies
• Significant research impact through high research quality and/or many citations in recognised journals and/or books or anthologies
• Participation in national and international scientific networks and conferences, including invitations to present research

Teaching
Professors provide research-based teaching of the highest quality in one or more disciplines and contribute to developing, organising and evaluating courses on all levels.

• Extensive teaching experience, including examination work and acting as opponent of PhD thesis or doctoral thesis
• Experience of supervising bachelor students, master’s degree students, PhD students and/or postdocs
• A teaching portfolio that documents teaching experience and reflections on teaching skills
• Ongoing development of pedagogical and didactic skills, including own and others’ practice in relation to teaching and supervision
• Interest in including feedback from colleagues, students and others in the development of own teaching as well as mentoring of colleagues with the aim of developing their teaching practice

Societal impact
Professors interact with external partners and seek out new collaborations, communicate and generate knowledge that greatly benefits societal developments, e.g. by influencing the public debate within their field of research.

• Considerable experience of communicating research to relevant stakeholders, including students
• Frequent contributions to popular science communication
• Strategic collaboration with private and/or public organisations and a significant network of external stakeholders

Organisational contribution
Professors take responsibility for developing an active academic environment, sit on assessment committees, councils, boards and committees at UCPH and contribute to enhancing the University’s brand.

• Membership of the department’s formal forums, working groups and assessment committees and interest in joining councils, boards and committees at UCPH.
• A collegiate spirit and commitment to collaboration as well as strong relationship and conflict resolution skills
• Development and management of interdisciplinary collaborations

External funding
Professors initiate grant application activities regarding research funds and obtain and manage funds.
Experience of applying for, obtaining and managing research funds

Leadership
Professors develop the subject area in synergy with other subject areas and exercise academic leadership, including the development of and delegation of responsibilities to junior researchers.

• Experience of developing own academic leadership skills
• Experience of academic leadership tasks, e.g. research, course or programme management
• Responsibility for and contribution to well-being, collaboration, equal treatment, diversity and a good working environment

Strategy of the Faculty of the Social Sciences
The Department of Political Science is part of the Faculty of the Social Sciences. The Faculty is a successful academic community that strives to put knowledge into action by:

• Engaging partners in the co-creation of knowledge, learning and social change.
• Empowering our students to become reflective and responsible citizens who have the vision, the knowledge and the competences to change society for the better.
• Energising global, European and Danish communities of knowledge by innovating research methodologies and by research findings with impact

Terms of Employment

• Employment with the Faculty of Social Sciences and progression within employment will be determined only by personal merit. We do this by applying academic criteria of the University of Copenhagen which are related to the duties and conditions of each particular post and the needs of the Department concerned.
• The position is permanent, and therefore we strongly encourage the appointed professor to acquire the proficiency in Danish required to teach and interact with colleagues in that language in 2-4 years. The Department will provide and pay for the necessary language training.
• Further information on qualification requirements as professor can be found in the Memorandum on Job Structure for Academic Staff at Danish Universities 2019 here: https://employment.ku.dk/faculty/criteria-for-recognising-merit/dokumenter/Ministerial_Order_no._1443_of_11_December_2019_on_Job_Structure_for_Academic_Staff_at_Universities.pdf
• Terms of appointment and salary is in accordance with the Danish Confederation of Professional Associations (Akademikere).
• The salary is DKK 52,500 per month + a 17.1 % contribution to the pension scheme. It is possible to negotiate salary supplements on an annual basis.

University of Copenhagen

Rank: Tenure-Track Assistant Professorship in Political Theory

The Department of Political Science, Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Copenhagen (UCPH), invites excellent candidates for one or more tenure-track assistant professorships in Political Theory. We seek applications from candidates, who can enhance the Department’s research, education and societal impact covering both the history of political thought and contemporary political theory.

The position is available from 1 February 2022 or as soon as possible thereafter.

A tenure-track assistant professorship is a six-year, fixed-term academic position involving both research and teaching. The successful candidate will be obliged to complete a teacher-training course designed especially for assistant professors, and will be expected to be able to take part in all the activities of the Department, including examinations and administration.

Approximately six months before the end of the six-year period as tenure-track assistant professor, a committee set up by the Dean will assess whether the assistant professor can be considered for promotion to a tenured position as associate professor.

Read more about the tenure-track program at Copenhagen University here: http://employment.ku.dk/tenure-track/tenure-track-at-ucph/.

Introduction

The Department is a top-ranked European Political Science department, which offers a vibrant, collegial and pluralist academic working environment for ambitious scholars.

The pluralism of Political Science in Copenhagen is evidenced in the various epistemological and methodological approaches as well as subfields adopted by faculty, as well as in a wide range of core subjects in the MSc programme.

The Department consists of some 65 faculty, as well as some 25 PhD students, organized in research groups and centres. For more on the Department, please consult our webpage: http://politicalscience.ku.dk/about/.

The Department has some 2,100 students across its study programmes and welcomes annually approx. 200 exchange and guest students from abroad. See more on the Department’s study programmes here: https://politicalscience.ku.dk/education/.

The Department is located on an attractive, historic campus in central Copenhagen – a city continuously voted as one of the most liveable European capitals. Located in a capital, the Department has a strong tradition for engagement in policy development and impact, and in national and international public debates.

The successful candidates should represent the multifaceted and diverse field of Political Theory. Moreover, we are interested in candidates who feel at home in a pluralistic research environment that uses insights from the history of political thought and contemporary political theory to confront pressing societal and political challenges such as ‘democracy in crisis’ and climate change, leading to distrust and disillusion, crisis of legitimacy and representation, political polarization and citizen activism, and so on.

Research and teaching in the Department are methodologically and theoretically diverse. Our ideal candidates combine qualifications to teach both the introduction to the history of political thought at the BA-level and in our Specialization in Political Theory at the MA level, which focuses on contemporary political theory as well as advising bachelor projects and master theses. The chosen candidates should be able and willing to engage in intellectual exchanges across various theories and topics within the discipline. All successful candidates are expected to teach and supervise within the Department’s educational programmes (see below) within Political Theory or related fields, and to take actively part in the Political Theory Research Group.

Duties and Responsibilities
Duties and responsibilities of the post include contributing to the scholarship and intellectual life of the University by conducting world-class research and teaching.

General duties attached to the position as tenure-track Assistant Professor are:
- Research within Political Theory in one or more of the fields described above
- Teaching, supervision and examination of undergraduate and graduate students
- Administrative tasks
- Knowledge exchange with wider society (societal impact)
- Contribution to the social and intellectual life of the Department
- Contribution to acquisition of external funding, or plans thereof

An assistant professor is also expected to develop competences and experience within research, teaching and dissemination. In time, the candidates should develop competences to attract funding within his/her specialist area. Finally, an assistant professor has administrative responsibilities.

Your Competencies and Opportunities
In order to be assessed qualified for a tenure-track assistant professor position at the University of Copenhagen, the candidates must meet the University’s criteria of academic merit. We expect candidates to present a clear, well-developed and viable strategy for future outstanding research that will result in further world-leading publications, external research funding as well as a commitment to innovate teaching.

Essential Qualifications
Applicants for Tenure-Track Assistant Professorship must have a PhD in Political Theory or equivalent academic qualifications, as well as:

An aspiration to increase our understanding of the world and its problems based on a proven record of outstanding research, as evidenced in a growing and ambitious publication profile that complements the existing research strengths of the Department and evidence of, or clear plans for attracting external research funding.

A commitment to contribute to delivering an excellent student experience based on a sizable track record of excellence in teaching in one or more of the main areas covered by the Department. The Department prefers candidates who can cover more than one of the main courses taught at BSc level.

An engagement in knowledge exchange and policy-impact in an international context and in Denmark. We encourage proactive engagement with government, business and community partners to enhance the impact of research and education and improve the employability of our students.

Robust interpersonal skills; we look for candidates, who are constructive and empathic colleague and who thrives in a diverse and vibrant working environment. The preferred candidates have an aptitude for working collaboratively with colleagues in planning and delivering teaching, in research projects and in the discharge of administrative duties.

Furthermore, the candidate must demonstrate a commitment to student learning, supporting student welfare and enhancing the student experience.

Strategy of the Faculty of the Social Sciences

The Department of Political Science is part of the Faculty of the Social Sciences. The Faculty is a successful academic community that strives to put knowledge into action by:

About Vassar College

Vassar is a highly selective, coeducational liberal arts college of about 2400 undergraduates (no graduate students) located in the beautiful and historic Hudson Valley seventy-five miles north of New York City. The city of Poughkeepsie benefits from rich cultural diversity and from convenient commuter rail access to New York City. Vassar faculty are committed teachers/scholars who bring research and creative discovery to life for students in classrooms, labs, and studios and in individually mentored projects. They teach broadly in the curricula... of their departments, advise students, and serve on college-wide and departmental committees. The College maintains a generous leave policy, provides strong support for research, and encourages multidisciplinary approaches to teaching.

Position Introduction

As part of Vassar’s five-position Cluster Hire Initiative in the Study of Race, Racism, and Racial Justice, the multidisciplinary Program in Latin American and Latinx Studies (LALS) invites applications for a tenure-track appointment at the rank of Assistant Professor in the areas of immigration, race, and racial bias. The position begins in Fall 2022.

AA Statement

Vassar College is an affirmative action and equal opportunity employer with a strong commitment to increasing the diversity of the campus community and the curriculum, and promoting an environment of equality, inclusion, and respect for difference. Candidates who can contribute to this goal through their teaching, research, advising, and other activities are encouraged to identify their strengths and experiences in this area. Individuals from groups whose underrepresentation in the American professoriate has been severe and longstanding are particularly encouraged to apply.

Position Description

We seek a social scientist with a multidisciplinary perspective and research competence in the study of immigration, race, and political or citizenship rights of populations from Latin America, the Caribbean, and/or North American Latinx communities. The Research Professor will oversee J-PAL MENA’s large and growing portfolio of randomized controlled trials in Egypt and across the region, leading a team of talented research staff. The Director of Research will be responsible for expanding the quality, efficiency, size, and policy-relevance of J-PAL MENA’s research portfolio in Egypt and across the MENA region. This will require an adept Director who is able to build, advise on technical and operational dimensions of research, and manage integrated teams of research managers and associates as well as field research operations professionals; identify promising opportunities to launch new research projects with governments and NGOs in MENA; build relationships with a broader set of J-PAL affiliated professors and MENA-based researchers, demonstrating the research implementation capacity J-PAL MENA offers them; strengthen research operations across Egypt and expand research operations capacity into other countries in MENA; and build and maintain funding relationships with regional and international donors to support J-PAL MENA research initiatives.

The Director of Research is a member of the J-PAL MENA Senior Management Team, helping to set and execute on J-PAL MENA at AUC strategy, playing an important role in day-to-day management of research and research operations, and expanding J-PAL MENA at AUC’s operational and funding capacity to implement high-quality research across the region. The Director of Research reports to the Executive Director and works closely with the Scientific Directors for MENA on research strategy and finances. The Director of Research also coordinates with the management and Scientific Directors of J-PAL MENA, the J-PAL Global office at MIT, and with other J-PAL regional offices and research partners on research projects and survey, data operations and management. This position is part of the worldwide J-PAL Senior Management Team. The Director of Research manages a team of Research Managers and Associates and Research Operations Managers, Associates, and Field Coordinators.

Responsibilities

Strategy: Play a critical role in refining J-PAL MENA strategy, responsible for delivering on strategic goals related to research and regional research and operational expansion. Be an integral part of the J-PAL Senior Management Team and play a key role in contributing to the long term planning and decisions of the center.

Research Project and Portfolio Management: Oversee the implementation of a broad and growing portfolio of impact evaluations implemented in Egypt by J-PAL MENA. Lead a 10-plus member and growing team of Research Associates, Research Operations, Managers, and Field Coordinators. Manage and support RMs in setting up and executing research projects. Support RMs who lead relationships with J-PAL affiliated professors, and foster relationships with researchers new to working in the region. Provide support on an ongoing basis with existing affiliates and co-PIs on their projects and troubleshoot project challenges. Negotiate Memorandum of Understandings (MoUs) and agreements with implementation partners. Represents J-PAL MENA with key research partners in government, NGOs, or private sector, and anchor high-profile research partnerships.

Lead Research and Research Operations teams: The Director of Research will be responsible for managing and continuing to build out the Research and Research Operations vertical team which leverages J-PAL regional office models. By making strategic new hires and supporting the training and mentoring of existing staff, the Director of Research will be responsible for building a team in which each project is managed by a Research Associate (RA); RAs to be supervised by Research Managers (RMs) who work across multiple projects. The Director of Research will supervise all RMs and is ultimately responsible for the functioning and execution of all projects at J-PAL MENA. The Director of Research works closely with J-PAL affiliated professors across projects to troubleshoot, assist and advise them in their decision making.

New Research Project Development: Working in conjunction with the Policy team, identify and cultivate potential implementing partners who are operationally and logistically open to impact evaluation; once researcher-implementer matches are made, support technical research design discussions and leverage research vertical staff to do the same.

Research Systems Strengthening and Innovation: Streamline processes and systems for data collection and management across research projects in coordination with the Research Operations managers. Work with senior research staff to co-manage, maintain, and enhance the support provided by the Research and Research Operations teams to the projects. Design and lead innovative pilot programs to improve systems, software, and efficiency on projects.

Fundraising and Donor Relationships for Research Projects, MENA Research Initiatives, and Core: As part of the Senior Management Team, contribute to efforts to raise major funding for a MENA Research Initiative, and/or for core funding. This includes donor prospecting, proposal drafting, relationship cultivation, and stewardship. Represent J-PAL MENA in meetings with donors and cultivate relationships with existing and prospective funders. Ensure all projects in the J-PAL MENA research portfolio are fully funded and support PI teams to fundraise for their projects.

External Communications: In partner and donor meetings, represent J-PAL together with other members of the Research team. As needed, represent J-PAL MENA at AUC and evidence-based policy more broadly in external settings.

Regional Expansion across MENA: In 2022 and beyond, develop J-PAL MENA’s research management offerings in a small number of strategic countries in the region to facilitate J-PAL affiliates increasing research efforts across the region. Work closely with Finance & Operations vertical on this.

Budgets, HR Planning, and Personnel Management on Research Projects: In coordination with the Finance & Operations vertical, effectively plan, manage and implement project budgets for the entire portfolio of impact evaluations at J-PAL MENA. Streamline project funding matters and systems for proposal writing and donor reporting. Supervise all RMs and RAs, and oversee their hiring and onboarding in close coordination with Finance & Operations vertical. Provide ongoing mentoring as required for professional growth of RMs. Plan and execute necessary training for research staff to enhance their research skills. Coach Research staff to support their professional development at J-PAL MENA.

Coordination: Coordinate to ensure adoption of research best practices from across J-PAL regional offices and Global Research vertical. Ensure compliance and smooth operations with AUC on all research operations and funding, in collaboration with Finance & Operations vertical and relevant AUC offices.

Teaching: Teach one course per academic year in the AUC School of Business.

Requirements:

- Applicants should have a PhD in the field of Economics, Public Policy, or a related field; Master’s degree with extensive experience will also be considered
- 10+ years of relevant work experience including work related to poverty reduction, impact evaluations, and evidence-informed policymaking
- Experience with field research, especially management of randomized evaluations and knowledge of empirical methods is critical. Experience with field research operations and approvals in Egypt strongly preferred.
Political Science Jobs

• Prior experience working with J-PAL or similar organizations preferred.
• Experience managing teams and experience with partner and donor relationship management.
• University-level teaching experience preferred.
• Excellent oral and written communication skills; able to communicate and engage in discussions with a diverse audience (Principal Investigators, Research Managers, Implementation Partners in government and non-governmental organizations, donors, etc).

Additional Information:
Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the positions are filled.

Application Instructions:
All applicants must submit the following documents online to AUC website below:
• Cover letter indicating interest in leading the J-PAL MENA research team and the portfolio of research projects, including interest in RCTs.
• Current resume.
• Sample of current research.
• Completed AUC Personnel Information Form (PIF); and,
• Three names of reference to busref@aucegypt.edu and mena_recruitment@povertyactionlab.org with the subject line BUS/JPAL Research/2021.

The successful candidate will be expected to pursue innovative and independent research at the highest international level, and to establish an outstanding, competitive, externally funded research program. The Committee especially welcomes candidates whose work focuses on the Global South.

Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence which can be demonstrated by a record of publications in top-ranked disciplinary and/or field-relevant academic journals or academic presses, outstanding research papers, forthcoming publications meeting high international standards, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, awards and accolades, and strong endorsements from referees of high standing.

Evidence of excellence in teaching may be demonstrated through teaching accomplishments, through the teaching dossier submitted as part of the application including a teaching statement, sample course materials, teaching evaluations, and through endorsements of teaching in the letters of reference.

The successful candidate will teach undergraduate and graduate courses, including in the Munk School’s professional graduate programs (the Master of Global Affairs and the Master of Public Policy) to students from a wide range of academic backgrounds and interests. The successful candidate will have experience or demonstrable interest in a professional school and/or in an interdisciplinary environment.

We welcome applicants whose research can integrate the ample opportunities for collaborations within the Munk School and across the University of Toronto. We note that the Munk School of Global Affairs & Public Policy is home to several research groups that connect with these issues of economic inequality and democratic societies, including the Global Justice Lab, the Policy, Elections, and Representation Lab, the Innovation Policy Lab, the Migration Policy Lab, and others. It is also home to several programs, including the Harney Program in Ethnic, Immigration and Pluralism Studies and the Trudeau Centre for Peace, Conflict and Justice, with related undergraduate teaching programs.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Rochester Institute of Technology

Rank: Assistant Professor (TT)
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Other
Specializations: American Politics, Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Theory

Detailed Job Description

The Department of Political Science at Rochester Institute of Technology invites candidates to apply for a tenure track Assistant Professor position in Political Science for the 2022-2023 academic year, starting August 2022. We seek an energetic and enthusiastic colleague who will serve as an instructor, researcher, and mentor for our undergraduate majors and minors. The ideal candidate will have a background in American politics or political theory and will also be interested in questions of innovative governance. In particular, the department is interested in applicants with a background in public choice, PPE (politics, philosophy, and economics), common pool resource governance, or other innovative approaches to analyzing and approaching traditional questions in political science and policy. Candidates who can contribute pre-law courses or politics of science courses to the curriculum, including philosophy and politics of law or courses on politics and biomedicine, are strongly encouraged to apply.

The successful candidate will: (a) have teaching experience or will demonstrate the potential for quality teaching at the college/university level; (b) demonstrate potential to conduct independent research and to attract external funding; and (c) demonstrate interest in mentoring undergraduate students. The hire will be expected to teach a minimum of five undergraduate-level Political Science courses per year. Specific teaching assignments will be based on candidate qualifications and program needs, but are likely to include innovative approaches to state and local and American politics, and upper-level classes in areas relating to political economy, law, and governance. The position also requires academic advisement and ongoing mentoring of undergraduate students, participation in program assessment and evaluation activities, and service to the Department, College, and Institute.

Department/College Description

The Department of Political Science offers a B.S. degree in political science and is part of the pre-law minor. The program in Political Science at RIT offers coursework and programs that are unique and innovative, integrating traditional fields of American government, legal studies, and international relations with explorations of the interactions between politics and governance on the one hand and innovation, science, and technology on the other. The department teaches not only the mechanics and strategies of the political process, but also examines limitations on government authority and responsibilities of citizens.

The College of Liberal Arts is one of nine colleges within Rochester Institute of Technology. The College has over 150 faculty in 13 departments in the arts, humanities and social sciences. The College currently offers fourteen undergraduate degree programs and five Master degrees, serving over 800 students.

Required Minimum Qualifications

Doctoral degree (PhD.) in political science or related field, expected by July 1, 2022;
Expertise in American politics or political theory;
The University of Notre Dame’s Keough School of Global Affairs invites applications for a tenured/tenure-track position in racial justice and conflict transformation, based at the Kroc Institute for International Peace Studies (https://kroc.nd.edu/). Rank is open. Preference will be given to scholars-practitioners working on US racial domestic challenges with global connections and implications. The disciplinary specialization for the position is open and we are particularly interested in candidates whose research and practice transcends disciplinary boundaries. Candidates from underrepresented groups are encouraged to apply.

While the primary appointment is at the Keough School, the successful candidate could also have an affiliation with another School or College at the University of Notre Dame.

The successful candidate will be expected to launch and direct a new initiative on racial justice, conflict transformation and policy at the Kroc Institute, including offering courses in their areas of expertise, developing collaborative partnerships with other Notre Dame units working on race and justice (such as Notre Dame Initiative on Race and Resilience and The Klau Center for Civil & Human Rights) and conducting policy-relevant research on racial justice. This position is in line with Notre Dame’s broader effort to increase diversity, equity and inclusion on campus.

Financial resources will be available to launch the initiative in the first two years but the successful candidate will be expected and responsible for securing funds to continue the development of the initiative.

Application Instructions
All applicants are required to submit a cover letter and a CV. Evidence of teaching effectiveness is also welcomed. Junior candidates (including PhD students, postdocs, assistant or non-tenured associate professors) should also submit a statement of research, a teaching statement (including a summary of teaching evaluations), and arrange for the submission of three confidential letters of reference. All application materials must be submitted through the Interfolio online application system.

The successful candidate’s work includes the analysis of new challenges and developments such as international migration, pandemics, and illiberal trends, which challenge traditional notions of citizenship, participation, democratic legitimacy, and representation. In addition to thematic focus areas, introductory and in-depth teaching on the political systems of Austria and the EU is to be covered.

Successful candidates should have the following qualifications:

- Doctoral degree/PhD and post-doctoral experience at a university or other research institution
- Habilitation (venia docendi) in a subject field relevant to this position or an internationally accepted equivalent qualification is desirable
- Outstanding achievements in research, excellent publication record, international reputation
- Experience in designing, procuring and managing large research projects, as well as the willingness and ability to lead research groups
- Enthusiasm for excellent teaching, teaching experience at universities as well as the ability and willingness to teach students in all phases
The University of Vienna expects the successful candidate to acquire, within three years, proficiency in German sufficient for teaching in bachelor’s programmes and for participation in university committees. In addition, the University of Vienna expects the successful candidate to be prepared to take over responsibility on the organisational level of the Faculty and the University, if necessary.

We offer:
- a negotiable and attractive salary (classification according to the Collective Bargaining Agreement for University Staff, allocation to job group A1; section 98 of the Universities Act 2002); the salary will be individually negotiated under consideration of the previous career development and the current income situation.
- in addition to the statutory social insurance, the University of Vienna offers a pension fund to its employees.
- a “start-up package”, in particular for the initiation of research projects.
- a dynamic research location with well-established research funding provisions.
- attractive working conditions in a city with a high quality of life.
- comprehensive advice and support in relation to finding an accommodation, change of schools and dual career.
- a wide range of support services offered by central service institutions.

Applications in English should be submitted by e-mail to the Dean of the Faculty of Social Sciences of the University of Vienna, Univ.-Prof. Hajo Boomgaarden, PhD, Rooseveltplatz 2, A-1090 Vienna (dekanat.sowi@univie.ac.at).

U.S. Army War College

Rank: Research Professor of Russian and Eurasian Studies

Specializations: Russia, Southeast Asia, Western Europe

Objective:
United States Army War College
Research Professor of Russian and Eurasian Studies
To fill a full-time civilian faculty position at the U.S. Army War College (USAWC), Strategic Studies Institute, as provided under Title 10 USC 4021. The initial appointment may be up to three years, the first of which may be a trial period. Appointments may be renewed in one-to five-year increments thereafter. Academic rank and salary will be based on the selected candidate’s academic credentials, experience and professional accomplishments.

The Strategic Studies Institute (SSI) is the U.S. Army’s institute for geospatial and national security research and analysis. SSI serves as a valuable source of ideas, criticism, innovative approaches, and independent analyses. Its team of researchers conducts both self-initiated and directed research and analysis on a wide variety of national security subjects for an array of stakeholders in the Department of Defense but especially for senior Army leadership. SSI, which is part of the U.S. Army War College, is composed of civilian research professors, uniformed military officers, and a professional support staff.

The U.S. Army War College (USAWC) is the Army’s most senior institution for professional military education. It educates the top echelon of U.S. military officers of all services, U.S. government civilians, and military officers from up to 80 foreign countries yearly. It develops strategic leaders by providing a variety of rigorous curricula of theoretical and professional subjects. The curriculum is delivered two ways -- through a ten-month resident program (about 385 students) and a two-year distance education program (about 750 students); both lead to a Master's of Strategic Studies accredited by the Middle States Commission on Higher Education.

The USAWC is located at idyllic Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania, home to a historic Army post that provides a collegial, vibrant, and secure work environment for its employees. The post is one of central Pennsylvania’s largest and most respected employers. Responsibilities include:

- Serve as Research Professor of Russian and Eurasian Studies in the Strategic Studies Institute (SSI), the research institute of the USAWC.
- Performs research and publishes SSI studies, journal articles, essays, op-eds, blogs, books, and/or chapters, which are distributed to military leaders, policymakers, government agencies, think tanks, and academic institutions worldwide. (50%)
- Conducts both self-initiated research and directed research (at the request of the Army Staff, Joint Staff or Office of the Secretary of Defense) on Russian national security strategy and policy, including implications for the United States. (50%)
- Develop recommendations to achieve key national security objectives specifically oriented toward those factors that impact U.S. defense priorities, especially those of the U.S. Army. (30%)
- Designs individual and collective annual research and publication plans, in consultation with SSI leadership, addressing contemporary national security issues. (20%)
- Conducts both internal and external service in national security related areas. (30%)
- Liaises with and provides briefings and expertise in response to requests from aforementioned key stakeholders and other audiences. (10%)
- Leads, organizes, and implements SSI and USAWC professional collaboration, conferences, seminars, symposiums, and meetings (20%)
- Attends and participates in relevant academic conferences by presenting papers and/or acting as panel chair or discussant. (20%)
- Contributes to the educational mission of the USAWC through teaching, lecturing, and supervising student research projects. (10%)

Occidental College
Rank: Assistant Professor of Black Studies
Black Ecologies, Health, and the Environment

Occidental College is inviting applications for a tenure-track faculty position in the newly established Department of Black Studies. We are seeking an assistant professor whose scholarship centers on fields such as Black ecologies, Black community health, reproductive justice, or race and the environment. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in Africana Studies, African American Studies, African Diaspora Studies, Anthropology, Black Studies, Environmental Studies, Geography, History, Law, Literature, Philosophy, Political Science, Sociology, Urban Planning, or a related discipline. The new faculty member will have the opportunity to cross-list courses with the Department of Urban and Environmental Policy and/or to contribute to minors such as Public Health and Food Studies. We are seeking a scholar who is grounded in interdisciplinary Black Studies methodologies and able to offer introductory and intermediate courses as well as advanced upper division seminars in Black Studies. We are especially interested in candidates who can develop community-based learning initiatives and deepen the connections between Occidental College’s Black Studies Department and the wider Los Angeles community. This search is part of Occidental’s new multi-year initiative to actively support the study of the life, culture, and history of the African diaspora and to support campus-wide efforts on behalf of equity and justice. The position will begin in August 2022.

Please submit a (1) cover letter detailing your interest in teaching Black Studies in a liberal arts college environment; (2) curriculum vitae; (3) research statement; (4) a statement of teaching philosophy that includes a discussion of your demonstrated commitment to, past evidence of, and future plans for creating equitable opportunities for learning and mentoring especially for underrepresented students; (5) samples of scholarly work (6) evidence of teaching success; (7) and arrange for three confidential letters of recommendation to be submitted to Patricia Micciche at blackstudieseco@oxy.edu. Semi-finalists will be asked to submit sample syllabi for “Introduction to Black Studies” and one “dream course.” Review of Applications will begin on October 15, 2021.

For a description of Occidental’s Black Studies Department and its course offerings, please visit our website at: https://www.oxy.edu/academics/areas-study/black-studies

Occidental is a small liberal arts college in the city of Los Angeles, and it is among the most diverse liberal arts colleges in the United States. The normal teaching schedule is the equivalent of five courses per year. Occidental College policies for early career leaves for untenured faculty and sabbaticals for tenured faculty are very generous. The mission of Occidental College is to provide a gifted and diverse group of students with a total educational experience of the highest quality—one that prepares them for leadership in an increasingly complex, interdependent, and pluralistic world. We strongly encourage applications from candidates who will further Occidental’s mission of excellence and equity in their teaching, scholarship, and service.

Occidental College is an Equal Opportunity Employer and does not unlawfully discriminate against employees or applicants on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, pregnancy, breastfeeding or related medical condition, national origin, ancestry, citizenship, age, marital status, physical disability, mental disability, medical condition, genetic characteristic or information, military and veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by State or Federal Law. Occidental is strongly committed to increasing the diversity of the campus community and the curriculum, and to fostering an inclusive, equitable, and just environment within which students, staff, administrators and faculty thrive. Candidates who can contribute to this goal through their teaching, research, advising, and other activities are encouraged to identify their strengths and experiences in this area. Individuals advancing the College’s strategic equity and justice goals and those from groups whose underrepresentation in the American professoriate has been severe and longstanding are particularly encouraged to apply.

Salary is commensurate with experience and qualifications. A comprehensive benefits package is available that includes: excellent health, dental, life, and retirement benefits; tuition benefits for the employee, spouse, domestic partner, and dependents; additional extras including use of gym facilities and the College Library. For a detailed description of benefits, please visit https://www.oxy.edu/offices-services/human-resources/benefits-information.

We will consider for employment all qualified applicants, including those with criminal histories, in a manner consistent with the requirements of applicable state and local laws, including the City of Los Angeles’ Fair Chance Initiative for Hiring Ordinance.

Occidental College is committed to working with and providing reasonable accommodations to applicants with qualifying disabilities. If you need a reasonable accommodation because of a disability for any part of the application or employment process, please contact Human Resources (hr@oxy.edu).

Princeton University
Rank: Faculty Position in Sustainable Energy Policy

The University of Notre Dame’s Keough School of Global Affairs in collaboration with ND Energy is seeking a faculty member for a tenure track position in Sustainable Energy Policy whose research and teaching interests focus on sustainable energy policy or energy transitions in a global context.

Applicants at the assistant, associate or full professor level will be considered, with a preference for candidates with at least two years of post-doctoral experience. A PhD is a requirement for the position; relevant fields might include engineering, public policy, political science, law, economics, business, environmental studies, and geology.

While demonstrating excellence in research and teaching is important for this position, scholars with direct experience working in energy policy and program analysis and international organizations, governments or non-governmental organizations are encouraged to apply. Applicants should have a strong interest in interdisciplinary collaboration.

The successful candidate will be based in the Keough School where they will contribute to policy-oriented research and teaching; concurrent appointments with other units may be possible. They will also do... serve as a bridge to the scholars affiliated with the ND Energy Center, which fosters energy-related research, education, and outreach. The Keough School advances integral human development through research, policy and practice; transformative educational programs; and partnerships for global engagement. It promotes interdisciplinary research on critical issues in global affairs, offers a master’s degree as well as undergraduate and doctoral programs, and maintains an office in Washington D.C.

Application Instructions
All applicants are required to submit a cover letter and a CV. Evidence of teaching effectiveness is also welcomed. Junior candidates (including PhD students, postdocs, assistant or non-tenured associate professors) should also arrange for the submission of three confidential letters of reference. University of Washington
Rank: Assistant Professor: Law, Societies & Justice
Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Other

Position Description
The Department of Law, Societies & Justice (LSJ) at the University of Washington in Seattle invites applications for a full-time, tenure track Assistant Professor who specializes in the social scientific study of race/ethnicity as it relates to law, rights, and justice. This position holds a 9-month service term and is expected to start in September 2022. LSJ offers undergraduate students a dynamic and engaged interdisciplinary liberal arts education focused on law, rights, and justice. LSJ also offers a graduate certificate in socio-legal studies for PhD students from a variety of disciplines. The successful candidate will teach a large introductory course that focuses on law, rights, and justice as well as other courses that reflect their areas of expertise. University of Washington faculty engage in teaching, research and service.

Qualifications
LSJ seeks to hire a scholar whose research and teaching focus on race, ethnicity, law, and rights, and whose scholarship includes topics not currently covered by the department such as environmental justice or health. Other considerations will include: evidence of research excellence and productivity; excellence in, and passion for, undergraduate teaching; interdisciplinarity and fit with the LSJ mission; service, leadership and collegiality; and clear evidence of a commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion. A PhD or foreign equivalent in a social science field is required by the start of the appointment.

Instructions
Applications should include a current CV, a cover letter describing research and teaching interests and fit with LSJ, up to two samples of publications or other scholarly work, a teaching statement and evidence of teaching effectiveness, a diversity, equity and inclusion statement, and three letters of recommendation. Candidate materials should be electronically submitted via Interfolio here: https://apply.interfolio.com/90932. Review of applications will begin on September 30, 2021. Questions about the application process should be directed to: Professor Steve Herbert, Search Committee Chair; skherb@uw.edu

Princeton University
Rank: The Harold T. Shapiro Postdoctoral Fellowship in Bioethics

The Princeton University Center for Human Values invites applications for the Harold T. Shapiro Postdoctoral Fellowship in Bioethics for a position starting in September 2022. The Shapiro Fellowship supports outstanding scholars studying ethical issues arising from developments in medicine, the biological sciences, or population health. We particularly encourage proposals focusing on problems of practical importance that have broader theoretical interest.

The Shapiro Fellow will spend from one to three years at Princeton conducting research and teaching the equivalent of one course each year (subject to sufficient enrollments and approval by the Dean of the Faculty). They will participate in the Ira W. DeCamp Seminar in Bioethics and will be invited to participate in other activities of the University Center for Human Values including a year-long research seminar for visiting fellows and Center faculty.

Qualifications
Applications welcome from candidates who have or expect to have a Ph.D. by the start date, normally beginning September 1, 2022. Applicants should not have more than two years of postdoctoral experience by the date of appointment. An applicant may have a background in any area of ethical studies, not necessarily in bioethics. However, the proposed research plan should be related to the field of bioethics.

Applications will be evaluated on the basis of the applicant’s previous accomplishments and the promise of the proposed research project in bioethics. The capacity to contribute to the University’s teaching program will also be taken into account.

Term of Appointment
The term of the fellowship is one year, normally beginning September 1, 2022, with the possibility of renewal for up to two additional years pending satisfactory performance. Appointment will be made to the rank of Postdoctoral Research Associate; the Shapiro Fellow will also carry the title of Lecturer, if teaching. Princeton University offers competitive salary and employee benefits.

Naval War College

Rank: ASSISTANT PROFESSOR IN NATIONAL SECURITY AFFAIRS AD-1701-03

Launch your scholarly career at one of the nation’s largest and most vibrant graduate teaching departments in the interdisciplinary field of foreign policy analysis and international security. The National Security Affairs (NSA) Department at the U.S. Naval War College in Newport, Rhode Island seeks to fill an anticipated vacancy begining in July 2022 for a tenure-track assistant professor of national security affairs.

U.S. Naval War College. The Naval War College is a Professional Military Education (PME) institution serving the nation, the Department of Defense, and the U.S. Navy. U.S. and selected international graduates earn Master of Arts degrees in National Security & Strategic Studies or Defense & Strategic Studies accredited by the New England Commission of Higher Education. The College educates and develops future leaders through the development of strategic perspective, critical thinking, and cultural awareness, as well as enhancing the capability to advise senior leaders and policy makers. The College also helps to define the future Navy and its roles and missions; supports combat readiness; strengthens global maritime partnerships; and promotes ethics and leadership throughout the force. We are actively seeking candidates with diverse academic, demographic, and professional backgrounds. More information on the college can be found at www.usnwc.edu.

National Security Affairs Department. The NSA Department is one of the college’s core academic teaching departments and is composed of scholars and practitioners engaged in a wide range of teaching, research, and outreach. You can learn more about the NSA Department at our webpage: https://usnwc.edu/Faculty-and-Departments/Academic-Departments/National-Security-Affairs-Department

Responsibilities. Specific responsibilities include: teaching two distinctive common core graduate-level security studies survey courses, collaborating in the development of common core curricula, developing and teaching elective courses as desired, scholarly research and publication, and college service. There is no requirement or expectation to attract external funding. Maximum teaching load excluding optional elective classes is 2/2/0 based on a 10-month trimester system. This involves teaching up to two seminar sections (single preparation) of no more than 16 students in the 13-week fall and winter trimesters, with a spring trimester and summer inter-sessional period devoted primarily to research, curriculum development, and college service. All positions are year-round (12-month). The college is a tenure-granting institution.

Qualifications. Qualified candidates must have a relevant Ph.D. and a promising scholarly agenda in international security to be a successful assistant professor. Concentrations include international relations, foreign policy analysis, U.S. government, or U.S. foreign policy. Candidates with Ph.D. in hand by July 2022 are encouraged to apply. Candidates must be U.S. citizens capable of obtaining a Department of Defense security clearance at the SECRET level.

Salary. Rank and salary commensurate in accordance with the Department of the Navy Faculty Schedule for assistant professor. This compensation package is accompanied by a generous federal employee benefits package that includes health insurance with employer contribution, retirement savings plan, paid vacation and sick leave, and other benefits.

Application Procedures. Applications will be accepted through 11:59 pm (EDT) September 30, 2021. The application package must include the following: 1) cover letter; 2) Curriculum Vitae; 3) research agenda (no more than 5 pages); 4) teaching evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness (if available); and, 5) three letters of recommendation sent separately.

Applicants must reference VA#NWC-21-09 and forward their application package to: nwc-21-09@usnwc.edu.

Signed letters of recommendation should be sent via email to jamie.hatch@usnwc.edu (preferred method) or be mailed to:

Department of National Security Affairs
U.S. Naval War College

686 Cushing Road
Newport, RI 02841-1207
ATTN: Jamie Hatch

Please direct any questions about the position or the institution to the Department Chair, Professor Derek Reveron, at derek.reveron@usnwc.edu.

NOTICE OF VETERANS PREFERENCE: There is no formal rating system for applying veteran’s preference to the excepted service; however, the Department of Defense considers veterans preference eligibility a positive factor for hiring. Applicants eligible for veterans preference must include that information in their cover letter or resume and attach supporting documentation (e.g., DD Form 214, “Certificate of Release or Discharge from Active Duty”) to their submissions. Although the point-preference system is not used, applicants eligible to claim 10-Point preference must submit a Standard Form (SF) 15, “Application for 10-Point Veteran Preference,” and supporting documents required for specific type of preference claimed. (SF 15, which lists the types of 10-Point Preference and the required supporting documents, is available from the Office of Personnel Management Website at www.opm.gov.)

Within the Department of Defense (DoD), the appointment of retired military members within 180 days immediately following retirement date to a civilian position is subject to the provisions of 5 United States Code 3326.

Williams College

Rank: Assistant Professor in Asian American Studies

The American Studies Program at Williams College seeks to make a tenure-track appointment in Asian American Studies, to start July 1, 2022, at the rank of Assistant Professor (in exceptional cases, a more advanced appointment may be considered). The Ph.D. is expected by the time the appointment begins. The program seeks to complement and expand the expertise of existing faculty who teach Asian American topics, at a time when the College is working towards building an Asian American Studies program.

We are particularly interested in scholars doing comparative ethnic studies work, especially at the intersection of Asian American and African American/Black studies, but we welcome applications from those working on other topics as well. We also have a strong preference for those who demonstrate a commitment to the interdisciplinary nature and methodologies of American Studies in their research and teaching. The teaching load is two courses per semester and a three-week-long winter-study course every other January.

The successful applicant will be expected to teach courses in their specialties and periodically offer the introductory American Studies course (AMST 101) and the junior-level theories and methods course (AMST 301). The candidate should be a committed and imaginative scholar with an established record of excellence in scholarship and teaching and a willingness to help build the Asian American studies program at Williams. The hire will join three other Asian Americanists at the college.
American Studies at Williams is a small but vibrant program with a diverse faculty and dynamic and engaged majors, whose numbers are growing. Created in 1940, it is one of the oldest American Studies programs in the country and has been at the forefront at Williams in teaching courses that foreground issues of race and racism, class, gender/sexuality, globalization, and diaspora, among others. We are especially interested in candidates from historically under-represented groups, candidates whose scholarship and teaching enrich the diversity and intellectual vibrancy of our academic communities, and candidates who have experience working effectively with students who are widely diverse with regard to race, ethnicity, nationality, ability, gender, sexual orientation, and religion.

Please send the following application materials to the chair of the search committee, Prof. Dorothy Wang, Chair of the American Stud-of application, a curriculum vitae, a writing sample of no more than 25 pages, a statement of teaching philosophy, and three letters of recommendation. All applications received by Oct. 11, 2021 will receive full consideration. Preliminary video interviews begin at the end of October. Finalists will be invited to Williamstown for campus interviews in mid- to late November, possibly into early December.

All offers of employment are contingent on completion of a background check. Further information is available at: http://dean-faculty.
williams.edu/prospective-faculty/background-check-policy/.

Williams is a liberal arts institution located in the Berkshire Hills of western Massachusetts. The college has built its reputation on outstanding teaching and scholarship and on the academic excellence of its approximately 2,000 students. Please visit the Williams website (http://williams.edu). Beyond meeting fully its legal obligations for non-discrimination, Williams is committed to building a diverse and inclusive community where members from all backgrounds can live, learn, and thrive together.

Occidental College
Rank: Associate or Full Professor Global Black Studies

Associate or Full Professor
Global Black Studies

Occidental College is inviting applications for a tenured senior faculty position in the newly established Department of Black Studies. This search is part of Occidental’s new multi-year initiative to actively support the study of the life, culture, and history of the African diaspora and to support campus-wide efforts on behalf of equity and justice. We are seeking an associate or full professor in the humanities or social sciences who approaches Black Studies from a global perspective. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in Africana Studies, African American Studies, African Diaspora Studies, American Studies, English, History, Sociology, Media Studies, Philosophy, Political Science, or a related discipline. We are looking for candidates who either specialize in regions outside the continental United States or take transnational and comparative approaches to the study of Black life and culture. We are especially interested in candidates who study 20th and 21st century Black migrations, cultural practices and productions, political movements, or social justice initiatives. We are seeking a scholar who is grounded in interdisciplinary Black Studies methodologies and able to offer introductory Black Studies courses as well as introductory and advanced upper division Black Studies seminars centered on the modern and contemporary African diaspora. The position will begin in August 2022.

Please submit a (1) cover letter detailing your interest in teaching
Black Studies in a liberal arts college environment; (2) curriculum vitae; (3) research statement; (4) a statement of teaching philosophy that includes a discussion of your demonstrated commitment to, past evidence of, and future plans for creating equitable opportunities for learning and mentoring especially for underrepresented students; (5) samples of scholarly work (6) sample syllabi for "Intro to Black Studies" (7) evidence of teaching success; (8) and three confidential letters of recommendation to Patricia Micciche at blackstudiesglobal@oxy.
edu. Review of Applications will begin on September 10, 2021.

Occidental is a small liberal arts college in the city of Los Angeles, and it is among the most diverse liberal arts colleges in the United States. The normal teaching schedule is the equivalent of five courses per year. Occidental College policies for early career leaves for untentured faculty and sabbaticals for tenured faculty are very generous.
The mission of Occidental College is to provide a gifted and diverse group of students with a total educational experience of the highest quality—one that prepares them for leadership in an increasingly complex, interdependent, and pluralistic world. We strongly encourage applications from candidates who will further Occidental’s mission of excellence and equity in their teaching, scholarship, and service.

Occidental College is an Equal Opportunity Employer and does not unlawfully discriminate against employees or applicants on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, pregnancy, breastfeeding or related medical condition, national origin, ancestry, citizenship, age, marital status, physical disability, mental disability, medical condition, genetic characteristic or information, military and veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by State or Federal Law. Occidental is strongly committed to increasing the diversity of the campus community and the curriculum, and to fostering an inclusive, equitable, and just environment within which students, staff, administrators and faculty thrive. Candidates who can contribute to this goal through their teaching, research, advising, and other activities are encouraged to identify their strengths and experiences in this area. Individuals advancing the College’s straegic equity and justice goals and those from groups whose underrepresentation in the American professoriate has been severe and longstanding are particularly encouraged to apply.

Salary is commensurate with experience and qualifications. Summer research grants, moving expenses, start-up funds, and a reduced teaching load may be available. A comprehensive benefits package is available that includes: excellent health, dental, life, and retirement benefits; tuition benefits for the employee, spouse, domestic partner, and dependents; additional extras including use of gym facilities and the College Library. For a detailed description of benefits, please visit https://www.oxy.edu/offices-services/human-resources/benefits-information.

We will consider for employment all qualified applicants, including those with criminal histories, in a manner consistent with the requirements of applicable state and local laws, including the City of Los Angeles’ Fair Chance Initiative for Hiring Ordinance.

Brown University
Rank: Professor of International and Public Affairs (Human Rights)

Watson Human Rights

The Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs at Brown University invites applications for a ranked, tenured position (associate or full professor) in the field of Human Rights. We are seeking a scholar of human rights whose work may include -- but is not limited to -- topics such as indigenous rights, civil rights for marginalized communities, gender rights and sexual violence, freedom of expression and assembly, rights to asylum from persecution and conflict, rights to due process, labor rights, environmental rights, rights to basic standards of living and healthcare, domestic and international human rights instruments and institutions, peacebuilding, and transitional justice. We are open to scholars working on domestic or international settings. This new faculty position, to begin in July 2022, stems from a broader initiative at the Watson Institute anchored in our burgeoning Center for Human Rights and Humanitarian Studies.

The faculty position will involve a joint appointment between the Watson Institute and a relevant tenure-granting disciplinary department at Brown. Such departments include Africana Studies, Sociology, Anthropology, Political Science, History, and Economics. Across all possible disciplines, we seek a theoretically innovative scholar with demonstrated success in conducting empirical research. We are especially interested in qualified candidates who can contribute through their research, teaching, and service to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

All candidates must have an outstanding record of scholarly achievement, a proven record of successful research funding, and a demonstrated commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching and advising.

All candidates should submit: 1) a cover letter describing research completed and planned, 2) a curriculum vitae, 3) a short writing sample, and 4) a teaching statement. We ask that in both the cover letter and teaching statement, the candidate describe how their work fosters inclusive learning and diversity.

All candidates should also include the names of five references whom the search committee can contact at an appropriate time. The list of references can be submitted via the "additional documents" field in Interfolio.

Review of applications will begin on December 15, 2021.

Brown University
Rank: Professor of International and Public Affairs (Racialized and Ethnic Conflict/Violence)

Racialized and Ethnic Conflict/Violence

The Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs at Brown University invites applications for a faculty position in racialized and ethnic conflict/violence to begin in July 2022. We are seeking applicants who research focuses on various aspects of racialized or ethnically-motivated violence, coercion, and conflict. Research of interest includes, but is not limited to, topics such as the origins and growth of white supremacy movements, the proliferation of ethnic supremacy movements globally, the policing of marginalized communities, laws and institutions that aggravate ethnic and racial conflict, ethnic conflict and civil war, and ethnically-motivated genocide.

The faculty position will involve a joint appointment between the Watson Institute and a relevant tenure-granting disciplinary department at Brown. Such departments include History, Africana Studies, Sociology, Anthropology, Political Science, and Economics. Across all possible disciplines, we seek a theoretically innovative scholar with demonstrated success in conducting empirical research. We are especially interested in qualified candidates who can contribute through their research, teaching, and service to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Candidates at all ranks are welcome. A successful senior candidate must have an outstanding record of scholarly achievement, a proven record of successful research funding, and a demonstrated commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching and advising. A successful junior candidate must be engaged in a research program with the potential to influence their field, and a strong commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching and advising.

Junior candidates must have completed the PhD by the time of appointment. Review of applications will begin October 15, 2021, but applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

All candidates should submit: 1) a cover letter describing research completed and planned, 2) a curriculum vitae, 3) a short writing sample, and 4) a teaching statement. Junior candidates should have three letters of reference and their official graduate transcript uploaded to Interfolio at the time of the application. The confidential recommendation letters should be uploaded to Interfolio by the referee.
Brown University
Rank: Professor of Cybersecurity and International and Public Affairs
Specializations: International Security, Defense, Intelligence

The Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs at Brown University invites applications for a faculty position in “cyber and security” to begin in July 2022. We are seeking applicants whose research focuses on various aspects of the intersection between cyber technologies and human security. Research of interest includes, but is not limited to, topics such as the impact of algorithm-based surveillance on marginalized communities, the strategic manipulation of cyber information for geopolitical gain, the intersection between social media and surveillance, the implications of autonomous weapon systems and drone warfare, and the development of offensive and defensive cyber weaponry.

This faculty position will involve a joint appointment between the Watson Institute and a relevant tenure-granting disciplinary department at Brown. We are seeking applicants who have both proven technical expertise and the ability to engage existing areas of strength in the Watson Institute. We welcome applicants with doctoral degrees from all relevant disciplines, including STEM fields (e.g., Computer Science, Applied Mathematics) and the social sciences (e.g., Sociology, Economics, Political Science, Anthropology, History, Africana Studies). The Watson Institute is especially interested in qualified candidates who can contribute through their research, teaching, and service to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Candidates at all ranks are welcome. A successful senior candidate must have an outstanding record of scholarly achievement, a proven record of successful research funding, and a demonstrated commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching and advising. A successful junior candidate must be engaged in a research program with the potential to influence their field, and a strong commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching and advising.

Junior candidates must have completed the PhD by the time of appointment. Review of applications will begin November 22, 2021, but applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

Princeton University
Rank: Laurence S. Rockefeller Visiting Faculty Fellowships

The University Center for Human Values at Princeton University invites applications for Laurence S. Rockefeller Visiting Faculty Fellowships for the academic year 2022-23. Fellows devote an academic year in residence at Princeton to research and writing about topics involving human values in public and private life. This full-time visiting program is open to scholars in all disciplines provided their research plans qualify. In recent years fellows have been drawn from fields including philosophy, political theory, literature, history, classics, economics, and law, but this list is not meant to be exhaustive.

Fellows are expected to reside in or around Princeton, or demonstrate to the program’s satisfaction the ability to be on campus on a daily basis and on short notice in order to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation. Fellows are expected to be active contributors to the intellectual life of the Center. This includes participating in a weekly seminar attended by fellows and Center faculty to discuss work in progress and in various other seminars, colloquia and lectures sponsored by the Center. Fellows enjoy access to Firestone Library and to a wide range of activities throughout the University.

Candidates must have a doctorate or equivalent professional degree and a strong record of research publications appropriate to their career stage. Typically Fellows hold faculty positions at other universities or colleges; in exceptional cases we consider applications from independent scholars when there is a high level of scholarly achievement. This is not a postdoctoral fellowship program and we do not generally consider candidates who will have held the Ph.D. for less than two years at the time of appointment.

The fellowship period extends from September 1 to July 1. Fellows normally receive stipends of up to one-half their academic-year salaries (subject to a minimum and maximum set each fall). Ordinarily their home institutions provide a portion of their salaries in addition to all benefits, although this is not a requirement for appointment. Stipends for independent scholars will not exceed the maximum for fellows holding appointments elsewhere.

The main considerations in the evaluation of applications are the following:

• The significance of the proposed research and its relevance to the purposes of the University Center for Human Values (see http://uchv.princeton.edu/ for more information);
• The quality of a candidate’s previous research and the contribution the candidate is likely to make in the future through teaching and writing;
• The likelihood that the research would benefit from being conducted in the University Center environment.

University of Arizona
Rank: Assistant Professor of Human Rights in the Middle East and North Africa

The University of Arizona (UA) located in Tucson, Arizona seeks a qualified applicant for the position of Assistant Professor of Human Rights in the Middle East and North Africa, Tenure-Track. Candidates will be expected to have a PhD in Political Science or a closely related discipline. Exceptional ABD applicants nearing completion will also be considered. The position requires the ability to design and teach undergraduate and graduate courses in Middle Eastern and North African Studies and in Political Science, and the ability to mentor students.

A new assistant professor (tenure-track) position in Human Rights in the Middle East and/or North Africa, broadly defined. We are interested in a broad range of approaches to the study of human rights in the Middle East and/or North Africa with an emphasis on comparative politics or international relations. Of interest are human rights issues related to economic and social rights, gender politics, environmental justice, sustainable development, health, humanitarianism, indigenous rights, and migrants and refugees. The successful candidate will be well qualified to engage in undergraduate and graduate teaching; have an active research agenda, with research in or centrally related to the Middle East and/or North Africa; have potential for externally supported research; and have an interest in participating in outreach activities. The teaching load is typically two courses per semester. Proficiency in at least one Middle Eastern language is highly desirable (Arabic, Hebrew, Persian, Turkish or a related language).

The appointed candidate will hold a joint position in the School of Government and Public Policy (SGPP) and the School of Middle Eastern & North African Studies (MENAS), both in the University of Arizona College of Social and Behavioral Sciences (SBS). The exact percentage in each unit and tenure home will be determined at the close of the search, as appropriate for the appointed candidate.

About SGPP: The SGPP is one of the largest schools at the University of Arizona and is uniquely situated to serve as a model for public affairs education. SGPP is a multi-disciplinary school with a broad portfolio of innovative programs and degrees at the undergraduate and graduate levels. This includes undergraduate degrees in criminal justice studies, law, political science, and public management and policy. At the graduate level, SGPP offers professional Master of Public Administration and Master of Public Policy programs, as well as the fully online Master of International Security Studies degree. SGPP is also home to a residential Ph.D. program that trains students across the fields of political science, public policy, public administration, and public management.

About Middle Eastern and North African Studies: The UA features an extensive program in Middle Eastern and North African studies. MENAS offers a BA, MA and PhD, a BA in Arabic, and includes an Arabic Flagship program. Also in SBS are the American Institute for Maghrib Studies; Arizona Center for Judaic Studies; Arizona Center for Turkish Studies; and the Center for Middle Eastern Studies, a Title VI US Department of Education-funded National Resource Center. SBS/MENAS faculty are also central to the Graduate College’s Roshan Graduate Interdisciplinary Program in Persian and Iranian Studies, which offers both MA and a PhD degrees.

Interdisciplinarity at the UA and the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences: The UA offers a congenial environment for interdisciplinary teaching and research about human rights. Interest in human rights-related issues is informed by the UA’s location near the US border with Mexico. SBS offers an online MA and graduate certificate in Human Rights Practice, as well as a fully online BA in Human Rights Practice and three additional graduate certificates in the field. The Global Studies major includes an emphasis area in Human Rights, Migration, and Social Movements. Of related interest are additional programs in SBS such as the BA in Food Studies; the BA in Philosophy, Politics, Economics and Law in the Department of Political Economy & Moral Science; and the School of Sociology’s Care, Health & Society BS major.

Qualified Candidates will possess:
* PhD in Political Science or a closely related discipline from an accredited institution
* Experience teaching courses in both Middle Eastern and/or North African Studies and Political Science
* Exceptional ABD applicants nearing completion will also be considered; Ph.D. is required for appointment as Assistant Professor
* Teaching experience using a variety of teaching methods and/or curricular perspectives to respond to the needs of a diverse student body
* Emerging scholarly reputation

Preferred Qualifications: Proficiency in at least one Middle Eastern Language (Arabic, Hebrew, Persian, Turkish, or a related language)

TO APPLY FOR THIS POSITION: All applications must be submitted at https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/20741.

POLITICAL THEORY

Colby College
Rank: Contemporary Political Theory

The Department of Government at Colby College invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in contemporary political theory commencing September 1, 2022. We are seeking a dynamic scholar and teacher who will complement our existing course offerings and attract undergraduates to the study of political theory.

We are open as to the candidate’s precise area of specialization within the large domain of contemporary political theory. Areas of scholarly interest might include democratic theory, liberalism, multiculturalism, critical theory, race and ethnicity, feminist theory, or comparative political theory. The ideal candidate will also be broadly trained in the history of political thought and able to offer courses covering canonical texts in ancient, modern, and contemporary political theory, including one section of the required introductory course in political theory. Teaching load is 4.5 courses per year, with the possibility of offering one course during Colby’s January term. Faculty on the tenure track are also expected to supervise a limited number of student research projects, including senior honors theses, each year.

Candidates must have completed a Ph.D. in political science by September 1, 2022. The successful candidate will provide evidence of excellence in teaching a diverse student body and present a strong and on-going research program that is open to the inclusion of undergraduates. The college and the department are committed to enhancing the diversity and inclusivity of the campus community and the curriculum; candidates who can contribute to these goals are encouraged to identify their strengths and experiences in these areas when they apply.

Applicants should submit the following materials: a letter of application, a curriculum vitae, a statement outlining the candidate’s research agenda, a recent sample of scholarly writing, a statement expressing the candidate’s teaching experience and philosophy, course descriptions and/or syllabi for three proposed courses, evidence of teaching excellence, a graduate school transcript, and three confidential letters of recommendation. Please submit all of these materials via Interfolio link: http://apply.interfolio.com/95122. Review of applications will begin October 25, 2021, and will continue until the position is filled. (Providence College)
Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science and Women’s and Gender Studies
Subfield(s): Political Theory, Other, Public Law

Providence College in Providence, RI invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track position—a joint appointment in Political Science and Women’s & Gender Studies—at the assistant professor level. Candidates must possess a Ph.D. in Political Science and/or Women’s and Gender Studies; embody an intersectional approach to teaching and research, and provide evidence of teaching excellence and scholarly promise. The ideal candidate will teach and have research interests that embody the intersectional lens of race, class, and gender.

Annual teaching responsibilities include some combination of the following: teaching one or more of the WGS core courses (introduction and capstone courses), as well as cross-listed courses in feminist political theory, gender, and politics, and an additional course in gender in law, public policy, or political participation in the United States. The ability to teach qualitative, quantitative, and/or feminist research methods is advantageous. The course load at Providence College is three courses per semester.

Candidates should demonstrate a commitment to engaged learning and address how they will contribute to building a community that is attentive to gender, race, and class diversity among our students. As the student body at Providence College grows increasingly diverse, we have a strong preference for candidates who demonstrate a deep commitment to and proven ability in supporting the success of students from historically marginalized economic, racial, ethnic, social, and cultural groups.

Applicants should apply online at the College’s career site, which can be found at https://careers.providence.edu and submit a cover letter, curriculum vita, teaching statement/philosophy and evidence of teaching effectiveness, graduate transcript, and three letters of recommendation. For additional information, please contact Dr. Abigail Brook (abrook1@providence.edu) or Dr. Joe Cammarano (jpcammar@providence.edu). In order to receive full consideration, applicants must submit their materials by October 31, 2021.

Purdue University
Rank: Assistant Professor, Political Philosophy

Purdue University’s Department of Philosophy is seeking a philosopher of political philosophy for a tenure-track academic year appointment at the assistant professor level. AOS: Political Philosophy (including social ontology). AOC: Open. We are particularly interested in political philosophers who make use of relevant empirical work, including the historical, political, or cognitive sciences.

Principal Duties: Purdue is a member of the American Association of Universities, and thus a strong research profile is expected of the successful candidate in addition to graduate mentoring. Teaching load is 4 courses/year (2/semester), undergraduate and graduate, including two courses per year in the College of Liberal Arts’ Cornerstone Integrated Liberal Arts first-year curriculum. This curriculum is highly flexible but emphasizes student engagement with primary texts in philosophy, literature, and history.

Qualifications: Ph.D. in philosophy or related field required prior to appointment.

The College: The College of Liberal Arts at Purdue University is embarking upon 40 faculty searches for positions to begin in Fall 2022. These positions will advance research within and across disciplines, and intersect with technology, data science, and engineering in relevant and important ways. These positions include teaching in our innovative, nationally-recognized Cornerstone Integrated Liberal Arts Program that educates students across the university. Purdue University, the College of Liberal Arts and the Department of Philosophy are committed to free and open inquiry in all matters. Candidates are encouraged to address in their cover letter how they are prepared to contribute to a climate that values free inquiry.

Application Procedure: All materials will be submitted electronically through careers.purdue.edu Requisition ID 16108 Applications must include: (i) a brief cover letter, (ii) curriculum vitae (including dissertation abstract and research statement), (iii) copies of official graduate transcripts, (iv) names, email addresses, and institutional affiliations of at least three references, (v) evidence of teaching effectiveness, (vi) a writing sample of approximately 8-10K words, and (vii) a diversity and inclusion statement. Letters of reference should not be included in the initial application but should be prepared for quick submission if requested. If letters are requested from the candidate at a later stage, instructions for how to submit letters will be communicated directly to the candidate. As Purdue Philosophy is advertising four positions, please indicate clearly in your cover letter the position for which you are applying.

Review of applications will begin October 23, 2021, and continue until the position is filled. Incomplete applications will not be considered, and a background check will be required for employment in this position. Questions should be addressed to search committee chair, Prof. Christopher Yeomans (cyeomans@purdue.edu).

Purdue University’s Department of Philosophy is committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort, including scholarship, instruction, and engagement. Candidates should address at least one of these areas in a separate Diversity and Inclusion Statement, indicating their past experiences, current interests or activities, and/or future goals to promote a climate that values diversity and inclusion.

Candidates are expected to have completed a Ph.D. by the beginning of their appointment. Please send a cover letter; curriculum vitae; a sample of written or published scholarly work; a statement of teaching philosophy and teaching portfolio (e.g., sample syllabi, student and/or peer evaluations); a diversity statement that addresses the candidate’s past efforts, and future plans, to advance equity, diversity, and inclusion in their scholarship, teaching, and/or service; graduate school transcript; and three letters of reference to: apply.interfolio.com/95434 Applications received by October 29, 2021, will receive most careful consideration. Temple University is an Affirmative Action equal opportunity employer and particularly encourages applications from women, persons of color, veterans, and persons with disabilities.

Temple University

Rank: Assistant Professor - American Politics/Political Theory

The Department of Political Science at Temple University invites applications for a tenure-track position at the level of Assistant Professor in American politics. The successful candidate must be able to teach an introductory political theory course that serves as a writing intensive requirement for our major and will be expected to do so on a regular basis. We are especially interested in candidates whose research and teaching focus on applied topics in American politics such as social movements and American political development, but we are open to other areas of inquiry. Candidates must demonstrate a strong commitment to research.

Temple University is a state-related Carnegie Research University (very high research activity) located in Philadelphia. The College of Liberal Arts is home to 32 undergraduate majors, 23 minors, 23 certificate programs and 15 graduate degree programs. With its vibrant and diverse array of educational programs, the College of Liberal Arts plays a tremendous role in Temple University’s academic success and its mission mirrors both the historical importance of the liberal arts in society and the principles on which the university was founded: providing access to an excellent, affordable higher education that prepares students for careers, further learning and active citizenship; creating a collaborative community of outstanding faculty and staff who foster inclusion and encourage the aspirations of Temple students; promoting service and engagement throughout Philadelphia, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, the nation and the world.

Candidates are expected to have completed a Ph.D. by the beginning of their appointment. Please send a cover letter; curriculum vitae; a sample of written or published scholarly work; a statement of teaching philosophy and teaching portfolio (e.g., sample syllabi, student and/or peer evaluations); a diversity statement that addresses the candidate’s past efforts, and future plans, to advance equity, diversity, and inclusion in their scholarship, teaching, and/or service; graduate school transcript; and three letters of reference to: apply.interfolio.com/95434 Applications received by October 29, 2021, will receive most careful consideration. Arizona State University

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, International Relations

The School of Politics and Global Studies at Arizona State University (Tempe) invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track position as an Assistant Professor or Associate Professor whose research and teaching focus is on Black/African American politics, race/ethnicity and U.S. politics, broadly defined. Though we are primarily interested in someone who studies Black/African American politics within the United States, we also invite applications from scholars who examine these issues from a comparative and/or transnational perspective that also encompass a focus on the U.S.
The position is open regarding the particular substantive dimensions and theoretical perspectives emphasized, as well as methodological approaches. Along with the emphasis on Black/African American politics, and possible cross-national research, additional consideration will be given to candidates whose scholarship incorporates analysis of related factors (such as class and/or gender), and across various realms of politics (such as institutions, political behavior, and combinations thereof).

The successful candidate will contribute to curriculum development; teach at the undergraduate, master’s and doctoral levels as appropriate; supervise honors, masters and doctoral students; conduct research publishable in top-tier academic journals and/or top university presses in the discipline; participate in professional and university service; and develop grant proposals for external funding as PI or co-PI.

Minimum Qualifications:
Candidates must hold a Ph.D. in Political Science or related discipline by the time of appointment; demonstrated excellence in research commensurate with appointment at the level of assistant professor or associate professor level; demonstrated potential to establish a strong, externally-funded research program; and evidence of promise in and commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching.

Desired Qualifications:
Demonstrated potential to meet the needs of diverse student populations and/or reach out to diverse communities; a research focus with the potential to advance the mission of the School of Politics and Global Studies, especially in the areas of Black/African American politics and race/ethnicity and U.S. politics; a clear record of, or clear potential for, publishing in top journals and/or top university presses.

This is an in-person, academic year, benefits-eligible appointment. The anticipated start date is August 8, 2022.

The application deadline is November 6, 2021; only applications that are complete by the deadline will be given full consideration. Applications will continue to be accepted and reviewed every two weeks thereafter until the position is closed.

Applicants should submit electronically (in MS Word or PDF Format) a cover letter (which states qualifications, experience, research plans, and teaching interests); a curriculum vitae; a writing sample; contact information (email and phone) for three references; a brief statement of 1-2 pages addressing how your past and/or potential contributions to diversity and inclusion will advance ASU’s commitment to inclusive excellence. Faculty Fellow
Faculty of Arts and Science
New York University

The Center for European and Mediterranean Studies in Arts and Science at New York University invites applicants for a Faculty Fellow position in the field of European Studies. The initial appointment will be for one year beginning September 1, 2022, renewable annually for a maximum of three years, pending administrative and budgetary approval.

CEMS/NYU seeks a scholar experienced in advising student research and specializing in one or more of the following fields: comparative European politics, anthropology, sociology, or contemporary European history. We are particularly interested in candidates whose research and teaching focuses on the European Union; on political, economic and social developments in contemporary Europe; and/or on identity and minorities in Europe.

Responsibilities include teaching three courses per year, with a focus on undergraduate and graduate seminars. Student advising is a key component of this position, as the faculty fellow will have a significant role in directing theses for both MA students and undergraduate honors students. Service to the program will also involve representing the Center at university occasions and committee meetings. Candidates should demonstrate a commitment to interdisciplinary scholarship and excellence in teaching.

Qualifications: Candidates should have completed their Ph.D. no earlier than 2017 and no later than August 1, 2022.

To apply, please submit a cover letter, CV, three letters of recommendation, a statement of research and interests, and a statement of diversity and inclusion. As diversity is an important part of the NYU mission, for the latter statement we ask you to provide a brief paragraph telling us how diversity figures into your past and present teaching, research, community engagement, and/or life experience, as well as how you would bring issues of diversity to bear on the teaching and programming of NYU CEMS. Information about diversity statements may be found at http://as.nyu.edu/departments/facultydiversity/recruitment/diversity-statements.html.

Applications should be submitted through http://apply.interfolio.com/92354

The Faculty of Arts and Science at NYU is at the heart of a leading research university that spans the globe. We seek scholars of the highest caliber who embody the diversity of the United States as well as the global society in which we live. We strongly encourage applications from women, racial and ethnic minorities, and other individuals who are under-represented in the profession, across color, creed, race, ethnic and national origin, physical ability, gender and sexual identity, or any other legally protected basis. NYU affirms the value of differing perspectives on the world as we strive to build the strongest possible university with the widest reach. ### Virginia Tech

Rank: Assistant Professor, Philosophy, Politics, and Economics (PPE)

Assistant Professor, Philosophy, Politics, and Economics (PPE)

The Department of Political Science and the Kellogg Center for Philosophy, Politics, and Economics at Virginia Tech invite applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor. The successful candidate for this position will be a regular faculty member in the Department of Political Science and a PPE Core Faculty member in the Kellogg Center.

We seek applications from outstanding political scientists and philosophers in the analytic tradition who are, or promise to be, active members of the PPE community. The desired research and teaching specialization for this position is in theory-driven formal research methods (in particular game theory, public choice theory, and/or social choice theory) that focus on U.S. political institutions and practices, particularly those tied to foundational questions in political economy and institutional process in the U.S. The successful candidate must have a promising interdisciplinary research agenda in PPE (demonstrated through dissertation work, publications in leading outlets in PPE, and/or work in progress) that allows research collaborations with PPE Core Faculty.

This position includes research, teaching, and service responsibilities. Teaching responsibilities include regular courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels in the Department of Political Science (especially theory-driven formal research methods courses) and core courses for the PPE degree programs that the Kellogg Center oversees (including introductory, gateway, and capstone courses in PPE). The standard teaching load is four courses per academic year.

In their cover letter, candidates must explain how they meet the qualifications for this position and clarify existing experience in PPE.
We value candidates who have a demonstrated commitment to building an equitable and diverse scholarly environment through teaching, research, and/or service. Members of groups historically underrepresented in the professoriate are especially encouraged to apply.

The starting date for this position is August 10, 2022. A Ph.D. in Political Science or PPE-related field is required by the time of appointment. Occasional travel to national conferences is required. The successful candidate will be required to have a criminal conviction check. Salary competitive.

University of Copenhagen
Rank: Full Professorship in Political Theory

The Department of Political Science, Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Copenhagen (UCPH), invites excellent candidates for one full professorships in Political Theory. We seek applications from candidates, who can enhance the Department’s research, education and societal impact covering both the history of political thought and contemporary political theory.

The position is available from 1 February 2022 or as soon as possible thereafter.

Introduction
The Department is a top-ranked European Political Science department, which offers a vibrant, collegial and pluralist academic working environment for ambitious scholars.

The pluralism of Political Science in Copenhagen is evidenced in the various epistemological and methodological approaches as well as sub-fields adopted by faculty, as well as in a wide range of core subjects in the MSc programme.

The Department consists of some 65 faculty, in which one fourth are internationals, as well as some 25 PhD students are organized in research groups and centres. For more on the Department, please consult our webpage: http://politicalscience.ku.dk/about/.

The Department has some 2,100 students across its study programmes and welcomes annually approximately 200 exchange and guest students from abroad. See more on the Department’s study programmes here: https://politicalscience.ku.dk/education/.

The Department is located on an attractive and historic campus in central Copenhagen – a city continuously voted as one of the most liveable European capitals. Located in a capital the Department has a strong tradition for engagement in policy development and impact, and in national and international public debates.

The successful candidate should represent the multifaceted and diverse field of Political Theory. Moreover, we are interested in candidates who feel at home in a pluralistic research environment that uses insights from the history of political thought and contemporary political theory to confront pressing societal and political challenges, such as ‘democracy in crisis’ as well as climate change, leading to distrust and disillusion, crisis of legitimacy and representation, political polarization and citizen activism, and so on.

Research and teaching in the Department are methodologically and theoretically diverse. Our ideal candidate combines qualifications to teach both the introduction to the history of political thought at the BA-level and in our Specialization in Political Theory at the MA level, which focuses on contemporary political theory as well as advising bachelor projects and master thesis. We look for a candidate, who is able and willing to engage in intellectual exchanges across various theories and topics within the discipline. Furthermore, the successful candidate is expected to teach and supervise within the Department’s educational programmes (see below) within Political Theory or related fields, and to take active part in the Political Theory Research Group.

Duties and Responsibilities
Duties and responsibilities of the post include contributing to the scholarship and intellectual life of the University by conducting world-class research and teaching. A full professor also has administrative responsibilities and is expected to develop the field in synergy with other fields, develop and lead external research grant applications, as well as exercise academic leadership.

General duties attached to the position as Full Professor are:
• Outstanding research within the area of Political Theory in one of more of the areas described above
• High Quality teaching, supervision and examination of undergraduate, graduate and PhD students
• Administrative tasks related to the position of Full Professor
• Knowledge exchange with broader society (societal impact)
• Research and teaching management
• Active contribution to the social and intellectual life of the Department
• Project acquisition of external funding

Your Competencies and Opportunities
In order to be assessed qualified for a professor position at the University of Copenhagen, the candidate must meet the University’s criteria of academic merit.

We expect candidates to present a clear, well-developed and viable strategy for future outstanding research that will result in further world-leading publications, external research funding as well as a commitment to innovate teaching. In addition, we expect candidates at Full Professor level to engage in inter-faculty cooperation and initiatives (e.g. continuing and professional education) within the Faculty of Social Sciences and beyond.

Applicants for a Full Professorship must be able to document a very high degree of original scholarly production at international level and have a highly recognised international reputation.

To qualify as Full Professor at the University of Copenhagen, candidates must meet the academic criteria for professor appointments. The assessment is based on the candidate’s fulfillment of these criteria guided by the specific requirements stated in the job advertisement and the material submitted by the applicant.

The assessment committee will give a written overall assessment, covering the six main criteria areas. The criteria will be viewed as a framework for an overall assessment of whether the candidate is qualified for the position in relation to the job advertisement rather than as absolute criteria, which the applicant must meet in each case.

Research
Professors are internationally recognised researchers in their fields of expertise. Their research is influential and contributes to the development of their own subject area as well as more broadly.
• An excellent research profile with leading international expertise in the subject area
• An articulated vision and strategy for their subject area, also covering ties to adjacent areas
• Significant influence on the subject area via many peer-reviewed publications across recognised journals and/or books or anthologies
• Significant research impact through high research quality and/or many citations in recognised journals and/or books or anthologies
• Participation in national and international scientific networks and conferences, including invitations to present research

Teaching
Professors provide research-based teaching of the highest quality in one or more disciplines and contribute to developing, organising and evaluating courses on all levels.
• Extensive teaching experience, including examination work and acting as opponent of PhD thesis or doctoral thesis
• Experience of supervising bachelor students, master’s degree students, PhD students and/or postdocs
• A teaching portfolio that documents teaching experience and reflections on teaching skills
• Ongoing development of pedagogical and didactic skills, including own and others’ practice in relation to teaching and supervision
• Interest in including feedback from colleagues, students and others in the development of own teaching as well as mentoring of colleagues with the aim of developing their teaching practice

Societal impact
Professors interact with external partners and seek out new collaborations, communicate and generate knowledge that greatly benefits societal developments, e.g. by influencing the public debate within their field of research.
• Considerable experience of communicating research to relevant stakeholders, including students
• Frequent contributions to popular science communication
• Strategic collaboration with private and/or public organisations and a significant network of external stakeholders
Organisational contribution
Professors take responsibility for developing an active academic environment, sit on assessment committees, councils, boards and committees at UCPH and contribute to enhancing the University’s brand.

• Membership of the department’s formal forums, working groups and assessment committees and interest in joining councils, boards and committees at UCPH.
• A collegiate spirit and commitment to collaboration as well as strong relationship and conflict resolution skills
• Development and management of interdisciplinary collaborations

External funding
Professors initiate grant application activities regarding research funds and obtain and manage funds.
Experience of applying for, obtaining and managing research funds

Leadership
Professors develop the subject area in synergy with other subject areas and exercise academic leadership, including the development of and delegation of responsibilities to junior researchers.

• Experience of developing own academic leadership skills
• Experience of academic leadership tasks, e.g. research, course or programme management
• Responsibility for and contribution to well-being, collaboration, equal treatment, diversity and a good working environment

Strategy of the Faculty of the Social Sciences
The Department of Political Science is part of the Faculty of the Social Sciences. The Faculty is a successful academic community that strives to put knowledge into action by:

• Engaging partners in the co-creation of knowledge, learning and social change.
• Empowering our students to become reflective and responsible citizens who have the vision, the knowledge and the competences to change society for the better.
• Energising global, European and Danish communities of knowledge by innovating research methodologies and by research findings with impact

For more on the Faculty strategy, see: https://samf.ku.dk/fakultetet/strategi/. You can read the Department’s strategy here: http://polsci.ku.dk/bilag/StrategiFinalVersion.pdf.

Terms of Employment
• Employment with the Faculty of Social Sciences and progression within employment will be determined only by personal merit. We do this by applying academic criteria of the University of Copenhagen which are related to the duties and conditions of each particular post and the needs of the Department concerned.
• The position is permanent, and therefore we strongly encourage the appointed professor to acquire the proficiency in Danish required to teach and interact with colleagues in that language in 2–4 years. The Department will provide and pay for the necessary language training
• Further information on qualification requirements as professor can be found in the Memorandum on Job Structure for Academic Staff at Danish Universities 2019 here: https://employment.ku.dk/faculty/criteria-for-recognising-merit/dokumenter/Ministerial_Order_no_1443_of_11_December_2019_on_Job_Structure_for_Academic_Staff_at_Universities.pdf
• Terms of appointment and salary is in accordance with the Danish Confederation of Professional Associations (Akademikerne).

• The salary is DKK 52,500 per month + a 17.1 % contribution to the pension scheme. It is possible to negotiate salary supplements on an annual basis.

University of Oklahoma

Rank: Wick Cary Professor in Constitutional Studies

Wick Cary Professor in Constitutional Studies

The Institute for the American Constitutional Heritage (IACH) at the University of Oklahoma seeks a tenure track hire at the Assistant Professor level for the Wick Cary Professorship in Constitutional Studies. The IACH is housed in the Department of Classics and Letters (C&L) and offers a minor and major in Constitutional Studies. These degrees are interdisciplinary programs that bring together scholars from a range of departments across the University, including History, Political Science, Philosophy, Law, English, and Modern Languages, Literatures, and Linguistics. We seek a diverse range of candidates with a teaching and research profile in the study of the American Constitution, broadly defined. Subfields of interest include but are not limited to: the ancient roots of law, liberty, and self-governance; the development of republican thought; the historical and ideological background of the American founding; or American law and constitutionalism from the 18th century to the present day. Particular research and teaching expertise on the Constitution could include separation of powers, race and equality, religious liberty, gender and equality, freedom of speech and assembly, civil liberties and the Bill of Rights, and/or the scope of federal authority. Applications are welcome from scholars in areas such as History, Political Science, Law, Ethics and Justice, African American, Asian American, Chicana/o, and Native American History, History and Politics, Gender History, Religion, and the History of Political Thought. Given the research profile of the IACH and C&L faculty, we are especially interested in candidates whose work has a clear historical component. In addition, candidates should have a passion for civic education and public outreach in the area of constitutional heritage: these are core missions of IACH.

Established in 2009, the IACH (https://www.ou.edu/iach) has grown into a vibrant national center for the study of the American Constitution. It incorporates over thirty affiliated faculty across the University, four of whom are permanently based in Classics and Letters. The notion of constitutional heritage reflects the Institute’s broad approach to the Constitution in all its aspects, including the development of civil rights in American history and the relevance of the Constitution to contemporary debates over justice and freedom. The Letters major is OU’s premier interdisciplinary humanities program and has been an integral part of the College of Arts and Sciences at OU since 1937, attracting outstanding students with interests in history, philosophy, and literature. The concentration in Constitutional Studies has become a cornerstone of the Letters major; hundreds of students have been taught and mentored in the area since its inception, with many alumni attending elite law schools and graduate programs across the country.

The successful candidate will have a Ph.D. in hand by the start date of the appointment and demonstrate promise in scholarly publication in a discipline related to the core mission of the IACH. The successful candidate should also show commitment to excellence in undergraduate education. The teaching load will be four courses a year (2-2).

Applicants should submit a cover letter, a current C.V., a writing sample, a teaching statement, teaching evaluations, and three letters of recommendation to https://apply.interfolio.com/92857.

Review of applications will begin October 12, 2021. The search will remain open until filled. For inquiries about the search, contact Jeremy Bailey at jdb@ou.edu

Duke Kunshan University
Rank: Faculty Position in Ethics and Public Policy
Specializations: Environmental Policy, Health Care, Political Philosophy & Theory

Duke Kunshan University (DKU) invites applications for an open rank position in ethics and public policy to begin in the academic year 2022-2023. This position is open with regard to rank including tenured, tenure track and multi-year appointments in the non-tenure track. Mid-career and senior faculty are especially encouraged to apply. The successful candidate may be trained in public policy, political thought, philosophy, or immediately adjacent fields, and is expected to contribute to the University’s broad offerings in the area. Candidates ought to indicate their ability to contribute to any of the following areas: global health ethics, ethical evaluations of environmental policy, or the ethical dimensions of policy analysis, in general. While not required, special consideration will be given to candidates whose research engages with the public policy literature; those candidates are encouraged to articulate their ability to teach an introductory course to policy analysis. In general, candidates are encouraged to identify what other courses they might teach within DKU’s interdisciplinary curriculum.

As an international intellectual community that encourages diversity, openness and creative learning, DKU welcomes outstanding faculty from around the world who contribute diverse perspectives and experiences to a global learning and research environment. DKU particularly welcomes applications from underrepresented groups and minorities.

In order to meet Chinese visa requirements, prior to the position start date international (non-Chinese) candidates must have worked full-time (work experience obtained while studying full-time is not considered as full-time work experience) for at least two years in a relevant area (including post-doctoral work) after receiving their Bachelor’s degree, or begin their appointment at DKU within 12 months of obtaining their master’s degree/Ph.D. and without having work experience between graduation date on master’s degree diploma/Ph.D. diploma and position start date.

DKU is a collaborative partnership of Duke University, Wuhan University and the Municipality of Kunshan, China (https://dukekunshan.edu.cn/). Our campus provides an innovative and robustly interdisciplinary undergraduate liberal arts experience to a student body that will number 2000 students and 150+ faculty, with an acceptance rate of &lt;8% and a student body represented by over 60 countries. We also offer a discrete number of Master’s level graduate programs. The DKU pedagogical model draws on the best of Duke’s educational experience and resources to reimagine undergraduate instruction on an intimate campus setting.

Similar to the best liberal arts colleges in the United States, DKU values dedication to teaching excellence in a liberal arts environment, as well as a strong commitment to successful scholarly engagement and research. This includes research with undergraduate students. As a whole, the Duke Kunshan faculty will have strong commitments to teaching and research, and outstanding quality in both areas will be highly valued.

Candidates must hold a Ph.D. degree or equivalent in a relevant field. Research experience at a postdoctoral level (or greater) and teaching experience are desirable, as is experience working in an interdisciplinary setting. Applicants should provide a cover letter including a clear statement of the candidate’s specific interest in DKU, a curriculum vitae, a research statement, a teaching statement, and three reference letters. All materials should be submitted through Academic Jobs Online: https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/19383. The search committee also invites and encourages letters of nomination for potential candidates. Nominations and questions about the positions may be sent to social-science-search@dukekunshan.edu.cn using “Ethics/Public Policy Search” as the subject line. Priority will be given to applications received by October 15, 2021; we will accept applications until the positions are filled.
The Department of Political Science in the College of Liberal Arts at the University of Minnesota-Twin Cities invites applications for multiple full-time faculty positions in Political Theory beginning fall semester 2022 (08/29/22). The positions will be filled either by tenure-track assistant professors or by a tenured associate professor (please note the different application requirements below).

The appointments will be 100% time over the nine-month academic year (late-August to late-May), and will be made at the rank of either tenure-track assistant professor or tenured associate professor, consistent with collegiate and university policy. Salary is competitive, and dependent on qualifications and experience.

We seek outstanding colleagues committed to scholarly research and teaching at the highest level, and we especially welcome applications from underrepresented groups.

We seek candidates who are deeply conversant in the history of Western political theory, and can teach courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels that draw upon this canon.

Further, we seek candidates who will advance the substantive commitment of the department’s strategic plan: to investigate “democracy under threat” across its multiple dimensions. Democracy Under Threat is a department-wide initiative to guide hiring and research. It means that we are most interested in work that, in a sustained manner, draws upon global historical knowledge to understand contemporary threats to democracy (such as resurgent authoritarianism, legitimation crises of contemporary liberal democratic institutions, crises of political economy and/or late capitalism, racialized politics and inequalities, etc.). Scholars using intersectional approaches to feminist and democratic theories and/or who focus on such issues as justice and injustice, inequality, or global migration are of special interest.

We also seek candidates who share the department’s ongoing commitment to study the intersection of power, equity, and diversity and its effect on social science inquiry. Finally, we value candidates who actively place their research in dialogue with other subfields in political science, the social sciences and humanities, and with the broader university community and public.

More information regarding the department’s strategic plan can be found under the announcement for this search on the department’s News & Events webpage: https://cla.umn.edu/polisci/news-events/announcement/department-political-science-launches-political-theory-search

Qualifications:

Required Qualifications:
Ph.D. in political science or related field is required at the time of application.

Preferred Qualifications:
College/university-level teaching experience is preferred.

Candidates will be evaluated according to (a) overall quality of their academic preparation and scholarly work, (b) contribution of their scholarly research to the department’s academic priorities and fields of inquiry, (c) evidence of commitment to teaching and skills as a teacher, and (d) strength of recommendations.

Duties / Responsibilities:
Faculty in the Department of Political Science in the College of Liberal Arts are expected to maintain an active research program, teach and advise undergraduate and graduate students, and contribute service appropriate for the rank of appointment to the department, college, University, and profession.

Rochester Institute of Technology
Rank: Assistant Professor (TT)
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Political Theory, Other
Specializations: American Politics, Political Philosophy & Theory, Political Theory

Detailed Job Description

The Department of Political Science at Rochester Institute of Technology invites candidates to apply for a tenure track Assistant Professor position in Political Science for the 2022-2023 academic year, starting August 2022. We seek an energetic and enthusiastic colleague who will serve as an instructor, researcher, and mentor for our undergraduate majors and minors. The ideal candidate will have a background in American politics or political theory and will also be interested in questions of innovative governance. In particular, the department is interested in applicants with a background in public choice, political economy, or other innovative approaches to analyzing and approaching traditional questions in political science and policy. Candidates who can contribute pre-law courses or politics of science courses to the curriculum, including philosophy and politics of law or courses on politics and biomedicine, are strongly encouraged to apply.

The successful candidate will: (a) have teaching experience or will demonstrate the potential for quality teaching at the college/university level; (b) demonstrate potential to conduct independent research and to attract external funding; and (c) demonstrate interest in mentoring undergraduate students. The hire will be expected to teach a minimum of five undergraduate-level Political Science courses per year. Specific teaching assignments will be based on candidate qualifications and program needs, but are likely to include innovative approaches to state and local and American politics, and upper-level classes in areas relating to political economy, law, and governance. The position also

The Department of Political Science offers a B.S. degree in political science and is part of the pre-law minor. The program in Political Science at RIT offers coursework and programs that are unique and innovative, integrating traditional fields of American government, legal studies, and international relations with explorations of the interactions between politics and governance on the one hand and innovation, science, and technology on the other. The department teaches not only the mechanics and strategies of the political process, but also examines limitations on government authority and responsibilities of citizens.

The College of Liberal Arts is one of nine colleges within Rochester Institute of Technology. The College has over 150 faculty in 13 departments in the arts, humanities and social sciences. The College currently offers fourteen undergraduate degree programs and five Master degrees, serving over 800 students.

Bucknell University
Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science (Political Theory)

Bucknell University’s Department of Political Science invites applications for a tenure-track position in political theory beginning in the fall semester of 2022. We seek a scholar whose research and teaching centers on feminist political theory. The successful candidate will be prepared to teach a core course in political theory, one or more electives in feminist political thought, and other courses in the candidate’s areas of specialization. We are particularly interested in candidates who can contribute courses that bring comparative and nonwestern perspectives on political theory to the curriculum. We expect to hire at the Assistant Professor level but are open to considering outstanding candidates at other ranks.

We seek candidates whose teaching and research will contribute to the department’s commitment to both diversity and academic excellence. We welcome candidates who demonstrate excellence in reflective multicultural and inclusive teaching practices and who display a strong commitment to collaboration and interdisciplinarity. Evidence of teaching experience and excellence as well as the promise of being a productive scholar are critically important. The teaching load is five courses over two semesters. By the start date of the position, candidates are expected to have a Ph.D. in political science with a sub-field specialization in political theory.

For additional information and to apply, please go to careers.bucknell.edu. The application should include a cover letter, CV, statement of teaching philosophy, statement of commitment to diversity, three letters of recommendation, graduate transcripts, sample publications or papers, course evaluations if available, and sample syllabi relevant to this position. Questions about the position should be addressed by email to Professor Doug Hecock at rdh013@bucknell.edu. Applications received by September 27, 2021 will receive full consideration.

About Bucknell

Bucknell University is a private, highly ranked, primarily undergraduate, national liberal arts institution that also offers strong professional programs in engineering, management, education, and music.

Bucknell University is an Equal Opportunity Employer. The university believes that students learn best in a diverse, inclusive community and is therefore committed to academic excellence through diversity in its faculty, staff, and students. Applications from members of groups that have been historically underrepresented in higher education are encouraged.
Amherst College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science (Political Theory)

The Department of Political Science at Amherst College invites applications for a full-time position at the rank of assistant professor in political theory.

Within the last decade, Amherst College has profoundly transformed its student body in terms of socioeconomic status, ethnicity, race, and nationality. Today, nearly one-quarter of Amherst’s students are Pell grant recipients; 43 percent of our students identify as domestic students of color; and 10 percent of our students are international students. Our expectation is that the successful candidate will excel at teaching and mentoring students who are broadly diverse with regard to race, ethnicity, socioeconomic status, gender, nationality, sexual orientation, and religion.

Candidates may focus on the history of political thought, ancient or modern political theory, contemporary comparative/international political theory, or non-Western political theory. The teaching load is two courses per semester. The appointment will begin on July 1, 2022.

We seek a colleague with a record that demonstrates high-quality teaching and research, and who is committed to excellence in education at the undergraduate level. Candidates should be comfortable teaching courses both within and outside their specialty and be able to direct undergraduate research projects. We expect candidates to offer the year-long sequence of courses covering ancient to modern political theory. The successful candidate must have the Ph.D. in hand or have fulfilled all requirements for the degree by the start of the appointment.

Candiates are asked to submit electronically to https://apply.interfolio.com/89518, a letter of application, a CV, three confidential letters of recommendation, and a single-authored writing sample (e.g., article or dissertation/book chapter). Review of applications will begin on October 11 and continue until the position is filled. Applications received by this date will be assured full consideration.

Amherst College is an equal opportunity employer and encourages persons of all genders, persons of color, and persons with disabilities to apply. The college is committed to enriching its educational experience and its culture through the diversity of its faculty, administration, and staff.

Boston University

Rank: Maxwell Professor in United States Citizenship

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Political Theory

The Department of Political Science at Boston University seeks to appoint the Maxwell Professor in United States Citizenship at the rank of advanced Associate or full Professor, with tenure, to begin in Fall 2022. Applicants in Political Science, from the subfields of American Politics, Comparative Politics, Political Economy, Public Policy, Political Theory, are encouraged to apply. We wish to recruit an intellectual leader with a distinguished record of scholarship who brings a critical lens on the development and meaning of citizenship.

When George B. Maxwell established this Professorship in September 1918 the First World War was not yet concluded and citizenship was — in both de jure and de facto sensess — narrowly defined. Indian Reservations were being consolidated, the Espionage and Sedition Acts of WWI limited free speech, Jim Crow was in force, the 19th Amendment to the US Constitution granting women the right to vote had not been passed, and the purpose and limits of immigration were contested. The Maxwell Professorship supports scholars engaged in fostering an “intelligent understanding and appreciation of the rights, duties, inheritances and possibilities of our citizenship.” A Maxwell Chair holder could understand citizenship broadly; for example, in the context of American political development, the tensions between communitarianism and cosmopolitanism, political theories of citizenship, or in comparative perspective. In keeping with George Maxwell’s vision, we seek a scholar who is engaged in both public education and academic discourse.

Boston University offers a rich and vibrant academic community for interdisciplinary research on citizenship; the Maxwell Professorship offers the opportunity to develop connections across disciplines, programs and centers. The candidate will teach both undergraduate and graduate courses. We seek candidates who prioritize inclusive practices in their scholarship, pedagogy, and campus engagement.

Please submit a letter of interest to https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/18615. The application must also include: a curriculum vitae, research and teaching statements, a list of references and a statement about your record of inclusion. Completed applications are due on October 11, 2022.

We are an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. We are a VEVRAA Federal Contractor.

PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION

George Mason University
Rank: Assistant Professor, Environmental Policy & Politics (Tenure-Track)
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Public Administration

*Apply for this position at https://jobs.gmu.edu/postings/51696

George Mason University’s Department of Environmental Science and Policy (ESP) in the College of Science is seeking an enthusiastic... and energetic individual for a full-time, 9-month, tenure-track position as Assistant Professor of Environmental Policy & Politics beginning in August 2022.

George Mason University, a Carnegie Research I institution, is the largest, most diverse, and innovative public university in Virginia with more than 38,000 students from all 50 states and over 135 countries. Located in Fairfax, Virginia, Mason is part of the Washington, D.C., metropolitan area, offering easy access to the scientific and political resources of the nation’s capital. Mason has a strong institutional commitment to the achievement of excellence and diversity among its faculty and staff, and it strongly encourages candidates to apply who will enrich Mason’s academic and culturally inclusive environment.

Responsibilities:
This position will strengthen departmental expertise on domestic U.S. environmental policy and politics in relationship to one or more of the following focal areas: water and watersheds, planetary health, conservation, climate change and energy, and environmental justice. Candidates with strong research and teaching capacity in quantitative methodologies, such as data analytics, agent-based modeling, and social network analysis, are especially encouraged to apply. The successful candidate will be expected to establish a strong extramurally funded research program and provide mentorship to students in the department’s undergraduate, master’s, and doctoral programs. This position aligns with ESP’s focus on boundary-spanning and co-production of knowledge across science, policy, and society. As such, the candidate is expected to contribute to George Mason University’s commitment to transdisciplinary research. We especially encourage submissions from researchers who have experience engaging local, state, or federal policy systems to support and bring about changes that improve environmental or sustainability outcomes. The expected teaching responsibility for this position is two courses per semester. Service activities within ESP and the College of Science are expected.

Preference will be given to candidates who express an interest in expanding collaborative efforts such as the growing partnership between ESP and the Smithsonian-Mason School of Conservation, partnering with the Institute for a Sustainable Earth (ISE), furthering the department’s own initiatives in conservation and sustainability, and building new partnerships to develop transdisciplinary projects.

Required Qualifications:
• Successful completion of a Ph.D. in political science, public policy, public administration, or a related field prior to the first day of the appointment;
• Demonstrated expertise in quantitative social science methods;
• The ability to share the department’s commitment to transdisciplinary education and research;
• An established record of scholarly activity demonstrated by publication record in peer-reviewed journals;
• Demonstrated potential to establish an independent extramurally funded research program;
• Commitment and interest in teaching lecture courses at undergraduate and graduate levels;
• Strong commitment to mentoring and supervising undergraduate and graduate students;
• Effective interpersonal communication skills;
• The ability to collaborate with other natural scientists and social scientists in research, teaching and outreach.

Preferred Qualifications:
• Demonstrated experience in developing successful externally-funded research collaborations;
• A record of seeking and securing extramural research support evidenced by proposal submission and/or recipient of funding awards;
• Demonstrated successful teamwork in a collaborative environment.

About us:
ESP is well known for its truly transdisciplinary faculty focused on environmental natural and social sciences. ESP also includes additional graduate program faculty from across the university and numerous affiliated environmental professionals. The following degrees are awarded: B.S. in Environmental Science, B.A. in Environmental and Sustainability Studies, M.S. in Environmental Science and Policy, and a Ph.D. in Environmental Science and Public Policy. The Department also partners with the Smithsonian-Mason School of Conservation in Front Royal, VA, to offer graduate-level courses in biodiversity and conservation. Mason’s Institute for a Sustainable Earth (ISE) provides a unique opportunity for the selected candidate to work in a collaborative manner across disciplines at Mason and with external partners nationally and internationally.

Special Instructions to Applicants
For full consideration, applicants must apply at https://jobs.gmu.edu/postings/51696; complete and submit the online application, and include:
(1) cover letter
(2) CV
(3) research statement – please address diversity, equity, and inclusion in your statement
(4) teaching philosophy – please address diversity, equity, and inclusion in your statement, and
(5) names and email addresses of professional references (minimum 3, from academic institutions)

University of Nevada, Reno
Rank: Assistant Professor or Associate Professor, Public Administration

Job Description—Public Administration
The Political Science Department at the University of Nevada, Reno (UNR) invites applications for a full-time appointment at the rank of tenure-track Assistant Professor or tenured Associate Professor in the area of Public Administration. We seek candidates with broad competence in Public Administration and welcome all qualified applicants, including those who study tribal governance, as well as the role of race, gender, inequality, and/or other dimensions of marginalization in public administration and public affairs.

The Department has a Masters of Public Administration program, which includes a public policy component. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses in the MPA program, as well as teach at all levels of the curriculum (lower and upper division undergraduate, MA, MPA, and PhD), including specific courses required for degree programs. Normal teaching load is 2/2. We welcome applicants from any empirical research methodological tradition, but expect a high-level of sophistication and rigor. The start-up package is competitive.

This position is open until filled. Qualified individuals are encouraged to apply immediately. This search will close without notice when a sufficient number of applications are received or a hiring decision has been made.

Required Qualifications
- Ph.D. in Public Administration, Political Science, Public Policy or a related field.
- A developing or established research agenda in Public Administration, broadly defined.
- A record of, or potential for, publishing in top-tier journals and presses in relevant fields.
- A rigorous, empirical research methodology.
- Ability to teach core courses in the MPA program, and/or related courses.
- Ability to teach and mentor PhD students in Public Administration and Public Policy.
- Demonstrated excellence, or clear evidence of potential for excellence, in teaching.

Preferred Qualifications
- Evidence of or potential for strong external grant activity.
- Evidence of attention to diversity, equity and inclusion in research, teaching and/or service.

Harvard University
Rank: PEPG Postdoctoral Fellowship
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Public Policy

2022-23 PEPG Postdoctoral Fellowship

Established in 1996, under the direction of Paul E. Peterson (Henry Lee Shattuck Professor of Government), the Program on Education Policy and Governance has rapidly distinguished itself as a significant player within the educational reform movement.

PEPG’s fellowship program was initiated to attract top postdoctoral researchers to quantitative-based investigations of issues in education reform at Harvard. The program has been a resounding success since its inception in 2002. These fellows have collaborated on some of PEPG’s most important research papers and in organizing program conferences. Past fellows currently hold tenured and tenure-track positions at major colleges, universities and research centers in the United States and abroad.

The deadline to apply for the 2022-23 PEPG Postdoctoral Fellowship is December 17, 2021.

PEPG is offering a one-year resident research fellowship at the postdoctoral level starting in the summer of 2022. The fellow will work at Harvard University and engage in independent projects that are related to the program’s focus. Additionally, s/he will be expected to collaborate with PEPG’s ongoing research and programs. This may include conference planning and administration, as well as working on PEPG publications. Applicants who have not yet received their Doctoral degree may apply. However, they must receive it by September 1, 2022, in order to participate. Fellows must begin their residency no later than the week of August 29, 2022.

Candidates must have received PhD (or equivalent degree) within five years of the applied-for academic year.

The stipend for the postdoctoral fellowship is $75,000. It provides modest health insurance coverage but no housing. However, assistance in obtaining affordable housing will be provided.

Applicants should submit the following materials:
• Letter of intent with current contact information including email address.
• Current curriculum vitae (please include any past awards, scholarships and publications).
• A 2,000-word proposal describing one or more research projects that will be conducted and completed while at PEPG. The proposal should include relevant background information, discrete objectives, importance and feasibility, as well as the methodology that will be used.
• Two samples of writing, if not published, then of publishable quality. These should be pertinent to the proposed research.
• The names of and letters of recommendation from three or four people qualified and willing to evaluate the applicant’s project and scholarly qualifications. Recommenders should mail their letters directly to PEPG, or they can be emailed to the address below.

New Mexico State University
Rank: Assistant Professor (Tenure-Track)

Tenure-Track Assistant Professor in Public Administration
New Mexico State University, Las Cruces
Start Date: Fall 2022
Application Deadline: October 15, 2021

The Department of Government invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position beginning August 2022 to teach courses in public administration, public policy and/or political science; conduct scholarly research, professional service and outreach to public agencies and groups.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in Political Science or Public Administration, D.P.A, or Ph.D. in closely related field such as public affairs or public policy is required. Applicants from other disciplines will not be considered.

Areas are open, although candidates capable of teaching graduate courses in nonprofit management and immigration policy issues are preferred as the department is currently moving toward the establishment of a nonprofit concentration and a new Ph.D. program in Transborder and Human Global Dynamics.

Candidates should indicate in their application material the mix of graduate and undergraduate courses in the departments programs they are capable of teaching. Specifically, candidates should address their willingness and ability to teach core MPA courses (Methods, Public Budgeting, Organization Theory, Public Policy Analysis, Public Sector Human Resources, and Ethics) and additional electives such as Public Leadership. The successful candidate must possess strong teaching and research skills, ability to work effectively with students, faculty and community leaders, a demonstrated commitment to public service, and an ability to contribute to the department’s on-line offerings.

Preference will be given to those committed to public administration, and/or experience working in state/local government or the non-profit sector. We have a strong commitment to increasing faculty diversity. For more information about the department, visit our homepage at https://deptofgov.nmsu.edu/

Oakland University
Rank: Associate Professor of Political Science - Public Administration and MPA Director
Subfield(s): Public Administration, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

The Department of Political Science at Oakland University invites applications for an Associate Professor of Political Science-Public Administration, to begin August 15, 2022. The successful candidate will also be appointed to an initial 3-year term as MPA Director. This position is eligible for renewal during the 3rd year of each 3-year appointment.

We seek a scholar in public and/or nonprofit administration, able to teach broadly across the discipline at the graduate and undergraduate levels. Human Resource Management and Program Evaluation are immediate instructional needs in our NASPAA-accredited program.

The MPA Director supervises a full-time program coordinator and two graduate assistants, and responsibilities include overseeing curriculum development, student recruitment, and managing part-time faculty in the MPA program. The MPA Director position carries with it a two-course administrative release and stipend each regular academic year (and thus an annual teaching load of three courses in a normal academic year). Candidates must demonstrate experience with or a commitment to diversity and inclusion.

Minimum Qualifications:
A PhD with a specialization in Public Administration or related field, with the ability to teach at least two MPA core courses. A record of scholarly achievement commensurate with rank of appointment according to department and Oakland University standards.

School/College/Dept Summary:
Our MPA (established 1979) is the second-oldest NASPAA-accredited program in Michigan, with concentrations in Health Care, Local Government, Criminal Justice, Nonprofit Management, and Court Administration. The MPA program has recently launched a nonprofit management certificate program and strives to be a metropolitan, community-engaged hub for public service education & training.
Oakland University is a nationally recognized doctoral university of high research activity located on 1,443 acres of scenic land in the cities of Rochester Hills and Auburn Hills in Oakland County, Michigan. The University has 142 bachelor’s degree programs and 138 graduate degree and certificate programs. Academics include programs in the College of Arts and Sciences, School of Business Administration, School of Education and Human Services, School of Engineering and Computer Science, School of Health Sciences, School of Medicine and School of Nursing. As an anchor institution in southeastern Michigan, Oakland University is committed to building ongoing and collaborative relationships with the surrounding communities. Community and civic engagement enhances the lives of our students and has a positive impact on our broader community.

Special Instructions:

Applications should submit a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, a writing sample, unofficial transcripts, and contact information for at least three references to https://jobs.oakland.edu/posting/22506 .

Candidates will also provide a Diversity Statement that describes their interest or efforts in furthering diversity and inclusion, consistent with the MPA program Diversity Philosophy: “The OU MPA Program is committed to creating a welcoming environment for all students, faculty, and staff. We will work to inculcate an awareness of the value of diversity and to impart the ability to interact respectfully and productively with all stakeholders in a variety of organizational settings, regardless of race, ethnicity, sex, class, nationality, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, disability, age, and/or veteran status.” Once all required application materials have been uploaded through the online system, references will be contacted with a link through which they can submit letters of recommendation. Review of materials will begin on November 19 and will continue until the position is filled.

Please address questions to Dr. Douglas Carr, Search Chair, via email: carr@oakland.edu.

University of Oklahoma
Rank: Assistant Professor

Description
The University of Oklahoma invites applications for a tenure-track position in public policy at the assistant professor level beginning in August 2022. We seek candidates who focus on sub-national policy, broadly defined. We are open to candidates studying any sub-national unit of government, including tribal nations, state governments, school districts, or city or county governments, among other sub-national governing entities. We are also open in terms of theoretical orientations and empirical approaches, although we consider an ideal candidate able to contribute to our graduate methods offerings. We encourage applicants from all substantive policy areas, but preference will be given to candidates with expertise in social policy, broadly defined (e.g., healthcare, education, housing, food security, welfare, family policy, disability, among others). We prefer candidates with a research agenda demonstrating the potential for external funding. The selected candidate will teach core public policy courses in our NASPAA-accredited MPA program and contribute to the department’s course offerings in public policy and research methods at the undergraduate and PhD levels.

This position is within the Department of Political Science, a large department with two undergraduate majors (Political Science and Public & Nonprofit Administration), multiple minors, two master’s degree programs (Public Administration & Political Science), and a doctoral program. The department is housed within the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Oklahoma. The University of Oklahoma is the flagship research institution for the state of Oklahoma, enrolling over 30,000 students, located in Norman, OK, a vibrant college town just 20 miles south of Oklahoma City.

Qualifications
Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in political science, public policy, or a related field at the time the position begins in August 2022, be able to teach core public policy courses in the MPA curriculum and have the potential to contribute to the department’s course offerings in public policy and research methods at the undergraduate and PhD levels. Preference will be given to applicants with substantive focus in social policy, broadly defined, and whose research agenda shows potential for external funding and for publication in high-quality, peer-reviewed outlets. The teaching load for this position is two courses per semester.

Application Instructions
Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter, research and teaching statements, unofficial graduate transcript(s) (official transcript will be required for finalists), writing sample, and contact information for three references. Three letters of recommendation will be required for candidates who progress past the first screening. Review of applications will continue until the position is filled. Any questions can be emailed to the search committee chair, Dr. Deven Carlson decarlson@ou.edu. Applicants must apply online at http://apply.interfolio.com/93547.

Rank: Inequality in America Initiative Postdoctoral Fellowship
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Public Policy

The Inequality in America Initiative seeks applications from recent doctoral degree recipients interested in joining a multidisciplinary network of Harvard researchers working to address the manifold challenges of inequality. This program is intended to seed new research directions, facilitate collaboration across disciplines, and develop new leaders in the study of inequality who can publish at the highest level, reach the widest audience, and impact policy.

The fellowship is a two-year postdoctoral training program. The award includes $71,000/year plus fringe; office space; up to $17,500 for research expenses across 2 years; up to $3,000 (incl. taxes) for relocation from out of state; and up to $3,000 for a manuscript workshop in year two.

The program director will pair each fellow with two Harvard faculty mentors (one from outside the fellow’s primary discipline), participating in one or more of five research clusters:

- Mobility and Migration
- Science, Technology, Education, and Health
- Work, Family, and Opportunity
- Governance, Citizenship, and Social Justice
- America Inequality, Globally

Applicants to the fall 2022 program must have received a doctorate or equivalent terminal degree in April 2019 or later; applicants without a terminal degree must demonstrate that they will receive one by August 2022.

Assistant Professor – Public Administration and/or American Politics
Deadline: October 15th, 2021

The Political Science Department in the College of Letters, Arts, and Social Sciences at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona (Cal Poly Pomona) invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor for appointment beginning in the 2022-2023 academic year specializing in Public Administration and/or American Politics.

The Position:

The faculty member will be part of a collegial Political Science Department that grants a B.A. degree, and that also has a Master’s in Public Administration (MPA). The position requires excellence in teaching and advising, professional and scholarly achievements, and a commitment to service to the university. Applicants whose work demonstrates a commitment to inclusive excellence and diversity in higher education are particularly encouraged to apply. Cal Poly Pomona is a Hispanic-serving institution and the faculty member will be an advisor to many under-represented minorities and first-generation college students.

The faculty member will teach in both the Bachelor’s in Political Science program as well as the Masters in Public Administration program. While the faculty member need not have a Ph.D. in Public Administration, they must contribute towards the MPA program. A faculty member specializing in Public Administration, Public Policy, and/or American Politics will have the ability to teach two courses in the MPA program (one elective or core class and quantitative methods), and courses in American politics/quantitative methods (race and ethnicity is a plus) annually. In the MPA program they will be expected to teach new or existing core and elective courses within their area of specialization—topics may include but are not limited to theories of public administration, state and local government, or a substantive public policy issue (economic policy, immigration, environmental justice, social welfare, and/or education).

Minimum Qualifications

- Ph.D. in Political Science, Public Administration, or a related field from an accredited university at the time of appointment
- University teaching experience as instructor of record and/or teaching assistant

Harvard University
Rank: Director of Content & Strategy, The Justice Health and Democracy (JHD) Impact Initiative
Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Law, Public Administration

The Justice Health and Democracy (JHD) Impact Initiative at Harvard University’s Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics (EJSCE) seeks a Director of Content & Strategy.

This is a new, grant-funded position that will be situated within the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics. At present, the Center has two major strategic initiatives, and the new JHD Director of Content & Strategy will oversee one of these—the Justice, Health, and Democracy Initiative. A collaboration with New America and Brown School of Public Health, the JHD Initiative develops principled, accessible policy guidance, designed for practitioner use, particularly focused on the intersecting problems of public trust, health equity, justice, democratic participation, and political economy, in the U.S. and around the globe. Through the Justice, Health and Democracy (JHD) Impact Initiative, EJSCE experts, in collaboration with colleagues at New America and Brown, work directly with local leaders and practitioners in a range of professional contexts to clarify overarching policy needs and objectives anchored in ethical principles, and to develop practical approaches to a new social contract that improves people’s lives. The model is multidisciplinary and responsive to the on-the-ground issues that practitioners face. It connects expertise to the needs of practice with “orient-do-learn-do” cycles of research, policy implementation and locally-driven innovation. The model is building an innovative approach to translational work (i.e. making academic expertise accessible to practitioners in real time) for the social sciences and humanities.

The JHD Initiative encompasses multiple project workstreams on themes ranging from genetic science and health equity to Covid recovery and technology and democracy. Each workstream is headed by a faculty member, post-doctoral fellow, or graduate student, often with the support of graduate and/or undergraduate research assistants and staff. The translational process involves agenda setting, stakeholder mapping and engagement, development of clear deliverable objectives, project management, dissemination, and implementation hand-offs. In addition, the JHD Initiative partners with on-campus initiatives to support webinars and programs building on the JHD research and translational work. The Principal Investigator for the JHD is Nien-hê Hsieh, Acting Director for the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics.

The JHD Director of Content & Strategy will engage in direction-setting and substantive work related to the project workstreams while also assuming overall project management and coordination from the PI. This will involve hiring key staff in the areas of project management and research, as well as coordinating closely with EJSCE leadership on hires for communications. In addition, the role involves establishing... operational processes, tracking and managing workflow for the existing team as the professional team gets fully built out, and creating and managing budgets. The JHD Director of Content & Strategy will work in close collaboration with Professor Hsieh on all of the above. This position will also join the leadership team at the EJSCE and will work with the Executive Director to ensure alignment of the JHD initiative with the overall mission of the Center. As a leadership team member, the JHD Director of Content & Strategy will be responsible for internal communications with EJSCE staff related to the JHD initiative and for partnering with other leadership team members to ensure smooth operations across all domains of EJSCE work.

This term position will be renewed annually, based on business need and funding availability. The position is currently grant-funded for three years, with a strong likelihood of extension.

Job-Specific Responsibilities

Responsibilities will include:

Serve as subject matter expert on topics relating to initiative; serve as a delegate for the PI and other project leads in high-level meetings; serve on Center’s Leadership Team to ensure alignment of goals with Center’s priorities and mission. In consultation with the PI and partner project leads, identify goals and priorities; drive the strategic planning and implementation processes forward. Collaborate with faculty director and peer directors at partner institutions for specific project selection and research design; oversee programmatic work and execution of projects of the three research tracks (Justice, Health & Democracy), aligning with research track leads on content and ensuring deadlines are met and deliverables reached. Develop and implement staffing plan and provide oversight of human resource functions, including recruiting, hiring, and managing staff; explore and secure strategic partnerships; serve as liaison to Faculty Committee and other contributors to promote engagement with projects. Provide fiscal management including oversight of budget planning, and securing additional funding from philanthropic, government, and other sources. Manage sponsored research activities, including grant applications and reporting, in consultation with the Center’s Grants Manager. Develop organizational structure for the work and track workflows, providing project coordination and oversight until all key personnel are in place; manage transitions. Interview and make hiring decisions for JHD administrative staff, in collaboration with Center staff and JHD team members; serve as supervisor for JHD admin staff (1 non-exempt FTE Project Manager position) and temp workers, as needed; assign and review work, conduct annual performance reviews and take corrective action, up to and through termination, as needed; provide administrative oversight for up to 6 JHD Graduate and 4 Undergraduate student researchers. Provide oversight and execution of administrative functions, including infrastructure development, compliance with Harvard and FAS policies and procedures, and space identification.

Basic Qualifications

Master’s degree; Minimum 5 years of progressively responsible administrative management experience in research, academic, or relevant setting, and including at least 2 years of direct professional staff supervision.

Additional Qualifications and Skills

PhD, MBA, or other terminal professional degree preferred in social sciences, humanities, natural sciences, public health, communications, or other relevant fields. Work experience generating subject area expertise also of interest as alternative to a degree. Familiarity with Harvard is desirable. Demonstrated success leading collaborative projects and achieving exceptional operational results.

Working Conditions

Harvard will require COVID vaccination for all Harvard community members who will have any on-campus presence. Individuals may claim exemption from the vaccine requirement for medical or religious reasons. More information regarding the University’s COVID vaccination requirement and exceptions may be found at the University’s “COVID-19 Vaccine Information” webpage: http://www.harvard.edu/coronavirus/covid-19-vaccine-information/.

Additional Information

If you believe that you qualify for at least 70% of this job description, we encourage you to apply. We know that imposter syndrome and the confidence gap can prevent strong candidates from applying to a job unless they see themselves as a 100% fit. We would love to hear from you.

This term position will be renewed annually, based on business need and funding availability. The position is currently grant-funded for three years, with a strong likelihood of extension.

All formal offers will be made by FAS HR.

Harvard University

Rank: Fellow-in-Residence

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Public Policy

The Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics at Harvard University invites applications from abroad range of researchers and practitioners who will work over the course of the year on pressing issues in ethics. Faculty in arts and sciences and professional schools, postdoctoral scholars, practitioners, and researchers from industry, government, and NGOs are eligible to apply.

For the 2022-23 academic year, the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics will continue its focus on the theme of “A New Social Compact?” Variations in national responses to the pandemic; disparate experiments with technology, economic, and health policies; and conflicts over foundational political institutions have thrown into stark relief different conceptions of the social compact (a phrase we use loosely to refer to shared understandings of what members of societies believe they owe to each other) around the world. Myriad challenges - including challenges relating to education, climate and the natural environment, migration, new technologies, public health, elections, racial justice, and economic well-being - call us to revisit and evaluate existing conceptions of the social compact at both national and global levels. We ask, is it time for a new social compact?
We invite applications connected to any dimension of this broad field of inquiry. We see the nature of the questions raised and the challenges to be addressed as so multifaceted as to make this theme not very restrictive; however, in our usual fashion, we will also consider applications that fall outside the parameters of this thematic description. All eligible applicants are encouraged to apply. Priority will be given to early career scholars and practitioners.

Fellows-in-Residence will be expected to devote the majority of their time to their individual projects and to participate in regular work-in-progress seminars. In addition, Fellows are strongly encouraged to participate in the Center’s programming, which includes public lectures, themed seminars and reading groups, conferences, workshops, and lunch discussions.

This Fellowship is intended to be residential. With the exception of travel to conferences and meetings, Fellows are expected to be in residence in the Boston area at least four working days per week during the term. The coronavirus pandemic resulted in a waiver of this requirement for the 2020-21 academic year. 2021-22 will be a transitional year, and our hope is to resume in-person, fully residential programming for the 2022-23 academic year.

In addition, the Center offers the possibility of joint fellowship opportunities with the following centers; potential affiliations are arranged on a case-by-case basis:
- Berkman Klein Center for Internet and Society at Harvard University
- Carr Center for Human Rights at the Harvard Kennedy School
- Center for Bioethics at the Harvard Medical School
- Center for Research on Computation and Society at the Harvard John A. Paulson School of Engineering and Applied Sciences
- Hutchins Center for African & African American Research at Harvard University
- Petrie-Flom Center for Health Law Policy, Biotechnology and Bioethics at the Harvard Law School

Applicants will be invited to indicate on the application form whether they wish to be considered for a joint fellowship position with one of these Centers. If selected, the joint fellowship will offer access to development opportunities and programming at the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics and the partnering center.

ELIGIBILITY
Applicants must have a PhD, professional degree, or a minimum of 5 years of equivalent professional experience. Applicants from any discipline or professional field will be considered. Those who have previously held a yearlong residential Fellowship at the Center are not eligible; this limitation does not apply to former Undergraduate Fellows or former Graduate Fellows. The Fellows-in-Residence Program runs the course of the academic year, typically from the beginning of September through the end of May, and is open to all applicants who meet the above criteria, regardless of citizenship.

STIPEND
- Faculty:
  We offer a stipend of one-half of your base academic year salary, up to $75,000, and a research allowance of up to $3,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.
- Post-Doc:
  The stipend for post-doctoral fellows will be $60,000 for 2022-23. We also provide a research allowance of up to $3,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.
- Practitioner:
  Practitioner stipends are determined on a case-by-case basis, commensurate with experience, up to a maximum of $75,000, and a research allowance of up to $3,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.

APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS
To apply, complete an online application form which includes submission of the following in .pdf, .doc, or .docx form:
- Cover letter stating your background and interest in the Fellows-in-Residence Program at the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics
- CV
- Research proposal
- Recent writing sample

Please note: Name and contact information for three professional references will be requested, but no letters will be accepted at this stage.

The deadline to submit an application is November 15, 2021, with decisions likely in February 2022. Please note that the application form will be saved automatically while in progress, but no edits or alterations will be allowed once you have submitted the application. Please direct questions regarding this application process to EJSafraFellowships@fas.harvard.edu.

University of Illinois, Chicago
Rank: Dean of Urban Planning and Public Affairs

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Administration, Public Administration

University of Illinois Chicago

Dean of the College of Urban Planning and Public Affairs

The University of Illinois Chicago (UIC) invites applications and nominations for the position of Dean of the College of Urban Planning and Public Affairs (CUPPA). The university seeks an experienced, committed, and visionary leader. The newly appointed Dean will help realize CUPPA’s mission building on its highly-regarded, cutting-edge research and scholarship, academic programs, public policy development, and community partnerships. The Dean reports to the Provost and Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs, is the Executive Officer for the College, and is a member of the University Deans Council. CUPPA, as an essential unit of a multifaceted urban public university, wrestles with society’s most pressing questions and challenges, while striving to prepare the next generation of administrators, leaders, policy makers, and researchers. Propelled by its diverse and interdisciplinary faculty and researchers, who are national and international leaders in their fields, CUPPA has an enduring commitment to promoting just, resilient, and livable communities. The college is in a period of an expansion, with a continuously growing portfolio of external funding, and an increasing scope of its academic programs, having recently added graduate degrees in city design, civic analytics, and public policy to its top ranked programs in public administration and urban planning. CUPPA’s two undergraduate and seven graduate programs are housed in two departments, and enroll more than 350 graduate and 150 undergraduate students every year. The eight research centers and two academic departments in the college are an important part of UIC’s commitment to producing engaged research that benefits Chicago and other urban communities. The College attracts passionate students seeking to create a more just, sustainable and livable society, and prepares them for a range of leadership roles in government, the private sector, philanthropy, advocacy, and community organizations.

UIC is Chicago’s only public Carnegie RU/VH research institution. UIC is nationally and internationally recognized for multidisciplinary academic programs as well as its engagement with civic, corporate, and community partners worldwide. Located near downtown Chicago and within a few miles of the city’s vibrant African American, Asian, Eastern European, Middle-eastern and Latinx communities, UIC is one of the most diverse universities in the nation and has been designated a Minority Serving Institution, an Hispanic Serving Institution, and an Asian American and Native American Pacific Islander Serving Institution. With a mission to provide “Access to Excellence” for those who would not otherwise, UIC has grown to be the largest university in Chicago, enjoys the strongest enrollment growth in Illinois with a student body of 33,518 and almost 3,000 faculty, and is in the top 5% of the most racially and ethnically diverse universities in the United States. Its commitment to mission is further reflected in articulation agreements with the Chicago City Colleges. UIC is also the recent recipient of a $40 million donation from philanthropist and novelist MacKenzie Scott, which will be used to create a Student Success Fund, reinforcing UIC’s aim to support student experience and success, the university’s top strategic priority.

Successful candidates for this position must have an outstanding record of scholarly and educational achievement; a history of successful leadership experience sufficient to demonstrate ability to manage a multidisciplinary college comprised of academic and research units; an unimpeachable commitment to the college’s mission including a demonstrated commitment to access, equity, and diversity; a record of advancing teaching excellence, research, and faculty governance; promoting dynamic community engagement and engaged research; and building external partnerships with a wide range of stakeholder groups including the civic and professional community, the business sector, elected officials, and nonprofit organizations and institutions. The new Dean will collaborate with the 15 other UIC colleges to build internal bridges, as well as, develop external relationships that increase the financial support of the college and its visibility outside of the university. Finally, the new Dean will recognize and support the individual identities of each unit, while articulating and implementing a shared public vision for the future of the College of Urban Planning and Public Affairs. Candidates must be eligible for a tenured position at the rank of full professor.

For fullest consideration, please complete an electronic application, including a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, and the names and contact information for a minimum of three references by Monday, September 27th, addressed to the search committee chair, Dr. Rebecca Rugg, Dean and Professor, College of Architecture, Design and the Arts.

Please direct nominations and questions or concerns regarding the search and/or application process to the search coordinator, Faizan Abid, fabid2@uic.edu. Confidentiality will be observed in the academic search process.

The University of Illinois Chicago is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer, dedicated to the goal of building a culturally diverse and pluralistic faculty and staff committed to teaching and working in a multicultural environment. University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science–Public Policy/Public Administration
Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Open

Public Policy/Administration

The Department of Political Science at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville invites applications for a tenure track assistant professor position in Public Policy/Public Administration. Applicants from any area of the Public Policy/Public Administration fields are welcome, but we are especially interested in candidates with research and teaching interests in public budgeting and finance, public service ethics, non-profit and public management, and/or organizational theory. We are particularly interested in applicants who also have backgrounds in public policy and address substantively important questions related to inequality. We welcome all candidates doing excellent work in these areas, regardless of methodological specialty or approach (including but not limited to those using rigorous analytical approaches including the tools of computational social science and “big data” in their research).

The successful candidate must have strong research skills and a theoretically oriented research agenda that will lead to publication in peer-reviewed outlets (journals and/or books). The Knoxville campus of the University of Tennessee is seeking candidates who have the ability to contribute in meaningful ways to the diversity and intercultural goals of the University.

The University of Tennessee, Knoxville, is the state’s flagship research institution, a campus of choice for outstanding undergraduates, and a premier graduate institution. As a land-grant university, it is committed to excellence in learning, scholarship, and engagement with society. More information about the Department is available at: polisci.utk.edu. Faculty within the department are also associated with a variety of interdisciplinary programs and working groups across the university, including but not limited to the Critical Race Collective; the Global Studies program; the Intersectionality Community of Scholars; and the Women, Gender, and Sexuality program.

All the requirements for a Ph.D. in political science, public policy, or related field must be finished at the time of appointment. Applicants should send a cover letter explaining their research and teaching experience, a current CV, graduate transcripts, a sample of scholarly writing, statements of research, teaching, service, and diversity if not included in the cover letter, and teaching evaluations (if available). Please submit application material in digital format via Interfolio (apply.interfolio.com/92424). All applicants should request letters from three references to be sent via Interfolio. Review of applications begins October 5, 2021, and will continue until the position is filled. For questions or inquiries, contact Professor Michael Jones at mjone239@utk.edu.

All qualified applicants will receive equal consideration for employment and admission without regard to race, color, national origin, religion, sex, pregnancy, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity, age, physical or mental disability, genetic information, veteran status, and parental status, or any other characteristic protected by federal or state law. In accordance with the requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, the University of Tennessee affirmatively states that it does not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, or disability in its education programs and activities, and this policy extends to employment by the university. Inquiries and charges of violation of Title VI (race, color, and national origin), Title IX (sex), Section 504 (disability), the ADA (disability), the Age Discrimination in Employment Act (age), sexual orientation, or veteran status should be directed to the Office of Equity and Diversity, 1840 Melrose Avenue, Knoxville, TN 37996-3560, telephone 865-974-2498. The Latinxs and Democracy Cluster initiative brings together units in the social sciences and professional schools to address the US-centered Latinx experience within three overarching themes: migration... and citizenship, civic and political participation, and social inclusion and wellbeing. These themes speak to central concepts in the imagining and practicing of democracy because at their core they tell us about how the state distribution of political power, through policy and practice, affects a myriad of social issues, from racial inequality to health disparities. Junior candidates for the Sociology, Political Science, Demography, and Public Health positions will be expected to be able to research and teach about the US Latinx experience (i.e. Latinx Politics, Latinx Health, Latinx Communities). Applicants at the non-tenured level should select up to two unit(s) they wish to be considered by. Should applicants at the non-tenured level wish to be considered for a joint appointment with Demography, they should select that as an additional, joint-appointment choice. Senior candidates for the Chicana/o and Latina/o Studies Program search will be considered at the Associate and Full Professor levels.

Public Health: Berkeley Public Health will recruit an assistant professor focused on examining the impact of public policies on the health of U.S. Latinx populations. Health policy researchers come from diverse social science backgrounds, including public policy, health policy, epidemiology, and health services research, as well as economics, sociology, demography, and political science.

Political Science: The Department of Political Science will recruit an assistant professor with a research focus on the dynamics of Latinx politics in the United States, broadly understood. This could include a focus on political participation and behavior, representation and policy responsiveness, political institutions, and/or changes in political coalitions. Although the U.S. should be a core focus, comparative approaches/perspectives are welcome. In addition to an active research agenda in this field, qualified candidates will be expected to teach courses in Latinx politics.

Social Welfare: The School of Social Welfare seeks an assistant professor committed to multi-level practice in areas such as Latinx civic and political engagement, public policy and institutions, immigration, and the social problems associated with, but not limited to, families and the feminization of poverty. An MSW is preferred and/or community-facing translational scholarly research attuned to professional practice.

Sociology: The Department of Sociology will recruit an assistant professor with a research focus on Latinx immigration and/or Latinx communities in the United States. This could include attention to racialization processes, immigration patterns and Latinx demography, civic and political participation, and Latinx social mobility. While the US Latinx experience should be a main focus, candidates who employ a transnational/transborder lens are also welcome to apply.

Demography: The Department of Demography seeks a dual-appointed assistant professor that will be shared with any of the departments/schools listed above.

Chicana/o and Latina/o Studies: The Chicana/o and Latina/o Studies Program in the Department of Ethnic Studies seeks a tenured (Associate or Full) professor in the Social Sciences whose dynamic research agenda focuses on the US Latinx experience. This can include a focus on US Latino communities, immigration, political participation, demography, and racialization experiences in any historical or contemporary time period. The scholar should have an established record in Latinx Studies and the Social Sciences, and will be expected to lead the new Latinx and Democracy Cluster along with affiliated senior faculty. Qualified candidates will have a history of excellent research, teaching, and mentorship and will be expected to teach relevant social science methods courses within the program.

PUBLIC LAW
Georgia State University
Rank: Lecturer

The Department of Political Science at Georgia State University invites applications for a full-time Lecturer position in Public Law to begin Fall 2022. Lecturers at GSU are full-time faculty who are eligible for promotion to Senior Lecturer after five years and Principal Senior Lecturer after ten.

Lecturers at GSU have both teaching and service requirements and are full members of the department’s intellectual community and leadership team. In addition to helping the university achieve excellence in undergraduate teaching and serving on MA thesis committees, Lecturers meet a broad array of vital service needs, such as coordinating our core courses, directing undergraduate programs, leading study abroad trips, coaching academic teams, and developing innovative experiential learning courses. GSU is an institutional member of the National Center for Faculty Development & Diversity, and the College of Arts & Sciences supports professional success for all faculty through mentoring programs and representation of faculty from all ranks (including Lecturers) in college-level program development.

Designated as a minority-serving institution, GSU has one of the most diverse study bodies in the country and is nationally recognized for its record in student success regardless of race, ethnicity, and income level. The Department is committed to serving this student body and advancing innovative teaching and research by building a diverse faculty. Among the core values of the department are diversity, equity and inclusion. We invite people of all backgrounds and identities, including, but not limited to races, ages, ethnicities, nationalities, religious beliefs, genders, sexual orientations, and abilities, to apply for this position. (The department’s full vision, mission and values statement is here: https://bit.ly/3DZ6Y0n).

Required Qualifications:
- Ability to teach courses related to public law such as: Judicial Politics and Process, Civil Rights and Civil Liberties, Constitutional Law, Introduction to American Law and/or other courses of particular interest to the candidate, both online and in-person.
- Ability to deliver effective online instruction and a commitment to excellence in teaching undergraduates.
- Interest in teaching and mentoring students of diverse backgrounds to promote excellence in undergraduate learning.
- A Ph.D. in hand or evidence that a PhD will be awarded by Summer 2022.
Preferred Qualifications
- Ability to teach more specialized courses in Public Law and Judicial Politics
- Academic interest in pursuing the scholarship of teaching and learning.

Applicants should send a letter of application that details how the essential and preferred qualifications are met, a curriculum vitae, a statement of teaching philosophy, sample syllabi, and any additional evidence of teaching effectiveness. Applicants should also submit a separate detailed statement addressing how they will facilitate a diverse and inclusive learning environment both in and outside of the classroom. Finally, applicants should provide a list of at least three professional references (name, title, email address, and telephone number) who are willing to provide letters of reference in the future. Please submit all materials electronically to polissearch@gsu.edu, indicating NTT Public Law Position in the subject line. Review of applications will begin on November 1, 2021, and will continue until the position is filled. Application materials submitted by this date will be given full consideration.

GSU is a highly diverse urban research university located in downtown Atlanta. Further information about the department can be found at politicalscience.gsu.edu. Georgia State University is an equal opportunity employer. It continues to be the policy of the University to implement affirmative action and equal opportunity for all employees, students, contractors, consultants and applicants for employment or admission without regard to race, color, religion, creed, national origin, sex, age, gender, transgender status, pregnancy, sexual orientation, genetic information, protected veteran status, or disability. An offer of employment will be conditional on background verification.

(Providence College)
Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science and Women's and Gender Studies
Subfield(s): Political Theory, Other, Public Law

Providence College in Providence, RI invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track position—a joint appointment in Political Science and Women's & Gender Studies—at the assistant professor level. Candidates must possess a Ph.D. in Political Science and/or Women's and Gender Studies, embody an intersectional approach to teaching and research, and provide evidence of teaching excellence and scholarly promise. The ideal candidate will teach and have research interests that embody the intersectional lens of race, class, and gender.

Annual teaching responsibilities include some combination of the following: teaching one or more of the WGS core courses (introductory and capstone courses), as well as cross-listed courses in feminist political theory, gender, and politics, and an additional course in gender in law, public policy, or political participation in the United States. The ability to teach qualitative, quantitative, and/or feminist research methods is advantageous. The course load at Providence College is three courses per semester.

Candidates should demonstrate a commitment to engaged learning and address how they will contribute to building a community that is attentive to gender, race, and class diversity among our students. As the student body at Providence College grows increasingly diverse, we have a strong preference for candidates who demonstrate a deep commitment to and proven ability in supporting the success of students from historically marginalized economic, racial, ethnic, social, and cultural groups.

Applicants should apply online at the College’s career site, which can be found at https://careers.providence.edu and submit a cover letter, curriculum vita, teaching statement/philosophy and evidence of teaching effectiveness, graduate transcript, and three letters of recommendation. For additional information, please contact Dr. Abigail Brooks (abrook1@providence.edu) or Dr. Joe Cammarano (jpcammar@providence.edu). In order to receive full consideration, applicants must submit their materials by October 31, 2021.

University of California, Berkeley
Rank: Assistant Professor/Professor - Lateral - Jurisprudence and Social Policy Program - School of Law

Jurisprudence and Social Policy Program
School of Law
University of California, Berkeley
Position Announcement

The Jurisprudence and Social Policy (JSP) Ph.D. Program in the School of Law at the University of California, Berkeley invites entry-level and lateral applicants for one or more full-time, tenured and tenure-track faculty positions. We are open to outstanding candidates in any area related to economic approaches to law. Fields of interest include, but are not limited to, law and any of the following: political economy, behavioral economics, development economics, labor economics, industrial organization. Specific topics of interest also could include economic analysis of the legal dimensions of private and public finance, crime, global climate change, or inequality based on race, gender, social class, or other factors.

JSP particularly welcomes candidates with an interest in training doctoral students in quantitative methods, including econometrics as well as other statistical approaches to empirical analysis such as experimental methods, machine learning and computational text analysis, and social network analysis. We also welcome candidates who could contribute to teaching within the broader community at Berkeley Law, including the J.D. program. Most JSP faculty members also teach in Berkeley’s interdisciplinary undergraduate Legal Studies major, which operates under the auspices of JSP, and a significant number have taught within the JD program.

JSP is committed to methodological pluralism as a program. Methodological expertise applicable to a wide range of disciplines and substantive areas is a plus, as is a demonstrated interest in participating in a multidisciplinary environment inclusive of disciplines beyond economics and law. Applicants should indicate in their letters of interest their qualifications for and proposed contributions to working with students from diverse disciplinary backgrounds.

Entry-level applicants must either: a) hold a Ph.D. or equivalent international degree by date of application, or b) have advanced to candidacy status for a Ph.D., or equivalent international degree, in economics, public policy, business, or another social science field at the time of application. Lateral applicants must hold a Ph.D. or equivalent international degree in economics, public policy, business, or another social science field at the time of application. A J.D. degree is not required.

We are interested in candidates who have demonstrated excellence in research, teaching and service, and a commitment to building an equitable, diverse, and interdisciplinary scholarly environment. Candidates may be appointed at the tenure-track or tenured level, depending upon their qualifications and experience. The appointment is expected to begin on July 1, 2022. For further details about the JSP and Legal Studies Programs, see http://www.law.berkeley.edu/jsp/ and http://legals studies.berkeley.edu/. If you have questions about the position, contact David Singh Grewal, Professor of Law (david.grewal@berkeley.edu) and/or Calvin Morrill, Associate Dean for JSP / Legal Studies (cmorrill@berkeley.edu).

Entry-level candidates must complete an online application with Berkeley Law via the following link: https://apprkr.com/2478954.

Lateral candidates who already hold tenured or tenure-track positions at other institutions are encouraged to apply online for consideration via the following link: https://aprecruit.berkeley.edu/JPF03093. Early applications are encouraged. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2021, and will continue until the position is filled.

All applications should include in pdf format a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, a description of current research and teaching interests, a diversity statement describing past and proposed contributions to advancing diversity, equity and inclusion (further information about the diversity statement is available at: https://ofew.berkeley.edu/recruitment/contributions-diversity/suppor t-faculty-candidates), and copies of or electronic links to representative and recent scholarship. Entry-level candidates must supply three letters of reference. Lateral candidates should not send letters of reference, but must enter three references with contact information who may be contacted for letters at a later time. Other materials, such as teaching evaluations, may be requested of top candidates for entry-level or lateral positions. All letters will be treated as confidential per University of California policy and California state law. Please refer potential referees, including when letters are provided via a dossier service or career center, to the UC Berkeley statement of confidentiality (http://apo.berkeley.edu/evallitr.html) prior to submitting their letters.

The University is responsive to the family needs of faculty, including dual career couples and single parents. For information about family friendly resources, potential relocation to Berkeley, or career needs of accompanying partners and spouses, please visit: http://ofew.berkeley.edu/new-faculty.

Harvard University
Rank: Director of Content & Strategy, The Justice Health and Democracy (JHD) Impact Initiative
Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Law, Public Administration

The Justice Health and Democracy (JHD) Impact Initiative at Harvard University’s Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics (EJSCE) seeks a Director of Content & Strategy.

This is a new, grant-funded position that will be situated within the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics. At present, the Center has two major strategic initiatives, and the new JHD Director of Content & Strategy will oversee one of these—the Justice, Health, and Democracy Initiative. A collaboration with New America and Brown School of Public Health, the JHD Initiative develops principled, accessible policy guidance, designed for practitioner use, particularly focused on the intersecting problems of public trust, health equity, justice, democratic participation, and political economy, in the U.S. and around the globe. Through the Justice, Health and Democracy (JHD) Impact Initiative, EJSCE experts, in collaboration with colleagues at New America and Brown, work directly with local leaders and practitioners in a range of professional contexts to clarify overarching policy needs and objectives anchored in ethical principles, and to develop practical approaches to a new social contract that improves people’s lives. The model is multidisciplinary and responsive to the on-the-ground issues that practitioners face. It connects expertise to the needs of practice with “orient-do-learn-do” cycles of research, policy implementation and locally-driven innovation. The model is building an innovative approach to translational work (i.e. making academic expertise accessible to practitioners in real time) for the social sciences and humanities.

The JHD Initiative encompasses multiple project workstreams on themes ranging from genetic science and health equity to Covid recovery and technology and democracy. Each workstream is headed by a faculty member, post-doctoral fellow, or graduate student, often with the support of graduate and/or undergraduate research assistants and staff. The translational process involves agenda setting, stakeholder mapping and engagement, development of clear deliverable objectives, project management, dissemination, and implementation hand-offs. In addition, the JHD Initiative partners with on-campus initiatives to support webinars and programs building on the JHD research and translational work. The Principal Investigator for the JHD is Nienn-he Hsieh, Acting Director for the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics.

The JHD Director of Content & Strategy will engage in direction-setting and substantive work related to the project workstreams while also assuming overall project management and coordination from the PI. This will involve hiring key staff in the areas of project management and research, as well as coordinating closely with EJSCE leadership on hires for communications. In addition, the role involves establishing operational processes, tracking and managing workflow for the existing team as the professional team gets fully built out, and creating and managing budgets. The JHD Director of Content & Strategy will work in close collaboration with Professor Hsieh on all of the above. This position will also join the leadership team at the EJSCE and will work with the Executive Director to ensure alignment of the JHD initiative with the overall mission of the Center. As a leadership team member, the JHD Director of Content & Strategy will be responsible for internal communications with EJSCE staff related to the JHD initiative and for partnering with other leadership team members to ensure smooth operations across all domains of EJSCE work.

This term position will be renewed annually, based on business need and funding availability. The position is currently grant-funded for three years, with a strong likelihood of extension.

Job-Specific Responsibilities

Responsibilities will include:

Serve as subject matter expert on topics relating to initiative; serve as a delegate for the PI and other project leads in high-level meetings; serve on Center’s Leadership Team to ensure alignment of goals with Center’s priorities and mission. In consultation with the PI and partner project leads, identify goals and priorities; drive the strategic planning and implementation processes forward.

Collaborate with faculty director and peer directors at partner institutions for specific project selection and research design; oversee programmatic work and execution of projects of the three research tracks (Justice, Health & Democracy), aligning with research track leads on content and ensuring deadlines are met and deliverables reached. Develop and implement staffing plan and provide oversight of human resource functions, including recruiting, hiring, and managing staff; explore and secure strategic partnerships; serve as liaison to Faculty Committee and other contributors to promote engagement with projects.

Provide fiscal management including oversight of budget planning, and securing additional funding from philanthropic, government, and other sources.

Manage sponsored research activities, including grant applications and reporting, in consultation with the Center’s Grants Manager. Develop organizational structure for the work and track workflows, providing project coordination and oversight until all key personnel are in place; manage transitions.

Interview and make hiring decisions for JHD administrative staff, in collaboration with Center staff and JHD team members; serve as supervisor for JHD admin staff (1 non-exempt FTE Project Manager position) and temp workers, as needed; assign and review work, conduct annual performance reviews and take corrective action, up to and through termination, as needed; provide administrative oversight for up to 6 JHD Graduate and 4 Undergraduate student researchers. Provide oversight and execution of administrative functions, including infrastructure development, compliance with Harvard and FAS policies and procedures, and space identification.

Basic Qualifications

Master’s degree; Minimum 5 years of progressively responsible administrative management experience in research, academic, or relevant setting, and including at least 2 years of direct professional staff supervision.

Additional Qualifications and Skills

PhD, MBA, or other terminal professional degree preferred in social sciences, humanities, natural sciences, public health, communications, or other relevant fields. Work experience generating subject area expertise also of interest as alternative to a degree. Familiarity with Harvard is desirable. Demonstrated success leading collaborative projects and achieving exceptional operational results.

Working Conditions

“Harvard will require COVID vaccination for all Harvard community members who will have any on-campus presence. Individuals may claim exemption from the vaccine requirement for medical or religious reasons. More information regarding the University’s COVID vaccination requirement and exceptions may be found at the University’s “COVID-19 Vaccine Information” webpage: http://www.harvard.edu/coronavirus/covid-19-vaccine-information/.

Additional Information

If you believe that you qualify for at least 70% of this job description, we encourage you to apply. We know that imposter syndrome and the confidence gap can prevent strong candidates from applying to a job unless they see themselves as a 100% fit. We would love to hear from you.

This term position will be renewed annually, based on business need and funding availability. The position is currently grant-funded for three years, with a strong likelihood of extension.

All formal offers will be made by FAS HR.

University of Oklahoma
Rank: Wick Cary Professor in Constitutional Studies

Wick Cary Professor in Constitutional Studies

The Institute for the American Constitutional Heritage (IACH) at the University of Oklahoma seeks a tenure track hire at the Assistant Professor level for the Wick Cary Professorship in Constitutional Studies. The IACH is housed in the Department of Classics and Letters (C&L) and offers a minor and major in Constitutional Studies. These degrees are interdisciplinary programs that bring together scholars from a range of departments across the University, including History, Political Science, Philosophy, Law, English, and Modern Languages, Literatures, and Linguistics. We seek a diverse range of candidates with a teaching and research profile in the study of the American Constitution, broadly defined. Subfields of interest include but are not limited to: the ancient roots of law, liberty, and self-governance; the development of republican thought; the historical and ideological background of the American founding; or American law and constitutionalism from the 18th century to the present day. Particular research and teaching expertise on the Constitution could include separation of powers, race and equality, religious liberty, gender and equality, freedom of speech and assembly, civil liberties and the Bill of Rights, and/or the scope of federal authority. Applications are welcome from scholars in areas such as History, Political Science, Law, Ethics and Justice, African American, Asian American, Chicana/o, and Native American History, History and Politics, Gender History, Religion, and the History of Political Thought. Given the research profile of the IACH and C&L faculty, we are especially interested in candidates whose work has a clear historical component. In addition, candidates should have a passion for civic education and public outreach in the area of constitutional heritage: these are core missions of IACH.
The political science department at Moravian University provides.

The successful candidate will have a Ph.D. in hand by the start date of the appointment and demonstrate promise in scholarly publication in a discipline related to the core mission of the IACH. The successful candidate should also show commitment to excellence in undergraduate education. The teaching load will be four courses a year (2 - 2).

Applicants should submit a cover letter, a current C.V., a writing sample, a teaching statement, teaching evaluations, and three letters of recommendation to https://apply.interfolio.com/92857.

Review of applications will begin October 12, 2021. The search will remain open until filled. For inquiries about the search, contact Jeremy Bailey at jdb@ou.edu

University of Washington

Rank: Assistant Professor: Law, Societies & Justice
Subfield(s): Public Law, American Government and Politics, Other

Position Description
The Department of Law, Societies & Justice (LSJ) at the University of Washington in Seattle invites applications for a full-time, tenure track Assistant Professor who specializes in the social scientific study of race/ethnicity as it relates to law, rights, and justice. This position holds a 9-month service term and is expected to start in September 2022. LSJ offers undergraduate students a dynamic and engaged interdisciplinary liberal arts education focused on law, rights, and justice. LSJ also offers a graduate certificate in socio-legal studies for PhD students from a variety of disciplines. The successful candidate will teach a large introductory course that focuses on law, rights, and justice as well as other courses that reflect their areas of expertise. University of Washington faculty engage in teaching, research and service.

Qualifications
LSJ seeks to hire a scholar whose research and teaching focus on race, ethnicity, law, and rights, and whose scholarship includes topics not currently covered by the department such as environmental justice or health. Other considerations will include: evidence of research excellence and productivity; excellence in, and passion for, undergraduate teaching; interdisciplinarity and fit with the LSJ mission; service, leadership and collegiality; and clear evidence of a commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion. A PhD or foreign equivalent in a social science field is required by the start of the appointment.

Instructions
Applications should include a current CV, a cover letter describing research and teaching interests and fit with LSJ, up to two samples of publications or other scholarly work, a teaching statement and evidence of teaching effectiveness, a diversity, equity and inclusion statement, and three letters of recommendation. Candidate materials should be electronically submitted via Interfolio here: https://apply.interfolio.com/90932. Review of applications will begin on September 30, 2021. Georgetown University in Qatar

Rank: Core Faculty Position in International Relations Assistant Professor

Core Faculty Position in International Relations Assistant Professor

Georgetown University: Main Campus: Walsh School of Foreign Service: Georgetown University in Qatar

Location: Qatar

Open Date: Sep 15, 2021

Deadline: Oct 28, 2021 at 11:59 PM Eastern Time

Description

Core Faculty Position in International Relations - Assistant Professor

Georgetown University in Qatar invites applications for a core faculty position in International Relations at the rank of Assistant Professor (although for especially qualified candidates appointment at the rank of Associate Professor may be considered). Applications from candidates able to teach U.S. foreign policy are especially encouraged; other fields of interest are environmental politics, energy politics, the politics of sport, and international law. The successful candidate will be able to teach the required undergraduate introductory course in International Relations as well as upper-level electives at the advanced undergraduate and graduate levels. Ability to contribute to the courses on Scope & Methods in Political Science and/or Quantitative Methods for International Politics will be an advantage.

The successful applicant will join a top-ranking research institution and a team of internationally-recognized scholars. GU-Q was established in 2005 alongside eight other elite international universities in Education City in partnership with Qatar Foundation. GU-Q is an integral part of Georgetown University, delivering the renowned School of Foreign Service’s Bachelor in Foreign Service: a liberal arts program offering majors in International Politics, International History, Culture and Politics, and International Economics. Several MA programs are in development. Degrees are issued by Georgetown University. GU-Q is a research-focused and student-oriented institution with a globally competitive research and publications record; it houses its own Center for International and Regional Studies (CIRS). We value interdisciplinarity. Faculty and students also benefit from the opportunities offered by the wider academic eco-system of Education City.

Core faculty positions are full-time positions designed to replicate the institutional commitment to academic freedom and professional opportunities associated with tenure-track and tenured appointments, in conformity/compliance with Georgetown University’s academic governance guidelines.

The teaching load for core faculty is 2-2. Assistant Professors are eligible for a one-semester fully-paid Junior Faculty Research Fellowship, typically taken in the third or fourth year of service at GU-Q. GU-Q provides generous research support and support for conference travel. Faculty at Georgetown University in Qatar are eligible to apply for Qatar National Priorities Research Program grants from the Qatar National Research Fund. QNRF also offers competitive research grants for early-career scholars. GU-Q boasts best-in-class teaching facilities including a Global Classroom for classes joining students in Washington, D.C., and Doha.

Qatar offers a diverse, safe and family-friendly environment. Ranked the safest country in the world in 2020, it is connected by direct flights to over 160 destinations in 90 countries. The iconic new National Library, adjacent to GU-Q in Education City and designed by Rem Koolhaas, provides free membership to all faculty and students. Public parks, beaches, sports facilities, museums, cafes and restaurants abound, and a state-of-the-art metro system connects all parts of Doha and nearby locations (see https://www.visitqatar.qa/en/home). Education City has its own extensive sports facilities, also hosting one of the World Cup 2022 stadiums and a world-class golf course.

Compensation is very competitive in relation to the US academic market and even more so to that of the UK and Europe. It includes an annual summer research stipend for active scholars, amounting to an additional 2/9 of the base salary. The expatriate benefits package includes: fully-furnished high-quality housing, transportation allowance, annual family home leave allowance, health insurance (worldwide coverage), generous private school tuition support for accompanying children, etc. Qatar does not levy personal income tax (although US citizens remain subject to US taxes).

For more information on GU-Q, see https://www.qatar.georgetown.edu. For a glimpse of what it is like to teach and live in Qatar, see https://youtu.be/HNoERtWlnv4k.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and the names of three scholarly references via Interfolio. Faxed or emailed applications will not be accepted.

Applications should be submitted by 29 October 2021 to ensure full consideration. Interviews will be conducted virtually. Queries about the position should be directed to mailto:guq-gov-ir@georgetown.edu.

George Mason University
Rank: Assistant Professor, Environmental Policy & Politics (Tenure-Track)
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Policy, Public Administration

Apply for this position at https://jobs.gmu.edu/postings/51696

George Mason University’s Department of Environmental Science and Policy (ESP) in the College of Science is seeking an enthusiastic and energetic individual for a full-time, 9-month, tenure-track position as Assistant Professor of Environmental Policy & Politics beginning in August 2022.

George Mason University, a Carnegie Research 1 institution, is the largest, most diverse, and innovative public university in Virginia with more than 38,000 students from all 50 states and over 135 countries. Located in Fairfax, Virginia, Mason is part of the Washington, D.C., metropolitan area, offering easy access to the scientific and political resources of the nation’s capital. Mason has a strong institutional commitment to the achievement of excellence and diversity among its faculty and staff, and it strongly encourages candidates to apply who will enrich Mason’s academic and culturally inclusive environment.

Responsibilities:

This position will strengthen departmental expertise on domestic U.S. environmental policy and politics in relationship to one or more of the following focal areas: water and watersheds, planetary health, conservation, climate change and energy, and environmental justice. Candidates with strong research and teaching capacity in quantitative methodologies, such as data analytics, agent-based modeling, and social network analysis, are especially encouraged to apply. The successful candidate will be expected to establish a strong extramurally funded research program and provide mentorship to students in the department’s undergraduate, master’s, and doctoral programs. This position aligns with ESP’s focus on boundary-spanning and co-production of knowledge across science, policy, and society. As such, the candidate is expected to contribute to George Mason University’s commitment to transdisciplinary research. We especially encourage submissions from researchers who have experience engaging local, state, or federal policy systems to support and bring about changes that improve environmental or sustainability outcomes. The expected teaching responsibility for this position is two courses per semester. Service activities within ESP and the College of Science are expected.

Preference will be given to candidates who express interest in expanding collaborative efforts such as the growing partnership between ESP and the Smithsonian-Mason School of Conservation, partnering with the Institute for a Sustainable Earth (ISE), furthering the department’s own initiatives in conservation and sustainability, and building new partnerships to develop transdisciplinary projects.

Required Qualifications:

+ Successful completion of a Ph.D. in political science, public policy, public administration, or a related field prior to the first day of the appointment;
+ Demonstrated expertise in quantitative social science methods;
+ The ability to share the department’s commitment to transdisciplinary education and research;
+ An established record of scholarly activity demonstrated by publication record in peer-reviewed journals;
+ Demonstrated potential to establish an independent extramurally funded research program;
The Political Science Department at James Madison University welcomes applicants for a tenure-track position specializing in Public Policy & Administration at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning August 2022. The successful applicant will teach courses in our undergraduate Public Policy & Administration and NASPAA-accredited Master of Public Administration programs. Both programs emphasize community engagement in their pedagogy and a collaborative approach to program governance and operations. This faculty member will form part of the Master of Public Administration Governance Committee. Applicants must be able to teach courses on public budgeting and the budgetary process. Other specializations are open and will reflect a candidate’s expertise and teaching interests, as well as department needs, including introductory-level courses in public policy or public administration.

The department seeks candidates with strong research and teaching skills and a commitment to shared program governance and an inclusive classroom and work environment. Scholars from historically excluded groups are especially encouraged to apply.

The successful applicant will teach courses in our undergraduate Public Policy & Administration and NASPAA-accredited Master of Public Administration programs and other courses related to the candidate’s experience. Applicants must be able to teach courses on public budgeting and the budgetary process.

A doctoral degree in Public Policy & Administration or closely related field is required by the start date for appointment as Assistant Professor; ABD candidates are encouraged to apply. Applicants must demonstrate an ability to teach the required courses.

George Mason University

Full, Associate, or Advanced Assistant Professor

The Schar School of Policy and Government at George Mason University invites applications for three tenure-line hires. Rank and field are open. We encourage applications from talented scholars with diverse backgrounds who are committed to being part of and contributing to a nationally and internationally recognized school of policy and government.

We seek candidates with very strong research records — which include publications in top journals — and trajectories for continued high research productivity. We also prefer applicants with an established track record of securing external funding that will support transformative research and doctoral students. The discipline for these hires is open, including but not limited to economics, management, political science, public policy, regional science, and sociology.

The Schar School is known among policy schools for its multidisciplinary breadth in scholarship, and for its successful educational programs at all levels, including a substantial PhD program. The School’s distinguished faculty currently includes 62 tenure-line members in a variety of disciplines, all with expertise linked to policy-relevant analysis and practice. The location of our graduate campus in Arlington, Virginia (10 minutes by metro or car from downtown Washington, D.C.) provides faculty with unparalleled access to policymakers, international media, and governmental and nongovernmental organizations.

Applicants must apply at https://jobs.gmu.edu/postings/51429, complete and submit the online application, and upload a cover letter and CV. Candidates at the Assistant Professor level should also provide with their application a list of three professional references with contact information; senior candidates will be asked for references if they are short-listed. The positions will remain open until filled, but for best consideration applications should be completed by November 15, 2021.

George Mason University is a Tier-1 Research University as well as the largest and most diverse university in Virginia. The Schar School is deeply committed to building a faculty that reflects the highly diverse demographics of our student body and region; underrepresented minority candidates are strongly encouraged to apply. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, age, disability, veteran status, or any characteristic protected by law.

For full consideration, applicants must apply at https://jobs.gmu.edu/postings/51429; complete and submit the online application; and upload a cover letter, resume, and a list of three professional references with contact information.

George Mason University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer, committed to promoting inclusion and equity in its community. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, age, disability or veteran status, or any characteristic protected by law.

Harvard University

PEPG Postdoctoral Fellowship

Established in 1996, under the direction of Paul E. Peterson (Henry Lee Shattuck Professor of Government), the Program on Education Policy and Governance (PEPG) has rapidly distinguished itself as a significant player within the educational reform movement.

PEPG’s fellowship program was initiated to attract top postdoctoral researchers to quantitative-based investigations of issues in education reform at Harvard. The program has been a resounding success since its inception in 2002. These fellows have collaborated on some of PEPG’s most important research papers and in organizing program conferences. Past fellows currently hold tenured and tenure-track positions at major colleges, universities and research centers in the United States and abroad.

The deadline to apply for the 2022-23 PEPG Postdoctoral Fellowship is December 17, 2021.

PEPG is offering a one-year resident research fellowship at the postdoctoral level starting in the summer of 2022. The fellow will work at Harvard University and engage in independent projects that are related to the program’s focus. Additionally, s/he will be expected to collaborate with PEPG’s ongoing research and programs. This may include conference planning and administration, as well as working on PEPG publications. Applicants who have not yet received their Doctoral degree may apply. However, they must receive it by September 1, 2022, in order to participate. Fellows must begin their residency no later than the week of August 29, 2022.

Candidates must have received PhD (or equivalent degree) within five years of the applied-for academic year.
The stipend for the postdoctoral fellowship is $75,000. It provides modest health insurance coverage but no housing. However, assistance in obtaining affordable housing will be provided.

Applicants should submit the following materials:
• Letter of intent with current contact information including email address.
• Current curriculum vitae (please include any past awards, scholarships and publications).
• A 2,000-word proposal describing one or more research projects that will be conducted and completed while at PEPG. The proposal should include relevant background information, discrete objectives, importance and feasibility, as well as the methodology that will be used.
• Two samples of writing, if not published, then of publishable quality. These should be pertinent to the proposed research.
• The names of and letters of recommendation from three or four people qualified and willing to evaluate the applicant’s project and scholarly qualifications. Recommenders should mail their letters directly to PEPG, or they can be emailed to the address below. Applicants should email their materials to pepg_administrator@hks.harvard.edu (in PDF format). Incomplete applications may not be reviewed/considered.

All materials should be addressed to:

Augustana University

Rank: Nef Family Chair of Political Economy
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy
Specializations: International Political Economy, Political Economy, Economic Policy

The Nef Family Chair of Political Economy
Augustana University

Augustana University (Sioux Falls, SD) invites applications for an endowed chair in political economy. The Rudy & Marilyn Nef Family Chair of Political Economy will advance the study of market economies and representative democracies, both within the campus community and in the region. This tenure-track faculty position will be housed in the Government and International Affairs Department, but will draw on a breadth of research and extensive teaching experience to provide recognized scholarship and enthusiastic, effective instruction to the University’s offerings in economics, political science, public policy, and business. The Nef Family Chair will also provide collaborative and creative leadership in partnership with the Center for Interdisciplinary Studies.

We seek an outstanding teacher/scholar who reflects the foundational relevance of economic analysis in the design and administration of public policies, and who speaks authoritatively to the positive role of free markets, localized decision making and competition in a free society. The unique nature of this endowed chair position grants wide latitude to the instructor in terms of the courses offered, save a required course on capitalistic economic systems. Candidates capable of teaching upper-level Comparative Politics, Comparative/International Political Economy, Policy Analysis or Microeconomics are strongly encouraged to apply.

Additional responsibilities will include student advising, student research mentorship, and planning and facilitating public symposia relevant to the scholar’s teaching and research. Interacting with students, faculty and leadership with different backgrounds and points of view and a deep appreciation of and respect for academic values and culture must be a top value of the candidate. A doctorate is required. Compensation, rank and length of tenure track will be commensurate with experience. The starting date for this 12-month appointment is August, 2022. Screening will begin November 7th and continue until the position is filled. Finalists will be expected to present an engaging topic as part of the interview process.

Located in the growing and vibrant city of Sioux Falls, South Dakota, Augustana University has, for more than 160 years, provided a strong student-centric education based on its five core values: Christian faith, liberal arts, excellence, community, and service. The institution continues to expand its pre-professional and graduate offerings, while remaining true to its liberal arts tradition. Guided by the Viking Bold: Journey to 2030 strategic plan, Augustana seeks to grow its enrollment from just over 1,900 students to more than 3,000 undergraduate and graduate students.

Application Procedure:
Please send a letter of interest; curriculum vitae; Augustana University employment application; statement of commitment to diversity; statement of teaching philosophy; addresses, phone numbers and email addresses of three current references; and unofficial transcripts electronically to Human Resources at humanresources@augie.edu. Official website: www.augie.edu.

University of Pittsburgh Graduate School of Public and International Affairs

Rank: Assistant Professor - Public Policy Analysis & Evaluation

The Graduate School of Public and International Affairs (GSPIA) at the University of Pittsburgh invites applications for a tenure-stream faculty position at the assistant professor level in the field of policy analysis and evaluation. The position will begin in August 2022.

All who are interested should apply at: https://cfopitt.taleo.net/careersection/pitt_faculty_external/jobdetail.ftl?job=21006855&tz=GMT-04%3A00&tzname=America%2FNy

Applicants must have earned a Ph.D. in public affairs, public policy, public administration, political science, demography, sociology, economics, psychology, public health, or a related field by the time of the appointment. A promise of excellence in scholarship and teaching is required. Expertise in a particular policy area and applied experience is also highly valued. The successful candidate will have the capacity to contribute to GSPIA’s teaching in policy analysis and evaluation as well as the core courses in the Masters of Public Administration degree program. Courses will be primarily at the Master’s level.

While expertise in policy analysis and evaluation is required, we seek candidates with interdisciplinary interests and whose research and teaching complement the existing strengths of the School, complement GSPIA’s community engagement efforts, and have a particular focus on skills, tools, and methods for assessing policy including via advanced policy analysis tools, benefit/cost analysis, impact assessment, and evaluation methods. These needs are especially profound given the current political environment and the urgent search for policy solutions in the domains of inequality, race, immigration, and public health, among others. Topical areas of application could include but are not limited to social policy (e.g. public assistance, health, housing), local and regional economic development, public finance, administration of justice, policing, and domestic policy more generally (including how government programs and policies in a particular domain are administered and how they have succeeded or failed in practice). We especially welcome those whose research is of relevance to underrepresented and marginalized communities in the United States and abroad.

Scholars with quantitative and/or qualitative expertise are welcome—including those using mixed methods approaches—as are those who can teach relevant methodological courses at the Master’s level and above.

GSPIA is a dynamic, multidisciplinary school focused on training future practitioners for careers in the public, private and non-profit sectors. GSPIA is home to several research centers that serve as points of outreach and intersection for faculty within our school, at Pitt, and externally. These include the Johnson Institute for Responsible Leadership, the Center for Governance and Markets, the Center for Analytical Approaches to Social Innovation, and more. Additionally, GSPIA faculty are connected broadly with colleagues and schools at the University of Pittsburgh, including the University Center for Social and Urban Research, PittCyber, the University Center for International Studies, and more. In addition, GSPIA also has a presence at the Pitt Washington Center in Washington, D.C.

GSPIA’s students, staff, and faculty are committed to making significant contributions to society through public service. We are committed to helping realize the vision of a more equitable and inclusive society. We embrace the diversity of experience of all members of our community, including those arising from differences of race, gender and gender identity, ethnicity, abilities/disabilities, age, religion, sexual orientation, political beliefs, socioeconomic status, geographic region, migrant/immigrant/refugee status, and veteran status. Our goal is a diverse, cosmopolitan community of faculty, staff, students, and alumni. The search committee is especially interested in candidates who, through their research, teaching, service, and/or community engagement will contribute to advancing this goal. Applicants are encouraged to address these issues in their application materials.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, CV, a writing sample, and three letters of recommendation. The cover letter must address three areas: (1) research interests, (2) teaching interests and experience, and (3) experience with or plans to address diversity, equity, and inclusion in research, teaching, service, and community engagement. Letters of recommendation should be sent to Kaytlynn Pierra at GSFH@pitt.edu. Applications must be submitted by 10/27/2021 to receive full consideration, but the portal will remain open. Union of Concerned Scientists
Rank: Director, UCS Global Security Program

The Union of Concerned Scientists seeks a creative and forward-thinking leader with a visionary, broad and interdisciplinary approach to serve as the next director of the Global Security Program.

Since its founding in 1969, the Union of Concerned Scientists (UCS) has advanced its mission of using rigorous, independent science to solve some of our planet’s most pressing problems and improve people’s lives. Joining with people across the country and leading with science, UCS’s staff of nearly 225 dedicated professionals – including scientists, analysts, policy, outreach and communication experts – combine science, technical analysis and effective advocacy to create innovative, practical and equitable solutions for a healthy, safe and sustainable future. Central to that mission is addressing one of the most serious and existential threats to life on Earth – nuclear weapons.

UCS’s Global Security Program (GSP) has a unique role in fundamentally reforming U.S. policy at a time when the risks posed by nuclear weapons are real and increasing. With its unique combination of science, technical analysis, advocacy, outreach and communications capacity, UCS and the next director of GSP can help shape discussion and advance policies that limit the threat of nuclear war, curtail dangerous and unnecessary spending on the nuclear arsenal, build public support for policies that reduce these risks, address the environmental, health and cultural harms of nuclear weapons activities and profoundly change a system that puts the fate of the world in the hands of a few.

The new director of the GSP will have the opportunity to re-envision the program’s work, strategies and staffing resources and engage in the advocacy needed to make change in U.S. nuclear weapons policy, serving as a subject matter expert in arms control and nuclear weapons policy. The new director will be expected to champion and integrate efforts around justice, equity, diversity and inclusion in program mission-focused work externally and within internal operations. In addition, the director will inspire financial support by proactively creating and sharing a compelling vision for the Global Security Program to engage funders of all types.

The ideal candidate will bring a broad knowledge of nuclear arms control and international security issues, including U.S. legislative and policy-making processes and familiarity with the role of various agencies in the national security policy arena. In addition to subject matter expertise, candidates will bring strong interest in and demonstrated experience in program and staff management. They will be a strong collaborator and work with other UCS programs that engage on issues related to nuclear power. A thorough understanding of how to engage in issue advocacy is also required. As an external face for this work, the ideal candidate will have demonstrated ability to interact with a broad array of audiences, particularly in the scientific, arms control and policy communities and the credibility that comes with a substantial track record of achievement. The new director must bring a strong commitment to fully incorporating justice, equity, diversity and inclusion (JEDI) goals and strategies into UCS’s global security work and to supporting and engaging constituencies whose voices and perspectives have been absent or marginalized in national security policy debates, as well as those who are directly impacted by nuclear activities and policies.

All applications, nominations and inquiries are invited. Applications should include, as separate documents, a CV or resume and a letter of interest addressing the themes in the leadership profile, available at www.wittkieffer.com.

WittKieffer is assisting the Union of Concerned Scientists in this search. For fullest consideration, candidate materials should be received by November 5, 2021. Application materials should be submitted using WittKieffer’s candidate portal. Nominations and inquiries can be directed to Suzanne Teer and Lauren Bruce-Stets at UCSD-directorGSP@wittkieffer.com.

Duke University - Sanford School of Public Policy
Rank: Assistant/Associate Professor of Technology Policy
Specializations: Political Communication, Health Care, Science & Technology

The Sanford School of Public Policy and the Duke Initiative for Science & Society seek a tenure-line faculty member with research and teaching interests in the area of technology policy. The preferred candidate will be at the advanced assistant or associate professor level. This faculty member will be jointly appointed between the Sanford School of Public Policy and the Duke Initiative for Science & Society.

The ideal candidate will have an empirically-oriented research agenda, with a grounding in the intersection of ethics and technology, whose work also addresses one or more of the following (or related) areas from a policy-relevant perspective: artificial intelligence and algorithmic systems; misinformation or content policy; data governance; the impact of technology on traditionally marginalized groups; global technology infrastructure and impact; technology and health; the global politics of technology.

The position is open to candidates with a wide range of disciplinary backgrounds, including public policy, computer science, science and technology studies, political science, sociology, information science, or related fields. The position is similarly open in terms of methodological approach. We seek a candidate with a clear trajectory for impactful, policy-relevant research, and with the potential (or demonstrated capacity) for obtaining external support.

We seek a candidate who will be able to contribute to the Sanford School’s and Science and Society’s growing research initiatives and academic programs in technology policy. These include the Center on Science and Technology Policy; the Technology Policy Lab; the Master of Arts in BioEthics, Tech Ethics, and Science Policy; and the Masters in Public Policy concentration in Technology Policy. Additional opportunities for collaboration and engagement may be available through related initiatives such as the Center on Law & Technology and the DeWitt Wallace Center for Media & Democracy.

The ideal candidate will be able to teach core courses in both the Science & Society and Sanford curricula in addition to courses in their area of specialization. Potential core subject areas include foundations of ethical tech, politics of policymaking, and policy analysis.

Applicants must have a Ph.D. or J.D., a record of scholarly publication, and potential (or demonstrated capacity) for external engagement on technology policy and ethics issues.

The Sanford School includes a full-time faculty of almost 70 and offers an undergraduate major, four Masters programs, and a Ph.D. program. Current faculty members have degrees in a variety of disciplines including demography, economics, history, law, medicine, philosophy, political science, psychology/social psychology, public policy, public health/health policy, and sociology. The Sanford School houses several interdisciplinary research centers, and offers degree-related programs and opportunities in Washington, China, Scotland, London and Geneva. More information on the Sanford School can be found at https://sanford.duke.edu.

The Duke Initiative for Science & Society fosters research, education, communication, democratic deliberation, and policy engagement on the ethical progress of science and technology in society. Science & Society takes an interdisciplinary approach, with a focus on applied ethics and policy, to advance the responsible use of science and technology for humanity. The Initiative has seven core faculty and collaborates with over 150 associate faculty across the university. Science & Society offers an undergraduate certificate and the Masters of Arts in Bioethics, Tech Ethics, & Science Policy. More information can be found at https://scienceandsociety.duke.edu.

Candidates should submit a letter of application that describes their research and teaching interests and experiences, along with a CV, and the names and contact information of three references (no letters at this stage). These materials should be submitted via the following website: https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/19609 Applications submitted by October 17, 2021, will be guaranteed full consideration. For further information contact Philip M. Napoli, Search Committee Chair, at philip.napoli@duke.edu.

Duke University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer committed to providing employment opportunity without regard to an individual’s age, color, disability, genetic information, gender, gender identity, national origin, race, religion, sexual orientation, or veteran status.
Oakland University

Rank: Associate Professor of Political Science - Public Administration and MPA Director

Subfield(s): Public Administration, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

The Department of Political Science at Oakland University invites applications for an Associate Professor of Political Science-Public Administration, to begin August 15, 2022. The successful candidate will also be appointed to an initial 3-year term as MPA Director. This position is eligible for renewal during the 3rd year of each 3-year appointment.

We seek a scholar in public and/or nonprofit administration, able to teach broadly across the discipline at the graduate and undergraduate levels. Human Resource Management and Program Evaluation are immediate instructional needs in our NASPAA-accredited program.

The MPA Director supervises a full-time program coordinator and two graduate assistants, and responsibilities include overseeing curriculum development, student recruitment, and managing part-time faculty in the MPA program. The MPA Director position carries with it a two-course administrative release and stipend each regular academic year (and thus an annual teaching load of three courses in a normal academic year). Candidates must demonstrate experience with or a commitment to diversity and inclusion.

Minimum Qualifications:

A PhD with a specialization in Public Administration or related field, with the ability to teach at least two MPA core courses. A record of scholarly achievement commensurate with rank of appointment according to department and Oakland University standards.

School/College/Dept Summary:

Our MPA (established 1979) is the second-oldest NASPAA-accredited program in Michigan, with concentrations in Health Care, Local Government, Criminal Justice, Nonprofit Management, and Court Administration. The MPA program has recently launched a nonprofit management certificate program and strives to be a metropolitan, community-engaged hub for public service education & training.

Oakland University is a nationally recognized doctoral university of high research activity located on 1,443 acres of scenic land in the cities of Rochester Hills and Auburn Hills in Oakland County, Michigan. The University has 142 bachelor’s degree programs and 138 graduate degree and certificate programs. Academics include programs in the College of Arts and Sciences, School of Business Administration, School of Education and Human Services, School of Engineering and Computer Science, School of Health Sciences, School of Medicine and School of Nursing. As an anchor institution in southeastern Michigan, Oakland University is committed to building ongoing and collaborative relationships with the surrounding communities. Community and civic engagement enhances the lives of our students and has a positive impact on our broader community.

Special Instructions:

Applicants should submit a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, a writing sample, unofficial transcripts, and contact information for at least three references to https://jobs.oakland.edu/posting/22506.

Candidates will also provide a Diversity Statement that describes their interest or efforts in furthering diversity and inclusion, consistent with the MPA program Diversity Philosophy: “The OU MPA Program is committed to creating a welcoming environment for all students, faculty, and staff. We will work to inculcate an awareness of the value of diversity and to impart the ability to interact respectfully and productively with all stakeholders in a variety of organizational settings, regardless of race, ethnicity, sex, class, nationality, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, disability, age, and/ or veteran status.” Once all required application materials have been uploaded through the online system, references will be contacted with a link through which they can submit letters of recommendation. Review of materials will begin on November 19 and will continue until the position is filled.

Please address questions to Dr. Douglas Carr, Search Chair, via email: carr@oakland.edu.

Brown University

Rank: Watson Institute Postdoctoral Fellows Program 2022-2024

Subfield(s): International Relations, Public Policy, Comparative Politics

The Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs at Brown University aspires to promote a just and peaceful world through research, teaching, and public engagement. Central to this mission is the Watson Postdoctoral Fellows Program, an effort to galvanize the careers of young social scientists conducting research related to the Institute’s three core thematic areas: development, governance, and security. Participants in this program will join an interdisciplinary community of scholars engaged in theoretically and substantively important research addressing the most pressing global issues of our time. Fellows receive two years of support, to be taken within a three-year period, with the expectation that they will pursue research and participate fully in the intellectual life of the Institute. Fellows will also teach one course per year in the Institute or in an affiliated Brown University social science department.

Founded in 1764, Brown is a leading research university distinct for its student-centered learning and deep sense of purpose. Brown University students, faculty, and staff are driven by the idea that their work will have an impact on the world. Brown is a place where rigorous scholarship, complex problem-solving, and service to the public good are defined by collaboration, intellectual discovery, and working in ways that transcend traditional disciplinary boundaries.
To receive full consideration, the following materials should be submitted by October 12, 2021 to the application portal:

A cover letter stating the applicant’s academic field, status of their dissertation, and proposed research to be conducted during their fellowship period. The cover letter should not exceed 2,000 words and should make clear where in the Institute’s core areas of security, development, or governance the proposed research best fits. Please also include a statement about teaching in a diverse and inclusive classroom.

An up-to-date curriculum vitae.

A copy of each graduate transcript.

A writing sample.

Three letters of recommendation from scholars familiar with the applicant’s research.

Review of applications will begin on October 12; to receive full consideration applications should be received by that date. Awards will be announced in January 2022.

University of Oklahoma

Rank: Assistant Professor

Description

The University of Oklahoma invites applications for a tenure-track position in public policy at the assistant professor level beginning in August 2022. We seek candidates who focus on sub-national policy, broadly defined. We are open to candidates studying any sub-national unit of government, including tribal nations, state governments, school districts, or city or county governments, among other sub-national governing entities. We are also open in terms of theoretical orientations and empirical approaches, although we consider an ideal candidate able to contribute to our graduate methods offerings. We encourage applicants from all substantive policy areas, but preference will be given to candidates with expertise in social policy, broadly defined (e.g., healthcare, education, housing, food security, welfare, family policy, disability, among others). We prefer candidates with a research agenda demonstrating the potential for external funding. The selected candidate will teach core public policy courses in our NASPAA-accredited MPA program and contribute to the department’s course offerings in public policy and research methods at the undergraduate and PhD levels.

This position is within the Department of Political Science, a large department with two undergraduate majors (Political Science and Public & Nonprofit Administration), multiple minors, two master’s degree programs (Public Administration & Political Science), and a doctoral program. The department is housed within the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Oklahoma. The University of Oklahoma is the flagship research institution for the state of Oklahoma, enrolling over 30,000 students, located in Norman, OK, a vibrant college town just 20 miles south of Oklahoma City.

Qualifications

Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in political science, public policy, or a related field at the time the position begins in August 2022, be able to teach core public policy courses in the MPA curriculum and have the potential to contribute to the department’s course offerings in public policy and research methods at the undergraduate and PhD levels. Preference will be given to applicants with substantive focus in social policy, broadly defined, and whose research agenda shows potential for external funding and for publication in high-quality, peer-reviewed outlets. The teaching load for this position is two courses per semester.

Application Instructions

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter, research and teaching statements, unofficial graduate transcript(s) (official transcript will be required for finalists), writing sample, and contact information for three references. Three letters of recommendation will be required for candidates who progress past the first screening. Review of applications will continue until the position is filled. Any questions

Utah Valley University
Rank: Faculty, Tenure-Track, Public Policy

The History and Political Science Department at Utah Valley University invites applicants for a teaching-focused tenure-track Assistant Professor position with a teaching load of 12 credits per semester. Under the supervision of the Department Chair, the candidate will have the opportunity to play an integral role in redesigning the Public Administration and Policy emphasis. The successful candidate will be required to teach lower-division courses in American Government, Introduction to Public Administration, and upper-division courses in Public Policy within our Public Administration and Policy emphasis. In addition to a policy course in the candidate’s area of interest, these courses could include State and Local Government, Program/Policy Analysis, Nonprofits, and other related topics. The area of policy specialty is open, but expertise in environmental policy is preferred. The candidate may also be asked to teach seminars in the online Master of Public Service program within the College of Public Service. The candidate will also be required to seek ways to enhance UVU’s dual-integrated mission, focusing on engagement, inclusion, and student success.

The History and Political Science Department currently consists of 13 full-time faculty members in Political Science and serves almost 300 students majoring in Political Science. Our approach to professional education is student-centered and demands a high level of faculty-student engagement, with substantial institutional support for engaging students in faculty research. The College of Humanities and Social Sciences and the institution also support work-life balance. UVU values diverse opinions and perspectives and seeks to be inclusive in all practices. We encourage applications from candidates who identify with groups that are historically underrepresented in academia.

- Advising students;
- Providing input on the curriculum and new course developments to ensure the delivery of quality programs;
- Other academic duties normally performed by full-time or regular part-time faculty, such as participating on committees and in other academic service.

Administrative Responsibilities:
- Assist with management of the MS in Data Analytics and Policy and Certificate in Data Analytics and Policy programs;
- Participate in adjunct faculty hiring and development;
- Assist the Program Director with administrative work to support the programs;
- Other administrative duties as assigned.

Qualifications
Minimum Qualifications:
- Master’s degree in Political Science, Public Policy, Statistics, Data Science, Public Finance;
- 1-3 years of teaching experience at the graduate and/or undergraduate level;
- 1-3 years of work experience, including but not limited to outside consulting or collaborative work within the fields of public policy, public finance, program evaluation, risk analysis and/or data science.
- The ability to teach a variety of courses in areas of applied statistics, data visualization, programming and public policy.
- Experience using and teaching the R programming language.

Preferred Qualifications:
- Terminal Degree in Political Science, Public Policy, Statistics, Data Science, Public Finance;
- 4 or more years of teaching experience at the graduate level, including online teaching experience;
- 4 or more years of work experience in a relevant field including but not limited to outside consulting or collaborative work within the fields of public policy, program evaluation, risk analysis and/or data science;
- Strong organizational skills;
- Ability to work independently in a fast-paced environment with competing demands and multiple deadlines;
- Excellent oral and written communication skills;
- Experience performing administrative work in an academic setting;
- Experience with or interest in learning Tableau and Python;
- Interest in revising and/or developing courses in one or more advanced areas of analytics, such as text analysis, machine learning and predictive analytics.

Application Instructions:

The position will remain open until filled.

Candidates must submit the following:
- Cover letter
- Curriculum vitae
- 3 references and their contact information
- Teaching evaluations for the most recent two semesters.

Candidates can apply here: https://apply.interfolio.com/94475

McGill University
Rank: Full-time tenured position at the rank of Associate Professor or Professor
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

Tenure-Track Faculty Position
Full or Associate Professor, Diamond-Brown Chair in Democratic Studies
Max Bell School of Public Policy and Department of Political Science
McGill University

The Max Bell School of Public Policy and the Department of Political Science at McGill University invite applications for the newly created Diamond-Brown Chair in Democratic Studies. The Chairholder will be jointly appointed, teaching in both units and strengthening the ties between them.

We seek an internationally renowned scholar who conducts leading-edge empirical research on contemporary democratic governance and politics. The search is open with respect to regional specialization and methodology. We invite applications from scholars of political behaviour and/or political institutions, from scholars of ongoing politics in consolidated democracies, and from scholars of democratization or democratic fragility in different regions of the world.

This position will provide a highly visible forum for a scholar studying recent worldwide challenges to democratic institutions and movements, and allow the Chairholder to enhance the policy orientation of fundamental research and to improve the public’s engagement with these issues. The Chairholder should have considerable experience participating in policy processes broadly understood, through a combination of public service, work with policy-oriented organizations, and advising policymakers. Demonstrated expertise in enhancing the public impact of policy-related research is an important asset. The Chairholder will be encouraged to build connections with McGill’s various research centres which focus on democracy, including (but not limited to) the Centre for the Study of Democratic Citizenship.

An applicant’s record must provide evidence of outstanding research, active engagement in the policy process, and success in teaching and graduate-student supervision. Appointment is expected to be at the rank of Full or Associate Professor with tenure. Candidates should have completed a PhD in political science or a closely-related discipline. The language of instruction at McGill is English, but proficiency in spoken and written French is an advantage.

Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a sample of written work, material pertinent to teaching skills, and the names and contact information of three referees. The position start date is August 1, 2022.

Review of applications will begin on December 15, 2021, and continue until the position is filled. Please apply online at: https://mcgill.wd3.myworkdayjobs.com/McGill_Careers/job/Sherbrooke-680/Associate-Professor-or-Professor_JR0000003606

The Max Bell School of Public Policy (which began in 2017) is committed to the research, teaching, outreach, and advocacy of sound public policy. University of Maryland

Rank: Faculty Appointment in International Policy (Associate or Full Professor)

The University of Maryland School of Public Policy
Faculty Appointment in International Policy
(Associate or Full Professor)

The University of Maryland’s School of Public Policy is a highly ranked program with a faculty of scholars and distinguished practitioners. In addition to its signature MPP degree (primarily for pre-career students) with robust specializations, the School also offers a Masters of Public Management degree (primarily for mid-career students). Its PhD program is rated among the top ten nationally by the National Research Council. The School inaugurated an undergraduate major in public policy in the fall of 2017, and hosts several undergraduate minors and living learning programs. It also offers a number of executive (degree and non-degree) programs for career executives in federal, state, and international agencies. The School currently houses research centers covering areas of international security, sustainability, non-profit management, and governance of technology. School faculty contribute to research, education, and impact across all public policy disciplines and collaborate with faculty at many other departments and units across campus.

The School of Public Policy at the University of Maryland, College Park seeks to appoint an Associate or Full Professor with tenure in the International Policy field, starting in Fall 2022. Candidates should have broad expertise in one or more subfields of International Relations, including security policy, economic policy, diplomacy, and global governance, and should be comfortable working across these disciplinary lines. Candidates should have demonstrated interest in using international relations research to inform policy debates and improve outcomes. Scholarly knowledge and practical experience with international policy-making processes across a range of substantive issues are strongly desired.

Candidates should have an outstanding record of research, teaching, and service commensurate with expectations for a tenured associate or full professor appointment at a public policy program at a major research university. This includes a superior record of scholarly publications in leading refereed outlets, policy engagement and impact, teaching effectiveness, and institutional service. It also includes success securing external funding for collaborative research projects and other core parts of the School of Public Policy’s mission.

The successful candidate will teach in the School’s highly ranked graduate program, help build the undergraduate major, direct doctoral dissertations, and help students gain practical experience in the policy world. They will also mentor junior faculty in their field.

The School of Public Policy is committed to increasing diversity among our faculty, staff, and student body; across the UMD campus community; and throughout the field of public policy. We embrace diversity in multiple forms, including identity, background, theoretical and methodological orientations, and opinions. Candidates should have demonstrated their commitment through teaching, mentoring, or service to advancing the professional development of people who will bring diverse perspectives to the field public policy. Women, non-binary individuals, people of color, people with disabilities, members of the LGBTQ+ community, and other underrepresented groups whose hiring would enhance the School’s diversity are especially encouraged to apply.

To apply, visit http://ejobs.umd.edu, locate the position announcement and apply online. Materials sent outside of the online system cannot be accepted. Application materials should include a letter of interest describing qualifications, a curriculum vitae, contact information for at least three references, and three recent publication or writing samples. Questions concerning the application process may be addressed to Kari Zang, at kzang@umd.edu.

Prospective applicants are urged to contact the search co-chairs, Professor Susan W. Parker, swparker@umd.edu, and Professor Nancy W. Gallagher, ngallag@umd.edu, at any time with any

For best consideration, applications should be submitted by October 8, 2021. The position will remain open until filled.

Department of Political Science: Full Professor of Environmental Politics and Policy

Principal Duties: Purdue University’s Department of Political Science is seeking an environmental politics and policy scholar for an academic year appointment at the full professor level. Advanced associate professors with records commensurate with the rank of full professor are eligible to apply. The successful candidate will develop and/or lead a nationally recognized research program in environmental policy. The person holding... this position is expected to maintain an active research agenda that aligns well with extramural funding sources. In addition, the person holding this position will create and disseminate relevant knowledge through student instruction, and through engagement with external audiences. A high level of commitment to PhD student mentoring and a culture of diversity and inclusion is expected.

Qualifications: The candidate must have a Ph.D. in political science, public policy, or related field. This position requires strong communication skills, a proven ability to publish high-quality peer-reviewed research, and a record suitable for appointment as a professor at Purdue (though the applicant need not already hold the rank of Full Professor at their present institution). Preference will be given to candidates who can contribute expertise to the Advanced Methods at Purdue program through research that utilizes cutting-edge social science research methods.

The College and University:
This position is one of seven hires this year in the Department of Political Science. The College of Liberal Arts at Purdue University is embarking upon 40 faculty searches for positions to begin in Fall 2022. These positions will advance research within and across disciplines, and intersect with technology, data science, and engineering in relevant and important ways. These positions include teaching in our innovative, nationally-recognized Cornerstone Integrated Liberal Arts Program that educates students across the university.

Purdue is a research-intensive, PhD-granting institution and a public land-grant university. Political Science faculty members are actively involved with many interdisciplinary programs and centers on campus, including the Ecological Sciences and Engineering program, Purdue Climate Change Research Center, the Building Sustainable Communities initiative, the Center for the Environment, the Center for Research on Diversity and Inclusion, the Human Rights Program, the Purdue Systems Collaboratory, and the Purdue Policy Research Institute. In addition to the major and the PhD, the Department is home to graduate and undergraduate certificates and minors in environmental politics and policy, public policy, and human rights.

Application Procedure: To apply, please visit careers.purdue.edu. Applications must be submitted online and include: 1) Curriculum Vitae, 2) Recent research paper or other writing sample, 3) Cover letter of interest that includes a statement describing how the applicant’s research and teaching fit the principal duties of the position, 4) contact information for three references, and 5) a Diversity and Inclusion Statement described below.

Purdue University’s Department of Political Science is committed to advancing diversity in all areas of faculty effort, including scholarship, instruction, and engagement. Candidates should address at least one of these areas in a separate Diversity and Inclusion Statement, indicating their past experiences, current interests or activities, and/or future goals to promote a climate that values diversity and inclusion.

Screening of applicants will begin October 1 and continue until the position is filled. A background check is required for employment in this position. For additional information, contact Dr. Tara Grillos, tgrillos@purdue.edu.

Purdue University is an EOE/AA employer. All individuals, including minorities, women, individuals with disabilities, and veterans are encouraged to apply.

University of California, Los Angeles

Professor of Education - Civil Rights

University of California Los Angeles

Requisition Number: JPF06749

The Department of Education in the School of Education & Information Studies at the University of California, Los Angeles announces an opening for a position in the Professor series whose appointee will serve as Director of the Civil Rights Project/ Proyecto Derechos Civiles (CRP/PDC). The successful candidate will be appointed with tenure to the rank of either associate or full professor.

The Civil Rights Project, the nation’s premiere research center on racial justice, is celebrating its 25th anniversary in 2021, has strong support at UCLA, and enjoys an international reputation with affiliates across the U.S. and several other countries. The CRP/PDC has been very visible over its 25 years as it has produced many hundreds of research and policy reports, scholarly articles, Supreme Court briefs, and dozens of books, as well as organizing and headlining numerous scholarly and public policy events. The project is known for its focus on racial diversity research and policy, which often involves work with civil rights groups and agencies. Its mission has never been more critical as the US undergoes a massive demographic transition, enormous tension, and a renewed social movement for racial equality. The CRP/PDC is uniquely situated to mobilize academic resources to support this transition with a strong infrastructure and wide network of dedicated and outstanding scholars.

Although housed in the School of Education and Information Studies, CRP/PDC is very interdisciplinary. Active faculty have appointments in education, law, political science and urban planning, as well as affiliations with the UCLA Bunche Center for African American Studies, Chicano Studies Research Center, and the Latino Public Policy Institute in the Luskin School of Public Affairs. Students from several parts of the UCLA campus have worked on CRP/PDC research projects, many of whom now hold tenure in major universities. Currently the CRP/PDC has an excellent coordinator, a strong data analyst, and an outstanding post-doctoral scholar who will work with the new Director; a project on civil rights remedies headed by Attorney Daniel J. Lena; and a network of collaborators and alumni in many of the nation’s leading universities. The new Director will assume full leadership responsibility as the current co-directors phase out of their roles, and will work closely with the UCLA Public Affairs Institute. Many parts of the CRP/PDC are an opening for a position in the Professor series whose appointee will serve as Director of the Civil Rights Project/ Proyecto Derechos Civiles (CRP/PDC). The successful candidate will be appointed with tenure to the rank of either associate or full professor.

The basic qualification for this position is a PhD (or equivalent) in Education or a social science discipline and/or a JD degree.

The successful candidate must have a strong program of social science research that informs our understanding of how to achieve racial and ethnic equity as society moves through the great transformations of the 21st century. The candidate’s record must also meet the UCLA

America and Brown, work directly with local leaders and practitioners in a range of professional contexts to clarify overarching policy needs and objectives anchored in ethical principles, and to develop practical approaches to a new social contract that improves people’s lives. The model is multidisciplinary and responsive to the on-the-ground issues that practitioners face. It connects expertise to the needs of practice with “orient-do-learn-do” cycles of research, policy implementation and locally-driven innovation. The model is building an innovative approach to translational work (i.e. making academic expertise accessible to practitioners in real time) for the social sciences and humanities.

The JHD Initiative encompasses multiple project workstreams on themes ranging from genetic science and health equity to Covid recovery and technology and democracy. Each workstream is headed by a faculty member, post-doctoral fellow, or graduate student, often with the support of graduate and/or undergraduate research assistants and staff. The translational process involves agenda setting, stakeholder mapping and engagement, development of clear deliverable objectives, project management, dissemination, and implementation hand-offs. In addition, the JHD Initiative partners with on-campus initiatives to support webinars and programs building on the JHD research and translational work. The Principal Investigator for the JHD is Niên-hê Hsieh, Acting Director for the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics.

The JHD Director of Content & Strategy will engage in direction-setting and substantive work related to the project workstreams while also assuming overall project management and coordination from the PI. This will involve hiring key staff in the areas of project management and research, as well as coordinating closely with EJSCE leadership on hires for communications. In addition, the role involves establishing operational processes, tracking and managing workflow for the existing team as the professional team gets fully built out, and creating and managing budgets. The JHD Director of Content & Strategy will work in close collaboration with Professor Hsieh on all of the above. This position will also join the leadership team at the EJSCE and will work with the Executive Director to ensure alignment of the JHD initiative with the overall mission of the Center. As a leadership team member, the JHD Director of Content & Strategy will be responsible for internal communications with EJSCE staff related to the JHD initiative and for partnering with other leadership team members to ensure smooth operations across all domains of EJSCE work.

This term position will be renewed annually, based on business need and funding availability. The position is currently grant-funded for three years, with a strong likelihood of extension.

Job-Specific Responsibilities

Responsibilities will include:

Serve as subject matter expert on topics relating to initiative; serve as a delegate for the PI and other project leads in high-level meetings; serve on Center’s Leadership Team to ensure alignment of goals with Center’s priorities and mission. In consultation with the PI and partner project leads, identify goals and priorities; drive the strategic planning and implementation processes forward. Collaborate with faculty director and peer directors at partner institutions for specific project selection and research design; oversee programmatic work and execution of projects of the three research tracks (Justice, Health & Democracy), align with research track leads on content and ensuring deadlines are met and deliverables reached.

Develop and implement staffing plan and provide oversight of human resource functions, including recruiting, hiring, and managing staff; explore and secure strategic partnerships; serve as liaison to Faculty Committee and other contributors to promote engagement with projects.

Provide fiscal management including oversight of budget planning, and securing additional funding from philanthropic, government, and other sources.

Manage sponsored research activities, including grant applications and reporting, in consultation with the Center's Grants Manager. Develop organizational structure for the work and track workflows, providing project coordination and oversight until all key personnel are in place; manage transitions.

Interview and make hiring decisions for JHD administrative staff, in collaboration with Center staff and JHD team members; serve as supervisor for JHD admin staff (1 non-exempt FTE Project Manager position) and temp workers, as needed; assign and review work, conduct annual performance reviews and take corrective action, up to and through termination, as needed; provide administrative oversight for up to 6 JHD Graduate and 4 Undergraduate student researchers.

Provide oversight and execution of administrative functions, including infrastructure development, compliance with Harvard and FAS policies and procedures, and space identification.

Basic Qualifications

Master’s degree; Minimum 5 years of progressively responsible administrative management experience in research, academic, or relevant setting, and including at least 2 years of direct professional staff supervision.

Additional Qualifications and Skills

PhD, MBA, or other terminal professional degree preferred in social sciences, humanities, natural sciences, public health, communications, or other relevant fields. Work experience generating subject area expertise also of interest as alternative to a degree. Familiarity with Harvard is desirable. Demonstrated success leading collaborative projects and achieving exceptional operational results.

Working Conditions

*Harvard will require COVID vaccination for all Harvard community members who will have any on-campus presence. Individuals may claim exemption from the vaccine requirement for medical or religious reasons. More information regarding the University’s COVID vaccination requirement and exceptions may be found at the University’s “COVID-19 Vaccine Information” webpage: http://www.harvard.edu/coronavirus/covid-19-vaccine-information/.

Additional Information

If you believe that you qualify for at least 70% of this job description, we encourage you to apply. We know that imposter syndrome and the confidence gap can prevent strong candidates from applying to a job unless they see themselves as a 100% fit. We would love to hear from you.

This term position will be renewed annually, based on business need and funding availability. The position is currently grant-funded for three years, with a strong likelihood of extension.

All formal offers will be made by FAS HR.
Harvard University

Rank: Fellow-in-Residence

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Public Administration, Public Policy

The Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics at Harvard University invites applications from abroad range of researchers and practitioners who will work over the course of the year on pressing issues in ethics. Faculty in arts and sciences and professional schools, postdoctoral scholars, practitioners, and researchers from industry, government, and NGOs are eligible to apply.

For the 2022-23 academic year, the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics will continue its focus on the theme of “A New Social Compact?” Variations in national responses to the pandemic; disparate experiments with technology, economic, and health policies; and conflicts over foundational political institutions have thrown into stark relief different conceptions of the social compact (a phrase we use loosely to refer to shared understandings of what members of societies believe they owe to each other) around the world. Myriad challenges - including challenges relating to education, climate and the natural environment, migration, new technologies, public health, elections, racial justice, and economic well-being - call us to revisit and evaluate existing conceptions of the social compact at both national and global levels. We ask, is it time for a new social compact?

We invite applications connected to any dimension of this broad field of inquiry. We see the nature of the questions raised and the challenges to be addressed as so multifaceted as to make this theme not very restrictive; however, in our usual fashion, we will also consider applications that fall outside the parameters of this thematic description. All eligible applicants are encouraged to apply. Priority will be given to early career scholars and practitioners.

Fellows-in-Residence will be expected to devote the majority of their time to their individual projects and to participate in regular work-in-progress seminars. In addition, Fellows are strongly encouraged to participate in the Center’s programming, which includes public lectures, themed seminars and reading groups, conferences, workshops, and lunch discussions.

This Fellowship is intended to be residential. With the exception of travel to conferences and meetings, Fellows are expected to be in residence in the Boston area at least four working days per week during the term. The coronavirus pandemic resulted in a waiver of this requirement for the 2020-21 academic year. 2021-22 will be a transitional year, and our hope is to resume in-person, fully residential programming for the 2022-23 academic year.

In addition, the Center offers the possibility of joint fellowship opportunities with the following centers; potential affiliations are arranged on a case-by-case basis:
- Berkman Klein Center for Internet and Society at Harvard University
- Carr Center for Human Rights at the Harvard Kennedy School
- Center for Bioethics at the Harvard Medical School
- Center for Research on Computation and Society at the Harvard John A. Paulson School of Engineering and Applied Sciences

Applications will be invited to indicate on the application form whether they wish to be considered for a joint fellowship position with one of these Centers. If selected, the joint fellowship will offer access to development opportunities and programming at the Edmond J.Safra Center for Ethics and the partnering center.

ELIGIBILITY

Applicants must have a PhD, professional degree, or a minimum of 5 years of equivalent professional experience. Applicants from any discipline or professional field will be considered. Those who have previously held a yearlong residential Fellowship at the Center are not eligible; this limitation does not apply to former Undergraduate Fellows or former Graduate Fellows. The Fellows-in-Residence Program runs the course of the academic year, typically from the beginning of September through the end of May, and is open to all applicants who meet the above criteria, regardless of citizenship.

STIPEND

Faculty:
We offer a stipend of one-half of your base academic year salary, up to $75,000, and a research allowance of up to $3,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.

Post-Doc:
The stipend for post-doctoral fellows will be $60,000 for 2022-23. We also provide a research allowance of up to $3,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.

Practitioner: Practitioner stipends are determined on a case-by-case basis, commensurate with experience, up to a maximum of $75,000, and a research allowance of up to $3,000 for approved expenses directly related to your work, such as travel, books, and research assistance.

APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS

To apply, complete an online application form which includes submission of the following in .pdf, .doc, or .docx form:
- Cover letter stating your background and interest in the Fellows-in-Residence Program at the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics
- CV
- Research proposal
- Recent writing sample

Please note: Name and contact information for three professional references will be requested, but no letters will be accepted at this stage.

The deadline to submit an application is November 15, 2021, with decisions likely in February 2022. Please note that the application form will be saved automatically while in progress, but no edits or alterations will be allowed once you have submitted the application. Please direct questions regarding this application process to ESafraFellowships@fas.harvard.edu.

- Contribute to research and proposal writing required to develop new lines of global research on access to justice and other relevant themes such as technology, environment, migration, and poverty.
- Provide research, writing, and logistical expertise for the WJP’s participation in inter-organizational research initiatives pertaining to the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), access to justice, and environmental governance.
- Support the data analysis, writing, design, and production of other WJP research products as needed.

Qualifications: Successful candidates will demonstrate the following skills and qualifications:

- At least 5 years of relevant professional experience researching topics of governance, civil justice, and the rule of law.
- Experience with quantitative and qualitative research methodologies, particularly survey-based research.
- PhD or master’s degree in International Affairs, International Development, Economics, Public Policy, Political Science, or another relevant field, with preference for applicants with doctorate degrees.
- All programmatic work will be conducted in English, and fluency in English required. For candidates based in Mexico City, fluency in Spanish is also required.
- Superior research skills, sound analytical skills, and excellent attention to detail.
- Strong skills in Microsoft Excel and Stata are preferred; skills in NVivo, R, other statistical software, and survey software platforms are a plus.
- Ability to prioritize and manage multiple projects simultaneously, meet deadlines, and interact with staff at all levels.
- Ability to be flexible, work independently, and collaborate with team members.
- Excellent problem-solving skills.
- Excellent communication skills and strong decision-making ability.
- Commitment to the WJP’s mission and principles (www.worldjusticeproject.org).

How to Apply: The World Justice Project is an equal opportunity employer committed to diversity. To apply, please go to https://worldjusticeproject.isolvedhire.com/jobs/. Please include the following documents (in one PDF file) along with your application:

- Cover letter
- Resume
- Writing sample (5 pages max)
- Contact information for 3 professional references

Functions as a member of AU’s faculty assigned to develop and execute curriculum as well as oversee the delivery of that curriculum through AU’s multiple developmental programs to include the eSchool of Graduate PME and SOS. Participates in planning, developing and implementing course curriculum for developmental programs to include both resident and non resident offerings. Makes recommendations on program content, course content and organization, educational materials and methodologies, lesson development, lecture subjects, lecturers and other aspects of curriculum development. Subject matter expertise is in the areas of organizational leadership and corresponding opportunities and challenges associated with organizational leadership. Evaluates current and projected curricula and is responsible for continuity of educational philosophy. Ensures compliance with and facilitates implementation of higher-headquarters curriculum guidance by advising commandants, deans, directorate heads and faculty member on instructional methodologies and curricula; makes recommendations on selection of lecturers and instructional materials to be used in the curriculum.

Serves as a subject matter expert in the area of organizational leadership. Designs course requirements and instructional methodologies; produces approved syllabi; teaches in the classroom; designs, administers, and grades student evaluations; provides detailed feedback to students and documentation of student progress. Advises students in areas appropriate to expertise and interests. Guides students through the thesis process including developing appropriate research questions, performing research in primary source materials, organizing and constructing the thesis arguments and composing the formal document.

Actively seeks publication of book manuscripts as well as scholarly works such as articles, monographs, and book reviews for publication in peer reviewed scholarly journals, professional journals and other outlets. Presents results of research at appropriate conferences and symposia. Participates with other professional military education schools, professional organizations, AF/DoD institutions, universities, and colleges for professional development. Delivers lectures, conducts seminars, participates in panel discussions related to the eSchool’s curriculum and in area of expertise at various institutions such as other professional military education schools, civilian institutions, and other learned societies. Maintains academic currency by consistently reviewing professional literature.
Provides advice and counsel to Course Directors, Department Directors, and Deans on topics related to area(s) of expertise. Organizes and conducts faculty development activities related 10 research activities, curriculum development initiatives, new techniques, and technology application in the curriculum. Delivers informational briefings to visitors in support of the eSchool of Graduate PME, SOS, ACSC, and AU. Maintains academic currency by participating in appropriate professional associations, as well as consistently ensuring appropriate academic support to AU organizations as teaching and school-related duties allow or at the direction of the Commandant.

University of California, Berkeley
Rank: Assistant, Associate, Full Professor - International Development Policy - Goldman School of Public Policy

Assistant, Associate, Full Professor - International Development Policy - Goldman School of Public Policy

The University of California, Berkeley faculty and academic leadership have identified the Goldman School of Public Policy (GSPP) as a priority for growth and prominence. We invite applications for an open-rank position in international development policy. The Goldman School holds the #1 US News and World Report ranking in policy analysis, and we are committed to expanding our scholarly reach in the stated area of interest.

We seek a scholar with exemplary methodological and quantitative analytic skills, a strong record of success with sponsored research and external funding, and who desires a substantive leadership role within our Masters of Development Practice (MDP) program, along with other GSPP degree programs or centers. The GSPP faculty are highly interdisciplinary and take pride in having a diversity of perspectives that help to understand and solve public problems. We seek candidates with a variety of specializations, including but not limited to: development and resource economics; growth models, including those taking into account innovation, human capital, and social capital; linkages between investments in human resources, civil society, economic growth, and democratic stability and evaluating investments in these areas; the impact of international trade, globalization, and international development agencies on development; and policies to account for cross-border challenges, including health crises and natural disasters.

The ideal candidate will be in their mid-career stage, likely at the advanced Assistant or Associate Professor level, and thus expected to have a distinguished scholarly record sufficient to be awarded tenure at UC Berkeley, at the time of hire or shortly thereafter, along with a demonstrated strong commitment to teaching. GSPP has a diverse faculty that is committed to all forms of diversity, and we encourage candidates from all backgrounds to apply.

Candidates must hold a Ph.D. at the time of appointment in economics, planning, political science, public policy, sociology, or another discipline relevant to international policy.

Scholars should have a demonstrated record of consequential research and a clear interest in teaching in, and advancing further, the School’s MDP and Masters in Public Policy (MPP) professional programs, including through pursuit of international partnerships. We encourage applications from individuals with an understanding of, and commitment to, the public university mission, as well as a familiarity with schools of public policy. Prior policy-related work experience is desirable. The Goldman School is particularly interested in candidates who will contribute to diversity, inclusive perspectives, collegial respect, and support for underserved student populations through their intellectual voice and actions in research, teaching, and service. This commitment to advancing equity and inclusion is essential for GSPP, as our excellence can only be fully realized if our entire community shares in the commitment to these values.

The Goldman School of Public Policy is committed to addressing the family needs of faculty, including dual career couples and single parents. We are also interested in candidates who have had non-traditional career paths or who have taken time off for family reasons, or who have achieved excellence in careers outside academia.

Duke Kunshan University

Rank: Faculty Position in Ethics and Public Policy
Specializations: Environmental Policy, Health Care, Political Philosophy & Theory

Duke Kunshan University (DKU) invites applications for an open rank position in ethics and public policy to begin in the academic year 2022-2023. This position is open with regard to rank including tenured, tenure track and multi-year appointments in the non-tenure track. Mid-career and senior faculty are especially encouraged to apply.

The successful candidate may be trained in public policy, political thought, philosophy, or immediately adjacent fields, and is expected to contribute to the University’s broad offerings in the area. Candidates ought to indicate their ability to contribute to any of the following areas: global health ethics, ethical evaluations of environmental policy, or the ethical dimensions of policy analysis, in general. While not required, special consideration will be given to candidates whose research engages with the public policy literature; those candidates are encouraged to articulate their ability to teach an introductory course to policy analysis. In general, candidates are encouraged to identify what other courses they might teach within DKU’s interdisciplinary curriculum.

As an international intellectual community that encourages diversity, openness and creative learning, DKU welcomes outstanding faculty from around the world who contribute diverse perspectives and experiences to a global learning and research environment. DKU particularly welcomes applications from underrepresented groups and minorities.

In order to meet Chinese visa requirements, prior to the position start date international (non-Chinese) candidates must have worked full-time (work experience obtained while studying full-time is not considered as full-time work experience) for at least two years in a relevant area (including post-doctoral work) after receiving their Bachelor’s degree, or begin their appointment at DKU within 12 months of obtaining their master’s degree/Ph.D. and without having work experience between graduation date and master’s degree/Ph.D. diploma and position start date.

DKU is a collaborative partnership of Duke University, Wuhan University and the Municipality of Kunshan, China (https://dukekunshan.edu.cn/). Our campus provides an innovative and robustly interdisciplinary undergraduate liberal arts experience to a student body that will number 2000 students and 150+ faculty, with an acceptance rate of &lt;8% and a student body represented by over 60 countries. We also offer a discrete number of Master’s level graduate programs. The DKU pedagogical model draws on the best of Duke’s educational experience and resources to reimagine undergraduate instruction on an intimate campus setting.

Similar to the best liberal arts colleges in the United States, DKU values dedication to teaching excellence in a liberal arts environment, as well as a strong commitment to successful scholarly engagement and research. This includes research with undergraduate students. As a whole, the Duke Kunshan faculty will have strong commitments to teaching and research, and outstanding quality in both areas will be highly valued.

Candidates must hold a Ph.D. degree or equivalent in a relevant field. Research experience at a postdoctoral level (or greater) and teaching experience are desirable, as is experience working in an interdisciplinary setting. Applicants should provide a cover letter including a clear statement of the candidate’s specific interest in DKU, a curriculum vitae, a research statement, a teaching statement, and three reference letters. All materials should be submitted through Academic Jobs Online: https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/19383. The search committee also invites and encourages letters of nomination for potential candidates. Nominations and questions about the positions may be sent to social-science-search@dukekunshan.edu.cn using “Ethics/Public Policy Search” as the subject line. Priority will be given to applications received by October 15, 2021; we will accept applications until the positions are filled.

Hertie School – the University of Governance in Berlin

Rank: Assistant Professor of Sustainability
Specializations: Political Economy, Economic Policy, Energy Policy

The Hertie School is recruiting a tenure-track Assistant Professor working on key sustainability topics such as climate, energy, air pollution, transport and land-use. We particularly welcome scholars whose research covers regions beyond Germany and Europe. The candidate should combine state-of-the-art empirical, policy-relevant research with a teaching profile that matches the needs of a public policy school.

Applicants for this position must have a doctoral degree relevant for the position or expect to have this degree by the start of employment. We are looking for a candidate with a strong background in economics. The successful candidate will be appointed as Assistant Professor with a six-year clock (two three-year contracts) with the possibility of tenure. The expected start date is 1 August 2022.

The Hertie School seeks faculty with demonstrated capacity for research at the highest levels in their discipline. We recruit faculty who will create a climate that embraces excellence and diversity with a strong commitment to high-quality teaching and innovative research of interest to the international scholarly community and policymakers.

Candidates are expected to work well in an interdisciplinary, international environment with English as the language of instruction and operation. The successful candidate will teach courses in the School’s Master, Executive, and PhD programmes. As a professional school of public policy, the Hertie School’s degree programmes are exclusively at the master’s or doctoral level. This position will be based in the School’s new Centre for Sustainability, and the successful candidate will actively contribute to its research, outreach and teaching activities. Collaboration within the School is encouraged.

As a private non-profit university, endowed and supported by the Hertie Foundation, the Hertie School offers an internationally competitive salary as well as a paid sabbatical after every five semesters. We provide excellent working conditions with outstanding financial and administrative support for research. The Hertie School is fully embedded in Berlin’s vibrant research landscape and has close ties to the top institutions of the European and international teaching and research community.

The Hertie School is a diverse, international and lively community located in the heart of Berlin. We welcome all applications – irrespective of gender, nationality, ethnic or social origin, religion, disability, age, or sexual orientation. The Hertie School expressly encourages women and/or persons from ethnic groups underrepresented in German Academia to apply. Equally qualified applicants with disabilities will be given preference. The Hertie School takes a family friendly workplace seriously. Under German law, there is standard paid leave for parents after the birth or adoption of a child.

The deadline for the submission of applications is 31.10.2021. The Hertie School will review applications that include a letter of motivation, a current curriculum vitae (including publication list, degrees earned, if applicable: positions held, teaching experience, research projects, awards received), two writing samples and, if applicable, teaching evaluations. Two letters of recommendation from professors familiar with the applicant’s work should be provided.

Please upload the requested documents here: https://apply.interfolio.com/93260

For information about the Hertie School visit www.hertie-school.org.
For questions about the position, please contact Professor Christian Flachsland (flachsland@hertie-school.org).
Strict confidentiality in the application process is assured. The Hertie School is an equal opportunity employer.

University of Massachusetts, Dartmouth

Rank: Full Time Lecturer
Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, American Government and Politics

The University of Massachusetts Dartmouth seeks a full-time lecturer with a strong record in undergraduate teaching and expertise at the intersection of public health, public policy, non-profit/public administration, and health disparities (gender, race, ethnicity, sexual orientation, class, or other areas). Cross-listed courses will support interdisciplinary undergraduate programs in Women and Gender Studies, Health and Society, and Political Science. Initial appointment is for a 2-year contract, with strong possibility for ongoing contract renewal upon successful performance review of teaching, advising, and service.

Applicants must be authorized for employment in the U.S. on a full time basis. Employment-based visa sponsorship not available.

Starting date is September 1, 2022. The teaching load is 4 preparations per semester for courses across all levels of the curriculum. On-line teaching experience preferred.
Required: PhD in Political Science, or in a related social science field. The successful applicant will have a focus on the intersections between public health, public health related policy, non-profit/public administration, and health disparities (gender, race, ethnicity, sexual orientation/identity, class) and have demonstrated significant experience in undergraduate teaching. Ph.D. required by start date of Sept. 1, 2022; preferred that applicants have Ph.D. in hand by date of application.

To apply: Please send a letter of interest detailing teaching interests and qualifications, a curriculum vitae with contact information for three references, sample course syllabi, and course evaluations (if possible, evaluations should be pre-COVID). Please submit application materials via this link: http://careers.umassd.edu/dartmouth/en-us/job/507850/fulltime-lecturer-in-public-healthpublic-policy-gender-health

Completion of the search is contingent upon the availability of funding.

Rank: Postdoctoral Research Associate in Regional Political Economy

Subfield(s): International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

Specializations: Middle East, Africa, Latin American

The Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance (NCGG) at Princeton University’s School of Public and International Affairs invite applications for a postdoctoral or more senior research associate position from individuals with a Ph.D. degree or expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2022 for the Postdoctoral Fellowship Program in regional political economy for the 2022-2023 academic year. This fellows’ program is targeted at developing a generation of scholars able to analyze and make policy recommendations about the regional political economy in the Middle East, East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America. The Center invites candidates with a background in economics, political science, contemporary history, sociology, law, business, and other disciplines bearing on the study of markets, politics, and economic development, focusing on the regions of the Middle East, East, South, or Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America to apply. Scholarly work should explore the ways in which the politics within and between a set of countries intersect with natural resource endowments, market conditions, technological and physical infrastructure, and cultural biases to explain existing patterns of economic development and to promote higher levels of development more effectively. Selected candidates will be required to be in residence in Princeton or the local vicinity, or demonstrate to the program’s satisfaction the ability to be on campus on a daily basis and on short notice in order to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation for the duration of the fellowship (September 1, 2022 - July 1, 2023).

Application Deadline – Applicants should apply by Monday, December 6, 2021 (11:59pm EST), for full consideration, however; posting will remain open until filled.

Application Process – All candidates must use the online application process to submit materials at: https://www.princeton.edu/academicpositions/position/21442

Applicants are required to hold a Ph.D. or expect to receive a Ph.D. degree by September 1, 2022 in one of the above-mentioned disciplines. To apply, please provide the following:

- Cover letter explaining the candidate’s scholarly career, prospective or actual doctoral defense date, and academic interests;
- Current curriculum vitae including publications;
- 2,000-word description of the proposed research project, including its specific objectives, importance, and research design;
- One writing sample (limit of 100 pages);
- Contact information for three references, who will be asked to comment specifically on the applicant’s qualifications for the proposed research project. Referees will be contacted directly by email with instructions for submitting a confidential recommendation on your behalf. Letters of reference are to be submitted by the end of business day (5 p.m. EST) on Thursday, December 9, 2021. Complete your application well before the deadline so that references can be submitted in a timely manner.

Salary – Rank and salary will be contingent on qualifications. NCGG Fellows will receive applicable Princeton University benefits, a taxable moving allowance, and a $5,000 research fund.

For more information about the Niehaus Center for Globalization and Governance fellowship program, please contact Patricia Trinity, Assistant Director at ptrinity@princeton.edu. This position is subject to the University’s background check policy.

Stanford King Center on Global Development
Rank: Postdoctoral Fellow
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, International Relations, Public Policy

The Stanford University King Center on Global Development’s Postdoctoral Fellows Program offers fellowships to outstanding new PhDs who have a demonstrated ability to generate high-quality, policy-relevant research on critical issues related to global development.

We invite applications for multidisciplinary postdoctoral fellowships to start summer/fall 2022 for a one- or two-year appointment. The King Center’s Postdoctoral Fellows Program is intended for promising new PhD recipients—coming from fields such as computer science, earth systems science, economics, engineering, health policy, political science, and sociology—to pursue policy-relevant research on topics related to international development and poverty alleviation. The King Center’s postdoctoral fellows should expect to be active members of the community of development researchers at Stanford University.

The King Center’s Postdoctoral Fellows Program particularly encourages applications from women and minority PhD recipients, and from scholars from low- and middle-income countries, as well as from others whose backgrounds and experience would contribute to the diversity (broadly defined) of the program.

The King Center provides a competitive fellowship stipend, plus support for travel and research expenses.

Bowdoin College
Rank: Tenure-Track Position in Race, Ethnicity, and Politics
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Public Policy
Specializations: Race & Ethnic Politics, African American Politics, Latino Politics

As part of a larger multi-year cohort initiative, the Bowdoin College Department of Government and Legal Studies seeks applicants for a full-time tenure-track position in Race, Ethnicity, and Politics, pending final approval. The position would begin July 1, 2022. We expect to hire at the rank of assistant professor but will consider applications from candidates at all levels. A PhD in political science or a related field is required by the start of this appointment. Research and teaching on U.S. politics is preferred, but a focus on other areas of the Americas will be considered. Teaching load is two courses per semester, across all levels of the curriculum.

Bowdoin requires its faculty to have a promise of long-term successful scholarly or artistic engagement and a strong commitment to inclusive excellence in their teaching. (For a description of inclusive excellence, please consult the following resource https://www.aacu.org/making-excellence-inclusive.) Bowdoin College offers opportunities for professional development, a fully-funded, year-long junior sabbatical leave (after three years of teaching and successful reappointment), and regular, generously funded, post-tenure sabbaticals.

Bowdoin is a community that warmly welcomes people of all backgrounds. We encourage applications from candidates committed to the support of an inclusive campus community and those who will enrich and contribute to the College’s multifaceted diversity. We especially encourage people from historically excluded groups to apply. We recognize that recruiting and retaining faculty may involve considerations of spouses and domestic partners. To that end, where possible, the College will attempt to accommodate and respond creatively to the needs of partners and spouses of members of the faculty.

Bowdoin College accepts only electronic submissions. Please visit https://careers.bowdoin.edu to submit: 1) a cover letter; 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a description of your research plans; 4) a statement that describes your teaching philosophy and how your teaching, scholarship, and mentorship supports our commitment to equity and inclusion (https://www.aacu.org/making-excellence-inclusive); and 5) the names and contact information for three references who have agreed to provide letters of recommendation.

Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2021 and continue until the search is concluded.

Founded in 1794 on the Maine coast, Bowdoin is one of the oldest and most selective coeducational, residential liberal arts colleges in the country. Located in Brunswick, a 30-minute drive north of Portland and 2+ hours north of Boston -- connected to Boston and beyond by public transportation -- the College is in an area rich with natural beauty and year-round outdoor activities. Bowdoin’s reputation rests on the excellence of its faculty and students, intimate size, strong sense of community, and commitment to diversity (35% students of color, 7% international students and approximately 15% first generation college students). Bowdoin College complies with applicable provisions of federal and state laws that prohibit unlawful discrimination in employment, admission, or access to its educational or extracurricular programs, activities, or facilities based on race, color, ethnicity, ancestry and national origin, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity and/or expression, age, marital status, place of birth, genetic predisposition, veteran status, or against qualified individuals with physical or mental disabilities on the basis of disability, or any other legally protected statuses. For further information about the College and our department, please visit our website: http://www.bowdoin.edu. For additional information about the Department of Government and Legal Studies, see https://www.bowdoin.edu/government/or contact department chair Andrew Rudalevige (arudalev@bowdoin.edu).

Middle Georgia State University
Rank: Assistant Professor, American/comparative politics or public policy
Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Comparative Politics, Public Policy

JOB SUMMARY: The Department of Political Science at Middle Georgia State University (https://www.mga.edu/political-science) invites applications for a tenure-track appointment in political science, with a specialization in American politics, comparative politics, or public policy, at the rank of assistant professor, to be primarily based on the Cochran campus. This is a 10-month position with a teaching load of 12 credit hours per semester (4-4) of undergraduate courses in political science, typically including multiple sections of the introductory American Government course, as well as more advanced undergraduate courses in political science in the candidate’s area of specialization.

MAJOR DUTIES: Teaching responsibilities may include day and/or evening courses, partially and fully online courses, and courses taught via video conferencing; faculty are also expected to travel to teach and attend meetings at other campus locations when needed. Tenure-track faculty are expected to have an active scholarly agenda, including publication in peer-reviewed outlets; student advising and service to the department, school, university, and community are also expected for promotion and tenure. Summer teaching opportunities may also be available, contingent on student demand.

QUALIFICATIONS: Candidates should have earned a doctorate in political science, or a doctorate in related field including at least 18 semester hours of graduate coursework in political science, from a regionally-accredited institution; ABD candidates will only be considered if they will earn their doctorate by January 1, 2022. Experience as an instructor of record, demonstrated expertise in American politics or comparative politics, and/or the ability to contribute to one or more of the minors offered by the department are desirable. Candidates must have a record of teaching and potential for scholarship that warrants appointment at the rank of assistant professor.

SALARY: Commensurate with qualifications and experience.
APPLICATION DEADLINE: Applications accepted until the position is filled; we expect to begin reviewing complete applications the week of September 13, 2021.

FOR MORE INFORMATION: Informal inquires about the position may be made to Dr. Christopher N. Lawrence, Chair of the Department of Political Science at Christopherlawrence@mga.edu.
TO APPLY: Application materials should be emailed as one PDF attachment to recruitment@mg.edu with the subject line “10018053 Assistant Professor of Political Science 8.24.2021”. Application materials must include (1) an MGA faculty application, (2) a letter of interest, (3) a curriculum vitae, (4) a statement of teaching philosophy, (5) names and contact information of three references, and (6) unofficial transcripts. Paper application materials will not be accepted.

Background checks will be conducted on all final candidates.

Bentley University

Rank: Assistant Professor
Subfield(s): Comparative Politics, American Government and Politics, Public Policy

The Global Studies Department at Bentley University invites applications for a tenure-track position in comparative race and ethnicity. We seek applications from scholar-teachers who focus on race and ethnicity in comparative, transnational or global perspective, with at least one area of specialization in the United States.

Our department is multidisciplinary, built around a core of faculty from cultural studies, geography, and political science. We welcome candidates from any discipline, including but not limited to anthropology, geography, and political science, to complement and deepen existing strengths. While the position is open with respect to further thematic specializations, we are particularly interested in candidates whose work contributes to understanding the intersectionality of race and ethnicity with sustainability, health, development, immigration/migration, or public policy, preferably through comparativist lenses.

As guided by our Academic Affairs Diversity, Equity, & Inclusion Strategic Plan, Bentley University seeks to enhance our faculty capacity in the scholarship, pedagogy, and engagement related to diversity, equity, inclusion, and justice. To achieve that, we are hiring a cohort of new faculty in multiple academic departments and disciplines with expertise in DEI. This position is intended to be part of our DEI faculty cohort, which will enrich our DEI expertise across Business and the Liberal Arts & Sciences. Learn more about Bentley University’s DEI strategic plan here: https://issuu.com/bentleyuniversity/docs/de_i_strategic_plan_presentation_1_.pptx

We seek a candidate whose teaching and scholarship will contribute to one or both of our undergraduate departmental majors in international affairs and public policy, and someone who can amplify our department’s commitment to anti-racism. Black, indigenous, and Latinx faculty, as well as faculty from other underrepresented groups, are strongly encouraged to apply.

Candidates must demonstrate evidence of a continuing research agenda focused on publication and a strong dedication to excellence in teaching, with preference for candidates with classroom teaching experience. We especially welcome candidates who bring diverse perspectives and experiences to the classroom. Incoming tenure-track faculty typically have a 2-2 teaching load.

The position will be filled at the Assistant Professor rank for a Fall 2022 start.

Minimum Qualifications:
PhD required. Requirements for the doctoral degree must be completed prior to the start of the Fall 2022 semester.

Instructions to Applicants:
Applicants submit all materials through Bentley’s on-line employment site at: https://bentley.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/faculty/job/Bentley-Campus/Tenure-Track-Assistant-Professor--Global-Studies_R0002083.

Applications should include the following materials:
1. A cover letter that summarizes overall strengths, including the nature of the candidate’s commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion.
3. A teaching statement of no more than two pages.
4. A research statement of no more than two pages detailing the candidate’s research strengths and plans for future research directions.
5. The names and contact information for three professional references. Bentley will contact these confidential references for those candidates moving forward in the process.

Georgetown University

Rank: Tenure-Line Assistant Professor in Comparative Public Policy, Comparative Political Economy, or Comparative Public Management

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Comparative Politics, Public Administration

Apply at https://apply.interfolio.com/91873

The McCourt School of Public Policy at Georgetown University invites applications for a tenure-line assistant professor in the field of comparative public policy, comparative political economy, and/or comparative public management.

The geographic focus of the position is open, but the School has a particular interest in applicants whose research and teaching expertise focus on developing and transitional economies. We are open to applicants whose work focuses on any substantive policy sector, but environmental policy, urban policy, race, gender and ethnic politics, and social and economic inequality are areas of special concentration for the school. Successful candidates will teach core courses in the Comparative track of our core 'Politics of Policymaking' and 'Management and Implementation' sequence and/or political economy, as well as elective courses in their own areas of research interest. We are open to applications from candidates within different research traditions; candidates who have worked with multiple research methodologies are especially encouraged to apply.

We expect the applicant to have a Ph.D. by the time they start; the Ph.D. could be in political science, public administration, policy, sociology, economics or related fields.

Loyola Marymount University

Rank: Assistant Professor - Political Science and International Relations

Subfield(s): Methodology, Public Policy, Open

The Department of Political Science and International Relations at Loyola Marymount University invites applications for an assistant professor position beginning in Fall 2022. We seek a candidate who is passionate about teaching undergraduate methods. The department is especially interested in candidates with expertise in global or domestic public policy issues, such as education, health and healthcare, urbanization, or the environment and climate change. Our preferred candidate’s research will engage with substantive policy issues with a focus on social and group differences broadly defined (such as race, class, inequality, ethnicity, nationalism and national identities, sexuality, gender, disability, religion, North-South relations, etc.).

The regular teaching load for this position includes two sections of our introductory methods class and periodically a seminar in advanced methods. LMU has a 2-2/2-3 teaching load, meaning that faculty teach two undergraduate courses per semester, with one 3 course load semester every other year. We are seeking to hire a dedicated teacher and emerging scholar who will embrace the department’s mission of helping students become informed, analytically reflective, and engaged global citizens. Successful candidates must demonstrate a commitment to working with diverse student and community populations.

Loyola Marymount University, a Carnegie classified R2 institution in the mainstream of American Catholic higher education, seeks outstanding applicants who value its mission and share its commitment to inclusive excellence, the education of the whole person, and the building of a just society. LMU is an equal opportunity employer committed to providing an environment free from discrimination and harassment as defined by federal, state and local law. We invite all persons in the full diversity of their being, life experience, and beliefs to apply. Please read more about our commitments and our efforts at (https://resources.lmu.edu/offic eofinterculturalaffairs/).

Candidates should submit application materials via the LMU Human Resources online application portal (https://pa843.peopleadmin.com/postings/47474). Applicants must include: 1) a cover letter (outlining area of expertise, teaching and research interests, and resonance with LMU’s mission); 2) a curriculum vitae; 3) a writing sample; 4) a statement of teaching philosophy that demonstrates your approach to teaching in the liberal arts tradition, and 5) if available, teaching evaluations and/or sample syllabi. A minimum of three confidential letters of recommendation should be submitted directly to POLSJobs@lmu.edu. Only online applications will be accepted. Please direct questions to Marc Cooper at POLSJobs@lmu.edu. We will begin our review of applications on September 10, 2021 but will consider applications beyond this date until we conclude our search. A PhD in Political Science, International Relations, Public Policy, or related field is required; ABD applications who anticipate completion of the doctorate by Fall 2022 will be considered.

University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Rank: Assistant Professor of Political Science—Public Policy/Public Administration

Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, Open

Public Policy/Administration
The Department of Political Science at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville invites applications for a tenure track assistant professor position in Public Policy/Public Administration. Applicants from any area of the Public Policy/Public Administration fields are welcome, but we are especially interested in candidates with research and teaching interests in public budgeting and finance, public service ethics, nonprofit and public management, and/or organizational theory. We are particularly interested in applicants who also have backgrounds in public policy and address substantively important questions related to inequality. We welcome all candidates doing excellent work in these areas, regardless of methodological specialty or approach (including but not limited to those using rigorous analytical approaches including the tools of computational social science and “big data” in their research).

The successful candidate must have strong research skills and a theoretically oriented research agenda that will lead to publication in peer-reviewed outlets (journals and/or books). The Knoxville campus of the University of Tennessee is seeking candidates who have the ability to contribute in meaningful ways to the diversity and intercultural goals of the University.

The University of Tennessee, Knoxville, is the state’s flagship research institution, a campus of choice for outstanding undergraduates, and a premier graduate institution. As a land-grant university, it is committed to excellence in learning, scholarship, and engagement with society. More information about the Department is available at: polisci.utk.edu. Faculty within the department are also associated with a variety of interdisciplinary programs and working groups across the university, including but not limited to the Critical Race Collective; the Global Studies program; the Intersectionality Community of Scholars; and the Women, Gender, and Sexuality program.

All the requirements for a Ph.D. in political science, public policy, or related field must be finished at the time of appointment. Applicants should send a cover letter explaining their research and teaching experience, a current CV, graduate transcripts, a sample of scholarly writing, statements of research, teaching, service, and diversity if not included in the cover letter, and teaching evaluations (if available).

All qualified applicants will receive equal consideration for employment and admission without regard to race, color, national origin, religion, sex, pregnancy, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity, age, physical or mental disability, genetic information, veteran status, and parental status, or any other characteristic protected by federal or state law. In accordance with the requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, the University of Tennessee affirmatively states that it does not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, or disability in its education programs and activities, and this policy extends to employment by the university. Inquiries and charges of violation of Title VI (race, color, and national origin), Title IX (sex), Section 504 (disability), the ADA (disability), the Age Discrimination in Employment Act (age), sexual orientation, or veteran status should be directed to the ADA Coordinator at the Office of Equity and Diversity, 1840 Melrose Avenue, Knoxville, TN 37996-3560, telephone 865-974-2498. Requests for accommodation of a disability should be directed to the Office of Equity and Diversity.

University of Massachusetts, Amherst
Rank: Assistant Professor of Public Policy

Job Description

The UMass Amherst School of Public Policy invites applications for two tenure system faculty positions at the level of Assistant Professor expected to start on September 1, 2022. Under exceptional circumstances, highly qualified candidates at other ranks may receive consideration. SPP faculty research and teaching interests include international/comparative, federal, state, and local levels. Areas of interest for the search include public or nonprofit management; social policy; technology and governance; and sustainability, environmental and climate policy. We encourage in particular applications from candidates whose work foregrounds concerns around racial justice and equity (including from intersectional perspectives) within the above areas of interest. Competitive candidates should be able to teach courses at the undergraduate and master’s levels in policy analysis, quantitative research methods, qualitative research methods, nonprofit management, or public administration and management. These two position openings build on existing faculty strength and are the second phase of the School of Public Policy’s multi-year hiring plan.

The School of Public Policy offers a 37-credit Master of Public Policy and a 48-credit Master of Public Policy and Administration degree, and is launching an undergraduate major in Public Policy.

Minimum Requirements

Successful candidates will exhibit promise in scholarly publishing, a commitment to public policy and management education, and a willingness to contribute to the growth of the School of Public Policy. Applicants must have earned a PhD in Public Policy or Administration, or a closely related social science discipline, by the starting date of the appointment.

Application Instructions

Applicants should submit the following materials:

A letter of interest addressed to Professor Alasdair Roberts, Director, School of Public Policy, Thompson Hall, 200 Hicks Way, Amherst, MA 01003 USA
Curriculum vitae
Up to three samples of written work
Evidence of quality teaching (such as summaries of teaching evaluations and/or a teaching statement)
Names and contact information for three professional references
In addition to the materials noted above, applicants should also submit a one-page diversity statement that discusses the candidate’s skills, experiences and commitment to: teaching and mentoring diverse and historically underrepresented student populations, professional service that assists in achieving equity, inclusion, and diversity, and how the candidate’s past or future research addresses fundamental questions important to an increasingly diverse and global society.

Applicants are required to apply through the UMass online application system, unless unable to do so. Any questions about the position may be sent to: Alasdair Roberts, Director, School of Public Policy at asroberts@umass.edu.

Review of applications will begin on September 20, 2021, and continue until the position is filled.

University of California Berkeley
Rank: Assistant/Associate/Full Professor - Cluster Hire in Latinxs and Democracy - University of California, Berkeley
Subfield(s): Public Policy, Public Administration, American Government and Politics

Assistant/Associate/Full Professor - Cluster Hire in Latinxs and Democracy - University of California, Berkeley

The University of California, Berkeley seeks applicants for four tenure track (Assistant Professor) positions and one tenured (Associate or Full Professor) position in the area of “Latinxs and Democracy.” Successful junior candidates will be invited to join one or more of the following units: College of Letters and Science (Departments of Sociology, Demography, and Political Science), School of Social Welfare, and School of Public Health. The senior, tenured position will be in the Chicana/o and Latina/o Studies Program in the Department of Ethnic Studies (College of Letters and Science).

The Latinxs and Democracy Cluster initiative brings together units in the social sciences and professional schools to address the US-centered Latinx experience within three overarching themes: migration and citizenship, civic and political participation, and social inclusion and wellbeing. These themes speak to central concepts in the imagining and practicing of democracy because at their core they tell us about how the state distribution of political power, through policy and practice, affects a myriad of social issues, from racial inequality to health disparities. Junior candidates for the Sociology, Political Science, Demography, and Public Health positions will be expected to be able to research and teach about the US Latinx experience (i.e. Latinx Politics, Latinx Health, Latinx Communities). Applicants at the non-tenured level should select up to two unit(s) they wish to be considered by. Should applicants at the non-tenured level wish to be considered for a joint appointment with Demography, they should select that as an additional, joint-appointment choice. Senior candidates for the Chicana/o and Latina/o Studies Program search will be considered at the Associate and Full Professor levels.

Public Health: Berkeley Public Health will recruit an assistant professor focused on examining the impact of public policies on the health of U.S. Latinx populations. Health policy researchers come from diverse social science backgrounds, including public policy, health policy, epidemiology, and health services research, as well as economics, sociology, demography, and political science.

Political Science: The Department of Political Science will recruit an assistant professor with a research focus on the dynamics of Latinx politics in the United States, broadly understood. This could include a focus on political participation and behavior, representation and policy responsiveness, political institutions, and/or changes in political coalitions. Although the U.S. should be a core focus, comparative approaches/perspectives are welcome. In addition to an active research agenda in this field, qualified candidates will be expected to teach courses in Latinx politics.

Social Welfare: The School of Social Welfare seeks an assistant professor committed to multi-level practice in areas such as Latinx civic and political engagement, public policy and institutions, immigration, and the social problems associated with, but not limited to, families
Assistant Professor in the U.S. politics subfield, whose focus is on constitutional law and public policy, and who can teach a range of courses within the program. These courses could include: Constitutional Law, Introduction to Public Policy, and Seminar in Comparative Politics. The successful candidate will also be expected to participate in the College’s efforts to diversify its faculty, and will be expected to contribute to the College’s commitment to excellence in teaching and research.

Connecticut College

Rank: Assistant Professor of Government and International Relations

Constitutional Law and Public Policy
The Department of Government and International Relations at Connecticut College invites applicants for a tenure-track position as an Assistant Professor in the U.S. politics subfield, whose focus is on constitutional law and public policy, and who can teach a range of courses in both fields. In addition to an introductory U.S. politics course, the successful candidate must be able to teach a two-course sequence in constitutional law, including both an institutions course (e.g., separation of powers, check and balances) and a course on civil rights and civil liberties. The successful candidate’s research and teaching focus will also include public-policy making. The new hire should be able to teach an introductory public policy course, along with upper-division courses in the particular policy area in which the candidate specializes. These policy courses could, for example, focus on health, immigration, anti-poverty initiatives, education, or criminal-justice reform.

Required: ABD in Political Science. Candidates must have the Ph.D. in hand at the time of appointment to be hired as an Assistant Professor; a candidate may be hired as an Instructor if the candidate does not have a Ph.D. in hand at the time of appointment, but is required to complete the Ph.D. within one year of hire.

Salary is competitive. In addition to providing ongoing support for teaching and research, the College offers the following resources for pre-tenured faculty: a 2-2 teaching load in the first year, a research fund in the first two years, and a semester’s sabbatical (at full salary) after a successful third-year review.

The College’s Board of Trustees, President, administration, faculty and staff share a commitment to diversity. To this end, the College, located in New London, CT is continuing what has been a very successful initiative to diversify its faculty, staff, and student body. We encourage applications from candidates who share this understanding and will contribute to the diversity of our college community, including members of historically underrepresented groups. The College is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. Please visit our website, http://www.conncoll.edu, for more information about the College and our faculty searches.

Offering two popular majors (a government major and an interdisciplinary international relations major), Government and International Relations is a collegial department with 11 full-time faculty members. There are also opportunities for collaboration with interdisciplinary programs on campus. Moreover, the College’s general education program, Connections, provides ample opportunity for collaborative and interdisciplinary teaching. For an overview of this innovative curriculum, please visit http://www.conncoll.edu/connections/

Applicants should upload a letter of application, a C.V., teaching evaluations, a writing sample, graduate transcripts, and at least three letters of recommendation to http://apply.interfolio.com/89957. Email inquiries should be sent to Tristan Anne Borer, Chair of the Department of Government and International Relations, at tabor@conncoll.edu. Applications received by October 8th will receive full consideration.

Butler University

Rank: Instructor

Subfield(s): American Government and Politics, Methodology, Public Policy
The Department of Political Science at Butler University invites applications for a full-time non-tenure-track instructor for a one-year appointment with possibility of renewal for a second year. Applicants should have expertise in politics and/or public policy in the United States and a strong commitment to excellent, inclusive undergraduate teaching. The successful candidate will teach an introductory American politics survey course, research and analysis methods (basic research design/methods), US Parties and Politics, and other courses aligned with their expertise, and will help build an inclusive learning environment for our increasingly diverse student population. We are particularly interested in candidates who could teach an introductory international politics survey course. This lecturer will teach four courses per semester, with no more than six distinct course preparations per year anticipated.

Review of applications is ongoing and will continue until the position is filled. Applicants should submit the following to plsearch@butler.edu: a cover letter that highlights the applicant’s qualifications for this position and commitment to inclusive, excellent teaching and a curriculum vitae. Additional evidence of evidence of inclusive teaching excellence is welcome but not required at this stage. Applicants should have advanced to candidate or earned a doctorate in political science or a related field at the time of appointment. The selected candidate will be required to provide official transcripts and to consent to a background check prior to a final offer of employment and will start August 2021.

The Butler Political Science Program, distinctively grounded in a firm commitment to social justice, democracy, and human rights, engages students in the study and practice of politics to promote the collective good at the local, national, and global level. The program defines politics broadly as the formal and informal ways societies govern themselves. The program offers an innovative curriculum that crosses traditional disciplinary boundaries to provide students with the knowledge and skills necessary to pursue positive social change. Political science alumni have pursued careers in electoral politics, teaching, law, government, journalism, business, and non-profit organizations, and have earned graduate and professional degrees in several fields.
